PROMOTER TELLS OF WOES, COST OF FRANCHISE QUEST

Head of Chicago Investment Corporation Says His St. Louis Lesson Cost Him $10,000.

PUSHED PROPOSAL FOR PIPE LINE FIRM

Contract for Financing M'Knab Oil & Gas Co. Depended on Obtaining 20-Year Grant.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, April 11.—The latest attempt to obtain a public utility franchise in St. Louis has been abandoned by its "financing" backer who finds himself after a long futile effort with nothing to show for a $10,000 promotional expense except an impressive lesson in the high cost of franchises.

"Apparently it was money thrown away," said Benjamin F. Bills, president of the Bills Securities Corporation, in discussing with the Post-Dispatch correspondent his experience in trying to help the McKnab Oil & Gas Co. get a 20-year grant for natural gas distribution for which his company was to have had the contract for about $4,500,000 of "financing."

The franchise ordinance made fair progress in the Special Gas Committee of the Board of Aldermen for a time, but finally a few months ago was laid on the shelf and was one of the bills that died with the expiration a few days ago of the 1935-36 session of the board.

What Was Proposed.

The McKnab company, headed by W. M. McKnab of Winfield, Kan., proposed, if it obtained the franchise, to build a pipeline to bring natural gas to St. Louis from the Panhandle-Eastern pipeline at Bowling Green, Mo., and to either sell the gas at wholesale to the Laclede Gas Light Co. or itself engage in the distribution of gas to selected customers, chiefly industries.

Bills, who conducts a successful business in Chicago in real estate mortgage investments, was to supply the funds to build the pipe line and other physical facilities the McKnab company would require. He stated that he had control of funds of clients which could be used to purchase bonds secured by the pipe line and distribution plant provided the franchise was granted.

Reviewing his activity in the matter with the Post-Dispatch correspondent today, Bills remarked that the franchise quest had not been aided by the part played by Kelt Wilson of St. Louis, a representative of the McKnab company, who lobbied for enactment of the franchise ordinance. He thought Wilson's expenses were too high, so a few weeks ago he stopped his advances to the McKnab company.

Outlay of $10,000.

Bills said his own total outlay in the matter was about $10,000, and that approximately half of that had gone to pay his own expenses and expenses of his representatives in investigations and negotiations. The rest was turned over to McKnab, and he was of the opinion that most of it was used in maintaining what he called Wilson's extravagant mode of living.

He said that Wilson had to have a very extensive and expensive ward robe—"a dozen pairs of shoes"—and enough suits to make several changes a day, and that his hotel bills, including entertainment expense, some times were nearly $1000 a month.

Bills said that on numerous occasions he advanced money to the McKnab company to cover Wilson's expenses.

For many months Wilson, long associated with the gas business, was a familiar figure at the St. Louis City Hall, even before Bills entered the McKnab project as prospective financing agent. He was known in aldermanic circles as a generous entertainer and he was always dressed impeccably. There was a sort of big-money atmosphere about him as he moved energetically in the restricted circle of ward politics surrounding the St. Louis legislative body.

Hospitality for All.

Wherever Aldermen gathered to eat or drink Wilson was likely to drop in, and in his free and easy manner provide hospitality for all.

Although Bills is still interested in the possibility of building a pipe line to carry additional natural gas to St. Louis, he was inclined to think that the franchise move is dead. He thought some other basis might be worked out to satisfy

MONGOL PRINCES GATHER AT SHRINE OF GENGHIS KHAN

Descendants of Conqueror Brave Snow for Annual Display of His Relics.

By the Associated Press.

KWEISUI, Suiyan Province, China, April 12 (Sunday)—The descendants of the mighty thirteenth century Mongol conqueror, Genghis Khan, gathered early today for annual prayers to their ancestor. They journeyed from throughout Suiyuan and inner Mongolia to meet, in ceremonial robes, at his shrine.

In temples throughout Mongolia, crimson-robed Lamas chanted supplications for their country's release from the severest winter in a century. Snow fell steadily throughout the night.

Scores of Mongol princes braved the drifts on horseback to travel from afar to the tent village of Edzinghoro in the region of the "singing sands," 140 miles southwest of here, where the seven-century old relics of Genghis Khan are enshrined in silver chests, closely guarded by the descendants of his bodyguard.

The relics include a silver and gold saddle and various personal habiliments which are exposed to the gaze of the privileged princes only once each year.

EX-MAYOR AND ANARCHIST ARE SHOT TO DEATH IN SPAIN

Former Official Killed at Ceuta as He Leaves Home; Chauffeur Fired on at Movie Theater.

By the Associated Press.

MADRID, April 11.—Two assassinations were being investigated tonight by police of Ceuta and Seville.

Francisco de Las Heras, lawyer and former mayor of Ceuta, was shot and killed by several men who fired seven shots as he left his home. Police, who arrested three persons, said they thought the motive was political.

A chauffeur, Jose Velasco Moreno, was shot and killed as he left a Seville motion picture theater with his family. The assailants escaped. Police said Moreno was a member of an anarchist organization.

ANIMOSITY BEHIND SCENES AT INQUIRY INTO PLANE CRASH

Air Bureau Defends Its Radio Beam—Senate Investigators Try to Show It May Have Caused Wreck

SIGNAL OFTEN FADED, TWA FLYER RELATES

Air Liner Pilot Asked Pittsburgh Airport, 'Is It OK to Come In?' 10 Minutes Before Crackup.

By MARQUIS W. CHILDS,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., April 11.—Six witnesses, pilots and air line executives today put a mass of technical testimony, much of it conflicting, into the record of the investigation of the crash of the TWA air liner which took 11 lives near Uniontown, Pa., last Tuesday.

Whether or not the Government-operated radio direction beam was at fault was a question around which most of the controversy centered. Officials of the Bureau of Air Commerce conducting the hearing into the cause of the crash, sought at every opportunity to establish that the Pittsburgh beam was reliable. The bureau operates these beams on all major airways throughout the country.

But another set of investigators, representing the Senate Committee studying air safety, tried throughout today's hearing to prove that the radio beam was not to be trusted and that its instability may have directly caused the crash last Tuesday.

Reason for Animosity.

It is, to say the least, an ironic situation in which two sets of Federal investigators, seated around the same table, are attempting to prove two different things. Beneath the outward agreeableness which they show to each other is a deep animosity, and the reason is not difficult to find. It was the investigators for the Senate Air Safety Committee who brought out recently before the committee serious charges of inefficiency and neglect of the Bureau of Air Commerce.

Col. H. E. Hartney heads the Senate investigating staff. With him today was Charles H. Payne, an aeronautic consultant, who in appearing before the Senate Committee severely criticised the bureau. The Senate Committee is expected to resume hearings in Washington, probably next week.

"There is one important factor which we hope to cover next week," Hartney said, "and that is the matter of the intensive competition between airplane companies that operate the major air lines. This has a very definite bearing on air safety which has never been brought out, in that each company seeks to maintain its flight schedules at a high level, often in competition with another company flying over the same route.

Data Reserved for Senate.

"We have amassed considerable data on this factor in air safety, particularly as it applies to flying mail schedules. I cannot discuss it now because it is confidential until it is put into the record of the Senate committee. But I believe it will be most revealing with regard to this whole problem of safety in the air."

Under questioning by Dennis Mulligan, counsel for the Bureau of Air Commerce, favorable testimony regarding the operation of the Pittsburgh radio beam was put into the record by Horace Stark, chief pilot for Central Airlines, one of TWA's competitors. On the morning of the crash, Stark piloted a plane from Detroit to Pittsburgh, flying the last lap from Akron into the airport here through overcast weather, with rain and ice, like that which TWA's "Sunracer" encountered in approaching Pittsburgh from the opposite direction.

"I experienced no difficulty in making out the beam," Stark said. "On leaving Akron, I set my course on the new beam. Reception that day was very good; there was no undue static."

How the Beam Works.

A radio beam, it may be said in explanation, has been described as a continuous broadcast with blinders. So long as the pilot stays on his course, he hears in his radio headphones a continuous droning sound. If he veers off course to one side, he gets in the international code the letter A repeated over and over. If he goes off course to the other side, he gets the letter N. This is for "blind"

LAST OF KIDNAPERS OF AUGUST LUER CAUGHT IN TEXAS

"Blackie" Doyle Arrested With Woman in Auto at Dallas — Suspected of $6000 Robbery There.

DENIES, THEN ADMITS HIS IDENTITY

Fugitive Since July, 1933 —Madison County State's Attorney to Ask for His Extradition.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DALLAS, Tex., April 11.—Lloyd (Blackie) Doyle, sought since July, 1933, as one of the kidnapers of August Luer, wealthy banker and meat packer of Alton, Ill., was arrested here yesterday by police. He was the last of the indicted kidnapers at liberty. The indictment against him had been suppressed.

Suspected with others of robbing a Dallas milk company plant recently of $6000 in cash and checks, Doyle surrendered when police surrounded an automobile in which he was seated with a woman. After arresting the pair, police raided an apartment in the residence section and took another man and woman in custody, whom they believe to be associates of Doyle.

Doyle at first denied his identity, but when confronted with his picture as a fugitive in the kidnaping case, admitted it.

Clips of ammunition for a machine gun, pistols and sets of license plates from five states were found in the automobile. Police said they wanted to question the prisoners about local robberies before Doyle would be returned to Illinois.

Lester Geers, State's Attorney of Madison County, when informed of Doyle's arrest, said he would ask for the extradition of Doyle for trial at Edwardsville.

Reputed Guard Over Luer.

Doyle was charged in the indictment, Geers said, with being one of the gang who kept Luer, then 77 years old, a captive for five days in a tiny underground cell the kidnapers had prepared on the farm of Mike Musiala, north of East St. Louis. There he was guarded, sometimes by one man and at other times by two. The indictment charged that Doyle was one of the guards, part of the time.

Seven men and two women were indicted for the kidnaping which occurred, July 10, 1933, when Walter "Irish" O'Malley, Percy Michael Fitzgerald and Mrs. Gracie Adams, entered the Luer home on a pretense of wanting to use the telephone, and dragged the aged banker from his house. Fitzgerald knocked Mrs. Luer down twice, when she attempted to aid her husband.

Fate of Kidnapers.

Mrs. Adams, also known as Vivian Chase, and O'Malley also had been fugitives, having disappeared shortly after the kidnapers, quarreling among themselves and dispairing of collecting the $100,000 ransom they demanded, released Luer. O'Malley was captured in Kansas City, Mo., in June, 1935, and a month later interrupted his trial at Edwardsville to plead guilty. He was sentenced to life. Gracie Adams was found shot to death in Kansas City last November.

Randol Norvell, Nameoki professional bondsman, who also is serving a life term, testified in a trial of the kidnapers at Edwardsville that the kidnaping plan was conceived by O'Malley with the counsel of Mrs. Lillian Chessen of East Alton, who was sentenced to life.

After being seized, Luer was taken to store in Madison owned by Christ Nicola Gitcho, who was sentenced to five years. Later Luer was moved to the Musiala's place. Musiala is serving a 20-year term. Mrs. Chessen's husband, Charles, also an accomplice in the kidnaping plot, is serving a term of five years.

MISHAP TO TWA SKY CHIEF

Motor Fails on Takeoff; Wing Damaged, Passengers Shaken Up.

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., April 11. — The Transcontinental and Western Air westbound Sky Chief was damaged slightly and 14 passengers, including Johnny Weissmuller, movie actor and swimmer, were shaken up tonight when the plane went off the edge of a runway during the takeoff.

Airport attendants said a wing dipped into the muddy field after failure of a motor swung the plane around. The flight to St. Louis, Kansas City and the Pacific coast was delayed about three hours while another plane was obtained.

EMPLOYERS ARM AGAINST STRIKES, WITNESSES SAY

Portsmouth, O., Steel Worker Urges Senators Not to Let "Spying" Disrupt Labor Organizations.

MACHINE GUN SHIPMENTS LISTED

Munitions Inquiry Data Given on Weapons Sent to Centers of Impending Trouble With Workers.

By the Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Labor spokesmen told a Senate sub-committee on Labor today there was a large movement of machine guns, tear gas and police clubs into industrial centers for use in curbing strikes and disorders.

J. P. Harris, Portsmouth, O., steel worker, testified the Wheeling Steel Corporation at Portsmouth, O., was "arming," a statement that brought from corporation officials at Portsmouth an assertion that company police were armed to protect property against "thieves and firebugs," and they "will continue to be armed."

Harris said he was "demoted by his boss in the Wheeling Steel Corporation at Portsmouth for his union activities." Subsequently, he said, his employer, by stressing his need of money for a growing family, sought to hire him to work in Washington against the enactment of NRA in 1933.

Charges Plant With 'Arming.'

Last summer, he said, he learned through correspondence with a fellow employe in an outlying plant that the Wheeling Steel was arming for possible labor troubles. In July, 1935, he said, he learned the company had bought 24 pistols, supplies of gas and night sticks and was doubling its police force. At the same time, he said, the company sought to prevail on authorities to deputize the company police so they could carry arms. The Mayor of Portsmouth, he said, would not deputize the company police.

"But they won't stop with one request," he continued. "They will keep on trying, and if the City Councilmen don't repeal the ordinace on which the Mayor based his refusal, they'll be told they'll lose their jobs."

Tear Gas Sent to Plant.

At one time, Harris said, company warehousemen came on a shipment of tear gas. "Right away the men got wise," he said.

Company officials declared the shipment a "mistake," he added, although they kept the box of gas in the office. A few days later it was returned to the warehouse, marked for reshipment to the manufacturer.

"But it was easy to see it had been opened and closed again," he said. "It is my belief they took the tear gas out and put in some kind of dummies. They didn't let that mistake happen again."

"Congress must do something immediately," Harris said. "Why do you let spying break down labor organizations?"

Senator Murphy (Dem.), Iowa, expressed the view, that these "tools" of employers for dealing with labor probably could not be interfered with by Congress.

Munitions Inquiry Data.

Heber Blankenhorn, an employe of the National Labor Relations Board presented data compiled by the Senate Munitions Investigating Committee. This evidence was largely in the form of shipping orders for gas and guns from Federal Laboratories, Inc., of Pittsburgh, to centers of impending strike troubles in 1934 and 1935.

There was evidence also that some of the purchasers sought to keep their activities secret. Blankenhorn referred to a letter on May 24, 1934, from Federal Laboratories to Smith & Wesson Co., Springfield, Mass., directing that a shipment of 12 pistols intended for Weirton Steel Co., should be sent first to Federal laboratories. The letter said: "This is absolutely necessary from the point of view of the customer who at the same time orders gas equipment from us. We have been specifically requested that no invoice specifying revolvers come from us or from any other concern."

The weapons were wanted, the letter explained, because "the long-advertised crisis in the labor situation of the steel and allied industries is now at hand."

Machine Gun Shipments.

Another letter from Federal Laboratories to Attorney-General Cum-

DERAILED STREET CAR RAMS WAY INTO DRUG STORE

None of Six Persons in South Broadway Pharmacy or Passengers Injured.

A Broadway street car, turning into the loop at 8600 South Broadway, last night, ran off the rails, ploughed across a 12-foot strip of ground and crashed into the side of a drug store at No. 8614. Neither the proprietor, Edward Rosenhauer, his clerk, nor any of the four customers in the store or the passengers on the car was hurt.

The street car damaged a 50-foot section of the wall of the building and went about six feet into the store. Rosenhauer estimated damage to his stock at between $600 and $700, but declined to make an estimate of the damage to the building.

The prescription counter and several show cases were demolished. Medicine bottles fell off shelves and were scattered about the store.

MOURNING FOR KING GEORGE OVER FOR ALL EXCEPT COURT

Queen Mary Communicates Wishes to Hostesses and Social Functions Will Be Gayer.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, April 11.—By the express wish of Queen Mary, everyone not connected with the court will go out of mourning for King George after Easter.

The Queen's wishes, setting a precedent in social history, were communicated through Lady Howard de Walden, one of London's leading hostesses, at a party given at her home in Belgrave Square.

It is taken for granted that the Queen Charlotte's Hospital ball will be the first big social function in London at which the 1936 debutantes will be seen out of mourning.

The Queen's wishes in respect to mourning, submitted to 100 leading hostesses, were received with enthusiasm by West End dressmakers, florists, caterers and hotel managers. Weddings, balls and entertainments will be far more colorful and gay during the coming months than was anticipated.

HOG BITES MAN ON STREET; POLICE CHASE AND KILL IT

300-Pound Animal Presumed to Have Escaped From Truck.

A 300-pound hog, running loose last night, bit a man on the leg and led police on a chase of several blocks before Patrolman Leonard Forsting killed it with a revolver shot at 513 Clark avenue.

George Klayman, a printer, 5717 Page boulevard, encountered the animal at Sixth and Elm streets. He told City Hospital physicians, who treated him for a laceration on the right shin, that the animal ran out of an alley and attacked him. The hog was presumed to have escaped from a truck.

3 WOMEN IN FIRE CARRIED DOWN LADDER

Trapped in Second Story by $9500 Blaze at Jefferson Ave. and Russell Blvd.

Three women were carried down ladders from a second-floor flat by firemen after fire broke out at 5:20 o'clock yesterday afternoon in the basement of the Russell Pharmacy, at the northeast corner of Russell boulevard and Jefferson avenue, and spread to an adjoining beauty shop and apartments upstairs, causing $9500 damages.

The women rescued are: Mrs. Beatrice Kunz, proprietor of the beauty shop, and Miss Sue Hensel, who reside in the flat on the second floor, and Miss Anne Crowley, who ran to their quarters from her apartment on the third floor. Mrs. Kunz and Miss Hensel were at dinner when trapped by smoke pouring up the stairway. Firemen also carried down Mrs. Kunz's cat.

The fire, of undetermined origin, caused damage estimated by Fire Chief John J. O'Boyle at $3500 to the building, $5000 to contents of the drug store, $500 to equipment in the beauty shop and $500 to furnishings upstairs. The drug store was damaged by fire, but loss elsewhere was chiefly from smoke and water. The loss was partly insured.

After the fire was under control, about half an hour after it started, Chief O'Boyle went to Mrs. Kunz's flat and recovered $560 in cash which she had left in a phonograph.

Emil Jungbluth, proprietor of the pharmacy, and a bottling company salesman were the only persons in the store when smoke burst in from the basement. Miss Ella Dummeyer, a beauty operator, who was having dinner with Mrs. Kunz when the fire started and Miss Rhoena Burgess, another operator, who was in the shop when the fire started and ran upstairs to warn the others, escaped down the stairway.

Firemen arriving at first turned in a second alarm and a total of 13 pieces of apparatus responded. A large crowd of spectators gathered.

NINTH SUSPECTED SABOTAGE INCIDENT TO BRITISH WARSHIPS

Wrench Found Under Motor of Submarine at Devonport Dockyard; Inquiry Begun.

By the Associated Press.

PLYMOUTH, England, April 11. —The ninth case of suspected sabotage to British war vessels since last fall—this time to the submarine L-54 at the Devonport dockyard—was under investigation today by Secret Service operatives.

The investigators were called last night after a large wrench was found under the casing of a submarine motor, half an hour after the electrical equipment had been examined. The wrench might have disabled the entire underwater machinery if the vessel had gone to sea before the incident was discovered.

The Admiralty was understood to be planning to hold a court of inquiry.

Sabotage in naval dockyards has involved vessels ranging up to the 32,000-ton battle cruiser Repulse.

JUDGE RITTER PRESSED BY SENATORS TO EXPLAIN ACTS

Before Crowded Galleries, Florida Federal Jurist at Impeachment Trial Is Cross - Examined About Receivership and Fees.

DENIES ACCEPTING CORRUPT GIFTS

'It Never Occurred' to Him to Connect Ex-Partner's Payment of $2500 in Cash With Fee Allowed in Court on Same Day.

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—The impeachment trial of Federal Judge Halsted L. Ritter provided a dramatic spectacle in the Senate chamber today as the white-haired Florida jurist took the stand in his own defense and submitted to a withering cross-examination on charges that he degraded his office by accepting corrupt gifts and payments of money. Denying all the accusations, he strove tenaciously to explain, as Senators and House prosecutors bombarded him with barbed questions.

It is doubtful whether any criminal ever haled before the bar of Judge Ritter's court has been subjected to a more merciless grilling. Indeed, many of the questions hurled at him today from the Senate floor would not, under the rules of evidence, be permitted in a court of law. A few of them could have been calculated only to humiliate. At the end of an ordeal lasting two hours and 45 minutes, he had wilted perceptibly.

Concerning the charge that he arbitrarily placed the exclusive $3,500,000 Whitehall Hotel of Palm Beach in receivership, to create a rich source of fees for friends and associates, Judge Ritter replied that the receivership was imperative to preserve the value of the property, and that most of the affected interests agreed with him in that opinion. He contended that the total of $90,000 in fees subsequently allowed—$75,000 by him—was "reasonable."

Concerning the charge that $4500 of this money was paid over to him by his former law partner, A. L. Rankin, the Judge asserted that the payment was "in settlement of an honest debt," and the fact that $4000 of it was paid to him in cash instead of by check aroused no curiosity in his mind.

Concerning the charge that he accepted a check for $7500 from the late J. R. Francis, millionaire Detroit carburetor manufacturer and Florida real estate speculator, and bought a lot with it, he said he regarded the money—or lot—partly as a gift from a lifetime friend, and partly as compensation for legal advice.

Concerning the charge that, after going on the bench, he demanded and received an additional $2000 from a former client which had already paid his law firm the agreed fee of $4000, Judge Ritter said he was entitled to the extra compensation for unexpected labor which the case had involved.

Concerning the charge that he continued to practice law after becoming a United States Judge, Ritter replied that he did nothing except confirm transactions which had been consummated before his appointment.

Galleries Are Filled.

Virtually every able-bodied Senator was in his seat, and the galleries and gallery aisles were solid banks of Easter colors when the slight, spectacled jurist took his stand before the microphone at the clerk's desk facing the chamber. In deference to the legal requirements of the procedure, Vice-President Garner had surrendered the presiding officer's chair to Senator Bachman, former member of the Tennessee Supreme Court. Occasionally, however, he wandered in and out, chewing a dead cigar.

In a high, clear voice, Judge Ritter recited the history of the Whitehall Hotel case. Once the winter home of Henry M. Flagler, the place had been converted through the magic of promoters' enterprise and Florida boom spirit, into a hotel where the cheapest room is $10 a day and two-room suites ranged up to $50. When the first gust of depression came, its

LANDON'S FORCES TO CONTROL STATE G.O.P. CONVENTION

16 of 26 District Delegates Instructed for Kansan and He Can Count on Delegates-at-Large.

NEARLY SURE OF 28 VOTES AT CLEVELAND

Missouri Swung Quietly to Candidate by Pre-Convention Strategy of William F. Phares.

By CURTIS A. BETTS.

Control of the Republican State convention in St. Louis April 27 by the supporters of Gov. Alfred M. Landon of Kansas for the presidential nomination was made certain yesterday when the party conventions in the two Kansas City districts, the Fourth and Fifth, chose Landon-instructed delegates to the national convention in Cleveland May 9.

With the selection of the four delegates from these districts the roll of 26 district delegates from the State was completed. Of these 16 are instructed for Landon, six were chosen in conventions which indorsed Landon but did not instruct their delegates, and four were chosen in districts which neither instructed nor indorsed.

Four delegates at large remain to be elected at the State convention, and are virtually certain to be either instructed for Landon or chosen in the knowledge that they will vote for him.

Sure of 26 Votes.

Thus, the Kansas Governor can count on at least 26 of the 30 votes Missouri will have in the national convention, and is almost certain to have 28. Only one district convention, the Eleventh in St. Louis, was controlled by anti-Landon Republicans. In the convention in that district, William R. Orthwein, head of the St. Louis supporters of Frank Knox of Chicago, was able to prevent instructions for Landon.

Landon's strength in the State convention is realized from the fact that in the districts which have either instructed for him or indorsed his candidacy 85 per cent of the Republican vote of the State is cast. The districts which gave Landon instructions represent more than two-thirds of the Republican vote of the State.

It may be expected that of the slightly more than 1000 delegates in the State convention fully 85 per cent will be Landon supporters. With this advantage, Landon leaders will not overlook the opportunity to pledge the four delegates-at-large to vote for him.

It is not probable that any effort will be made to instruct the entire Missouri delegation, owing to the fact that that would be contrary to Republican party custom in this State, which leaves to the districts the right to instruct their own delegates, but there is nothing to prevent instruction of the delegates-at-large. That they will be instructed or elected only with the approval of the Landon leaders is a foregone conclusion.

Indorsement Planned.

The adoption of a resolution indorsing the candidacy of the Kansas Governor is understood to be a part of the convention plan, and it should be easily carried out as his supporters will control the Resolutions Committee, which will prevent smothering of such a resolution in committee, and they will have the votes on the convention floor to adopt it.

The Missouri swing to Landon was managed very quietly by William F. Phares of Maryville, former chairman of the Republican State Committee, and former chairman of the State Highway Commission, who was chosen early to direct Landon's pre-convention campaign in the State.

His strategy was not to ask for instructions in the district conventions, but merely to elect delegates who could be counted on to vote for Landon in the national convention. The movement in the State was stronger than had been anticipated, however, and the Landon instructions came from the earliest district meetings held, the districts overriding National Committeeman Arthur M. Curtis and State Chairman Grover W. Dalton, who had insisted that the entire delegation should be uninstructed.

The places of delegates at large usually go to party leaders who have held official positions of prominence or who have been active in party councils. While the State will have only four votes of delegates at large in the convention, frequently eight are elected, each having one-half vote. Among those being talked of are Arthur M. Hyde of Trenton, former Secretary of Agriculture and former Governor; former Gov. Henry S. Caulfield of St. Louis, former United States Senator Roscoe C. Patterson of Springfield, A. L. Shapleigh of St. Louis and Herman Langworthy of Kansas City.

District Delegates.

The district delegates from Missouri will be:

First District—Nat M. Lacy, Macon, and William A. Eylenburg, Chillicothe.

Second—Former Supreme Judge Frank E. Atwood, Carrollton, and Arthur Bollinger, Versailles.

Third—Circuit Judge Ira D. Beals, Kingston, and George C. Toel, St. Joseph.

Fourth—Albert Newman, Kansas City, and Harry A. Surges, Independence.

Fifth—Henry N. Ess and Henry Depping, both of Kansas City.

Sixth—O. L. Robinett, Springfield, and Mrs. Carl Crome, Clinton.

Seventh—Charles Ferguson, Willow Springs, and C. M. Shartel, Neosho.

Eighth—State Senator George W. Rozier, Perryville, and Dr. W. H. Breuer, St. James.

Ninth—T. W. Hukriede, Warrenton, and Frank Jenny, Union.

Tenth—Rush H. Limbaugh, Cape Girardeau, and Charles S. Prather, Advance.

Eleventh—Frederick Stueck, 3940 Hartford street, St. Louis, and Harry R. Bracy, 2934 Lawton avenue, St. Louis.

Twelfth—Fred W. Pape, 3329 Pennsylvania avenue, St. Louis, and Amandus Brackman, 7608 Big Bend road, Maplewood.

Thirteenth — Election Commissioner Charles L. Moore, 4528 Durant street, St. Louis, and Mrs. Celeste T. Blesse, 3748 St. Louis avenue, St. Louis.

How They Were Instructed.

The delegates from the First, Third, Fourth, Fifth, Sixth, Ninth, Twelfth and Thirteenth districts were instructed for Landon. Those from the Second, Seventh and Eighth districts were uninstructed, but the conventions which elected them indorsed Landon. Those from the Tenth and Eleventh districts were uninstructed and no Landon resolutions were adopted by the conventions in those districts.

St. Louis Republicans Visit Landon and "Get Acquainted."

F. William Autenrieth, chairman of the St. Louis County Republican Central Committee, who with several other Republican leaders in St. Louis and St. Louis County, visited Gov. Landon at Topeka Friday, told a Post-Dispatch reporter last night that the visit was principally "to get acquainted" and campaign plans were discussed only generally.

Autenrieth, in response to a question, said that the St. Louis group had not discussed the liquor issue with Gov. Landon. Local supporters of Col. Frank Knox of Chicago for the presidential nomination have contended that the nomination of Landon, a dry, might prevent the Republican national ticket from carrying St. Louis in November.

Besides Autenrieth, those who went to Topeka were: Fred W. Pape, chairman of the Republican City Committee; Thomas E. Nester, Third Ward City Committeeman; Mrs. Ruby Koelling, Twenty-fourth Ward City Committeewoman; Miss May Gardner, Committeewoman from St. Ferdinand Township, and Circuit Clerk Oscar H. Jacobsmeyer of St. Louis County.

TWO OF VICTIMS ON CLIPPER PLANE

THREE DROWNED, 22 SAVED WHEN PLANE HITS BOAT

Pan-American Clipper on Take Off Wrecked, Grazed Launch in Port of Spain Harbor.

HOLE IN FRONT, WATER POURS IN Airliner Partly Submerged; Two Passengers, Steward Trapped—Iturbi, Pianist, Last to Leave.

By the Associated Press.

PORT-OF-SPAIN, Trinidad, April 11.—Three persons were killed today when the big flying boat, Puerto Rican Clipper, grazed a launch in the harbor and ground-looped on the surface of the water.

The force of the ship's collision with the sea broke open the forward compartment of the flying boat and a swirl of water drowned two passengers and a ship's steward. Of the other 16 passengers aboard, five suffered minor injuries, while the others escaped apparently unhurt. None of the other six members of the crew was injured.

Those drowned were E. Roman Martinez of New York, Eric R. Brogh of London, England, and Amadeo Lopez, the steward, of Miami.

Going 50 Miles an Hour.

The clipper had reached a speed of about 50 miles an hour on its "takeoff course" across the harbor at the time of the collision. It is lifted off the surface after it has attained a speed of 70 miles an hour.

A small surface boat appeared in the runway. One of the pontoons on the wings of the flying boat hit the launch.

The 19-ton clipper swung around, out of control on the surface of the harbor. The nose of the cabin, big enough to carry 35 passengers and mail, was cracked.

Iturbi Last to Leave.

Jose Iturbi, the famous Spanish pianist, a passenger on the plane, was hurt. He said he would not be able to play again "for some time," and "I may not be able to conduct again."

(Iturbi notified his New York office that he and Miss Jean Dalrymple, his secretary, were "all right.")

Iturbi was the last of the passengers to leave the craft. He said he pushed his secretary, Miss Jean Dalrymple, out through a port hole and followed her just as water flooded into the cabin.

The musician described the scene as "a mad scramble." He declared the man ahead of him stepped on his head.

Company Report on Crash.

Officers of the Pan-American Airways issued the following statement:

"The clipper was taking off before dawn on the course of its regular run to Buenos Aires. Before leaving the water, Pilot C. D. Culbertson sighted a small boat already in the path of the plane. The pilot states he changed the course of the plane, but was unable to avoid a collision.

"The collision damaged the plane to an undetermined extent, but sufficiently to cause partial submergence of the cabin. Of a total of 25 persons aboard, the Pan-American Airways standby launch which was in the vicinity succeeded in taking off 22 persons. Two passengers and one steward were drowned."

The launch suffered little damage and did not capsize.

The clipper plane left Miami Thursday on the regular passenger, mail and express flight of six days down South America's east coast to Buenos Aires. Besides Iturbi another prominent passenger was Mrs. Maxwell Rice, the former Claiborne Foster, Broadway actress, now the wife of Pan American's Regional Director of Rio de Janeiro.

Capt. Culbertson is a war-time pilot who had more than 8500 flying hours to his credit without mishap.

Pan-American executives said it was the first mishap causing injury to any passenger in seven years the company has operated flying boats.

The Puerto Rican Clipper, like its sister ships, the Brazilian and Trinidad Clippers, accommodates 35 passengers and 2000 pounds of mail, baggage and express.

Once World's Largest.

Until the great 25-ton trans-Pacific airliners, the China Clipper type, was built, the planes of the Puerto Rican Clipper class were the world's largest passenger airliners.

Another plane was dispatched today from San Juan, Puerto Rico, to Port-of-Spain to take the Puerto Rican Clipper's passengers on their delayed journey.

Pan-American reported late advices from Port-of-Spain were that the plane did not overturn, but settled into the bay.

Engineers were expected to leave here tomorrow for Port-of-Spain to inspect the partly submerged plane and attempt salvage. They feared, however, the corrosive effect of salt water would ruin beyond repair the delicate instruments, the motors and much of the Puerto Rican Clipper's fittings.

Judge Ritter Cross-Examined by Senators

financial framework went down like a beach cabana before a West Indian hurricane. In the ensuing bankruptcy, Walter S. Richardson was made trustee for the first mortgage bondholders.

During the trusteeship, Rankin, Ritter's former law partner, became attorney for the second mortgage bondholders, and in their name applied for a receivership. In impeaching the Judge, the House charged that Richardson and Rankin connived to get control of the property through the device of the receivership.

"Action Was Imperative."

When the application came up for hearing, the Eastern representative of the second mortgage bondholders appeared, denied that he had authorized Rankin to make the application, said his clients were opposed to it, and announced that he had employed the Miami law firm of Shutts & Bowen to represent him. The Judge made some tart remarks about "outsiders coming in here," granted the application and appointed Richardson receiver.

"Some action was imperative," he told the Senate today. "The winter season was about to open, and the only way to prepare the hotel for business was to appoint a receiver. This was not an ordinary hotel. It catered to people who had money and were willing to spend it lavishly. Richardson was in contact with the clientele who could pay these fancy prices. His trusteeship had been satisfactory; he seemed to be the best man. I had not discussed it with him or anyone else. If there was any connivance I knew nothing about it. I was interested in protecting the property.

"Then here came before me Judge Rankin's petition for a fee for conserving the assets. (To virtually every Southern lawyer, virtually every other Southern lawyer is 'Judge,' unless they have a family feud.) All parties agreed that he was entitled to a fee. I didn't want to fix it, so I asked Judge Akerman (Federal Judge Alexander Akerman, of the adjoining district) to fix it. He fixed it at $15,000.

"Glad" of Agreement.

"The amount was never criticised until this investigation started. Anyhow, I am not chargeable with that $15,000—it was allowed in another court."

House prosecutors charge that Judge Akerman was "imposed upon." The imputation is that Ritter passed his judicial brother a greased ball, and now charges him with having fumbled it.

In April, 1931, a member of the firm of Shutts & Bowen informed Judge Ritter that all interested parties had reached an agreement to wind up the receivership.

"Well," the Judge related today, "I told him I was mighty glad of it. Nothing pleases a Judge more than to have a case settled out of court. It saves time and expense, and leaves everybody happy. It was a weight off my mind. He said they had agreed on the amount of the fee, and wanted to know how I would allow it. I said I hoped they could settle that among themselves, and not take up my time.

He Holds Up Decree.

"They all came to my chambers with a decree drawn up. I told them I had to be absolutely sure that everybody was satisfied, and asked them to call up the chairman of a bondholders' committee in Chicago. And right there, from my chambers, they called him up, and he said it was all right. Then I made every one of them sign it before I signed it." He held up the decree to show the Senate that Halsted L. Ritter's name followed all the rest.

"They asked for a fee of $75,000. It did not seem exorbitant to me, considering that $3,500,000 was involved. So I allowed it. That's what I did, and I respectfully submit that no corruption was involved, and since I merely used my best judgment, I am not open to criticism for it."

He next took up the charge that, on the day when Rankin received an advance of $25,000 on this fee, he went within a few hours to Judge Ritter's chambers and paid him $2500 in cash, while paying other bills on the same day by check.

His Move to Florida.

"When Judge Rankin and I entered into partnership in 1926," the Judge reminisced, "neither of us was a young man. I had been practicing in Denver for 30 years, and my wife had worn out the Colorado climate. I had to make a change. So I pulled up my roots and went to Florida to start all over again—at the age of 57." His voice had assumed a slightly tremulous note.

"We did the best we could—I found a few old Colorado friends—and we acquired some practice. When this appointment from President Coolidge came along (he spoke as if it came as a surprise) we had assembled a good library, we had office equipment and pending cases out of which I thought we should make about $20,000.

"I had brought in 95 per cent of this business. I didn't see why I should make a gift of everything to Judge Rankin. On the other hand, I knew he was in debt, so I asked him to fix a price. He said $5000, and I agreed to it. I was willing to wait until he had the money.

"When he brought me this $2500 I didn't give a though to the fact that he had just received this big fee. I had trusted him, and I had waited a long time. I was glad to get the money. It was the day before Christmas. So I took it, and the following Monday I deposited $2000 of it in the bank. That's all there was to it, and it was a perfectly honest transaction."

Then followed his narration of the Brazilian Court Hotel foreclosure case, in which the firm of Ritter & Rankin had been paid the agreed fee of $4000. After his appointment, Judge Ritter requested and received $2000 more, for "extra work." A considerable time later, Rankin also received an added $2000. Ritter described it exactly that way. Now he came to the $7500 check, and the lot.

"J. R. Francis and I were schoolboys together in Indianapolis," he told the Senate. "When I moved to Florida, the friendship was renewed. One day Mrs. Ritter and I were driving around, looking for a home site, and we saw a real estate office.

Took Money, Thanked Him.

"I went in and talked to the man. He said the lots were $10,000 each, but they had one they would let go for $7500 cash. I mentioned it to Mr. Francis, casually. A few days later Mrs. Ritter and myself had dinner at the Francis home. As we were leaving, Mr. Francis handed me a check for $7500, and said: 'Buy that lot, and build a house on it.' I was surprised, but I took the money, and thanked him. A little later Mrs. Ritter found a place we liked in Cocoanut Grove, and I bought it.

"When I asked Mr. Francis about the lot, he would say, 'Oh, just let it wait.' Then he died. I told his widow I had always considered the lot a gift only on condition that I build a house on it, and I wasn't able to do that. She said: 'Keep it—I know he wanted you to have it.' So I told her I would sell it, and for what I could get, and consider the proceeds as compensation for legal services.

"After this investigation began, I looked up the tax law and found that I should have returned its appraised value as income for the year in which I acquired it. So I made a return for its appraised value of $4000. I have since sold it for $3500—which was the very best price I could get."

He Wasn't Present.

It had been disclosed that, prior to Ritter's appointment, Francis had negotiated with Clarence Geist, Philadelphia traction magnate, over a large property at Boca Raton, which had been in litigation, and Ritter had suggested a settlement. After he became a Judge, the Ritter and Francis families met Geist at Boca Raton, and a contract was signed. Describing the settlement, he said:

"We were invited up there for lunch. The men showed a contract, and asked me if that was the one I had drawn up. I said it was. They went into a room and signed it. I wasn't present. I went out with the women and lay on the beach."

Cross-Examination Begins.

The Judge having concluded his direct testimony upon this happy note, the inquisition began. It was launched by Senator Clark (Dem.), Missouri. In this form of examination, it should be borne in mind, questions are written on slips of paper by Senators, and propounded by the reading clerk. However, the veteran John Crockett, a clerk who looks and sounds more like a Senator should than most Senators do, did not allow the drama or action to sag.

"Did Rankin tell you he was giving you that $2500 in cash in order to avoid criticism?" Clark asked. "He did."

"Did you agree with him?" "Not exactly, but if he thought so—I had waited a long time for the money—I just took it."

"When you told Judge Akerman that the original fee to Rankin represented the 'total allowance' to him, did you know then that there would be additional fees?" inquired Senator Duffy (Dem.), Wisconsin. "Yes."

"Didn't Think Much About It."

"When Rankin gave you $2500, did it ocur to you that it was part of the $25,000 which you had just allowed him?" asked Senator McGill (Dem.), Kansas. "No, I didn't think much about it."

"What did you think about the payment being made in cash?" "I didn't think anything, except what I have told you about what he said."

"Did you allow the fee and accept the payment on the same morning?" inquired Senator O'Mahoney (Dem.), Wyoming. "I don't remember whether it was morning or afternoon," was the reply.

Witness Shows Discomfort.

The witness had lost much of his earlier ease. He shifted from one foot to another, twisted his shoulders, picked up documents and laid them down without looking at them, and exhibited various symptoms of discomfort. Maybe he was tired.

Senator Reynolds: "How often have you accepted gifts of the kind you received from Francis?"

Judge Ritter: "I never was tempted before."

Reynolds was quick to seize upon the word.

"You say you were never 'tempted' before—why did you succumb to temptation in this instance?" Realizing his unfortunate choice of language, the Judge explained: "Of course, I didn't mean 'tempted' in the sense. I meant nobody else had ever offered me such a gift."

Never Pressed Rankin.

"Prior to the allowance of this fee, did you ever press Rankin for what he owed you?" asked Senator Connally (Dem.), Texas.

"I didn't press him even then."

"Why didn't you—when you knew he had collected approximately $20,000 in fees from cases that were pending when you dissolved partnership?" "I just never thought of it."

"When you got this first $2500 in cash, why did you deposit $2000 of it in the bank, and keep $500 in a tin box in your office?" asked Clark. "The banks were in a precarious position. I think most Floridan kept a cash reserve on hand."

"Who was present when Rankin gave you the $2500?" Reynolds inquired. "Nobody else."

"If Anyone Likes Me Enough."

"Why did you accept this $7500 gift from Francis?" asked Senator "Bob" Reynolds (Dem.), North Carolina. "It was a gift and he was my friend."

"Do you accept gifts from anybody who will give them to you?" "If anyone likes me enough to give me money, I take it."

Senator Clark: "Didn't you attach any significance to the coincidence that immediately after receiving this large fee from you, Rankin gave you $2500?"

Judge Ritter: "It never occurred to me." (The evidence had indicated that the two transactions were less than three hours apart.)

"Do you believe," asked Senator Walsh (Dem.), Massachusetts, alluding to the allowance of $75,000 in fees, "that a Judge is justified in allowing whatever sum the lawyers have agreed on, without any consideration for the owners of the property?" "I believe a Judge should accept the agreement of the parties when he is satisfied himself."

"Who was present when Francis gave you the check of $7500?" "Only Mrs. Ritter."

"Was anybody else ever present when anybody gave you something?" The Judge winced, but recovered enough to reply: "I don't know exactly what you mean. I have been given a drink when somebody else was present.'

There was a great deal more along similar lines, with Representative Hobbs (Dem.), Massachusetts, conducting the examination for the prosecutors. It served chiefly to show that, of the $75,000 fee granted by Ritter, Rankin passed out $25,000 to Shutts & Bowen, who had been on the opposite side of the case; $10,000 went to one of Richardson's attorneys, and $5000 to Richardson himself. It appeared that Rankin retained most of the remainder.

The trial will be resumed Monday, with the possibility of Judge Ritter being recalled by either side.

ROOSEVELT, CLEARING DESK, SIGNS 40 BILLS IN DAY

One Increases Capital of Commodity Credit Corporation to $100,000,000.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Disposing of business that accumulated during his Florida fishing vacation, President Roosevelt signed more than 40 bills today, including one to increase the capital of the Commodity Credit Corporation to $100,000,000.

Other measures approved included:

A bill extending the Municipal Bankruptcy Act from next May 24 until Jan. 1, 1940.

A bill authorizing the Secretary of the Treasury to turn over to the Sea Scouts obsolete equipment of the coast guard.

the prospective purchasers of the bonds, but had no immediate plan in mind.

He said he would not have anything more to do with Wilson as a lobbyist, and wished it understood that Wilson was not representing him. He told of one occasion when Wilson spent several days in Chicago in connection with the franchise quest, when Bills had agreed to pay his expenses.

"When his hotel expenses ran up to $30 and $35 a day I told him I would not pay them," Bills said, "and right then we broke off our business relations."

Wilson said to the correspondent, when interviewed in St. Louis, that Bills "seemed to think I should live like a clerk in a cheap hotel room. I did not live that way before I met Bills and I don't have to live that way now, and I told him so."

"I bought lots of drinks for Aldermen," Wilson continued, "but I never took one into a bar. I found them there or they came in when I was there. I bought for everybody. The factional split in the board made it hard for me. I had to buy for one group by day and for the other at night." Rather proudly, he added that he has stopped drinking, had not had a drink for 93 days, and that some Democratic politicians around town do not feel any too kindly toward him.

MUENCH TRIAL IS ADJOURNED TILL TOMORROW

Mrs. Muench, Reported Ill by Lawyer, Turns Up in Kahoka Court Just Before Session Ends.

MRS. PLUMMER LAST WITNESS OF WEEK

Judge Threatens to Fine Wilfred Jones After Warning About Method of Questioning.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

KAHOKA, Mo., April 11.—The current episode of the great Muench baby hoax—trial of the participants on a charge of criminal conspiracy—will be resumed Monday in Circuit Court here with the State going into the fifth day of its evidence.

So far the jury of Clark County farmers who are hearing the case because the defendants charged they could not obtain a fair trial in St. Louis, have not seen or heard from one of the principal characters, Anna Ware, the 19-year-old Pennsylvania housemaid whose fatherless child Dr. Ludwig O. Muench and his wife, Nellie Tipton Muench, sought to palm on the public as their own, while Mrs. Muench led the wealthy Dr. Marsh Pitzman to believe that he was the father, according to Dr. Pitzman's testimony.

Defendants with the Muenches are Attorney Wilfred Jones, who procured for them, two infants, one of which died, and Mrs. Helen Berroyer, close friend of Mrs. Muench. Jones and Mrs. Berroyer are under indictment in St. Louis for perjury as a result of the testimony they gave in behalf of the Muenches, in the St. Louis Court of Appeals, which restored Anna Ware's baby to her.

Mrs. Muench Reported Ill.

Mrs. Muench was not present at the opening of today's three-hour session and it was explained by her lawyer that she was suffering from a severe cold and had remained in her room at a boarding house here. She entered the courtroom a few minutes before adjournment at noon, however, and said she was feeling better. She and Dr. Muench planned to return to St. Louis over the week-end.

Witnesses today were Mrs. J. R. Plummer of Minneapolis, and Julius M. Klein, a reporter for the St. Louis Star-Times, both of whom repeated the testimony they had given last autumn in the Court of Appeals.

Mrs. Plummer and her husband were the real persons in whose images Jones created the phantom "Mr. and Mrs. Palmer" for whom, he testified in the Court of Appeals, he obtained Anna's baby. His testimony was that the Palmers had the infant and he did not know how to reach them.

Mrs. Plummer testified that she knew Jones, and Mrs. Grace Thomasson, whose daughter Jean, lived for a time in her home, but that Jones got no baby for her. Mrs. Thomasson, she testified, was in Chicago last July and August, the period during which Anna's baby and its predecessor in the hoax, the so-called Price baby, which died, were taken from their mothers in St. Louis.

Linking Plummers and Palmers.

Such seemingly inconsequential facts as that Palmer was born in Indiana and his wife in Ohio, that he wore a lodge pin and she a Catholic, and that they once lived in Memphis were brought out by the State to establish a connection between the Plummers and Jones' imaginative characters.

The jury learned through Klein's testimony that Jones had so described the "Palmers" in his testimony in the Court of Appeals. Over repeated defense objections, Klein was permitted to summarize the testimony given by Jones and Mrs. Berroyer in the Court of Appeals. Mrs. Berroyer testified there that she had not accompanied Jones when he took the Price baby to the Jewish Hospital last July 11, where it died five days later, and was not with Jones when he took Anna Ware's baby from her late at night last August 17. There has been other evidence that she was.

However, Klein was not permitted to answer when Associate Prosecuting Attorney Frank E. Mathews of St. Louis, asked him to repeat what testimony, if any, Mrs. Muench gave to the habeas corpus hearing in the Court of Appeals. It will be recalled that Dr. and Mrs. Muench refused to testify on the ground they might incriminate themselves.

A Bit of Horse Play.

A bit of horse play enlivened Klein's cross examination today when Jones apologized to Circuit Judge Walter A. Higbee for his failure to hear the rulings of the court on objections. He explained that he was hard of hearing because of a cold.

"Well," said the Judge, "I'll wigwag like an umpire. This," he said, gesturing with his right hand, "is [illegible], and this (a gesture with the left hand), is safe."

"Is that stop or go?" Jones inquired. "You're out," the Judge informed him.

Asked about articles appearing in a detective story magazine, purporting to tell the story of Anna Ware and her baby, Klein said he had not written them nor had his sister, Gertrude Klein. Jones said the articles were written by a Gertrude Klein.

Defendant Jones rambled ahead with his questions, asking Klein about all his activities in investigating the baby hoax, exposed by the Post-Dispatch. Finally, Judge Higbee remarked: "We're getting a long way from taw it seems to me, gentlemen."

On redirect examination Klein related that Jones and Mrs. Thomasson had both told him on Sept. 9 that Mrs. Thomasson had nothing whatever to do with the baby hoax and that she was in Chicago throughout July and August last year.

Threatens to Fine Jones.

Cross examination of Mrs. Plummer by Jones devoloped nothing of importance and served for the most part only to strengthen the testimony she had given on direct examination.

On one occasion Jones was rebuked by the court for seeking to ask the same question in three ways after an objection to it had been sustained. The question was whether Mrs. Plummer had seen Mrs. Thomasson here and if so, what had passed between them.

The court sustained an objection on the question and, when Jones tried again, remarked: "That's twice—we only rule once up here."

Rephrasing the same question, Jones made the third effort. The court warned him, "Mr. Jones, if you do that again I'll fine you."

In adjourning the trial, Judge Higbee again cautioned the jury not to discuss the case with anyone or read anything about it or its companion cases.

"It is rather unusual," he said, "for a criminal case to pass over Sunday and the jury to separate. You owe it to yourselves as well as to others to be doubly cautious. Refrain from reading about this case and do not let anyone talk to you about it or its companion cases. I'm genuinely sincere in this. If you do, you will be violating rules of court and the law of the land, and it might affect the result. So I'm going to depend on you gentlemen to keep a clear record."

Judge Tipton Absent So Far.

Mrs. Muench's brother, Supreme Judge Ernest M. Tipton, who was conspicuous at her kidnaping trial at Mexico in the Kelley case, sitting beside her during some of the crucial hours and at other times entering into conferences of defense attorneys, has been absent from this trial up to date. Nor has Mrs. Muench the battery of attorneys that she had at Mexico, where there were 13 lawyers, some of them prominent in politics, serving her, as they said, without fee out of friendship for her brother, the Judge. In this case her only attorney is the young local lawyer, Joseph L. Gutting.

Dr. Pitzman's Statement.

The highlights of the testimony so far has been the sensational evidence offered by Dr. Pitzman, fashionable physician, who was once Mrs. Muench's good friend, that she "threw herself into his arms" just after her indictment, in the spring of 1934, on a charge of kidnaping Dr. I. D. Kelley for ransom.

Dr. Pitzman told of intimacies with Mrs. Muench which began at that time and of his gifts of money, "over $12,000" in 1934 and "about $4000" last year, the advances having been made in connection with Mrs. Muench's expenses in preparing for the kidnaping trial, and in consideration of Dr. Pitzman's expected fatherhood. He said, too, that at a time when he still believed that Mrs. Muench gave birth to a son last Aug. 18, and that the child was his, he changed his will to make Mrs. Muench and the child beneficiaries. Dr. Pitzman said he had become convinced, by the accumulation of evidence, that Mrs. Muench had never had a baby. He has destroyed the codicil to his will.

Mrs. Thomasson's Story.

The sophisticated Mrs. Grace Thomasson, still youthful despite her eight marriages to six husbands, testified at length that she was to have been the "nurse" in helping Jones to obtain a baby, but handled neither the Price baby nor Anna's child. She said she had been told by Jones that it was Mrs. Berroyer who with Jones took the Price baby from the Muench home to the Jewish Hospital, and that it was Mrs. Berroyer who, with Jones, took Anna's baby to the Muench home from the home of Mrs. Rebecca Winner, the retired midwife at whose home it was born.

Later, Mrs. Thomasson said, there was a plan for her to "step into Mrs. Berroyer's shoes" and pose as the nurse, but she did not go through with it. She told, too, of efforts, after the Court of Appeals had restored Anna's baby to her, to find still another infant, which was to be put forward as the "real" baby of Anna Ware.

Municipal Opera Dance Director

MARJERY FIELDING.

MARJERY FIELDING APPOINTED ON MUNICIPAL OPERA STAFF

Broadway Producer to Supervise Dances in 1936 Productions in Forest Park.

Marjery Fielding, Broadway dance producer and dancer, will be dance director of the Municipal Opera's 1936 season, it was announced by Producing Director Laurence Schwab from New York last night. The latest musical success for which Miss Fielding supervised the dances is "Jumbo."

Miss Fielding for several years appeared on the stage under the name of Marjorie Alton with her dance partner, Bob Alton. They were featured in the "Greenwich Village Follies," "I'll Say She Is" with the Four Marx Bros., and "Some Day" with Charlie King. She also was premiere character ballerina for several seasons with Mihkail Mordkin, ballet dancer.

She severed partnership with Alton a few years ago and resumed use of her own name. Besides her activities with Broadway musical shows, she has produced and staged shows in principal motion picture theaters, including the Ambassador and Missouri theaters here, and at Indianapolis, Pittsburgh, Brooklyn, Toronto and Chicago. She was trained in stage direction by John Murray Anderson and the late Bert French.

ESCORTS REPORT ROBBERS ATTACKED THREE GIRLS

Youth Tell Granite City Police Four Men Forced Their Auto Off Road.

Three youths reported to Granite City police last night that they had been robbed on the road from Collinsville to Granite City by four men who criminally attacked their three girl companions.

The boys said they were Harry Bell, 18 years old, 2112 Missouri avenue, Granite City, and Virgil and Alvin Mercer, brothers, 18 and 15 years old, 2108 Missouri avenue. They said they were returning from Collinsville in the Mercers' car when they were forced off the road by another automobile.

One of the men in the car, they said, was armed with three revolvers, one of which they saw in his pocket. They said he slugged them and guarded them while the other three men attacked the girls. The robbers took about $2 in change from the boys and then temporarily disabled the car by disconnecting the distributor wires. After the men left the youths repaired the car and drove into Granite City.

The young men were bruised when they came into the police station. One had a split lip and the other two had discolered eyes and head bruises. The girls were taken tto their homes.

CHICAGO, April 11.—A man and a woman were killed tonight and two other persons were injured when the automobile in which they were riding plunged into Lake Michigan at the foot of East Randolph street.

ADMITS KILLING RESERVE OFFICER AT OAK GROVE, MO.

Raymond Boyer, Ex-Convict, Arrested in St. Louis, Confesses on Way Back to Kansas City.

Raymond Boyer, 32 years old, a former convict, who was arrested in St. Louis Friday, confessed yesterday to Kansas City officers that he shot and killed Walter Dale Sandford, Army Reserve officer and former commander of a Missouri CCC camp.

Sheriff Thomas B. Bash of Jackson County said Boyer broke down while being taken back to Kansas City from St. Louis, and after filling station men along Highway 40 had identified him as the man whom they had seen driving Sandford's car after the killing.

Boyer said to the Sheriff, and later to reporters, that he met Sandford in a downtown tavern in Kansas City, and after a night of drinking, started for St. Louis on a trip proposed by Boyer, in Sandford's car. Sandford wished to turn back, but Boyer said he told him that he might as well drive on, because "I'm going to take your car and go anyway."

Boyer Describes Killing.

Sandford stopped the car by the side of Highway 40, near Oak Grove, Jackson County, while Boyer took a drink, the letter related. Boyer then said:

"I pulled a .32-caliber pistol from my pocket and pointed it at him. I decided I had better tie him up.

"I made him take off his coat and vest and marched him back to a small tree. But there was nothing to tie him with. Then I noticed he had a pistol in a holster. He acted as if he was going to draw it, and I shot him in the head. He fell. I shot him twice more in the head.

Bought Another Pint.

"I removed his trousers, returned to the car, and started to St. Louis. A little way up the road I bought another pint of whisky."

Deputy sheriffs, driving the suspect to Kansas City, said his first definite admission came shortly before they reached the place on the highway near Oak Grove, where the killing occurred. Sandford's partly clad body was found at 6 a. m. Friday in a field near the highway.

Both before and after the killing, Boyer cashed small checks which he signed with Sandford's name. Three women told the officers that Boyer and Sandford appeared early Friday at a tourist camp 10 miles east of Kansas City, and that Boyer signed Sandford's name to a check there. As the men went out together, the women said, they heard Sandford mutter something to the effect that he would "never be seen again."

When arrested in front of a tavern at 5801 Page boulevard Friday afternoon, Boyer was at the wheel of Sandford's 1936 Ford coupe, and his pookets contained a billford, automobile license receipt, watch and chain and pen knife belonging to the dead man. A loaded target pistol and a .32-caliber automatic containing one loaded and three discharged shells in his possession also belonged to Sandford, Boyer stated. Police believe the target pistol was Sandford's, but doubted that he had owned the second weapon.

Boyer was arrested when Arthur Smith, 5899 Clemens avenue, a filling station attendant, entered the Page boulevard tavern and told Robert Quinlivan, chauffeur for Chief Detective John Carroll, "I have a fellow outside who thinks he is tough. He has two guns." Quinlivan noted that the Kansas State license on the machine in which Boyer sat had been broadcast over the police radio in connection with the Sandford killing. He telephoned Chief Carroll, who rushed detectives to the scene in a scout car. The officers reported that Boyer tried to draw the .32-caliber revolver as they approached.

Boyer admitted serving 19 months in prison at Washington, D. C., following conviction of robbery. Later he had worked as a newspaper circulation solicitor in Los Angeles, Cal., and recently had been unemployed, he said.

Sandford, unmarried and unemployed since his duty at the CCC camp at Ellington, Mo., expired last November, resided in Kansas City, Kan., with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Sandford, who identified the body. He was a graduate of Kansas State College.

To the St. Louis police, Boyer denied the murder, and told a story of having accompanied Sandford on a trip to St. Louis, insisting that Sandford arrived here with him. He said they separted here, and that, at Sandford's request, he took charge of Sandford's car, pistol and other articels until Sandford should call for them. He continued to deny the murder when confronted by the St. Louis police with the circumstantial evidence, which, he admitted, was "enough to hang me."

Sandford's suit, stripped from his body, was traded for gasoline at a filling station in Higginsville, Mo., police learned. His overcoat was left at a Boonville filling station, where a man driving a new coupe cashed a $2 check.

FORMER GOVERNOR YATES OF ILLINOIS DIES AT 75

Also Served in Congress; Father Was State's Chief Executive in Civil War.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 11.—Richard Yates, who served as Governor of Illinois from 1901 to 1905, died here tonight.

He was 75 years old and had been in ill health for some time.

Yates, as a lawyer, judge and Congressman, had a long career in Republican politics.

He was born at Jacksonville, Ill., in 1860, the son of Richard Yates, Civil War Governor of Illinois.

His father also served a term as United States Senator.

From 1897 to 1900, Yates served as United States Collector of Internal Revenue at Springfield. In 1901 he was elected Governor.

In 1919 he was elected as Congressman-at-Large from Illinois. He served seven consecutive terms, being defeated in the Democratic landslide of 1932.

KANSAS CITY, April 11.—A dynamite bomb which police said exploded about 10:20 o'clock tonight damaged the front entrance and shattered most of the front windows of East High School here.

Police reports were that the bomb was planted outside the building. The three main front doors were blown in.

COURT CENSURES TWO LAWYERS IN SILICOSIS CASES

W. H. Corcoran Jr. and T. W. Carlos of St. Louis Told They Are Guilty of "Gross Misconduct."

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

HANNIBAL, Mo., April 11.—"By your admissions you stand convicted of gross misconduct," Circuit Judge E. L. Alford today told William H. Corcoran Jr., and Thomas W. Carlos, St. Louis lawyers, after they had admitted soliciting personal injury damage suits from employes and former employes of the Universal Atlas Cement Co. here.

The attorneys were censured by the Court on the recommendation of Frank Hollingsworth of Mexico, representing the Bar Committee of the Tenth Judicial Circuit, after disbarment proceeding were withdrawn and an amended information charging them with unprofessional conduct was substituted by the Bar Committee.

"Conduct such as yours is an offense to both bench and bar," Judge Alford said. "It is calculated to bring into disrepute our noble plan of administration of justice. You may perceive that this prosecution is not the action of a few lawyers, nor an individual judge, but it is the concerted action of the whole Missouri bar and a censure of the judiciary of the State."

Expected to Be "Decent."

Admitting that the public may not understand a canon of ethics, the Court stated that the public, nevertheless, expected lawyers "to be decent and honorable."

"To meet an intolerable condition and to protect the courts, every process of which must be kept pure and undefiled, and to protect lawyers, officers of the courts, the Missouri Supreme Court adopted rules regulating the practice of law," he added.

The Court pointed out that a recent promulgation of these rules by the Supreme Court had furnished for the first time in Missouri an authoritative definition of professional misconduct and a practical method of correction.

"You stand before this Court charged by information filed by the Bar Committee with unprofessional conduct," Judge Alford explained. "The information was filed after preliminary investigation of the charges, followed by a formal hearing before the committee, of which you had due notice and with full opportunity to be heard and produce evidence, if any you had. On both occasions the committee by unanimous vote found you guilty. The next step was the filing of the information in this court embodying the charges of misconduct, of which the committee had found you guilty.

Induced Filing of Claims.

"The information charges you with unprofessional conduct in that you solicited, procured and induced certain persons to file claims and suits for damages for personal injuries against the employers and former employers of such persons and that you solicited and induced such claimants to employ you to prosecute such claims and suits.

"By your own confessions you stand convicted of gross misconduct. It is unprofessional for a lawyer to volunteer, advise, to bring a suit, stirring up strife and litigation. It is not only unprofessional but it is indictable at common law. It is disreputable to hunt up defects in titles or other causes of action and inform thereof in order to be employed to bring suit."

Corcoran resides at 6108 Washington boulevard and has offices in the Wainwright Building in a suite occupied also by Carlos. He has practiced law here about 11 years. Carlos lives at 5514 Pershing avenue and has been a member of the bar since 1919.

The disbarment suit, filed last February at Hannibal, alleged that both lawyers solicited personal injury claims through agents and that Corcoran solicited some of the claims personally. About 20 employes and former employes of the Universal Atlas Cement Co. were named in the Bar Committee petition as having been solicited in silicosis damage suits against the company. Corcoran and Carlos filed 49 damage suits on behlaf of claimants against the company, it was alleged.

FUGITIVE ARRESTED

LLOYD (BLACKIE) DOYLE

NIGHT PROWLER SOUGHT IN MURDER OF WRITER

Seen Recently in Building Where Woman Was Attacked and Strangled.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 11.—Police investigating the murder of Mrs. Nancy Evans Titterton, 34-year-old writer, tonight sought for questioning a young man who was seen in the apartment building in which Mrs. Titterton lived, in the early morning hours last week.

Mrs. Titterton's body was found in the bathtub of her apartment. An autopsy disclosed she had been criminally attacked and had died of "manual strangulation." She was the wife of Lewis H. Titterton, an executive of the National Broadcasting Co.

Countess Alice Hoyos, who occupies the apartment below the Tittertons', told police a strange young man had called at her door last Friday, had mumbled something about a girl and had gone away.

The same man, well-dressed, had called at her apartment the previous night, police learned. On that occasion the door was opened by Miss Phyllis Stafford, who shares the apartment with the Countess and her mother. Miss Stafford said the caller mumbled the name of a man and then left.

The body of Mrs. Titterton was found at 4 p. m. yesterday by two drivers for an upholstery firm, who found the door unlocked and went in when no one answered when they arrived to deliver a couch.

The body was clad only in a slip and rolled down stockings. A pink pajama top and a red blouse were knotted tightly about the neck and there were bruises on the wrists indicating the woman's hands had been tied. Detectives found a piece of cord with which they said she may have been tied to a bedpost.

Although the tub was empty of water, officials said the body was moist. Acting Chief Medical Examiner Thomas A. Gonzales said there was no water in the lungs.

Titterton, head of the broadcasting company's literary rights department, was at his office when the crime was discovered.

A delivery boy for a tailor shop told investigators he had rung the bell of the Titterton apartment several times at 11:30 yesterday morning—the hour Mrs. Titterton is believed to have been killed. He left without getting a response. Police suggested the ringing of the bell may have startled Mrs. Titterton's attacker and caused him to strangle her.

EQUALIZERS CUT REALTY VALUATION IN CITY $495,550

Board Ends Session After Allowing Reduction of $353,200 on Buildings, $142,350 on Land.

117 OF 217 PLEAS ARE TURNED DOWN

Action Leaves Total Property Valuation $982,287,930, Against $1,294,480,000 Last Year.

A net reduction of $495,550 in the real estate assessment for 1936 taxes was made by the City Board of Equalization, which closed its annual four-week session yesterday.

The board received 217 appeals from real estate assessments made by Assessor Ralph W. Coale, but rejected 117 of them, making decreases in the other 100. The cut was $353,200 on buildings and $142,350 on land.

Following the changes made by the board, the real estate and personal property assessment for this year was $982,287,930, of which $896,130,620 was on realty, $17,836,800 on banks and $68,320,510 on other personal property. In comparison, last year's figures were: Total, $1,294,480,000; realty, $917,263,570; banks, $16,885,780; other personal property, $66,145,130.

Tax Decrease Partly Offset.

The reduction of $21,132,950 in real estate valuation from last year will result in a decrease of about $585,000 in the tax levy for the city, State and schools, at last year's tax rates, but this will be partly offset by the increase of $3,126,400 in assessment of banks and other personal property.

Assessment of the banks, as a portion of the general division of personal property, was on virtually the same basis as last year. An effort to assess the stock in the RFC held by banks was dropped.

Two increases of personal property valuation returns were made, on citations by the Assessor. Furniture of the Auditorium Hotel, Eighteenth and Pine streets, was raised from $6750 to $26,750. Property of the International Business Machine Corporation, 1610 Locust street, was raised from $29,470 to $103,000, to cover 340 billing machines rented to business establishments.

The board, in a resolution, called attention to a considerable volume of property owned by the city but not used for municipal purposes, which was exempt from taxation, and urged that it be sold. The Assessor's office lacked figures on the extent of property involved, much of which has consisted of odd-shaped portions of lots left over in connection with acquisition of right-of-way for street widening and opening.

Cuts of More Than $5000.

Reductions of more than $5000 in real estate assessments were:

George D. Barnard Stationery Co., Vandeventer and Laclede avenues, $110,000 to $70,000.

Emerson Electric Manufacturing Co., 2018 Washington avenue, $325,000 to $305,000.

Garage at Seventh street and Delmar boulevard, leased by Motor Terminal Co., $90,000 to $85,000; garages at Seventh and Walnut streets and at Broadway and Walnut, leased by the Associated Garages, $145,000 to $140,000 and $95,000 to $90,000, respectively. The fee in each case is held by the St. Louis Union Trust Co., but the lessees pay the taxes.

Merchants' Exchange Building, Third and Olive streets, $125,000 to $95,000.

Lubrite Refining Corporation, 4140 Lindell boulevard, $120,000 to $95,000.

American Hotel and Theater building, $315,000 to $295,000 on the structure and a cut of $31,980 on the land.

Adjacent apartment buildings owned by Isadore Doepelt in the 5400 block of Cabanne avenue, from $36,000 to $33,000 each.

Poro College, 4300 St. Ferdinand avenue, owned by Mrs. Annie M. Malone, Negro, $150,000 to $135,000.

Commercial Building, southeast corner of Sixth and Olive streets, a net reduction of $25,000, made up from a $40,000 decrease on the land and a $15,000 increase on the building.

Ford Motor Co., Sarah street and Forest Park avenue, $436,450 to $427,670.

Amfesco Investment Co., loft building at 2300 Locust street, $210,000 to $195,000.

Studio structure, 3622 Olive street, owned by John J. Rabbitt, $33,500 to $24,000.

Eden Publishing Co., 1716-18 Chouteau avenue, $148,750 to $143,750.

Walsh oMtor Car Co., 5127-35 Delmar boulevard, $57,000 to $52,000.

Jefferson-Gravois Bank, Jefferson and Gravois avenue, $130,000 to $100,000.

Reasons Given for Changes.

Obsolescence was the explanation of many of the reductions, while in other cases it was believed that buildings were of specialized types, which adversely affected their general value. In several cases the board thought the land had been valued too highly by the Assessor or the general value was figured excessively.

In the case of the Commercial Building the valuation of the corner 50 feet frontage on Olive at Sixth was cut from $6000 to $5500 a front foot and that of the remaining 77½ feet on Olive from $3500 to $3300 a front foot.

Members of the board, appointed by Mayor Dickmann, were: Assessor Coale, chairman ex-officio; Otto W. Hammer, lawyer; Arthur C. Hoehn, Louis Maginn and Arthur A. Schneider, real estate dealers.

Zoo's Baby Camel on Exhibit Today

THE birth, Feb. 28, of this dromedary to Floyd and Mary, old-time inhabitants of the Zoo, was announced yesterday by Director George P. Vierheller. The young camel, which has been named Pumpkin, will be on exhibit today for the first time, if the weather is good. It has been fed on a bottle since its birth, which was premature, and has thrived, gaining a pound a day and four inches in height. It is the fifth camel in the Zoo.

USED CAR DEALER PLEADS GUILTY UNDER THE DYER ACT

Harvey Miller, 2538W Dodier street, a former dealer in used cars, pleaded guilty yesterday before Federal Judge George H. Moore to an indictment charging him and nine other defendants with transporting stolen automobiles between St. Louis and Iowa towns in violation of the Dyer act.

Sentencing of Miller was deferred at the request of Assistant United States Attorney Henry G. Morris, who told the Court that Miller would be used as a witness against the other defendants, scheduled for trial before Judge Moore tomorrow. The indictment charged the defendants with operating as a ring, and listed 22 stolen automobiles, which, it was stated, were transported to Iowa.

$799,000,000 TAX BILL BY APRIL 21, MAYBE, HILL SAYS

House Subcommittee Working on Methods to Plug Tax-Dodging Leaks in Measure.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—A prediction that it would be luck if a tax bill reached the floor of the House before April 21, was made today by Representative Hill (Dem.), Washington, chairman of a subcommittee working on the $799,000,000 tax bill. There were many difficulties to be overcome, he said.

Democrats on the House Ways and Means tax subcommittee agreed to tax certain kinds of corporation dividends paid in the form of stock rather than in cash, a move designed to block one potential avenue of avoidance of taxes.

Stock Dividend Levy.

Studying the income tax amendment to the Constitution and a Supreme Court ruling that stock dividends are not income and hence not taxable, the subcommittee agreed that stock dividends which altered the interest of a stockholder in a corporation would not fall within the scope of the court decision.

What the yield would be from income taxes on such dividends was uncertain. Hill said: "We'll catch a lot if they (the corporation) don't change their methods."

Hill said the Democratic members also agreed that taxes could be assessed when a corporation offered stockholders:

1. A choice of a dividend in cash or stock.
2. Obligations such as bonds, or promises to pay, in steady of cash.
3. Dividends in kind, such as property, or products of the corporation.

Dodging Algebraic Formula.

The sub-committee decided to round out the tax schedules so corporations would not have to use an algebraic formula to find out how much money must be paid the Government.

Hill said no decision had been reached on the question of how to prevent avoidance of taxes by pyramiding corporations, with one corporation declaring all its earnings in dividends to a parent firm, and the parent continuing the process to a still higher company.

The decision to tax stock dividends where possible was based on the idea that corporations, especially those with few stockholders, would distribute large blocks of stock as a means of holding down their taxes.

Under the revenue plan, corporate income would be taxed according to percentages of income withheld from distribution, while dividends to stockholders would be taxed under normal and surtaxes under the individual income schedules.

(The program contemplates raising $591,000,000 from the new corporate tax system, $100,000,000 from a "windfall" tax on processors to recapture unpaid or refunded AAA processing levies, $83,000,000 from temporary retention of capital stock and excess profits taxes, and $25,000,000 from imposts on corporation dividends to foreigners).

Coincidentally, the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, the most vigorous critic of the revenue plan at hearings before the full Ways and Means Committee, asserted there was evidence in the Senate of "growing sentiment against the experimental plan, largely because of doubts as to its yield."

In its weekly Washington review the Chamber said it was believed "that an increasing number of Senators favor retention of the present corporate tax system, supplemented by a moderate tax on undistributed corporate earnings."

A proposal along that line by Representative Lewis (Dem.), Maryland, was beaten in the House Committee.

TWO UNIVERSITY CITY DOGS DIE; APPARENTLY POISONED

Strychnine Found in Frankfurter Picked Up Near Home of One Owner.

Alex V. Fausek, 7401 Gannon avenue, reported to University City police yesterday that within the last week his dog and the dog of a neighbor, Julius A. Kayser, 7435 Gannon, had been killed, apparently by strychnine poisoning. Fausek's dog was a Lewellin setter and Kayser's a terrier.

Fausek said that yesterday his daughter found a small piece of frankfuerter near his house which, when analyzed by a chemist, was found to contain strychnine.

RUSSIA CUTS OFF SUBSIDIES TO HEAVY INDUSTRIES

Reduced Production Cost Makes It Desirable, Decree Says; Coal, Iron, Timber and Cement Affected.

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, April 11.—Several of the most important branches of heavy industry were thrown on their own resources tonight by a decision of the Soviet Government to withdraw State subsidies. The decree said that a decrease in the cost of production made the change desirable.

The industries involved are coal, peat, iron ore, ferrous and nonferrous metal, part of the chemical industry, cement, timber and some machinery-producing industries.

The decree promised the current year would show a further reduction in production costs.

BOMB KILLS TWO CHILDREN BEFORE U. S. CONSULATE

Explodes at Door at Santiago, Cuba, When Youngsters Find It and Toss It Around.

By the Associated Press.

SANTIAGO, Cuba, April 11.—Two deaths in five bomb explosions here in 24 hours were followed tonight by a police roundup of suspects. Seven persons were arrested, charged with terrorism.

A bomb was exploded at the door of the United States Consulate last night. William P. Blocker, United States Consul, said he could not guess the motive for the bombing. He asked the Chief of Police to furnish protection for the building.

Two 10-year-old children, Armelio Trinchet and Armando Garcia Bargallo, died shortly after the bomb, which they found, exploded as they were tossing it around.

The main door of the consulate was damaged. The explosion there was the second in about a year, the previous one also having caused little damage.

A short time later a bomb burst in the home of Postmaster Pelayo Recio. No one was injured there.

The bomb explosions followed Good Friday services which Provisional President Jose A. Barnet came here to attend.

Commander C. M. Cooke, commandant of the Guantanamo United States naval base, is expected to come here aboard a destroyer to participate in a reception in honor of President Barnet. Extra details of police will be provided.

St. Louis Observes Easter With Eye on the Weather

Four Sunrise Services, Flower Displays, Egg Hunts and Usual Fashion Parade.

St. Louis' Easter, outdoors, will be what today's weather makes it, plus what scores of costumers and thousands of their customers have contributed to make it.

Indoors, this Easter will be a festival of flowers, music and the new clothes that appear under shelter, even when they must be covered in the open. But with "fair and warmer" weather forecast officially, it appeared last night that there would be no occasion to cover or leave at home any of the new clothing of which, to judge from scenes in downtown stores in recent days, a great deal has been purchased.

Sunrise services begin with 5:28 a. m., the moment of actual sunrise, set for the opening of the Metropolitan Church Federation's service in Municipal Theater. Other outdoor services are those of the Christian Endeavor Union in Tower Grove Park, near the Grand boulevard entrance, at 6; Carondelet churches and the Sixth United States Infantry, at Jefferson Barracks at 6; and the young people of Union Avenue Christian Church, behind the Art Museum in Forest Park, at 7. Special street car and bus service has been arranged for those attending all the services.

Jewel Box Open Early.

Because so many persons will be abroad in the park early, the Jewel Box in Forest Park, with its Easter display of lilies, roses, tulips and hyacinths, will be opened to the public at 5 a. m. It will remain open until 5 p. m.

At Shaw's Garden, open from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m., besides the usual abundant spring floral display, a new hybrid super-double nasturtium will be shown for the first time. This new form, with 40 to 50 petals in a close cluster, is arranged in a group with two other forms, the five-petal single and the double, or Golden Gleam, averaging 10 petals. The new form was developed by a Philadelphia concern.

The remainder of the Shaw's Garden display will include azaleas, Cinerarias, yellow and white daisies, begonias and snapdragons.

Baptism in River.

An Easter morning event annually witnessed by many persons, is the baptizing of Negro candidates for membership in Pleasant Green Baptist Church, 1001 Elliot avenue. This will take place at 9:30 a. m. at the Chestnut street front of the Mississippi River. Twenty-four men and six women are scheduled to receive the rite of baptism, with nearly an equal number, the pastor and deacons of the congregation, officiating.

The Easter motor parade will begin between 10 and 11 a. m., before the beginning of the principal services of the day in most of the larger churches; will continue after church, and through the afternoon, dependent to some extent on weather. The Lindell entrance of Forest Park is usually the center of this display of cars and clothing, and of the simultaneous parade on foot.

Children leaving Sunday schools will go, in many cases, to public parks for the egg hunt, with colored eggs and several $1 prizes for the finders of golden eggs. City firemen are sponsors of these contests, which, with their starting times in the various parks, are: 11:45 a. m., Waterworks, Hyde, Carr, Sherman, Lyon and Sublette, and Broadway Square; 12:30 p. m., Forest Park on Oakland avenue between Graham street and Childress avenue, Lafayette and O'Fallon parks.

Services in Churches.

Morning church services begin with masses as early as 5:30 a. m. in several Catholic churches. At St. Anthony's Church, Meramec street and Compton avenue, the first mass will be at 4:45. At St. Louis Cathedral, Archbishop Glennon will officiate at pontifical high mass at 11, and the sermon will be by the Rev. Father Emmanuel, C. P. At Christ Church Cathedral, Episcopal, the preacher will be Dean Sweet. Most of the larger churches will have reinforced choirs or instrumental supplements to their musical services.

Two Masonic observances of Easter will take place this afternoon. At the 3 o'clock service in Scottish Rite Cathedral, 3637 Lindell boulevard, to which the public is invited, the Rev. C. E. Street of First Methodist Church, Webster Groves, will speak. The Scottish Rite Choir and a women's chorus, under direction of O. Wade Fallert, will furnish music. At the same hour, in the Masonic Temple, Lindell and Spring avenue, the annual observance of the Knights Templar will be held, with sermon by the Rev. Harold L. Reader of Webster Groves Baptist Church.

The Easter period is also that of the Jewish Passover, or Pesach, and services will be held this evening, as well as tomorrow and Tuesday, in Orthodox Jewish synagogues. The eight-day period ends Tuesday.

EMPLOYERS ARM AGAINST STRIKES, WITNESSES SAY

mings on June 26, 1934, asked about the attitude of the Department of Justice toward the delivery of machine guns to Cudahy Packing Co., Newport, Minn.; Gulf State Steel Co., Birmingham, Ala.; Republic Steel Co., Youngstown, Ohio; Southern Natural Gas Co., Birmingham, Ala., and Tennessee Coal, Iron & Railroad Co., Birmingham, Ala.

In addition, Blankenhorn put in the record a list of industrial cities such as Detroit, Bethlehem, Pa.; Boston, Denver and Atlantic City whose officials, he said, had purchased thousands of dollars worth of gas and guns from Federal Laboratories.

"These things are a part of the cause of unrest," Blankenhorn testified. When they learn of these secret armaments, he told the committee, "the men get the feeling they are at war with their employers."

Preceding Blankenhorn on the stand, John M. Carmody of the National Labor Relations' Board declared it was "generally rumored" that "the Ford Motor Co. is shot through" with labor spies to report any union activities to their employers.

Armed Against Thieves, Wheeling Steel Manager Says.

By the Associated Press.

PORTSMOUTH, O., April 11.—Officials of the Portsmouth works of the Wheeling Steel Corporation scoffed today at testimony given the Senate Labor Committee at Washington that the plant is "arming" against labor trouble.

"We have had private plant police for years, just as every other large industry in the United States, as well as many merchants," said C. C. Caudill, general manager. "These men are armed to protect company property against thieves and firebugs, and they will continue to be armed."

Caudill denied an assertion by J. P. Harris, Portsmouth steel workers who testified before the committee, that the company had tear gas on hand.

Seller of Gas and Guns Denies Weapons Were Used.

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., April 11.—John A. Young, president of the Federal Laboratories, Inc., said tonight gas equipment and guns sold by his company to industrial organizations "wasn't used, and there hasn't been any buying since." Asked about data presented by Heber Blankenhorn, an employe of the National Labor Relations Board, before a Senate committee, he said: "All of those records discussed today are old records. Our business has changed so much and I don't have the records before me, that I can't say just what they contained."

Asked about Blankenhorn's testimony the company asked for approval of the Atttorney-General to ship machine guns to five industrial plants, Young said the approval was denied. He added: "No machine guns were shipped to any industry."

Young said his company represents a factory, the machine guns made by which had been withdrawn from general dealers. "We can make deliveries only when approved by the Attorney-General," he said.

Sir Frank Barnard Dies at 82.

By the Associated Press.

VICTORIA, B. C., April 11.—Sir Frank Barnard, 82 years old, former Lieutenant-Governor of British Columbia, died here today.

BOY WOUNDED WHEN GUN IS ACCIDENTALLY DISCHARGED

Bernard Hayden, 13, Shot in Leg as Rifle Is Being Loaded by Companion.

Bernard Hayden, 13 years old, was superficially wounded in the right leg yesterday when a 22-caliber rifle, which he and two other boys were shooting in the rear yard of his home, 6853A Crest avenue, University City, was accidentally discharged.

The rifle was being loaded by Morton Fowler, 13, 6849 Julian avenue, University City, who was seated in the Hayden automobile while Bernard, one foot on the running board, stood beside the car. As he cocked it for firing the rifle was discharged, the bullet striking young Hayden in the fleshy part of the right leg and emerging four inches lower.

U. S. TO SEEK NEUTRAL RIGHTS PACT, HULL SAYS

Secretary's Statement to Senate Committee in January, Made Public in Washington.

DEFINITE ACTION NOT YET TAKEN

Cabinet Officer Then, Thought Chances 9 in 10 Against Possibility of General War.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—The intention of the United States to seek concerted international action to stretch a protective arm about the rights of neutral nations in war time has been disclosed by Secretary of State Hull.

Coupled with this was a declaration by Hull before a congressional committee last January, but made public only today, that the chances were "nine out of 10" against a "general war." To this Hull added an admonition that the world should not harbor any "false impression" that the United States "will not fight."

It was made known authoritatively today that Hull has not definitely approached other governments on the matter of new international action to insure neutral rights. It was added that, at present, he has no specific plan for doing so.

It was noted particularly that the Secretary's views, outlined to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee three months ago, were expressed only a short time before President Roosevelt invited all of the 21 nations of North and South America to join in a peace conference this year at Buenos Aires.

Outlined Intent of United States.

During the January hearings on the neutrality legislation, Hull deplored that the neutrality question had been "virtually dormant" since the World War because "most nations are not seriously concerned about the matter." He told the committee changing world conditions necessitated new neutrality rules.

Because of this, he said, the United States intended to "urge other nations to join with it at the earliest opportunity in re-examining, restating and revitalizing neutral rights under international law as they existed prior to the World War, as nearly as we find it consistent and as other nations find it consistent to do so."

In declaring that his proposal for international action would contemplate any changes suggested by World War experience, he said "the whole rights of neutrals were largely ignored" during that period.

"We might as well recognize that most of our neutral rights in the future are not going to be maintained simply on paper," he continued. "We might as well realize also that while we do not stand for extravagant navies we must have enough force to command respect of other nations when we hold up to them a threatened violation of our rights to trade as neutrals."

Views on Embargoes.

Opposing a flat embargo on commodities of the character of war supplies, Hull advocated instead that such trade belligerents be confined to "normal" peace-time proportions.

He bespoke co-operation between Congress, the State Department and the President to avoid any steps that might "jeopardize" this country's neutral provision.

"If we create the impression that we are too extreme in either direction we can get into trouble—this means either extreme internationalism, or extreme nationalism. Some countries might gain the false impression that we will not fight and we do not wish to run the risk of being imposed upon by reason of any such impression."

By his testimony the Secretary of State voiced the State Department's stand for a flexible neutrality policy. As finally passed the neutrality law did not contain the provision he sought, whereby discretionary power would have been given the President, to confine exports of so-called war materials to belligerents, to normal quantities.

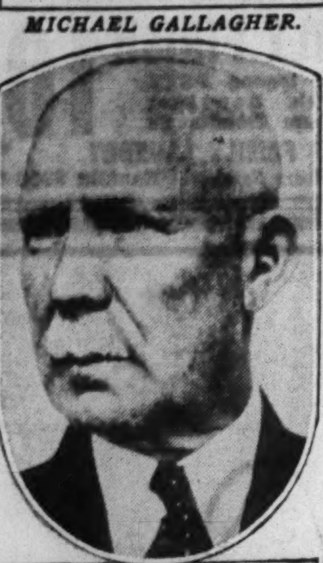
U. S. Action Independent.

Secretary Hull informed the committee that in setting out the terms of the neutrality proclamation last fall, under the first version of the neutrality act, he was acting independently of other nations. After the embargo on contraband was issued, he said, it soon developed that exportation of materials going into the manufacture of war materials was rapidly increasing. There then followed, he recalled, a warning by the State Department that such abnormal shipments were "morally" the same as selling the war materials.

"We formulated first our policy in our own separate, independent way," Hull said, "and that was one difference between our policy and the policy of the governments at Geneva, which were acting collectively. In the second place, we did not try to select an aggressor. That is the second fundamental difference between our course and our policy and that of Geneva. In the third place, we did not try to aid either country, whereas the forces at Geneva did undertake to aid one of the belligerents."

BOMB VICTIMS

MICHAEL GALLAGHER.



—Associated Press Wirephoto.

THOMAS MALONEY.

MICHAEL GALLAGHER was killed when he opened a box that arrived by mail yesterday. Thomas Maloney was seriously injured by a similar package, and one of his two children,-both injured, died.

BOY, VICTIM OF BOMB SENT IN MAIL, DIES

Child Is Second to Succumb to Injuries at Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

By the Associated Press.

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., April 11.—Thomas Maloney Jr., 4 years old, died in a hospital here tonight, the second victim of bombs sent through the mails in the guise of Easter gifts.

Thomas Maloney, the boy's father, was gravely injured by the bomb. The elder Maloney may lose his sight. His 17-year-old daughter, Margaret, is recovering.

Another bomb killed Michael Gallagher, 70-year-old cemetery sexton, and maimed his son-in-law, Clinton Lehman, 37. Lehman lost one eye.

Luzerne County authorities said the bomb was intended for Gallagher and that he was not a victim of a bungled address, as at first supposed. It was pointed out that he and Maloney were close friends and he had testified against dynamiting suspects and reported thefts of explosives from the cemetery.

Two Who Escaped.

Judge Benjamin R. Jones, who sentenced several men for bomb outrages in mine strike disorders, was another who got a package. His package did not explode. Luther Kniffen, who was Sheriff during the labor disturbances in recent years, and a mine superintendent, likewise escaped. A bomb mailed to James A. Gorman, umpire of the Anthracite Conciliation Board, a labor disputes agency, was intercepted. Gorman and his family were in Florida.

Shortly after the bombings yesterday, fire wrecked the home of Monsignor J. J. Curran, but whether it was incendiary was not determined. The Catholic priest long has been a voluntary mediator in labor disputes.

Police said they suspected some of Maloney's former followers in the United Anthracite Miners, which he organized, were angered at his refusal to carry on against the United Mine Workers, which they opposed. Many of them, however, have sought reinstatement in the parent union.

ST. LOUISAN KILLED IN AUTO ACCIDENT NEAR QUINCY, MO.

Funeral for Clement R. Hirst, 35, Salesman, Will Be Held Tomorrow.

Clement R. Hirst, 35-year-old salesman for the National Lead Co., 6419 West court, was killed Friday afternoon near Quincy, Mo., when he lost control of his automobile and it skidded off the highway. He suffered fractures of the skull and arm and a crushed chest.

Hirst was alone at the time of the accident. Surviving are his wife, two sons, Jack, 4, and Dick, 1, and his mother, Mrs. Catherine Hirst.

The funeral will be at 9 a. m. tomorrow from the Donnelly mortuary, 3840 Lindell boulevard, to Our Lody of Sorrows Church, 5825 North Kingshighway. Burial will be in Calvary Cemetery.

SOCIALISTS TRY TO SEIZE HOUSE OF EXILED CALLES

50 Members of Workers' Confederation Driven Out by Police—Guard Posted at Mexico Home.

By the Associated Press.

MEXICO, D. F., April 11.—Police guarded the residence of former President Plutarco Elias Calles tonight to prevent further attempts by Socialists to seize the home of the exiled "iron man of Mexico."

About 50 members of the General Confederation of Mexican Workers attempted to invade the property today, but were driven out by police.

Since Calles and three of his aids were deported to the Unted States yesterday by order of President Lazaro Cardenas, there has been a dispute among Calles' enemies as to what is to be done with his extensive holdings.

Leftists in the Chamber of Deputies demanded that the Government expropriate Calles' lands. Several labor unions have demanded the estates be confiscted and "dedicated to the uses of the proletariat." The newspaper El Universal said the Government had decided to place liens against the properties of Calles and his friends "to obtain funds to pay indemnizations to the victims of the activities of which the four exiles are accused." The reference apparently was to the bombing of a Vera Cruz train this week, an act attributed by Government blocs in the Senate and Chamber to friends of Calles.

Cardenas Attempting Dictatorship "On Russian Plan," Calles Says.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., April 11.—Plutarco Elias Calles tonight accused the Government that banished him of attempting a dictatorship in Mexico "On the Russian plan."

"And because I opposed it, I was exiled," he said here at the end of a forced airplane trip from Mexico, D. F. With him were three exiled political aids.

He said his deportation came after friends of President Lazaro Cardenas spread word that Calles was responsible for the dynamiting of a Vera Cruz train, was guilty of treason and was conspiring to create a situation that would cause the United States to intervene in Mexico.

"Actually," Calles said, "the criminal act of dynamiting that train was a result of the Anarchism rampant in the country. To be an Anarchist is to lose all respect for the value of human life. As for the accusation of treason against me, that's ridiculous. I have always defended the interests of my country against intervention from the outside. In the second place, I have no influence or authority, either among my people, or among the American people to influence a situation tending toward intervention."

In an analysis of what he said were the prevailing poltical trends in Mexico, he asserted:

"The Government wants to change the constitutional status of the country to implant Communism which the people as a whole does not want. The Government, by backing the Communists, is trying to crush all other groups. This accounts for the sporadic internal disturbances in Mexico today.

"The tendency of the radical groups is to force immediately a condition of complete Government ownership and thereby impose a complete dictatorship of the proletariat, modeled on the Russian plan.

"I opposed, within the law, that kind of politics, which is not appropriate to our industrial condition. I judged it would be ruinous to the principles of the working class, and the rights of the people as a whole."

Alfredo E. Calles, the exile's son, obtained permission late today from the Mexican Department of Interior to return to Mexico, D. F., to adjust his business affairs. Earlier he had been refused permission by Mexican immigration authorities to re-enter the country. He accompanied Calles to Brownsville, Tex., when the latter was deported.

Calles Admitted to U. S. for One Year as Visitor.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Plutarco Elias Calles, exiled former Mexican President, was admitted as a visitor to the United States today for a one-year period.

LABOR BOARD TAKES STEEL COMPANY CASE TO COURT

Petition Asks for Enforcement of Order Against Interfering With Union Activities.

By the Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, La., April 11.—Col. Robert B. Watts, associate general counsel for the National Labor Relations Board, filed a petition today in the Fifth United States Circuit Court of Appeals for enforcement of the board's order to the Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation of Pittsburgh to cease interference with union activities of its employes.

The action is the outgrowth of charges filed with the board by the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers that Jones & Laughlin discharged employes because of their union activities. The company resisted the charges on the contention the board had no jurisdiction over the steel industry. Several hearings followed with the board ruling yesterday in Washington that it did have jurisdiction. Legal circles here viewed today's action as possibly a test on this point.

In its decision the board ordered Jones & Laughlin to reinstate 10 employes and to cease interference in union activities.

MOB STORMS JAIL; MILITIA SAVES NEGRO

Georgia Farmer Accused of Attempted Attack on Girl; Shot by Officers He Stabbed.

By the Associated Press.

DANIELSVILLE, Ga., April 11.—A Negro farmer, accused of an attempt to assault a white girl, was rescued from the Madison County jail today by National Guardsmen after a mob had stormed the place in an effort to get him.

The mob, estimated at about 150, had dug a hole in the two-story brick jail when Judge Berry Moseley, 74 years old, left a sick bed to address the crowd at the jail. "Stop violating the law by breaking into the jail," he ordered. Sheriff J. L. Henley meanwhile had deputized 100 citizens to assist him, and the crowd quieted. Judge Moseley then ordered the Sheriff to remove the Negro to a hospital because of serious wounds.

The guardsmen, rushed here by truck from Gainesville, Ga., where they had been on tornado emergency duty, backed a truck to the jail entrance and took the Negro to a hospital at Athens ,16 miles away.

The prisoner, listed by Sheriff Henley as Lint Shaw, 45, had been shot and wounded seriously earlier today by officers after he attacked them with a knife. Police Chief E. A. Elder of Colbert was stabbed in the right lung. County Policeman Ralph Baird of Danielsville was cut on the hands and arms.

The officers said the Negro attacked them as they were transferring him from the jail at Colbert, near where he was arrested last night, to the county jail here. The officers fired, wounding the Negro three times, the Sheriff said.

Sheriff Henley arrested Shaw last night. He said he wanted to be certain I had the right man, and got one of his shoes and it fitted into the tracks. The girl also identified him."

TWO YEARS ON MANN ACT

Ray Johnson, 35-year-old chauffeur, 1103 South Eighteenth street, was sentenced yesterday to two years in Leavenworth penitentiary by Federal Judge George H. Moore on his plea of guilty to transporting three women from Tulsa, Ok., to St. Louis last November in violation of the Mann act. A charge of threatening a Government witness was dismissed.

Ted Click of Tulsa, indicted with Johnson, pleaded guilty previously and was sentenced to three years in Leavenworth prison.

NEW INDUSTRY STARTS HERE

Now— a TREATMENT that

Gives a Youthful Tone to the Skin

This is to tell you of Beatrice Mabie's famous Youth Treatment, for which wealthy women have paid Miss Mabie thousands of dollars and have come to her from all parts of the world.

This Youth Treatment rapidly improves the appearance of the face, making the skin look younger, smoother. It helps eliminate wrinkles, age lines, "crow's feet," sagging, crepy chins, harsh, rough skin in the face and throat.

Known as one of the 5 most expensive beauty experts in America, Beatrice Mabie reaped fame and fortune restoring youthful charm and beauty to women's skins. In helping these women, Miss Mabie found that, by combining certain costly, basic oils in a certain way, it was possible to help give the skin smoothness and firmness to correct crow's feet and sags.

The preparation you use to do this is called Beatrice Mabie's Special Mixture and you can get it at any good drug or department store or beauty counter. If you seek a clear, fresh, youthful skin, get a one dollar jar tomorrow and try it yourself. You'll be amazed at the new beauty it brings to your skin.

Plans for National Operations Under Way

For the past two weeks, things have been happening at 3916 Geraldine avenue, in Northwest St. Louis, and residents of that neighborhood have been asking one another what was going on. Though few realized it, they were actually witnessing the birth of a new St. Louis industry for which some of the keenest business men in this vicinity predict a bright future on a nation-wide scale.

Formally organized less than one month ago, the Von Cro Manufacturing Company has already begun the manufacture of an extensive line of toilet preparations for both men and women, and plans for the sale of these are now being completed. The affairs of the Company are under the personal direction of some of St. Louis' most widely-known business men, including Ernest M. Crosby, head of Crosby Motors, Inc., and other highly successful St. Louis enterprises. Mr Crosby is president and director-general of sales of the Von Cro Manufacturing Company.

A national advertising plan on one well-known line of beauty aids for women will get under way shortly. The selling activities of this division of the Von Cro business will be under the personal direction of Edward O'Connor, formerly vice-president in charge of sales for Affiliated Products, of Chicago, and widely known for his work in connection with several of the highest-grade cosmetics sold in this country.

Among the products to be manufactured and distributed by the Von Cro Manufacturing Company is a complete line of high-grade creams, lotions and face powders. A new brushless shave, developed after many years of research by Joseph Von Sickel, Von Cro chemist, is also being placed on the market at once, and plans for the advertising and merchandising of this item are already under way. Mr. Von Sickel has been actively engaged in the development of food and cosmetic products for the last 50 years, having laid the foundation for his present work more than half a century ago in Switzerland.

Present plans call for the introduction from time to time of other items with new and unusual features, and officials of the Von Cro organization state that announcements regarding these will follow as the items are made ready for the market.

Von Cro sales for the State of Missouri are under the supervision of Martin Balenseifer. Roger E. Constance is in charge of sales in other states.

Man! here's the Brushless Shave for my face!

A Twenty-Second Century Cream NOW

I've discovered that there are almost as many different kinds of beards as there are faces. The hairs of these beards are of many kinds just as the skin is also different. That's why NO ONE SHAVING cream can possibly do a good job for DIFFERENT men.

Crosby's New Brushless Shave is the only Shaving Cream I ever heard of that's deliberately made for DIFFERENT TYPES OF BEARDS.

For instance: If you have a tough, thick, wiry beard, you want Crosby's Irish Brushless Shave. If you have an oily skin and a heavy beard—you want Crosby's Rye, Scotch, Bourbon or Ginola Brushless Shave. But if your skin is tender and your beard light, just smooth on a little Crosby's Burgundy Brushless Shave and run the razor over your face.

But remember this! No matter what kind of a skin you have, Crosby has a Brushless Shave for your kind of skin. Any good dealer will be glad to see that you get the Crosby Brushless Shave that's made especially for your skin if you'll simply tell him the kind of skin you have. Ask your dealer tomorrow—and later, thank us for the GRANDEST shave you ever enjoyed.

60 LAWYERS OWE $29,923 IN COSTS TO CIRCUIT COURT

In Many Instances Amounts Are Due on Blanket Bonds, in Others on Surety in Single Suit.

CLERK TO BRING ACTION IF NECESSARY

Attorneys in Most Cases Willing to Adjust Matter —C. M. Hay Contests Bill.

Sixty lawyers owe a total of $29,923 court costs in Circuit Court, it was shown by a tabulation made yesterday by Circuit Clerk H. Sam Priest. The costs, principally in damage suit litigation, have been accruing for a period of from one to 10 years.

In many instances the amounts due are in cases where counsel representing plaintiffs signed blanket bonds guaranteeing costs in all of their cases. However, in a number of instances, costs are due in cases in which counsel signed as surety in a single suit.

The records show that one law firm and an individual attorney each owes approximately $7000. Priest said adjustments were being made on these claims.

Another lawyer owes $2500. Priest announced he expected to file suit for recovery on this claim. Similar action against other lawyers also is contemplated, but in a large majority of the cases, Priest added, the lawyers, on receiving notice of unpaid costs, have said they were willing to adjust the matter and have paid up.

Clerk May Hire Counsel.

Permission recently was granted the clerk by the Circuit Judges in general term to employ counsel to bring suits against financially responsible delinquents to enforce payment of old costs. The permission involved not only claims against members of the bar, but also parties in arrears, including surety firms, corporations, partnerships and individual litigants held liable for court expenses. About $200,000 in unpaid costs was outstanding, some as far back as 25 years ago, Priest said.

Fee bills have been issued in all of these cases and it was reported yesterday that a group of damage suit lawyers has been raising funds to resist the Circuit Clerk in his campaign to collect the unpaid fee bills. Priest explained that it was his duty to enforce payment where possible, pointing out that all surplus fees from his office were turned into the city treasury. This means no additional compensation to him, since his salary of $7500 a year is paid regardless of the amount of fees which he collects. Since taking office in January, 1935, Priest has ended the practice of permitting lawyers to sign blanket bonds, but does permit them to guarantee costs in an individual case.

Hay Contests Claim.

In connection with the fee bill controversy, motions have been filed by Charles M. Hay, former City Counselor, and his law partner, S. D. Flanagan, to declare null and void bills issued against them. The bill against Hay is for $108.60 in a damage suit settled in 1930 in which he represented the plaintiff. The defendant agreed to pay the costs, but has not done so; therefore, the Circuit Clerk said it was up to Hay to pay, as he had signed the cost bond. A similar situation exists in the case of Flanagan, against whom a fee bill for $100.90 was issued.

The lawyers stated in their motion they were not liable for payment of the costs because their clients won in each case. Efforts made by the cler kto collect from the defendants in these suits have proved unavailing.

The motions filed by Hay and Flanagan to quash the fees bills which were issued against them set forth that the bills were placed in the hands of Sheriff Madden, who has made demand for payment, threatening to levy on their "goods, chattels, moneys and effects." They are represented by Attorney Claudio Delitala. Priest has retained Jacob M. Lashly and Robert J. Keefe as his counsel. The Hay and Flanagan motions are set for hearing Friday before Judge O'Neill Ryan and Frank C. O'Malley.

HEARING IN SUIT OVER NAME OF WARD REPUBLICAN CLUB

Both Use Word "Regular" in the Twenty-second, Which Usually Votes Democratic.

A hearing on the application of the Regular Republican Club of the Twenty-second Ward for an injunction to restrain a rival ward organization from using the name, Twenty-second Ward Regular Republican Club, began yesterday before Circuit Judge John W. Joynt. The hearing will be resumed tomorrow.

The only witness yesterday was Alroy S. Phillips, attorney and president of the plaintiff organization, who testified that factional differences between Republicans in the ward, which usually votes Democratic, began in 1932, when members of the defendant organization decided to form their own club. Clarence A. Weindel, attorney for the defendant club, contended that Phillips called meetings of his organization without notifying all the members and that some members of the anti-Phillips organization still members of the Regular Republican Club of the ward.

The organization, headed by Phillips, is supporting George W. Hartman and Mrs. Louise Wollbrinck for re-election to the Republican City Committee from the ward, while the rival group is for Clifford G. Haley, former member of the Board of Election Commissioners, as ward committeeman.

EXHIBIT OF PICTURES BY ST. LOUIS ARTISTS

Display at Guild Typical of Styles to Be Provided by Circulating Service.

An exhibit of pictures by St. Louis artists, typical of those which will be provided by the circulating library to be started next October, opened last night in the main gallery at the Artists' Guild, 812 Union boulevard.

Members of the Guild who attended the opening were given preference in subscriptions to the library service which will be limited to 100 at first. For an eight-month period, beginning next October, the subscriber, for a fee of $10, may have a new picture to hang in his home each month or two. The plan is designed to increase appreciation of art, provide a market for artists and supply funds for Guild activities.

Forty of the 62 pictures in the exhibit were distinctly "home" pictures as opposed to "stunt" or "exhibit" work. They included oils, watercolors, pastels and prints. The remaining 22 were selected as examples of various styles in the modern trend, it was explained by Peter Mariner, representative of the artists.

Artists represented in the exhibit were: Helen Louise Beccard, Tom Blow, Mildred Carpenter, Fred Conway, Evelyn Fitch, Alexandra Korsakoff Galston, Charles F. Galt, Jessie Gleyre, Emily Gross, Ethel Grosskop, Florence Hazeltine, Miriam McKinney, Martha Hoke, Martin Kaiser, Josephine Johnson, Edward Luchtemeyer, Eloise Parks, Charles Quest, Gladys Skelly, Rudolph Tandler and J. Baare Turnbull.

In the little gallery a new exhibit of 36 oils by Lucille White Cowherd of Kansas City, formerly of St. Louis, also opened. These were supplemented by portfolios of drawings, water colors and pen and ink sketches. Many were of local subjects, including Negro life. Work done at Taos and Santa Fe and in Mexico also was shown. It will remain until April 26.

Frederic Forbusch's wood carvings will remain in the little gallery two weeks longer.

500 JOBLESS PARADE TO THE WHITE HOUSE.

Committee Urging Six Billion for Relief Received by a Roosevelt Secretary.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Accompanied by more than 100 police, 500 delegates to the Workers' Alliance convention called at the White House and Capitol today to urge legislation for a $6,000,000,000 relief program.

Led by David Lasser, chairman, the unemployed men and women, WPA workers and cotton sharecroppers assembled at the Federal Auditorium and marched four abreast to the White House executive office.

There Marvin McIntyre, one of President Roosevelt's secretaries, received Lasser and a committee of five, who asked for presidential indorsement of their program. Lasser later told reporters he had advised McIntyre the unemployed would be disappointed that Roosevelt had not received the delegation personally.

After leaving the White House, the delegates marched to the Capitol, where they were ordered to disband.

While Lasser was asking police for permission to address the delegates in a nearby park eight busloads of New York members arrived. They had been delayed at Bel Air, Md., where two of their number had been jailed after a dispute when a restaurant refused to serve Negroes.

Unable to get permission to use the park, Lasser told the delegates from the top of an automobile what had happened at the White House. He urged them to present their demands to Congressmen.

Lasser and his committee later presented a copy of the White House petition to Vice-President Garner and Speaker Byrns.

ROOSEVELT AGAIN SEES HAGOOD, NO COMMENT

General's Friends Say He Will Retire Unless Command Is Restored.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Major-General Johnson Hagood, who was sent into military exile after his criticism of WPA spending, left a "showdown" conference with President Roosevelt at the White House today without disclosing whether he would be restored to active duty or retire.

The White House was equally reticent concerning the President's decision as to the General's future, but indicated that an announcement might be made at the War Department early next week.

While Gen. Hagood remained silent concerning his plans for the future, friends said that unless he was assigned to command an Army Corps area, preferably in New York City, he would insist upon retiring to take advantage of "other opportunities."

(Gen. Hagood was removed from command of the Eighth Corps area and Third Army at San Antonio, Tex., in February after he had called WPA funds "stage money" in testimony before a congressional committee, and the Works Progress Administration had demanded from the War Department that he make "public retraction.")

An informed source said Gen. Hagood had been offered an executive position with a Chicago mail order house and might retire to accept the opportunity regardless of what final action was taken in his case.

Hagood went to Chicago "on private business" immediately after his first conference with the President on board the train that took the latter to Florida on his fishing vacation on March 23.

Political circles here also have discussed a report—not denied by Hagood—that he might enter politics in his native State of South Carolina by becoming a candidate against Senator James F. Byrnes, administration stalwart, who is up for re-election this November.

President Roosevelt, as Commander-in-Chief of the military forces, may restore Hagood to active duty with command of the Sixth Corps Area at Chicago, or the Second Corps Area at New York, to which he would ordinarily be entitled by reason of his being the third ranking general officer in the army.

NRA RESEARCH REPORT ON WAGES AND HOURS

Pay as Low as 3 Cents, Work Week as High as 60 Hours Shown.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—NRA-Commerce Department researchers assembled today what they said was the "most complete picture" of American wages and hours ever put together, showing hourly pay rates running from as low as 3 cents to more than $1. The special report, based on employment between 1929 and 1935, disclosed a work week ranging from as low as 10 hours to more than 60.

Covering 303 different industries, Leon C. Marshall, director of the work, said the report contained "more specific information on hours and wages in American industry than is contained in all the files of all the states and Federal departments of labor.

The research is one of more than 100, now virtually completed, analyzing the results of NRA to furnish a factual basis for any similar legislation proposed in the future.

"A most cursory review of this material explains, in part," Marshall said, "the conditions which NRA sought to correct."

Higher Wage Rate Industries.

Among industries showing the higher wage rates were the automobile, electrical, print roller, chemical and printing ink. The other end of the scale was shown in a study of wages paid pecan pickers in San Antonio, Tex., where the range was from 2.5 cents to 9 cents an hour, Dec. 15, 1934.

Figures on the iron and steel industry indicated the effect of exemptions from NRA code hours, about 10 per cent of the industry's payroll being freed from the code limitation.

Nearly 62 per cent of mining employes in the ball clay producing industry received less than 25 cents an hour, while 51 per cent were paid between 10 cents and 20 cents, May to August, 1933.

Il the excelsior industry in February, 1934, Northern workers received 39 cents an hour as against 29 cents for women. Southern men workers were paid 27 cents, women 22.5 cents.

Hardwood Distillation Group.

In the hardwood distillation industry in July, 1929, no worker was paid less than 10 cents an hour. In June, 1933, out of a total of 2122 workers, 295 received less than that amount and the higher brackets of 40 cents up had disappeared.

An indication of office employes' pay during the depression was given in data for the auction and loose leaf warehouse industry. In the 1932-1933 peak season, 75 per cent were paid less than $12 a week, while 17.5 per cent received $3 or less. Two office employes in the industry received more than $25.

Differences between Southern and Northern wages were indicated in figures for the cottonseed oil refining industry. In June, 1933, 27.7 per cent of the Southern workers were receiving less than 25 cents an hour. Only 0.4 per cent of Northern workers were paid such a scale.

CASE REINSTATED AGAINST MONARK PETROLEUM CORP.

New Information Filed, Charging Installation of Tanks Without Permit.

The case against the Monark Petroleum Corporation, files of which disappeared after it had been dropped from the Police Court docket, was reinstated yesterday and a second information was filed.

Files of the original case, charging violation of a city ordinance regulating the installation of gasoline storage tanks at its filling station at the northeast corner of Goodfellow boulevard and Easton avenue, were found in a desk drawer in Clerk Cornelius J. O'Brien's office after a two-day search. The case was transferred from Judge Simpson's Court to that of Judge Vest because of the location of the company's offices, and was set for hearing next Saturday.

The new information charges the company with installation of a 1000-gallon tank and two 500-gallon tanks last Dec. 6 without having obtained a permit from the Building Department. The first case charged violation of the ordinance requiring that tanks be at least 30 feet from the street line or adjoining property. Since the lot was only 42 feet wide, the permit was refused.

TOYS TO BE COLLECTED IN SCHOOLS ON APRIL 24

They Will Be Reconditioned for Distribution Among 13,000 Needy Children.

Toys for Christmas distribution by the Toy Shop Guild of the Board of Religious Organizations will be collected April 24, at schools in St. Louis and St. Louis County.

On that day children will be asked to bring to their schools all toys for which they have no further use. The toys will be collected by members of the American Legion Auxiliary and Parent-Teacher organizations and taken to the Guild headquarters in the Old Courthouse.

Mrs. Clifford Zell, chairman of the Guild, said the program this year calls for distribution of 30,000 toys to 13,000 needy children, and unless more of toys are received in the next few weeks, it is doubtful that the program can be carried out.

The toys donated will be repaired painted and classified for distribution by volunteer workers making up the Guild.

STILL TRYING TO IDENTIFY WOMAN STRANGLED BY RIBBON

T. E. Jeffries Seeks Test of Dental Work to See if Body Is That of His Ex-Wife.

T. E. Jeffries, 3545 Lafayette avenue, yesterday viewed the body of a young woman at the city morgue to determine whether it was that of his former wife, Mrs. Beverly Bolton Bergstrom of Atlanta, Ga., but declared he could not be positive in his identification. He advised the Coroner's office to compare dental work performed for his former wife in St. Louis in 1932 with that of the woman at the morgue, which will be done tomorrow.

The body of the woman was identified as that of Mrs. Bergstrom Wednesday by Mrs. Jeffries, who went to look at it following receipt of a letter from Miss Irene Bolton of Chattanooga, Tenn., sister of Mrs. Bergstrom, inquiring for Mrs. Bergstrom who, Miss Bolton said, had been missing from Atlanta since January. However, Oscar Bergstrom of Atlanta, former husband of Mrs. Bergstrom, sent a telegram to the Coroner Thursday that he had received a letter from his former wife March 7, two weeks after the body of the woman at the Morgue was found in her room at the Auditorium Hotel Feb. 20.

The woman registered at the hotel Feb. 17 as Miss Amelia Layne of Baltimore, Md. Three days later she was found dead in her room, strangled by a ribbon around her throat.

LOCARNO POWERS SEEKING ACCORD IN EASTER RECESS

Head of Committee of 13 to Attempt Joint Peace Negotiations With Italy and Ethiopia.

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, April 11.—The statesmen of the leading nations of Europe have the opportunity to study over Easter just what Italy means by the question: "Is the presence of Italy desired?" That question, asked by Baron Pompeo Aloisi, representative of Premier Mussolini to the League of Nations, was directed personally to the representatives of Great Britain, France and Belgium last night.

They had met with the Italian envoy to determine what they, as signatories of the Locarno pact, should do about Germany's act of remilitarizing the Rhineland. But their session followed a meeting of the League Council Committee of 13 in which Anthony Eden, British Foreign Secretary, listed a series of charges that Italy was using poison gas against Ethiopians. Eden demanded that the Committee of 13, which includes every member of the League Council except Italy, remain in continuous session until Italy and Ethiopia talked peace.

He yielded, however, to suggestions for compromise, by which the committee adjourned until next Thursday to permit its president, Salvador de Madariaga of Spain, to attempt joint peace negotiations with Italy and Ethiopia.

Italy's Direct Question.

When the Locarno pact signatories met after the committee's stormy session, Baron Aloisi demanded of his conferees: "My Government wants to know from each of you whether the presence of Italy is desired here, and whether her collaboration in the work of European reconstruction is wanted. If it is not desired, Italy will have no reason for assuming risks and responsibilities and will reserve the right to establish her own policies."

The session ended inconclusively with the diplomats going home for Easter. British sources said the respite would permit them to talk directly with the Germans on the possibilities for an adjustment of the serious situation which has arisen along the old Western front of the World War area.

French and German Views.

French diplomats said they did not believe the British would achieve any success in attempting to induce Reichsfuehrer Hitler to modify his plans. German sources described the situation at the end of the Locarno signatories' session as "not exactly good, but, in some ways, not bad."

The question of remilitarization of the Central Powers, prohibited by the treaties which ended the World War, was given seriousness by Turkey, former ally of Germany and the Austro-Hungarian empire. The Turkish Government has formally demanded the right to refortify the Dardanelles—an act prohibited by the Lausanne treaty. For this reason, Turkey asks that the treaty be revised.

Germany's act in declaring national military conscription and placing soldiers back on the Rhineland had been supplemented by Austria's passage of a law reviving universal conscription "in case of national emergency."

DR. R. L. CAMPBELL AGAIN HEADS EAST ST. LOUIS BOARD

Four Other Members Re-elected; School Elections Also at Belleville and Alton.

Dr. R. L. Campbell, president of the East St. Louis Board of Education for 10 years, and four members, John F. Domhoff, John P. Costello, John L. Delmore and W. J. Miller, were re-elected yesterday by substantial pluralities. There were two candidates for president and 13 for members.

S. D. Vale was elected president of the Belleville Township High School Board, without opposition. Dr. Edmund Bechtold and R. R. Hyde were named members. For the Belleville Grade School Board, H. C. G. Schrader was re-elected president for his sixth term, without opposition. Adam Heineman (incumbent), Frank Rogers (incumbent) and William F. Breitwieser were elected members.

At Alton, J. J. Beeby (incumbent) and M. W. Acker were elected members of the Community Consolidated District School Board. Four other candidates ran far behind.

At Madison, Robert Dron was elected president of the School Board, defeating Dr. R. A. Marshall, who had served two terms. Charles Barnett (incumbent) and Guy Miller were elected members of the board.

POPE ISSUES EASTER APPEAL FOR PEACE

Deplores "Collapse of Faith" in Treaties and Institutions to Prevent War.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, April 11.—Easter eve stirred only faint memories of the days when thousands of tourists and pilgrims flocked to Rome to participate in the commemoration of Christ's Resurrection.

Visitors this year did not pack the city's hotels and tourist resorts as they did in past seasons before economic and political difficulties reduced travel.

Most of the visitors came from Germany and Austria. There were fewer Americans than in some previous years, and almost no English.

Pope Pius, owing to his declining strength and the small number of foreign pilgrims, will not continue tomorrow the old custom he resumed several years ago of celebrating the Easter mass in St. Peter's and giving his benediction to the city and the world from the outside balcony after the mass.

Cardinal Pacelli, the high priest of the Basilica, will say the mass, which will be broadcast. The Pope will say mass in his own private chapel and will not give his usual blessing. Afterwards he will hear a concert by the band of the Palatine Guard in the courtyard of San Damaso, and in the afternoon he will receive his immediate relatives in his apartment.

The Vatican City newspaper, Osservatore Romano, published "An Easter appeal to the nations," asking for peace. "Our dramatic world continues to exchange the cult of life for the cult of fire and force," it said. "From the rostrums and tribunes of public life, the worshippers of fire repeat every day to the peoples their monotonous sermon—be strong. Force, placed above the laws of justice, has come to be the supreme law of history.

"The collapse of faith in treaties and the revival of sleeping national rancours has renewed the struggle for supremacy, and lack of confidence in the institutions of peace force law to be substituted by the law of force, keeping our world in a state of nerves and spiritual disconcertion."

FHA, WPA AND HOLC GIVEN SPACE IN FEDERAL BUILDING

Quarters Laid Out for Third Division of U. S. Court Are Relinquished.

As a result of a Government survey which showed that Federal agencies here not housed in the new Federal Building or other Federal structures were paying $128,000 a year for rent of their quarters, space in the new Federal Building laid out for a third division of the District Court has been relinquished by Federal Judges Charles B. Davis and George H. Moore.

They were requested to do so while there continued to be no third division of the court. Besides the courtroom, which is smaller than the rooms in which they preside, the unit has a jury room, judicial chambers and other offices. What department may be transferred to this space has not been determined.

Three New Deal agencies, the FHA, WPA and HOLC, were found to be the principal ones paying rent for offices. When designed the new building was intended to accommodate virtually all Federal departments here, but that was before the inception of the numerous so-called emergency organizations.

BANK RECEIVER FILES SUIT FOR $9328 AGAINST UTILITY

Representative of Cherokee National Seeks to Recover Funds From Union Electric.

Suit to recover $9328 from the Union Electric Light & Power Co. was filed in Federal Court yesterday by John W. Snyder, receiver for the Cherokee National Bank.

The petition stated that the Union Electric received a draft for the sum from Henry P. Mueller, former president of the bank, while he was acting as conservator for the Cherokee National during the banking holiday in March, 1933. Mueller's authority to issue the draft and the electric company's right to accept it were challenged in the suit.

Snyder, in charge of the liquidation of the Cherokee National Bank, told the Post-Dispatch that the $9328 had been deposited to the credit of the Union Electric Light & Power Co. prior to the closing of the bank early in March, 1933. Mueller subsequently pleaded guilty of embezzling $208,000 and falsification of the bank's books, and was sentenced to 10 years in Leavenworth prison.

608 TUBERCULOSIS DEATHS OF ST. LOUISANS DURING 1935

Survey Made to Determine Figure Including Fatalities Outside City Limits.

A total of 608 residents of St. Louis died of tuberculosis during 1935, the St. Louis Tuberculosis Society reported yesterday.

The survey was made because, it was pointed out, the total of 423 tuberculosis deaths given out by the city's Bureau of Vital Statistics recorded deaths only within the city limits and did not include deaths in the three sanatoria in St. Louis County—Mount St. Rose, Koch and Jewish.

DISPUTE IN COMMITTEE ON TOWNSEND INQUIRY

Members at Odds Over Way House Investigation Is Being Conducted.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Dissension among members of the House committee investigating the Townsend old-age pension movement was disclosed today.

Although Chairman Bell (Dem.), Missouri, was out of town, it was learned that differences of opinion exist over methods of procedure and the failure thus far to call Dr. F. E. Townsend, organizer of the movement.

Some committee members, it was said, think Robert E. Clements, resigned national secretary of the orzanigation, should have been allowed to complete his testimony before public hearings were adjourned for an indefinite period to permit further investigation.

"The testimony showed the Townsend organization has taken in nearly a million dollars during its life," said one committee member, "but Clements was never allowed to testify as to what happened to this money, a question the people are entitled to have answered and which Clements was ready to answer."

Members of Congress, particularly those faced with Townsend opposition in approaching primary elections, are looking to the committee in the hope of getting material with which to answer their opponents.

The hearings are not likely to be resumed for several weeks. Representatives Gavagan (Dem.), New York, and Collins (Rep.), California, have been sent to Los Angeles as a sub-committee to take depositions and conduct personal investigations at the place where the Townsend movement started.

CYRUS E. HULL, 105, DIES; FORMER EAST ST. LOUISAN

LOS ANGELES, Cal., April 11.—Cyrus E. Hull, 105 years old, died here today of a skull injury suffered in a fall down stairs at his home. A former East St. Louisan, he was said to have been the oldest Mason in the United States, having been inducted into the order in 1853.

Mr. Hull, a native of New Lebanon, New York, came here from East St. Louis 20 years ago. Surviving are his wife, with whom he resided, a grandson, William E. Hull of East St. Louis, and a granddaughter, Mrs. Ben Finke, St. Louis. Funeral services will be held Monday.

DEPOSITION IN UTILITY SUIT OVER PWA LOANS

Witness Says Jacksonville, Ill., Voters Thought Debt Would Not Be Binding.

Testimony that the voters of Jacksonville, Ill., believed that money borrowed from the Public Works Administration to build a municipal electric light plant would not be a binding debt on the taxpayers was given in a deposition yesterday in the law offices of Fordyce, White, Mayne & Williams.

The witness was John R. Hoffman of Jacksonville, divisional manager of the Illinois Power & Light Corporation, who was examined by counsel representing three utility corporations suing in the District of Columbia Supreme Court for injunctions to restrain WPA Administrator Harold L. Ickes and Federal Treasury officials from paying out grants and loans to cities to build municipal utility plants. The plaintiffs are Oklahoma Utilities Co., Alabama Power Co. and Texas Utilities Co.

Advertisements Identified.

Hoffman testified that last Jan. 21 Jacksonville voters authorized construction of a municipal plant at a cost of $420,000, of which $231,000 was to be a PWA loan secured by pledge of revenue certificates, or bonds, and $189,000 was to be a direct Federal grant. He said the voters understood that if the plant failed the $231,000 loan could not be collected from the taxpayers. He identified newspaper advertisements in the name of the Jacksonville Municipal Light Plant League asserting that the financing would create "no debt, no obligation," on the taxpayers.

On cross-examination by Government counsel Hoffman said he had been told by a superior to come here to testify but had no knowledge of what he was to testify about. He admitted having talked to acquaintances and employes about voting in the municipal plant election, but thought the company's expenses in the campaign were less than $1000, principally for advertising.

Hearing of Suits April 20.

The Jacksonville plant is not directly at issue in the suits, which apply to cities where the plaintiff companies operate, principally in Oklahoma, Texas and Alabama. Attorneys for the plaintiffs have been taking depositions of witnesses familiar with arrangements in other cities for PWA loans and grants for municipal utility plants. Hearing of these suits in the District of Columbia Supreme Court is set for April 20.

Attorneys N. W. Hartman of the Fordyce firm and Balfour Jeffry of Topeka, Kan., represent the plaintiffs in the depositions here, which will be continued tomorrow. The Government is represented by Special Assistant Attorney-General John W. Scott and Robert E. Sher of the PWA legal staff. Witnesses subpenaed for tomorrow include Albert Laun and W. K. Holland of the Union Electric Light & Power Co.

MRS. CYRUS M'CORMICK'S SON IN FIGHT CRASHING A PARTY

Battery Complaint Against Him and Wife at Berkeley, Cal., by University Student.

By the Associated Press.

BERKELEY, Cal., April 11.—A fist fight at the door of an apartment where a party was going on resulted in a battery complaint today against William Davey, 23 years old, son of Mrs. Cyrus McCormick of Chicago, and his wife, Alice, the daughter of Mary Hastings Bradley, Chicago writer.

Bert Eugene Graves, University of California graduate student, signed the complaint. Graves went to a hospital last night with face contusions and a wrenched shoulder.

Police Officer John A. Ogden reported he found the fight over when he arrived but was told by Graves the Daveys had tried to "crash" the party. The officer said H. E. Sweeting, a guest, related Davey was finally put out by another guest, Richard A. Newmeyer, English teacher from Bakersfield.

Officers said there probably would be no move to arrest the Daveys before Monday. Mr. and Mrs. Daveys declined to comment.

Animosity Behind Scenes At Inquiry in Plane Crash

or "on top" flying when there is no sight of the ground.

Not only before the Senate Committee but for some time past, it has been developed pilots have criticised the way in which the Pittsburgh beam has functioned. In response to this criticism the Bureau of Air Commerce not long ago established a new beam, more or less experimental in nature, that operates by a new method. This was Pilot Stark's reference to the "new" beam.

"Do you fly on the new beam by order of your company?" Hartney asked.

"That is altogether up to the pilot," Stark replied. "All of the pilots use the new beam."

"Why do they prefer it?"

"Because it does not swing as much as the old beam did. It remains straight. It's in a straight line and it carries out farther than the old beam. The new beam is steady, much more so than the old.

"Both the new and the old beam have a tendency to die down a little, but the new beam is much better than the old. Neither beam fades out for as long as five minutes."

When pilots use the word "swing" in reference to the radio beam they mean that the beam itself, through some fault of operation follows a course different from its regular line.

Pilot's Experiences.

A TWA pilot, Robert M. Larson, who took a plane successfully over the same course as that on which the "Sunracer" crashed at almost exactly the same time, gave the most damaging testimony against the way in which the beam has functioned out of Pittsburgh.

"It was at the time of the floods,' Larson said, "that I had some very sad experiences with the new beam. On three or four trips I was flying on it when it faded. I started to let down several times, thinking it was time to let down because we were approaching the cone of silence. Then the beam would have a surge upward after the fade."

The radio beam, it must be explained, continues untill the flyer is very close to the airport. There it stops at a point pilots call the "cone of silence." When the beam is silent, therefore, it is a signal that the plane is directly over the beacon station.

At 10:09, it was brought out in the testimony of John E. Herron, operator of the signal tower at the Pittsburgh Airport, Pilot Otto Ferguson of the "Sunracer" called the tower. He said, "You're very weak It is OK to come in?"

"I gave him the OK to come in," Herron testified. "He said again, 'You're very weak.' And then I repeated, "OK, OK, OK.' And then he finally gave his OK."

"Did you hear the plane over the field after this signal?" Mulligan asked.

"No, I did not," Herron answered. The tower radio transmitter is independent of the beam radio.

Crashed 10 Minutes Later.

On one of the bodies found in the wreckage of the plane was a wrist watch, crystal broken, which had stopped at 10:20 and a half, indicating that the crash occurred about 10 minutes after the conversation between Pilot Ferguson and Herron in the tower of the Pittsburgh Airport. Herron said he presumed, when Ferguson called, that the "Sunracer" was about 10 minutes away from the field.

The crash occurred exactly 40 miles due south of the airport here. Ferguson had been flying blind in heavy overcast, with the beam to keep him on his course. Miss Nellie Granger, air hostess on the plane, was quoted by a TWA executive today as saying that she talked with Pilot Ferguson about 10 minutes before the crash and he indicated to her that they were about to land. Although he did not flash the signal instructing her to fasten the safety belts, a measure always taken before landing, she did so on her own initiative. The first warning she had of the crash was when she looked out and saw trees and then a moment later saw the wing on the opposite side from which she was sitting ripped off.

A careful study of the scene of the disaster has indicated to investigators that Ferguson began to descend, believing he was over the field. Instead, he found himself in a deep ravine along Chestnut Ridge, which has an altitude of 2950 feet. He followed the course of the ravine, flying just over the tree tops, for nearly seven miles, and then, making a wrong turn, crashed into the side of the hogback.

Says Beam Was "Swinging."

Pilot Larson, flying the same course, only about two minutes behind the "Sunracer" and at an altitude about 500 feet above that reported by Ferguson, said today that the beam reception from Buckstown into Pittsburgh was good.

"But," he added, "it was swinging somewhat. And this swinging occurred when I was about 40 miles out."

"Is the Pittsburgh radio range so unsafe that instrument flying, that is, blind flying, should be forbidden out of this airport?" Larson was asked.

"I consider the radio range station at Pittsburgh the poorest one I fly over," he replied. "It is safe when you don't need it and it is sometimes unsafe when you need it most desperately."

Larson was pressed by C. I. Stanton, chief airways engineer of the Bureau of Air Commerce, to say whether or not he thought flying regulations should be tightened at Pittsburgh, in view of Larson's criticism of the radio beam—that is, whether restrictions forbidding planes to take off under certain weather conditions should not be made more drastic. There are a large number of foggy, smoky days here and any tightening of the regulations would, of course, make it much more difficult for air lines to keep trans-continental schedules.

Witness Evades Question.

Larson found it hard to answer this question. He at last evaded a direct reply, repeating his criticism of the beam.

"I've never spoken to a pilot in my line," he said, "who has not complained of the new beam. The feeling was that it was unreliable and pilots took especial caution with it. The old beam was so bad that anything would have been an improvement."

Another witness today was Hugh S. Long, dispatcher at the Pittsburgh airport for Pennsylvania Airlines, another big company that maintains cross-country schedules. The company's transport plane from Washington on the morning of the crash did not attempt to land at Pittsburgh because of weather conditions, Long testified, but passed over the airport, flying at 13,000 feet, at about 10:30.

Long dispatched a plane from Pittsburgh to Washington at 9:42, however, although he said there was extreme doubt as to whether it should go up until the actual time of departure. The flight to Washington, covering on the first part of the trip about the same territory as the "Sunracer" covered, was made at an altitude of 12,000 feet, Long said. Despite ice in the air below 9000 feet, the plane could at all times make its altitude, he testified. On this flight, he said, the pilot used the new radio beam because the old one was reported to be "swinging" too much.

TWA Head Testifies.

Jack Fry, president of TWA, testified briefly. He was asked about a statement given out by the company on the day of the crash, to the effect that the only possible explanation of the accident was a failure of the radio beam.

"It is not my belief at this time," he said, "that the beam accounted for the accident on Tuesday. We could think of no other explanation for the accident at the time. There was no explanation for the plane being in that position except that the beam was off.

"Our justification for assuming that the plane was off course as a result of a faulty beam was based upon the fact that the pilot had had experience and was competent to operate into Pittsburgh and would not have descended unless he had been led to believe he was descending to the field."

Pressed as to whether he had any definite evidence that the "Sunracer" was led into the ravine by a "swinging" beam, Fry answered in the negative.

The Bureau of Air Commerce, of course, exerts considerable power over the air line companies. It has authority to ground planes, to revoke a pilot's license and to alter flying regulations that vitally affect the financial status of the companies.

In Experimental Stage.

Frim today's hearing it was evident that bureau officials regard the radio beams not as a guarantee of safety in blind flying but as one aid to navigation under those circumstances, and an aid which is still relatively new and still in a more or less experimental stage. They take the point of view, also, that natural conditions, such as static, inevitably interfere with the beam, and particularly over the mountainous region to the east of Pittsburgh, the region which pilots speak of as the "death cradle."

For some time there has been bad feeling between the bureau and TWA. This came out of the crash near Atlanta, Mo., in which Senator Bronson Cutting and four others were killed. TWA blamed failure of the radio beam for that crash, while the bureau in a report based on a lengthy investigation found half a dozen other causes, including faulty weather reports by both the Department of Agriculture and TWA and failure of TWA's dispatcher to route the plane to a safe landing place.

Witnesses representing other lines testified in general today to successful flights through the bad weather of last Tuesday by the aid of the beam, or to caution that resulted in cancellation of flights. Thus Pilot Stark, bringing a Central Airlines plane in from Detroit, canceled the rest of the journey to Washington as a result of the weather reports he received when he landed here. Plainly the Bureau of Air Commerce would show, if only by indirection, that the crash grew out of failure on the part of the TWA line to observe proper precautions.

And that, in Hartney's opinion, gets back to the question of sharp competition between rival companies. Not only is there competition between air lines, but there is competition between pilots with far more pilots on the ground, without jobs, than there are in the air.

Hearing Reopens Tomorrow.

The hearing will continue at the airport here through Monday and probably Tuesday, according to South Trimble, Jr., solicitor for the Department of Commerce, who is in immediate charge of the investigation. There may be another brief interlude at Uniontown to take the testimony of Miss Granger. TWA executives said today that she still was too nervous and ill to come here and testify. Later also there may be brief sessions in Washington.

3 MILES OF CLOTHES

In the average home someone must launder three miles of clothes each year. This requires lots of hot water. If you depend on out-of-date methods of heating this water, you add a lot to the drudgery of the job and also to the time required to get the job done.

A gas water heater will eliminate much of the drudgery and shorten the hours required to perform many household tasks.

CROP FORECAST'S BULLISH ASPECT BOOSTS WHEAT

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 11.—In a general rush of buying today, wheat went skyward 2¼ cents a bushel.

Sensationally bullish aspects of a Government forecast that United States 1936 winter wheat production will be 27,000,000 to 52,000,000 bushels less than authoritative private estimates gave chief impetus to the soaring of prices. In addition was liberal export purchasing of Canadian wheat, together with news that Turkey is pressing plans to re-militarize the Dardanelles.

Wheat closed firm at nearly the day's top point, 1¼ @ 1⅞ above Thursday's finish, May 96¼ @ ⅜, July 87 @ 87⅛, corn ⅛ @ ⅝ up, May 60⅝, oats ⅛ @ ⅜ advanced and provisions unchanged to a rise of 10 cents.

Acting as a curb on bullish enthusiasm and leading at times to setbacks of about a cent a bushel for wheat were assertions from Chicago unofficial crop experts that the Government's estimate of yield takes into account all growth conditions the remainder of the season, rather than conditions as they existed April 1. Such an official forecast, it was urged, was an attempt at predicting weather the next four months, and thus amounts purely to guesswork. A further check on speculative buying was rain and snow today in Western Kansas, Western Oklahoma and Eastern Colorado.

Tending also to temper the bullish effect of the Government report was the circumstance that recent private forecasts of winter wheat yield had presented an absurdity in making the April estimates larger than March after emphasizing the ill results of drouth the month intervening. Moreover, some trade authorities contended today the total wheat yield this season will turn largely on the spring wheat crop. It was pointed out that at present the soil and moisture conditions for spring wheat are decidedly better than a year ago.

Corn, oats and rye firmed with wheat. Provisions advanced, responsive to prospective curtailment of hog arrivals.

Wheat futures purchases Thursday totaled 14,142,000 bushels, corn 2,085,000. Open interest in wheat was 99,714,000 bushels, and in corn 25,984,000.

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, April 11.—Both old and new crop wheat futures were strong today, May closing 1½c higher on bid and July 1½c up on bid. Corn futures were fractionally Winnipeg wheat o,ened ¼ @ ⅜c higher and early was ¾c up.

Liverpool grain market closed for Easter holiday.

Local wheat receipts which were 31,500 bu., compared with 25,500 a week ago and 25,500 a year ago included 15 cars local and 6 through. Corn receipts which were 305,500 bu., compared with 57,000 a week ago and 96,000 a year ago, included 125 cars local and 12 through. Oats receipts which were 34,000 bu., compared with 28,000 a week ago and 20,000 a year ago, included 12 cars local and 5 through. Hay receipts which were 2 cars local and 1 through.

In the cash grain market Saturday, soft wheat was 1c higher. Supply increased somewhat. Demand was good for choice grain. Order buyers furnished the main outlet. Corn was unchanged. Samples were late in arriving, but once all were on the floor, a good demand developed and a clearance was made. Mills, feeders, shippers and glucose makers showed the interest. Shippers bought mixed and whits. Oats were unchanged. Supply was light and the demand fair, though a few cars were carried over. Outside order buyers were the chief purchasers with an elevator taking a car or two.

FIRMER TONE IS SHOWN BY COTTON IN WEEK'S TRADE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 11.—Cotton had a firmer tone this week in response to reports of a continued tight spot situation and unfavorable weather in the South.

Buying was attributed to the trade and covering and there were some indications of a broadening demand for the new crop positions.

The advance, which carried July slightly above the 11-cent level for the first time since January, met some pre-holiday liquidation late in the week but it was absorbed on moderate setbacks. July closed the week (Thursday) at 11.02 and December at 10.39, compared with 10.92 and 10.22 on the previous Friday.

The administration's program for marketing Government loan cotton, announced over the week-end, proved about in line with expectations. At first glance it seemed to have rather an unsettling effect but later consideration made for a more favorable acceptance of the proposals.

At any rate the near months firmed with a trend toward readjustment of the parity with spot quotations in the South. The new crop positions were influenced by reports of wet weather in the belt east of the Mississippi and a continuance of drouthy conditions in parts of the Southwest.

With the advance of the spring season, traders are paying more attention to the weather news, and the weekly report of the weather bureau posted on the cotton exchange here for the first time this season, came in for considerable comment. It indicated that preparation for seedbeds had been delayed in the belt east of the Mississippi River by persistent wet soil and was about three weeks late in some sections. It also emphasized a need of rain in the western belt.

CHICAGO COTTON PRICES ARE NARROWLY MIXED

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 11.—With other cotton markets observing a holiday, Chicago cotton was irregular today and prices closed 2 points up to 2 points lower.

Trade opened with prices unchanged to a point higher, but business was dull throughout the session. Light rain fell in the northern part of the central and eastern belt, with traces along the Atlantic Coast, trade advices said. Leading trade authorities said weather conditions continued unfavorable and reports as to the start and development of the new crop should have an increasing effect from now on.

January cotton was the only delivery that sagged, the close being off 2 points at 10.50c.

HOG AND LAMB PRICES RISE, CATTLE UNEVEN

NATIONAL STOCKYARDS, Ill., April 11 (U. S. Department of Agriculture).—Lighter receipts of swine slightly more than balanced the bearish effect of limited shipper demand and values finished the week about 10c highr than the close of last week. Saturday supplies were too light to really make a market, and trade was called steady with Friday. Offerings this week totaled around 40,500, compared with 42,582 last week and 44,169 similar week last year. The Saturday top was $10.85, although a peak of $10.90 was registered Friday, that price being high for the week. Most 170 to 230 lb. averages finished at $10.75 and $10.80, 240 to 260 lb. descriptions being quotable at $10.50 @ 10.70. Heavier weights were limited to odd lots all week, 260 to 300 pounders being salable from $10.15 @ 10.50. Good and choice 140 to 160 lb. light lights sold Friday at $10.10 @ -0.65, and 100 to 130 lb. pigs, $9 @ 10.15. Packing sows earned $9 @ 9.50, mostly $9.35 down, on medium and heavyweight kinds.

BARGE-PIPE LINE SYSTEM PLANNED.

By the Associated Press.

MUSKEGON, Mich., April 11.—John Borden, president of the Old Dutch Refining Co., announced plans today for a $6,000,000 oil barge and pipe-line system to supply several Michigan independent refineries with crude oil from Louisiana and East Texas fields.

Borden said Detroit and Pittsburgh capital is behind the plan to transport crude up the Mississippi and Ohio rivers by barge to a point 100 miles south of Cincinnati, and from there to Michigan through a 360-mile pipe line.

Backers of the system are ready to guarantee a minimum consumption of 10,000 barrels a day for 10 years at a delivered price 10 cents a barrel under the prevailing Michigan price at the refineries, Borden said.

BANDS, CROWDS GREET BORAH IN HOME TOWN

Senator, in Speech, Recalls His Early Days in Fairfield, Ill.

By the Associated Press.

FAIRFIELD, Ill., April 11.—Fairfield, birthplace of Senator William E. Borah, received him today with flags flying and bands playing. The Senator was born on a farm five miles from here. He halted his tour of Illinois as a presidential candidate to attend a homecoming celebration here.

The entire student body of the town's grade schools marched to the home of Borah's sister, Mrs. Mattie Rinard, and escorted the Senator to the Wayne County schoolhouse. The Fairfield community band, with the high school band, saluted him when he arrived. There was a public reception in the Circuit Courtroom and the Senator drove down Main street in a flag-draped car.

Men and women and children jammed the courtroom, with overflow crowds in each anteroom and corridor and Fairfield police directing the traffic through roped lanes. Loud speakers tied in the maples of the court house square carried Borah's voice to the crowd that listened there in spite of a drizzling rain.

Borah declined to make a political speech, but did tell the home town crowd how he felt about bolting the Republican party should it name a candidate he disapproves.

"It has been circulated in this campaign that I will bolt and support Mr. Roosevelt," said Borah. "There'll be no trouble about my conduct after the Cleveland convention adjourns, if the man nominated there is named as a result of the free expression of the judgment of the Republican voters. One reason I entered this campaign is because I saw certain gentlemen getting active, and I knew they were at work only with the intention of controling the convention."

The rest of his speech was made up of reminiscences.

"I ran away from home to attend my first political meeting," he said. "It broke up in a fight. Alex Funkhauser, the speaker, jumped out the window and I ran for my mule and rode home."

Borah Invites Knox and Landon to Help Him Denounce Foes.

By the Associated Press.

CARBONDALE, Ill., April 11.—Senator William E. Borah tonight invited Gov. Alf Moseman Landon of Kansas and Col. Frank Knox, Chicago, to help him denounce his foes—the "monopolistic interests."

Borah's charges that "vast amounts" were being spent "in an attempt to control the Cleveland Republican convention" brought a reply, earlier in the day, from his Illinois primary opponent, Col. Knox, who said his own activities had cost not more than $25,000.

"I say to Knox," Borah told a mass meeting in Shyrock Hall of Southern Illinois Normal University, "that I was not making any reference to any individual candidate, but I was saying and I do say that vast amounts are being distributed for the purpose of controlling the convention and writing the platform and naming the candidate."

Borah nailed a new plank in his Illinois presidential primary platform tonight by declaring for stern efforts to collect the war debts.

From Carbondale the Senator headed back for Chicago, his Illinois stumping tour ended. It was the first he ever made in the role of a presidential candidate.

CONTINENTAL LIFE SEEKS TO END REHABILITATION ORDER

Files Petition to Remove Assets From Management of State Superintendent O'Malley.

A petition was filed in Circuit Court yesterday by the Continental Life Insurance Co. to end the rehabilitation proceedings against it and to remove the assets from the management of State Superintendent of Insurance R. Emmet O'Malley, who has charge. The order of rehabilitation was made in 1934 by Judge O'Neill Ryan. The case is now under the jurisdiction of Judge John W. Joynt, who recently authorized O'Malley to negotiate either for the sale of the company or reinsurance of its policies.

In the petition to set aside the rehabilitation it was stated that the capital stock fund of the company "is not impaired, the company is not insolvent, the liabilities do not exceed its available assets and the condition of the company is not such as to render its further proceedings hazardous to the public and policyholders; further that the causes for the order of rehabilitation actually have been removed."

A report filed yesterday by O'Malley set forth that the amount of insurance in force at the end of March was $57,400,996, being a decrease of $601,526 during the month, as shown by the previous monthly report.

WIFE SUES R. W. NICHOLS

She Charges General Indignities in Divorce Petition.

Mrs. Edith Nichols filed suit yesterday to divorce Robert W. Nichols, 4059 Westminster place, alleging general indignities. They were married July 3, 1915, and separated Oct. 15, 1926.

Mrs. Nichols alleged that her husband failed to support her and their son, Robert Nelson Nichols, now 17 years old, and she was compelled to seek employment. Her petition set forth that Nichols recently inherited more than $25,000 from the estate of his father, Robert M. Nichols, an attorney, who died last January. The defendant could not be reached for a statement.

OPINION HOLDS SUNDAY 3.2 BEER LAWS VOID

Attorney-General's Office Says New City Ordinances Conflict With State Act.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 11. — Two ordinances recently passed by the St. Louis Board of Aldermen over the veto of Mayor Dickmann, which permit licensed retailers of intoxicating liquors and 5 per cent beer to sell 3.2 per cent "non-intoxicating" beer Sundays between 1 p. m. and midnight, were declared in conflict with the State Liquor Control Act, and therefore void, in an opinion issued this afternoon by the Attorney-General's department.

The opinion issued at the request of E. J. Becker, State Liquor Control Supervisor, declared the ordinances invalid. The opinion, in addition, stated Becker's department was not prevented, by terms of the ordinances, from enforcing the liquor control act in St. Louis. The opinion was written by Assistant Attorney-General J. E. Taylor.

The ruling does not deal with the right of the holder of a permit only to sell 3.2 per cent beer, to sell this "non-intoxicating" product on Sunday. Attorney-General McKittrick, when questioned as to that point, said "we are not passing on that question in this opinion."

Ordinance Effective April 3.

The ordinance became operative April 3 under an emergency clause, and last Sunday was the first day on which taverns and holders of 5 per cent beer licenses could take advantage of the Sunday "open season."

The Attorney-General's opinion referred only to one ordinance, that permitting the sale of 3.2 beer in saloons licensed to sell hard liquor, but apparently referred also to the ordinance permitting holders of 5 per cent beer licenses to sell 3.2 beer on Sunday.

"It is a well-recognized principle of law," the opinion stated, "that, "that when the Legislature provides a uniform system for the regulation, control and licensing of the liquor traffic, that it has the effect to repeal all inconsistent provisions of municipal charters and the ordinances adopted under them."

City's Control Power Defined.

It was held that the city had authority to regulate and control the sale of intoxicating liquor, only where not inconsistent with the provisions of the liquor control act.

"It is the opinion of this department," the opinion stated, "that a person licensed to sell intoxicating liquor of any kind, whether 5 per cent beer or intoxicating liquor of all kinds, is prohibited from selling 3.2 per cent beer on Sundays under the provisions of Section 22 of the liquor control act. If such a licensee should sell 3.2 per cent beer on Sunday he would be guilty of a misdemeanor and subject to prosecution, and his license would be subject to be revoked, under the provisions of Section 13 of the liquor control act."

"It is the further opinion of this department that that part of the ordinance in question giving persons licensed to sell intoxicating liquor the right to sell non-intoxicating beer between the hours of 12:01 a. m. Sunday and 1:30 a. m. Sunday and between the hours of 1 p. m. Sunday and 1:30 a. m. Monday is inconsistent and in conflict with the State law on the same subject, and therefore void. In any event, the State law being paramount, such ordinance would not prevent your department from enforcing the provisions of the liquor control act."

STOCK PRICE AVERAGE UP TO NEW PEAK SINCE 1931

Week's Advance, However, Is Irregular as General Interest in Shares Is Restricted.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 11.—The stock market pushed irregularly higher this week.

General interest in shares was restricted. Financial circles noted a few bursts of selective buying in sections of the market aided by favorable news. Some felt that in view of various important items of bullish news on the trade and industrial ledger the market as a whole was somewhat backward.

Reasons assigned in some circles for the failure of equities to go ahead more aggressively were: The Good Friday holiday and the resultant departure of some professionals for a long week-end; the belief held by some that the market had already generously discounted much business improvement, and the opinion that the oncoming crop of first quarter earnings would include numerous "uninspiring" exhibits.

So far as the long haul is concerned, however, the impression prevailed among competent analysts that the second quarter will see a faster recovery pace than the first.

This idea was supported in some measure by the accumulation during the past week of some very robust statistics.

Steel Output Jumps.

There was the "Iron Age" report that steel output this week was at 66 per cent of capacity, a jump of 3½ per cent, and the highest level since June, 1930. Likewise, encouraging was the General Motors' report showing March sales at the peak since June, 1929, and first quarter sales the best since 1929. There was the 12.7 per cent gain over the same week a year ago in electric power production, the seventy-second consecutive week in which a gain over the corresponding week over the previous year was scored. In addition to these factors, there was the acceleration in retail trade to around the best in six years.

On the other hand, making for some caution, were: Early estimates indicating a slowing down in the rate of gain in net operating income of leading railroads because of floods in the East; the declaration of Mussolini that Ethiopia's forces must be annihilated, and the uncertainty resulting from the hoarding of funds and loss of gold by France owing to financial and political unsettlement.

Throughout the week the bond market was quiet and steady. Investment circles said two factors were at work: The continued support of idle excess banking reserves and the comparative absence of news pertaining to Government credit.

Selective Demand at Weekend.

A rally in scattered rails, coppers, motors, steels and specialties more than counteracted profit taking in the brief post-holiday session.

The going was a bit slippery during most of the two-hour proceedings, although selective demand was apparent from the start.

On the home-stretch Santa Fe again came to the front with a rush that pulled numerous issues in its wake.

Industrial news continued as the principal market stimulus. The foreign situation, while still confusing, did not seem to be a particularly disturbing influence.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks edged forward .2 of a point to 64.7, another new top for this index since July, 1931. Transfers totaled 798,280 shares.

Copper equities, spurred by the prospective boost in the price of the red metal next Monday, came in for attention in the first hour while a number of the recent leaders either idled or backed up as much as a point or so in a few instances.

The steel and automotive departments were indifferent until the carriers began to point the way to recovery. Buying in both the rails and coppers from London was reported by commission houses with foreign connections. European markets were closed for Easter observances.

A pickup in traffic and earnings for the Southwestern transportation leader were said to have drawn in speculative and investment buying for this stock as well as several other prominent rail equities.

Expanding automobile sales, steel production, electric power output, and retail sales volumes helped to sustain bullish sentiment. At the same time there were those who thought the stock list had not responded as heartily as it might in view of the gist of highly satisfactory industrial developments over the past several weeks.

March Home Construction.

Construction of new homes in March, the F. W. Dodge Corporation estimated, amounted to more than $55,000,000, the best for any month since October, 1931. Steel operations in the Youngstown district were expected to start next week at 80 per cent of capacity, an upturn of 4 points.

The White Motor Co. statement for 1935 disclosed a loss nearly double that of the preceding year, but President Black observed that the company is currently making a profit for the first time in five years. The stock advanced 1¼ points to 26¼.

Santa Fe closed at a new high for the move, up 2⅞ points at 85¾. American Car & Foundry was ahead 2⅛ at 37⅞.

On the losing side among others were American Telephone, Consolidated Edison, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Sears Roebuck and National Distillers.

Bonds were fairly steady and foreign currencies were easy in terms of the dollar.

Foreign Exchange

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 11.—Observance of Easter holidays curtailed trading in foreign currencies considerably in most centers today.

In New York the dollar was slightly ahead of most European units. The British pound sterling closed ⅛ of a cent lower at $4.94⅛. French franc were .00⅛ of a cent lower at 6.58¾ cents, and Holland guilders yielded .05 of a cent at 67.88 cents.

Earlier in London the dollar was a trifle higher at 4.94 to the pound, compared with an overnight New York rate of 4.94¼. In Paris the market was closed.

Based on the franc at its final New York rate the dollar was at a premium of 70-100 of 1 per cent, compared with 68-100 on Friday and a discount of 19-100 a month ago.

CROWN CORK OPTIONS GLASS MAKING PATENTS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 11.—Charles E. McManus, president of Crown Cork & Seal Co., Inc., in the annual report issued today, said the company has obtained options on glass-making patents.

This step was taken, it was explained, to round the company's development in the container business.

"These patented methods and processes will be fully developed in the initial unit of its glass division, which it is expected will be in operation during this year," McManus said.

The report disclosed that Crown Cork will pay $650,000 for all the outstanding stock of the Acme Can Co. of Philadelphia. On this amount, $65,000 had been paid as of March 25. The balance of $858,000 is payable over a period ending Oct. 1, 1936.

On Feb. 27 Crown Cork advanced $200,000 to Acme for the purchase of a parcel of land in Philadelphia. Acme will improve the land with buildings to be equipped for can manufacture. Crown Cork agreed to buy all the outstanding stock of Acme on Feb. 7.

TRADE TRENDS

NEW YORK, April 11.—A leading manufacturer of blankets has given notice to the trade that prices on its cotton and part wool blankets will be advance April 20. Jobbers said they expected the rise will be a small one.

Hardware—There was less activity in the wholesale hardware market last week, following a month or more of heavy volume. Dealers reported the recession a normal trend for Easter week.

Glass—Most units of the glass industry are now operating on steady schedules, says the "American Glass Review." Demand for plate and safety glass has been the market's outstanding feature.

Shoes—Trade authorities report that the estimated March production of 34,000,000 pairs was about equal to the output of the same month last year. For the first quarter production shows an indicated rise of more than 3 per cent over the like period of 1935.

Tobacco — The price of U. S. type 12, grade B4F flue cured tobacco averaged 17.7 cents a pound last week against 17.3 cents in the preceding week and 24.5 cents in the corresponding period last year, according to H. A. Stich, tobacco statistician.

COMMODITY INDEX AVERAGES

Other statistical data showing economical trend.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 11.—Commodity prices during the past five days turned in the best week-to-week gain in approximately two months.

The Associated Press weighted index of wholesale staple prices advanced to 74.26 on Thursday from 73.36 last Friday (markets closing Friday and Saturday this week due to the holiday) and compares with 75.05 in the same week last year.

This turnabout in the recent downtrend is generally attributed to two factors. The Great Plains "dust bowl" is experiencing the same early-season lack of moisture that marked the beginning of the disastrous drouth two years ago. On this basis some doubts have been raised as to the ultimate size of the year's crops, with the desult that not a few short posiitions in grains were covered last week.

Broadest recovery among the components of the index was scored by the agricultural group, which rose more than a point for the first time this year.

Lack of rain in the grain belt and too much rain in the Southeast cotton area buoyed corn, wheat, rye, oats and cotton.

Strong demand sent the foods to higher levels, including butter, lard, cocoa and eggs. The latter responded to reports that takings last month in Boston, New York, Philadelphia and Chicago jumped more than 56 per cent over 1935, with the Easter business expected to continue the improvement.

With cattle, hog and lamb prices pushign ahead, the livestock index scored the largest increase, with one exception, for the year to date.

The industrial staples were mixed, with advances in rubber and burlap more than offset by declines in turpentine and steel scrap. Among the extiles, slipping silk quotations were outweighed by wool's gain. Tin continued the downward drift that has carried the price about 3 per cent lower in a month.

The index, with its components, based on 1926 as 100, follows:

	Apr. 9.	Pr Wk.	Yr. Ago.
35 commodities	74.26	73.36	75.05
Industrial	78.97	79.09	69.84

INDUSTRIAL ACTIVITY INDEX.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 11.—This week's gain in industrial activity was the largest since October, 1935, and places the tempo of business on the highest April plateau in six years.

Continuing the upturn begun in February—which has been interrupted only once, when the floods temporarily stemmed the advance—the Associated Press index of industrial activity advanced 1.9 this week to 83.9 and compares with 74.0 in the comparable week a year ago.

Steel mill operations maintained their spectacular progress, having been stepped up more than one-third since the last week in January. The present level is the highest since 1930.

Automobile output, electric power production and total carloadings improved.

Cotton manufacturing and residential building fell slightly behind last week.

The index, with its seasonally adjusted components based on the latest available statistics, and with 1929-30 as 100, follows:

	This Wk.	Pr. Wk.	Yr. Ago.
Composite index	83.9	82.0	74.0

MORE ACTIVE BUYING OF COPPER; RISE IS EXPECTED

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 11.—Anticipating a uniform level of 9½ cents a pound for copper next week, as forecast by producing centers, consumers of copper bought more actively in the domestic market during the last few days, it was reported today.

The market has had a split quotation for several weeks, but recently it was made known that the producers who failed to advance to 9½ cents with Phelps Dodge Corporation and Anaconda Copper Mining Co. will go on this basis early next week. They had been holding at 9¼ cents.

The Easter holidays tended to slow the market Friday and Saturday, but informed quarters estimated that Thursday's sales were approximately 30,000 tons.

Copper statistics for March, which will be released next week, are expected to reflect continued control of production and rising consumption.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 11.—Tin was easier with losses of about ⅝c reported for the week in sympathy with declines in the Far East and at London. The lower levels uncovered better inquiry, including forward shipments, as tin plate output returned to the pre-flood rate of better than 75 per cent.

Lead held steady and unchanged, and although there was a slight tapering of demand, previous good sales and large shipments to buyers created the impression that consumption was maintained or increasing. March shipments are unofficially estimated at 38,000 tons.

Zinc remained dull, but smelters were said to be reluctant to press offerings in view of expectations that consumption is increasing. The price was unchanged. March statistics revealed a slight increase in stocks with production in excess of shipments.

Antimony was dull, with buying limited to small lots. American grades are at a ¾-cent discount under Chinese.

The rise in steel ingot production to 66 per cent of capacity, the best level since the summer of 1930, was credited to increasing automobile production, continued large rail buying and good demand for consumer goods.

$50,000,000 REFUNDING OF U. S. RUBBER PLANNED

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 11.—A plan to refund the U. S. Rubber Company's $50,000,000 first and refunding mortgage bonds due Jan. 1, 1947 will be put before stockholders at the annual meeting April 21, it was disclosed at the offices of the company today.

The main purpose of the refunding, it was said, would be to free the company from restrictive requirements of the loan indenture. Only a small saving in interest charges will be effected.

One restriction the company is understood to be desirous of removing is the requirement that net unencumbered quick assets of subsidiaries be maintained at $30,000,000, of which at least $20,000,000 is to be in companies the stock of which is directly pledged under the mortgage.

This requirement, it was explained, does not apply to General Rubber Co., which owns the rubber plantations.

The effect of this provision, it was pointed out, is to prevent the company from making savings by dissolving the subsidiaries affected.

FINANCIAL NOTES

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 11.—Stockholders of American Home Products Co. have approved the company's proposal to acquire Affiliated Products, Inc., in exchange for 76,560 shares of the former's stock. American Home Products manufactures drugs and pharmaceuticals in various plants located in Eastern and Midwestern States.

Glidden Co. of Cleveland, manufacturers of varnish and paints, plans to issue a new $50, par convertible 4½ per cent preferred stock and retire the present outstanding $100 par 7 per cent prior preference stock. The new issue will consist of 200,000 shares and will be offered to common stockholders at the rate of one share of new preferred for each four shares of common at $52.50 a share.

Some of the larger brass and copper fabricators have announced increases of generally ¼ cent a pound in prices of their products, effective April 14. The advance is said to have been prompted by expectations of a revision in domestic copper prices which will leave the market at 9½ cents a pound against the present market of 9¼@½ cents.

The Consolidated Oil Corporation stockholders at the annual meeting May 20 will vote on rescinding authorization previously given for issuance of $100,000,000 of secured bonds and on a plan to authorize not over $50,000,000 in bonds or other securities having, at the discretion of directors, a convertible feature or stock purchase warrants.

Standard statistics Co. reported that April industrial activity in all but a few lines is running ahead of a year ago. In principal lines of industrial production during April compared with a year ago, building contracts heads the list with an increase of 110 per cent. Other increases include steel ingots 39 per cent, lumber 35 per cent, cement 30 per cent and chemicals 25 per cent. Silk takings were at the bottom of the list with a decline of 30 per cent.

"The Bond Buyer" in a summary of state and municipal financing scheduled for next week found that one state and 51 municipalities have plans for a total of $15,783,091 compared with the revised total for the past week of $29,695,225. The weekly average of new offerings for the year stands at $24,019,876.

"Business Week" through a survey has determined that 1438 corporations during 1935 showed an increase of 46 per cent in net profits over 1934. The magazine stated: "That 1218 manufacturing and merchandising concerns made in 1935 a 54.5 per cent increase in net profits over 1934; that 60 gas and electric utilities came out 9.7 per cent ahead; that 11 telephone and telegraph companies went up 24.8 per cent; that 149 class 1 railroads almost succeeded in climbing back into the black."

NEW YORK, April 11.—Favorable dividend changes during the week, according to Standard Statistics Co., totaled 19 against 22 the preceding week. Four were increases, two resumptions, eight extras and four were initial payments. Only one unfavorable change was shown compared with two the previous week.

FINANCIAL BAROMETER.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—The monetary gold stock of the United States has resumed its advance to new peaks, although at a slower pace than last year. Recent gains have come mainly from primary producing sources rather than central bank reserves of Europe. Meanwhile, monetary authorities are awaiting clarification of the outlook for the French franc to provide a cue on gold shipments.

The total domestic stock, as reported by the Federal Reserve Board, compared as follows:

Week ended April 8	$10,190,000,000
Preceding week	10,185,000,000
Same week last year	8,614,000,000

BOND RANGE NARROW IN WEEK-END TRADE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 11.—The bond market idled away the brief two-hour session today without getting very far in either direction from closing levels of the previous business day.

Fractional changes, with a slight majority on the upside, was the rule in all classes of domestic corporation bonds. U. S. Governments moved within a range of 1-32 to 3-32, and other than minor losses in some of the Italian and German obligations, there was little change in the foreign group.

Transfers of $6,310,000, par value, compared with $7,059,000 last Saturday. Of this amount governments accounted for about $230,000.

The Associated Press averages ranged from an advance of .1 of a point in the rails to a decline of .1 of a point in industrials. Two groups—utilities and low yields—were unchanged.

Warren Bros. convertible 6s were bid up 3¼ points to 65½, and the receipts were 2½ higher at 65. Inland Steel 3¾s went into a new high for the year at 104½, up ½ point, and St. Louis-San Francisco Railway 4s improved a point at 23½. Other issues selling higher included Allis Chalmers 4s, Anaconda 4½s, Lehigh Valley 4½s and International Telephone 4½s.

Pure Oil 4½s with warrants dropped 1½ points to 124½. International Hydro Electric 6s lost 2¼ at 39, and fractional declines were shown by Baltimore & Ohio 4½s and Bush Terminal 5s.

Treasury 3s of 1951 were the most active Government issue and gained 2-32ds at 104.6. Several other long-term bonds were a trifle higher, while most of the nearby maturities were either unchanged or a shade lower.

In the foreign department, German 5½s dropped ⅜ to 26⅛, and Italian 7s were ⅛ lower at 73⅝. Little change was recorded by others.

Small Bond Issue Planned.

NEW YORK, April 11.—Harry F. Sinclair, chairman of the executive committee of the Consolidated Oil Corporation, reported that improvement in the firm's financial condition has caused directors to recommend to stockholders issuance of not more than $50,000,000 instead of $100,000,000 in secured bonds, and to make the smaller amount convertible or issue them with stock purchase warrants.

INDUSTRIAL SPECIALTIES STRONG SPOT ON THE CURB

NEW YORK, April 11.—Industrial specialties furnished the Curb market with its main source of strength today in a quiet pre-holiday session.

The general run of oils, metals and utilities moved in an extremely narrow range, some gaining minor fractions and others leaning a trifle to the offside. A sizeable number ended the session unchanged.

Aluminum Co. furnished the fireworks by bounding up 5¾ points on small sales. The stock had been inactive most of the early part of the week. Wayne Pump was bid up 2½, also on comparatively small orders.

Shares closing unchanged or within a small fraction either way of Thursday's close included City Auto Stamping, Electric Bond & Share, Lake Shore Mines, and Niagara Hudson.

Transfers of 230,000 shares, compared with 367,000 last Saturday.

SURPLUS GASOLINE STOCK REDUCTION IS PROPOSED

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 11.—The American Petroleum Institute's committee on supply and demand recommended today a curtailment in the amount of crude oil run to refinery stills, in order to reduce surplus gasoline in storage to an "economically desirable" level.

In a report to be published in the institute's April quarterly, it was stated that excess gasoline in storage has been caused by weather which during the first quarter of this year hampered transportation and also boosted the demand for heating and industrial fuels, causing gasoline production which was not used.

As of March 31, preliminary estimates place the amount of finished and unfinished gasoline in storage at 74,000,000 barrels, a new high peak, some 8,000,000 barrels over a year ago and about 17,000,000 barrels higher than at the end of 1935.

The committee suggested the need for liquidation of 23,000,000 barrels and a cut in the crude run to stills to a daily average of 2,760,000 barrels for the next six months so that gasoline inventories by Sept. 30 may not exceed 51,000,000 barrels.

Domestic demand for motor fuels in the second quarter of this year was estimated by the committee at 121,000,000 barrels, a gain of 6.2 per cent over the same period of 1935, and for the third quarter at 130,500,000 barrels, an increase of 6.5 per cent.

ILLINOIS PRIMARY BALLOTS CROWDED WITH CANDIDATES

Factional Splits in Both Parties Make Choice in Tuesday's Election Difficult.

HORNER-BUNDESEN FIGHT RED HOT

Small-Brooks Contest on G. O. P. Ticket Equally Brisk—How Opposing Groups Line Up.

Illinois Democratic and Republican primaries will be held Tuesday, after a rousing six-week campaign between factions in both parties that resounded from Chicago to Cairo over the radio, from platform speakers, billboards, newspaper advertisements and hustling precinct workers. Polls will be open from 6 a. m. until 5 p. m.

Often the forgotten man politically in an election while the candidates are in the limelight, the precinct worker and his committeeman are going to make the difference between defeat and victory in this primary, county political leaders say, for the ballot is long and cumbersome, the party tickets are split, and the most closely-knit political organization seems likely to win.

Surplus of Candidates.

There are 68 names on the St. Clair County Democratic ballot with the main fight between organizations of Gov. Henry Horner and that of Dr. Herman N. Bundesen of Chicago, who was picked by Mayor Edward J. Kelly of Chicago and Cook County Chairman Patrick G. Nash to beat Horner.

On the St. Clair County Republican ticket are 90 names, with the spearhead of the fight between former Gov. Len Small and C. Wayland Brooks and their State tickets, although there are six other Republican candidates for nomination as Governor.

Other county ballots in the State, including Madison, carry from 50 to 90 names, depending on the number running for local offices. The "average voter," after listening to the pros and cons of the campaign, is still trying to find out who's who, and the man to tell him is the organization worker, making it plain with a marked sample ballot.

St. Clair County Campaign.

Leaders of opposing Democratic factions in St. Clair County have directed their campaign to nominate Gov. Horner and his slate of State candidates, or Dr. Bundesen and his candidates for State office. Neither faction has publicly made any indorsement of nominees for local offices, and the strategy is to avoid making local foes unnecessarily. It is generally accepted, however, that all the incumbent St. Clair County office holders, who are seeking nomination, are for Gov. Horner, and will receive the support of the Democratic Central County Committee, of which Frederick E. Merrills of Belleville is chairman.

Merrills predicted yesterday Gov. Horner would carry 85 of the 94 St. Clair County precincts outside East St. Louis. John J. Hallihan, State Director of Education and Registration and chairman of the East St. Louis Democratic Committee, who retained his place in local politics where he has been active for 20 years, predicted Gov. Horner would carry St. Clair County by 15,000 votes.

Horner's Fight on His Record.

Campaign speakers have hammered on three words in advocating Gov. Horner's cause: "honest, courageous, independent"—the last being a slap at Chicago leaders. Literature and speakers have called attention to the removal of the State's share of property tax during his administration; unemployment relief, benefits of the sales tax, county school aid, pensions for mothers and aged persons, road building, and public health benefits, figured down to show the amount of money that went to each county from State measures during his administration, and the number of persons aided.

Commenting on the struggle between the Chicago Kelly-Nash group and Gov. Horner for Democratic control in Illinois, which the primary will go a long way to decide, Hallihan said: "Gov. Horner's organization is intact. We are solid and will elect our committeemen. It is up to our opponents to break the organization, and I don't believe they can." Merrills said that when State Treasurer John Stelle held up the pay of State employes he helped to make them stronger Horner men.

Horner vs. Bundesen.

On Gov. Horner's slate are: James Hamilton Lewis for United States Senator; John E. Cassidy for Lieutenant-Governor; Homer Mat Adams for State Auditor; Joseph T. Spiker for State Treasurer, and Otto Kerner for Attorney-General.

On the Bundesen ticket are: Senator Lewis; Attorney-General Kerner, who is unopposed; Stelle for Lieutenant-Governor; Edward J. Barrett for State Auditor; John C. Martin for State Treasurer; E. V. Champion and Lewis M. Long for Congressmen-at-large.

The downstate Bundesen campaign was directed by Bruce A. Campbell, East St. Louis attorney, and chairman of the Democratic State Committee, who four years ago supported Gov. Horner. In St. Clair County, Emmett P. Griffin, superintendent of the East St. Louis Park Board, and William Farley, health officer of Belleville, managed the Bundesen forces. Griffin, who in the 1934 elections was the leader of the county New Deal Democrats, opposing candidates of the regular Democratic organization, now is aligned with Bundesen and the State Central Democratic Committee.

Bundesen Claims.

As optimistic as their opponents, the Bundesen leaders predict victory, figuring that they will get an even division of the votes outside Cook County and a 3 to 1 majority within the Bundesen stronghold.

Bundesen speakers have attacked Gov. Horner from every angle. They have disputed his claims of local aid and benefits; assailed the sales tax as a financial burden on the lower salaried classes; said he would be a drag to the re-election of President Roosevelt instead of an aid, because he couldn't carry his ticket; charged that the sales tax was costing the people more than the revoked State property tax; charged him with taking credit for aid supplied by Federal agencies, and pointed out that the group of Chicago Democrats whom he criticised for selecting Dr. Bundesen, were the men who picked and supported him in the primary four years ago. In behalf of Dr. Bundesen the campaign was directed to point to his "good record in Chicago, his efficiency, executive ability," and his vote-getting power in Cook County as an aid to President Roosevelt's re-election.

Republican Campaign.

In the Republican ranks, the campaign has been equally intensive. The supporters of C. Wayland Brooks and Small not only fought each other but both made attacks on the administration of Gov. Horner for the general benefit of the Republican party.

In East St. Louis, where politics is taken seriously and campaigning becomes almost a year-around activity with daily favors done for true followers of the party, Dan McGlynn directed the Brooks campaign. Wilbur Mitchell of Belleville, Republican Central Committee chairman, also is supporting Brooks.

Both predicted Brooks' victory, but said the Republican party in Illinois would support as a unit any ticket chosen in the primary to defeat the Democrats in November with the hope that the Horner-Bundesen split would not heal.

Brooks-Small Contest.

Brooks and Small campaign speakers have attacked the Horner administration in much the same vein as the Bundesen speakers. In behalf of Brooks, speakers described him as an "independent and capable candidate, bringing new and vigorous leadership to the party," while Small had been sufficiently rewarded by his two terms as Governor.

On the Brooks ticket are: Frank Knox for President; Otis F. Glenn for United States Senator; John W. Kapp Jr. for State Secretary; Arthur J. Bidwill for State Auditor; Clarence F. Buck for State Treasurer, and John T. Dempsey for Congressman-at-large. In St. Clair County, the Brooks organization has added James A. McCallum for Lieutenant-Governor and Thomas V. Sullivan for Attorney-General, and substituted Robert McCormick Adams for Congressman-at-large.

McGlynn announced his organization's support of the following local candidates: J. M. Seagraves for Clerk of the Circuit Court; John T. Thomas for State's Attorney; Dr. E. L. Rauth for Coroner; Frank E. Jones for County Auditor; George J. Wellmuenster for member of the Board of Review; Frank T. Kern and Joe Cookson for the Board of Assessors; Dr. Walter B. Albertson for a vacancy as Assessor, and Alfred Ruwisch, Leo G. Dougherty, Russell Beebe, Oliver M. Brammell and A. B. Touchette for members of the Levee Board.

The present members of the Levee Board, Stephen H. Kernan, Alvin G. Fields, William Knaus, John T. English and Thomas D. Meehan, are again candidates supported by the Gov. Horner organization.

The Small Slate.

Small's campaign in St. Clair County was directed by E. Fred Gerold of East St. Louis and R. E. Duvall, former Mayor of Belleville. Speakers advocated repeal of the sales tax and promised economy in public office under Small.

The Small organization supports Knox for President and Kapp for Secretary of State, along with the Brooks forces; William E. Hull for United States Senator; George Hatzenbuhler for Lieutenant-Governor; E. E. Nicholson for State Auditor; Edward E. Miller for State Treasurer, and Thomas V. Sullivan for Attorney-General.

Gerold announced the organization's support of the following local candidates: Walter G. Grossman for Clerk of the Circuit Court; Curt C. Lindauer for State's Attorney; Dr. H. H. Hurd for Coroner, and George Gerold for State Representative. No indorsements had been made for other offices, he said.

Other G. O. P. Candidates.

Other candidates on the St. Clair County Republican ballot are:

Representative in Congress, Twenty-second District: Louis Bernreuter, Quinten E. Spivey and Jesse R. Brown.

Representative in the General Assembly, Forty-ninth District; Calvin D. Johnson, Max L. Bowler, R. H. Huschle, Jesse Biggs, John Barnes, M. G. Gates, Dr. Miles D. Davis, Marvin M. Grupe, Alonzo A. Miller and Mrs. Ida M. Keller.

Recorder of Deeds: Otto Weibert, Edward N. Thomas and John J. Erhardt Jr.

State's Attorney: Leroy E. Miller.

Board of Review: Clem Spinnenweber, William Warner Schroeder, Charles A. Scherrer, Henry Vogt and Edward H. Wilson.

Board of Assessors: A. J. Hepp, Louis Goldberg and Alfred S. Kunze. (To fill vacancy) Ernest J. Abt and A. A. Schobert.

Levee Board: L. T. Griffin, James S. Ledbetter, Edward Reimann, A. M. Jacko, Louis Reichmann and Robert D. Schmidt.

St. Clair Democrats in Race.

Others on the St. Clair County Democratic ballot are:

For Congressman, Twenty-second District: Edwin M. Schaefer, Walter Nesbit, L. C. Combe and O. S. Fulkerson.

For State Representative, Forty-ninth District: Frank Holten, Ben Emge, Joseph Kauffman, John E. Whealon, A. H. Smith, James Adron Starnes, Grover C. Borders and John J. Rogers.

Clerk of the Circuit Court: Charles G. Becker.

Recorder of Deeds: Walter Flannigen and Frank P. McKane.

State's Attorney: Louis P. Zerweck.

Coroner: Dr. Walter W. Boyne and Dr. Leo L. Madden.

County Auditor: Robert W. Tiernan and John J. Dengler.

Board of Review: Leonard Darmstatter, Thomas J. Godfrey, Herbert A. Schwind, Francis L. Detchemendy and John J. Hamilton.

Board of Assessors: Edward S. Helms, Jule A. Holten, Charles A. Cooper, John F. O'Flaherty, Leon C. Mace, Patrick H. Cooney, John B. Gray and Elmer F. Brichler. (To fill a vacancy) James Tierney, Dan Costello and August W. Kaiser.

Levee Board: Frank J. Enos, Eddie Lee Nelson and Leo W. Quick.

Factional Lineups and Candidates in Madison County.

In Madison County, the organization lineup is the same behind the State tickets, and the four Republican and Democratic factions have been holding meetings for a month.

One of the features of the campaign has been a fight made by Richard F. Wood, young publisher of the weekly Madison County News at Edwardsville, who is seeking the nomination for State's Attorney on the Republican ticket, but has directed his attacks against State's Attorney Lester Geers, who is an unopposed candidate on the Democratic ticket. Woods published stories calling attention to slot machines and other forms of gambling in the county and criticised Geers. When that had no effect, he filed for the office, and continued his campaign on the same basis. He is an attorney.

Local G. O. P. Candidates.

Republican candidates for local offices in Madison County are:

State Representative from the Forty-Seventh District: I. H. Streeper, Hewitt E. Winkler, and Schuyler B. Vaughan.

Clerk of the Circuit Court: Robert C. Cunningham and Jos. R. Barnett.

Recorder of Deeds: C. A. R. Benedict and Fred H. Strackeljahn.

State's Attorney: Wood, A. U. Barco, and M. E. Newell.

Coroner: Dr. L. D. Darner and Francis J. Lahey.

County Auditor: Carl W. Brase, R. E. Robertson, and Leo F. Grosh.

On Democratic Ticket.

Madison County Democratic candidates are:

State Representative, Forty-Seventh District: Schaefer O'Neill, Lloyd Harris, and William Dickman.

Simon Kellerman Jr., for Circuit Court Clerk; Ben Hodges for Recorder of Deeds; Lester Geers for State's Attorney, and Dr. W. W. Billings for County Auditor.

No indorsements of Madison County candidates for local offices have been made by party leaders. The Bundesen supporters, among them Mayor F. A. Garesche of Madison, and Chief Deputy Joseph Kellerman, secretary of the County Democratic Central Committee, have put up no candidates for county offices and the incumbents are unopposed. The Democratic County Committee chairman, James L. Simpson of Collinsville, is supporting Gov. Horner.

James Mullen of Alton, Republican county chairman, is aligned with the Brooks forces, as is Alvin C. Bohm, former State's Attorney and Republican leader.

Among the Republican leaders supporting Small's candidacy are Dr. C. E. Trovillion and C. C. Ellison of Alton, Henry B. Eton and Harry B. Faulkner of Granite City. The campaign, as in St. Clair County, was centered around the candidates for Governor and their State tickets.

MOTION TO ADVANCE MOVIE SUIT HEARING

Effort to Have Supreme Court Appeal in Federal Case Acted On This Session.

A motion to shorten the time allowed corporate interests of Warner Bros., Paramount and R-K-O to file an appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States, in connection with the Government's effort to stop withholding of films from Fanchon & Marco theaters here, was filed with Federal Judge Charles B. Davis yesterday. The Judge set the motion for hearing, at the request of District Attorney Harry C. Blanton, at Cape Girardeau, Mo., Friday.

The motion would shorten the appeal period from May 6 to April 26, with the object of having the case heard at the present session of the Supreme Court. Failure to grant the motion, it was asserted, would mean that the Government's injunction suit against the movie interests, pending in New York, could not be heard until next winter. Meanwhile, the motion added, the defendants would be free to continue the withholding complained of.

Right of Appeal Allowed.

Judge Davis, on March 27, allowed the right of appeal from a ruling by Federal Judge Joseph W. Molyneaux, which permitted the Government to dismiss without prejudice a similar injunction suit, trial of which had been started here. This held up trial of the proceeding in New York, which replaced the local one. The same corporate interests and a group of their executives were acquitted here last year of a criminal charge of conspiracy in the withholding of films.

The Government's motion, prepared by Stanley Reed, solicitor of the Department of Justice, and filed by the District Attorney, alleged that the contemplated appeal was frivolous and intended wholly to delay the Government in the New York case, although the charges there were the same as in the two cases here. The sole question raised by the appeal, it was said, was whether Judge Molyneaux erred in dismissing the injunction suit without prejudice and in failing to dismiss it finally on the ground the issue had been settled by the acquittal in the criminal case.

Statement to High Court.

The statement to the Supreme Court, opposing that tribunal's jurisdiction to entertain the appeal, was filed with the motion. In it Reed asserted that the question of the right of dismissal had been settled by the Supreme Court. In support of this he cited several decisions, notably one in a case of the Bronx Brass Foundry against the Irving Trust Co., in which, he said, the Supreme Court had held: "The plaintiff possesses the unqualified right to dismiss a complaint at law or a bill in equity, unless some plain legal prejudice will result to the defendant other than the mere prospect of a second litigation upon the subject matter."

One Killed, Six Hurt in Auto Crash.
By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Ill., April 11.—Mrs. Guy Perisho, 35 years old, of Paris, was killed and six other persons seriously injured today when two automobiles collided head-on. The injured are: Guy Perisho, Joan Perisho, 6, Miss Kathleen Anderson, William Anderson, all of Paris, and Abraham Smith, and John Henry Rayborne, Negroes, both of Danville, Ill.

NEW SCOUT CAMP ON CURRENT RIVER

To Have Two Periods of Two Weeks Each for Older Boys.

A new summer camp for older scouts will be opened this summer at Owl Bend, Mo., on the Current River, Harry A. Frank, chairman of the Activities Committee of the St. Louis Council, announced yesterday. The camp will be called "Camp Powder Mill."

There will be two camping sections of two weeks each, with the enrollment of each period limited to 32 boys of more than 14 years of age. A third section will be arranged if more than 64 senior scouts desire to attend.

The camp, situated 150 miles from St. Louis, will be directed by L. J. Case, director of the Senior Scouting program in the council. John Gast, a member of the staff at the Irondale camp last year, will have charge of water activities. The scouts will live in tents and a large cabin will serve as kitchen and dining room.

The first camping section will begin July 5. Cost of a two-week period will be $15.

Capt. Fred C. Mills, director of health and safety for the National Scout Council, will demonstrate use of the canoe and rowboat to Sea Scouts and scoutmasters at 8:30 p. m., Thursday, in the Downtown Y. M. C. A. pool.

Scouts from the following troops were to serve as ushers at the Sunrise Easter Service in Tower Grove Park this morning: Troop 27, Pilgrim Evangelical Church; 86, Horace Mann School; 63, Oak Hill Presbyterian Church; 76, Grand-Gravois Business Men's Association; 180, Rose Fanning School; 198, St. John's Episcopal Church; 91, Compton Hill Congregational Church; 77, Tyler Place Presbyterian Church; 74, Sherman School; 38, Bryan-Mullanphy School; and 177, Compton Heights Christian Church.

Indefinite postponement of the course for troop committeemen which was scheduled to begin tomorrow evening at the Michael School was announced yesterday.

Sea Scout officers will meet at 8 p. m., tomorrow, at the Forest Park Hotel to discuss plans for the sailing season which will open next Sunday at the base on Creve Coeur Lake.

Officers and advisers of the new chapter of Alpha Phi Omega, national scout fraternity, at Washington University, are week-end guests of Col. H. D. McBride, scout commissioner, at his country home near Augusta, Mo. The chapter will be installed formally May 1.

North District scouts and leaders will hold a rally Tuesday evening in the school hall of Rock Church, 1118 North Grand boulevard.

A. F. Meyer, troop committeeman for Troop 5, Kirkwood, has been named field commissioner for the Kirkwood division of Suburban district.

Troop 109 of the Missouri School for the Blind, and Troop 126, Holy Ghost Evangelical Church, will hold a joint court of honor Friday night at the Holy Ghost Church, 4916 Mardel avenue. Graham Mangrum and Bert Tschambers of Troop 126 will receive Eagle Scout badges, and E. Gent Johannes and Roland Neuman of the same troop will receive an Eagle palm and a Life badge, respectively. Two scouts in Troop 109, Leslie Cameron and Oliver Rush, will be advanced to First Class rank.

A Life Scout badge will be awarded to Leroy Kenworthy Thursday night at a court of honor of his troop, 175, sponsored by the Manchester Business Men's Association, at 4418 Manchester avenue.

Cub Pack 25 and Troop 102, both of the Flynn Park School, University City, will hold a joint Fathers and Sons meeting Friday night at the school.

674 BABIES TO BE CARRIED IN SHRINE JUBILEE PARADE

So Far 67 Girls Have Entered "Miss St. Louis" Contest for Celebration May 7-9.

The 674 babies entered in the Shrine Jubilee baby health contest will take part in a parade May 7. The parade will start at Fourteenth and Chestnut streets, proceed north on Fourteenth to Washington avenue, east to Twelfth boulevard and south to the City Hall. Mayor Dickmann and other city officials will greet the paraders from the City Hall steps. Prizes will be awarded for the best costume and floats.

Thus far 67 girls have entered the "Miss St. Louis" contest. The winner will be announced at the Shrine Jubilee Celebration at the Coliseum May 7, 8 and 9. The purpose of the show is to raise $50,000 for Shrine charities. These charities are separate from the United Relief.

East St. Louis Bus Route Change.
By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 11. — The Belleville-St. Louis Bus Co. was granted authority by the Illinois Commerce Commission today to change its route in East St. Louis. The company was permitted to abandon its route on Eighteenth street between State street and Missouri avenue and on Missouri avenue between Eighteenth and Ninth streets and instead use State street between Eighteenth and Ninth streets and Ninth street between State street and Missouri avenue.

APPEALS FOR $135,000 FUND FOR SYMPHONY

J. Lionberger Davis Addresses Audience at Closing Concert on Orchestra's Needs.

The audience at the season's closing concert of the Symphony Orchestra, at Municipal Auditorium last night, was addressed by J. Lionberger Davis, banker, on the accomplishments of the orchestra and the need for the $135,000 maintenance fund soon to be sought.

A campaign for the fund, which will meet expenses of the organization in excess of the income from the sale of seats, will be started under auspices of the Symphony Society April 23.

Davis said the orchestra was one of the world's greatest and was deserving of co-operation from the people. Although attendance has been growing, he explained, it was not possible to meet expenses from admissions, and subscriptions to assist in maintenance were necessary. There were 1600 subscribers to this fund in 1930, but only 300 for the season now closing, and there will be a deficit of several thousand dollars this season.

"The most tangible evidence of appreciation," said Davis, "is the remarkable attendance at the current series of concerts. The 1935-36 season has attracted more than 135,000 paid admissions. In one sense, it may truly be said that only the excellence of the orchestra's offerings has made this possible. But looking back over the years of success which the society's efforts have enjoyed, we realize that there is an innate desire for fine music in this community. Long ago we determined that St. Louis should have the best. Conductor Golschmann and his able co-workers have given it to us.

"Obviously, a deficit is inevitable. In St. Louis we are fortunate that it is not greater. In former years it has been greater. But regardless of the amount needed each year, the people of this community have provided it because they feel our Symphony to be one of the institutions vitally necessary to worth-while life in this community.

"No organized appeal has been made by the society since 1931. True, many persons loyally continued their financial support. Had they not done so, the maintenance of the orchestra would have been impossible. But each year the number of such persons has grown smaller.

"During this month an organized semi-public appeal will be made to raise a $135,000 maintenance fund which will meet the unpaid deficit of the current year and provide all necessary for next season's budget. I am sure you readily see the necessity for such an appeal. It is obviously unfair to place the entire burden of the orchestra's maintenance upon such a very small number of persons. It is dangerous, likewise, to the orchestra and the society to allow the financial foundation for their work to rest upon such a narrow base.

"I believe that we can close this splendid season tonight, secure in the conviction that during this financial appeal St. Louis men and women will again provide, gladly and generously, the means whereby we may look forward to even greater accomplishments by the orchestra."

500 TO ATTEND ST. LOUIS JEFFERSON DAY BANQUET

Gov. Park and Bruce A. Campbell Will Be Principal Speakers Tomorrow Night.

More than 500 reservations have been made for the annual Jefferson Day banquet which will be held at 6:30 p. m. tomorrow at the Elk's Club, 3619 Lindell boulevard.

Bruce A. Campbell of East St. Louis, chairman of the Illinois State Democratic Committee, and Gov. Guy B. Park will be the principal speakers. Roland F. O'Bryen will be toastmaster.

Members of the rival factions of the Democratic party in St. Louis who will sit at the speakers' table, include Circuit Judge Eugene Sartorious, president of the Jefferson Club; Sheriff Thomas R. Madden, Police Commissioner William L. Igoe, Robert E. Hannigan, former chairman of the Democratic City Committee; Judge Joseph F. Dickmann, City Counselor Edgar H. Wayman, Joseph J. Ward, Dr. R. Emmett Kane, John P. English, Recorder of Deeds and chairman of the Democratic City Committee; Mrs. Ann Jablonsky, vice-chairman of the Democratic City Committee; Postmaster W. Rufus Jackson, Kenneth Teasdale and Police Judge George G. Vest.

ST. LOUIS AWARD NOMINATIONS RECEIVED BY COMMITTEE

Anyone Can Send in Names; Bar Association Chosen Last Year.

Nominations for the St. Louis Award, to be presented in the fall of 1936 for outstanding service in the Metropolitan area, are now being received by members of the committe, it was announced yesterday.

Last year the committee presented the award to the Bar Association of St. Louis. Previous winners are Louis Nolte, Dr. Max A. Goldstein and Tom K. Smith. Anyone can make a nomination. A prize of $1000 goes with the award.

The members of the committee are: J. Lionberger Davis, Security National Bank; Dean Isidor Loeb, Washington University; Dr. George T. Moore, Missouri Botanical Gardens; Franch C. Rand, International Shoe Co.; The Rev. Alphonse M. Schwitalla, S. J., St. Louis University School of Medicine, and Gilbert Harris, Y. M. C. A.-Y. W. H. A.

SOCIETY PAYS $38,000 TO 13 HOSPITALS HERE

Rate Is 35 Cents for Each Day of Free Service Given Charity Patients.

Thirteen St. Louis hospitals will receive by special delivery mail today checks from the Hospital Saturday and Sunday Association totaling $38,082, of which $37,000 was allotted by United Relief, Inc.

Payments to 11 of the hospitals is on a basis of 35 cents for each day of free service given to charity patients under the rules, or two cents more than last year. At one time, when the association was more prosperous, the rate was more than twice that much. It was said that the cost a day for caring for a charity patient far exceeds $1.

"The economic crisis is reflected in the distribution, which ordinarily would be made on Christmas Eve and total in excess of $60,000," the announcement said. "Now a longer wait for less money is necessary."

The hospitals and the amounts they will receive are: Firmin Desloge, $9214; St. Louis Children's, $6561; Barnes, $5876; Jewish, $4890; St. Mary's, $3223; Barnard Free Skin and Cancer, $2178; St. Louis Maternity, $1979; St. Luke's $1883; Missouri Baptist, $779; Evangelical Deaconess, $522; St. Mary's Infirmary, $271. Flat donations of $600 to Bethesda Hospital and $100 to Peoples Hospital were made in accordance with custom.

The absence of Mount St. Rose from the list this year "is for private reasons of its own," the report stated. St. John's Hospital was not included for the second year. A. L. Shapleigh, president of the association, said both remain eligible for participation in the future.

Dr. W. S. Webb Heads Anthologists.

CHICAGO, April 11.—Dr. William S. Webb, of the University of Kentucky, was elected president of the central section of the American Anthropological Association at the closing session of the group's spring meeting today.

THE FIGHTER WHIPS OTHER DERBY 'HOPES' IN RECORD TIME

UNIVERSITY CITY WINS MAPLEWOOD RELAY MEET

Four Records Fall; Roosevelt Victor in 'Individual' Division

By Reno Hahn

Four athletes found the variable weather conditions to their liking yesterday and despite rain and a heavy track, four new records were set in the seventh annual running of the Maplewood invitational high school relay carnival. University City, nearly unbeatable in this meet, won its sixth title by scoring 35 1-9 points. The individual division title went to Roosevelt with 20 points, while University City shared the relays division championship with York High, Elmhurst, Ill., each scoring 26 points.

Probably the most sensational of the records set yesterday went to Joe Finch, sophomore of University City, who stepped over the 120-yard high hurdles in 15.5 seconds. It was his first major victory in track, and came in his first test against competition.

Finch Likes Soft Track.

Finch proved he liked a soft track by running his preliminary heat in 15.7 seconds, breaking the mark of Wally Schoenbeck, Roosevelt, set last year, by a tenth of a second.

Yesterday Finch was at his best and with the gun he started off to an early lead, topping the first hurdle ahead of his nearest opponent and increasing that lead until the finish. He ended the race more than three yards ahead of his nearest opponent.

Finch has the size and poise of a champion hurdler and should gain the experience necessary to set many new records.

Waldram Breaks Own Mark.

Another record-breaker is an old favorite of this meet—Robert Waldram, Washington (Mo.) javelin thrower. This was Waldram's third year of competition in this meet, and for the third time he set a new record.

In his first year of competition, Waldram's left arm sent the spear 180 feet 4½ inches. Last year it was 183 feet 9½ inches. And this year it went to 186 feet 10 inches. And Robert must be content with this record, although he has thrown the javelin farther, for it is his last year of competition, as he is a senior.

The third record to fall was in the pole vault, where Clark Shaughnessy Jr., son of the Chicago football coach, cleared the bar at 13 feet 5½ inches to better by two inches the mark set in 1934 by Kingsley of New Trier High, Winnetka, Ill. Shaughnessy made his last vaults despite the fact that he had twisted his ankle in one of his preliminary jumps and was not at his best.

Cannon Overcomes Handicaps.

The fourth record was set by John Cannon, Jerseyville (Ill.) half miler, who overcame the disadvantages of the draw, the rain-soaked track and a brilliant field to lower the mark of 2 minutes, 6.8 seconds, set by Gene Green, Ben Blewett, last year to 2 minutes 5.1 seconds.

Cannon drew a position in the second line of runners, the large field necessitating the placing of many of the starters behind the starting line. From this position, Cannon tried to break fast to the front, but was caught in a "pocket" of runners and was forced back.

He then went the hard way, and

DETROIT BEATS TORONTO, 3-2, TO CAPTURE STANLEY CUP

By the Associated Press.

TORONTO, April 11.—The Detroit Red Wings tonight gathered in another trophy for the city that already has a monopoly on championships when they defeated the Toronto Maple Leafs 3-2 in the deciding game of the Stanley Cup playoffs in the National Hockey League.

It was the fourth game of the three-out-of-five series, the Leafs having taken Thursday night's game after coming from behind and then sending home the winning marker in overtime.

A crowd of 14,000 watched the Wings, regarded as one of the

WRAY'S COLVMN

Not a Dark Horse Year.

BETTING at enticing odds is the national weakness. The sweeps, keno games and varied forms of disguised lotteries which beguile the public out of its loose change tell us that.

But there is one form of future betting that the public has not yet fallen for heavily—the future book on baseball races.

That's because the prices offer scant returns for risking your money, which also must be tied up in the stakeholder's hands for six months or more.

There is practically no chance that a Black Gold of the baseball future book will be uncovered, because baseball form runs reasonably true, whereas Derby form is all too frequently uncertain. Important things may happen to a horse in passing from the juvenile stage to maturity. But baseball players change very little.

So, this year, we feel safe in predicting that there will be no long shot to surprise the baseball world, but that one of four teams is practically certain to win in each pennant race.

No Boston Braves of 1914 and no Phillies of 1915 appear on the horizon.

Tigers vs. Red Sox.

THE long shots in the American League are Washington, 25 to 1; Chicago, 30 to 1; St. Louis, 40 to 1, and the Athletics—write your own ticket.

In the National League four clubs are quoted at from 25 to 1, in the case of Brooklyn, to 200 to 1 in the matter of Boston's chances. Cincinnati is held at 50 and the Phils at 100.

The difficulty confronting all these "dark horses" lies in the fact that in both the American and the National (particularly in the last-named case) the outsider would have to knock off not one strong team but four. Accidents might cut down one or possibly two rivals. But four—that's asking for a catastrophe.

With a few breaks almost any one of four National League clubs could win—St. Louis, Chicago, New York and Pittsburgh. Four corking teams, these.

In the American the race seems between the Tigers and the Red Sox; while Cleveland and New York appear to outclass the second division clubs.

Still it would occasion only slight surprise if either Cleveland or the Yanks slipped. But there is

INDIAN BROOM BEATS TOP ROW, AND SETS NEW WORLD RECORD

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 11.—Indian Broom raced to a new world record and a smashing victory over Top Row in the first running of the $10,000 added Marchbank Handicap at Tanforan track here today.

The sensational three-year-old, owned by Maj. Austin C. Taylor of Vancouver, B. C., ran a mile and one-eighth in the phenomenal time of 1:47 3-5 to defeat the mighty Top Row by seven lengths, with Azucar a charging third.

Indian Broom shattered Discovery's record of 1:48 1-5, established at Aqueduct June 22, 1935.

With Basil James, 16-year-old apprentice rider from Sunnyside, Wash, in the stirrups, Indian Broom broke fast and snatched the lead from his four foes in the first few strides. Then he started out to carve new turf history while 25,000 racegoers watched him.

Indian Broom opened up daylight on his field rounding the first turn, widened his command to two lengths going down the backstretch. Running in smooth, faultless fashion, the chestnut son of Brooms-Kawida increased his lead to four lengths when he flashed past the halfway pole.

R. A. Moore's Thursday was second, with Top Row going easily a length and a half farther back. Then came Jovius. Trailing him three lengths was the "sugar" horse, Azucar.

Indian Broom's fractional time was impressive. He ran the quarter in :24:2-15, the half in :48, the six furlongs in 1:11 2-5 and the mile in 1:35 3-5, and then on to the new world's record of of 1:47 3-5.

Second choice in the wagering, he paid $7.40, $2.60 and $2.40 across the board in the parimutuels. The handle on the race was $73,048.

The victory brought Indian Broom's owner $8450, with $2000 going to Top Row and $1000 to Azucar. Thursday's share for fourth place was $500.

Mr. Dizzy Dean Breaks Down and Tells All, Plus

JEROME HERMAN DEAN broke down and did a little predicting last night, as he was being interviewed in a radio broadcast.

"I'll win between 20 and 30 games," was Dizzy's answer to a question. "Paul? Oh, I think he'll have a better year than he has had so far in the majors. Yes, I guess that makes a total of 50 or thereabouts."

Who was going to win the pennant?

"The Cardinals, sure," Dizzy replied. "Why? Well, in the first place, they have a great little manager in Frankie Frisch, and Mr. Breadon and Mr. Rickey made a great trade when they got Parmelee for Roy Whitehead (Dizzy meant Burgess Whitehead) and the more you look at it the better the Cardinals look. We needed another pitcher. That's why we didn't win last year. With Parmelee, it's just a breeze."

"I want to say one thing before we get through," Dizzy concluded. "That is about St. Louis. I want to thank the fans for the wonderful treatment they have given me. No player in the major leagues was ever treated as fine as St. Louis has treated me, and my greatest wish is that I will be able to do all my big league pitching in this fine city, the best in the major leagues."

Paul Dean to Hurl for Cardinals Today, Mahaffey for the Browns

Redbirds Will Be Home Club in Delayed Series Opener—Dizzy to Be Saved for League Inaugural With Cubs Tuesday.

By J. Roy Stockton.

Paul Dean, younger of the widely known pitching brothers, will be on the mound for the Cardinals this afternoon when they meet the Browns of Rogers Hornsby in the delayed first game of the spring series. Manager Frisch had planned to show Jerome Herman Dean as baseball made its annual bow before the St. Louis customers, but Dizzy is scheduled to oppose the Cubs in the National League inaugural Tuesday, so when rain forced a postponement yesterday, he switched to Brother Paul.

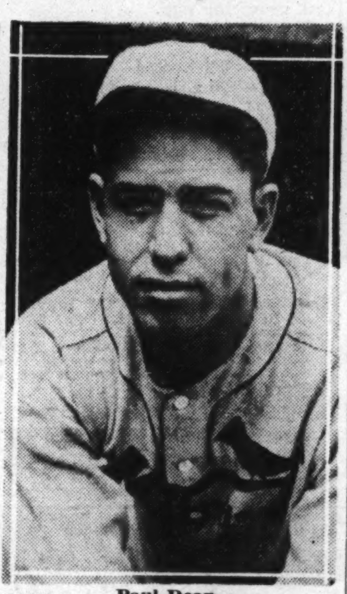
Manager Hornsby stuck to his first game plans and so LeRoy Mahaffey, right-hander who escaped from Philadelphia during the winter without going to the Boston Silk Sox, will be the Brownie hurler when the battle is joined at Sportsman's Park at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon.

Cards Home Team Today.

Following the original schedule pertaining to the handling of tickets, the color of uniforms and the assignment of dugouts, the Cardinals will be the home team this afternoon, wearing their white uniforms and occupying the dugout behind third base. The Browns will use the "enemy's" dugout behind first base and their Easter duds will be their traveling togs of gray.

"I have decided to pitch Dizzy against the Cubs Tuesday," Manager Frisch said, after the game had been called off. "For that reason he will not work in the series with the Browns. I had planned to warm him up with three innings in the opener, which would have left him Sunday and Monday to rest."

Frisch added that he would give the fans a chance to see some of the younger members of his hurling corps in tomorrow's game. He mentioned Bill McGee, Ed Heusser, and Jim Winford as likely to perform.



Paul Dean.

Martin May Not Play in Series.

Pepper Martin's injured hand, cut by a nail in an outfield fence during the barnstorming trip concluded Friday, probably will not be able to play in the series. The hand is still swollen and it is likely that he will be kept on the bench until there is no danger that batting or catching a ball might reopen the wound.

"He's liable to be in there any minute, however," Frisch added. "If he returns to the lineup he'll be in right field and will bat third, with Terry Moore moving up to the lead-off position. If Pepper is out, King will play right and bat first, with Moore third."

Hornsby, a man not given to predictions or rash statements, is plainly pleased with the improvement in his ball club. He doesn't expect to win any pennant, but he certainly expects his team to make an excellent showing.

"Browns Good Club," Hornsby Says.

"We've got a better ball club than most people give us credit for having," the Rajah declared. "We made a flock of changes last season and were much improved as we finished the year. We've added batting power and we've got a good defensive team. Every change we've made has strengthened us. With a little break in the pitching we could go farther than the experts believe."

Would Hornsby like to have a fatter club bank roll, with which to bolster the team in any department?

"I don't know what I'd do with it right now," Hornsby snapped back. "On the level, if I had a million dollars right here I don't know of any body I could buy that I'd try to get. We're all right. We

TTENNOB IS SECOND AND HE DID THIRD AT ARLINGTON

The Fighter's Derby Odds Are Cut to 12 to 1

THE track record smashing victory of The Fighter at Arlington Downs yesterday, combined with his record of eight victories out of 14 races, resulted in a cut in the odds against his chances of winning the Kentucky Derby. Before the running of yesterday's Derby test, The Fighter was held at 20 to 1 in Charley Burke's future book on the Kentucky classic. Immediately after the race his price was cut to 12 to 1.

Other price changes of importance announced by Burke last night were: Sangreal, a stablemate of The Fighter, was 30, now 20 to 1; Indian Broom, was 60, now 30 to 1.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ARLINGTON, Tex., April 11. — Milky Way Farm's colt, The Fighter, qualified handsomely for his forthcoming Texas Derby and Kentucky Derby engagements when he spun over a mile and 70-yard route to win the fourth race at Arlington Downs today. This was the first important route test for the son of Bull Dog which heretofore had been doing service in sprints.

Smartly ridden by Jockey A. Robertson, The Fighter broke in fourth place and, racing smoothly, gradually improved his position. In the stretch he drew up to second, a length behind the leading Milldale Stable clot, Ttennob, then caught the latter in the drive for home and finished the route in 1:42, which hung up a new track record for the distance. The previous record was 1:42 2-5.

Ttennob had enough left to take the place award a length behind the winner. Mrs. Silas B. Mason's He Did, winner of the Santa Anita Derby, was third. Eight horses started with A. G. Tarn's Rushaway, Louisiana Derby winner, a late withdrawal.

This was The Fighter's fourth straight score. His triumph this afternoon gave his stable a double since they clicked with the two-year-old Dogaway in the first race. Both winners were piloted by Robertson.

The Fighter, coupled with Doran, was heavily favored and paid the low price of $3.60. Dogaway returned less than that in the first race, closing at $2.40.

WHITE SOX PURCHASE PITCHER CLINT BROWN FROM THE INDIANS

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 11. — Harry Grabiner, vice-president of the Chicago White Sox, announced tonight that the Sox had purchased Clint Brown, right-handed pitcher, from the Cleveland Indians in a straight cash transaction.

Grabiner said Brown would report here within a day or two. Last season Brown appeared in 23 games, winning four and losing three. His earned run average was 5.14. The purchase price was not announced.

JAPANESE NINE WINS OVER TULSA, 9 TO 8

TULSA, Ok., April 11.—The Tokio Giants, a touring Japanese team, defeated Tulsa's Texas League team, 9 to 8, here today.

The Giants took advantage of Perry's wildness to score six in the eighth.

U. S. Davis Cup Team Clinches Mexican Series

By the Associated Press.

HOUSTON, Tex., April 11.—Capt. Wilmer Allison took an hour off from his golf game today and teamed with John Van Ryn as the United States' Davis Cup doubles team to clinch the North American Zone series with Mexico.

Admittedly playing the "best doubles tennis we have played in a year," Allison and Van Ryn made amazing power shots to defeat Flarvio Martinez and Antonio Marco Mestre, 6—0, 6—1, 6—2.

The victory placed the United States in the zone finals against Australia at Philadelphia late in May.

Allison said it still was too early to announce a definite lineup for the Australian matches but "I imagine the lineup will be the same as it was here—except that I probably will play singles."

Grant a Candidate.

That would place Donald Budge, the California meteor, and Allison in the singles, with Van Ryn and Allison doing doubles duty. Bryan (Bitsy) Grant, the Atlanta atom, played in the singles here and recently defeated Allison in the finals of the Houston invitation tournament.

Allison explained definite selec-

JIMMY THOMSON, 285, WINS RICHMOND OPEN TOURNEY

MANGRUM, ONE OVER PAR FOR 72 HOLES, TAKES SECOND MONEY

By the Associated Press.

RICHMOND, Va., April 11.—Jimmie Thomson, Shawnee-on-the-Delaware pro, who learned to play golf here 10 years ago, returned to win the $3000 Richmond open today with a subpar 285.

Second in a field which included some of golfdom's best performers was Ray Mangrum, Los Angeles, who took a 289 in the 72-hole combat against par over the James River course of the Country Club of Virginia.

A three-way deadlock resulted for third position with the two veteran Chicago campaigners, Harry Cooper and Frank Walsh, and Richmond's Bobby Cruickshank finished with 290s.

Horton Smith Totals 291.

Horton Smith, Springfield, Mo., who came here after a brilliant finish at Augusta to capture the National Invitation Tournament, was plagued with misfortune in the final round today to card a 291.

Thomson's 141, three under par, including a 68 which yesterday tied the course competitive record, was superb work since the mark was carded in play through a cold, pelting rain on a soggy, treacherous turf. Today's play was even more impressive, however, since the 28-year-old Jimmy was defending a three-stroke lead. A disastrous spot in a tournament embracing a crack field for any but a true champion with iron-clad nerves.

Thomson encountered even more than the usual troubles of a tournament leader today, but he seemed to thrive on adversity. On the outgoing nine of the final round this afternoon, where a slip might have cost him the tournament, his bullet-like drives dropped contrarily into difficult plots of rough and his approaches were invariably parked on the very edges of the greens, but in spite of it all he still managed to keep under regulation figures. It was not only colorful work, it was brainy and almost unbelievable.

Mangrum Shoots Two 69s.

Equally as remarkable was the work of the lanky Mangrum, who entered today's play with a 151, 10 strokes back of Thomson. He blazed across the course in 69, three under par, this morning, and repeated this feat in the afternoon to win the $450 second place purse.

Amateurs had little success with Johnny Dawson's 303 leading the field. Ed Meister Jr., Cleveland, and Bobby Riegel, Richmond, Southern amateur champion, were tied for second with 309s.

Dawson played nicely today for a 147, but floundered for a 156 in yesterday's mud and rain.

U. CITY IS VICTOR, FOUR MARKS FALL AT MAPLEWOOD

ran around those ahead of him. He soon caught up with the leaders and slowly ran down the front runners, taking the lead near the end of the race and having a clear margin of victory over Wolfgang Schubert of McKinley, who came in second. Cannon was second in the Illinois State meet last year.

Phil Darmstadt ran his heart out in an effort to win the combined meet and the relay division title for York High, but his best efforts weren't enough to overcome the lead that University City's anchor man had in the one-mile relay. Starting the last 440-yard dash of the event, Darmstadt, the anchor man, had more than 30 yards to make up.

He started slowly, as Barnard Buser of University City set a fast pace at the start and halfway through their quarter mile, he had gained very little. But then he made his bid.

He gained at every stride, but finished two yards behind Busar. If he had won, York would have taken both the relays division and the individual title.

It was the first time in the history of the meet that University City's Indians did not win either the relay or individual titles.

A crowd of 1000 stayed through most of the events, which were alternately held in rain and a bright sun.

Relay Notes.

PLACE winners in the broad jump were decided in each instance by an inch and a half. J. Hequembourg, of Ben Blewett, won with a jump of 21 feet 3½ inches, and the others each were 1½ inches behind.

Tommy Shields, Christian Brothers High sprinter who was the favorite to win both dashes, placed second in both due to a pulled tendon in his leg. He was beaten in the 220-yard dash by his team mate, Joe Vollmer, for the first time.

Ray Alsbury, Roosevelt hurdler, seems to be jinxed this year by final races. In the State indoor meet last week, and again yesterday, he fell while leading in the low hurdle final. He had won his preliminary heats easily in both meets.

END OF THE CENTURY—Jerry Seidel, Roosevelt, Winning 100-Yard Dash at Maplewood

—By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer.

The one-foot victory of Jerry Seidel of Roosevelt High School, in the 100-yard dash, helped to give his school its victory in the individual division of the Maplewood Relays yesterday. Tommy Shields, of Christian Brothers High, the favorite, ran second. The time was slow—10.5 seconds. From left to right—Shields; Milton Cohen, Clayton; Seidel (the winner); Joe Vollmer, Christian Brothers High; Wayne Otten, Illinois School for the Deaf, Jacksonville, Ill.; and Al Seidel, Roosevelt.

MEDLEY RELAY (220-110-440-880)—Won by Beaumont (Cross, Teckemburg, Di Campo and Ware); McPride, second; Carlinville, Ill., third; Charleston, Mo., fourth. Time, 3m. 43.5s. (Establishes meet record.)

440-YARD RELAY—Won by York High, Elmhurst, Ill., (Monahan, Linard, Kopitke and Darmstadt); Roosevelt, second; Christian Brothers High, third; University City, fourth. Time, 44.8s.

ONE-MIL ERELAY—Won by University City (Schaum, Kemp, Meade and Buser); York High, Elmhurst, Ill., second; Marion, Ill., third; Soldan, fourth. Time, 3m. 37.3s.

880-YARD RUN—Won by Cannon, Jerseyville (Ill.), Schubert, McKinley, second; McCormick, Herrin (Ill.), third; Reeves, Charleston (Mo.), fourth. Time, 2 minutes, 5.1 seconds. (New record. Old record 2 minutes, 6.8 seconds set by Green, Ben Blewett, 1935.)

NORTH-SOUTH GOLF FINAL WON BY MISS VERRY

By the Associated Press.

PINEHURST, N. C., April 11.—Deborah Verry, Worchester, Mass., captured the North and South Women's Golf Championship today with a 19-hole victory over Jean Bauer, Providence, R. I., in a nip-and-tuck finish to the thirty-fourth annual tournament.

By winning she made a sweep of the two major women's tournaments of the Sandhills resort season, having previously won the Mid-South Tournament at Southern Pines.

Miss Verry will sail for England next week to play in the British championship and to watch the Curtis Cup international matches.

No more than one hole ever separated the finalists as they battled evenly over the 18-hole route. Three times Miss Verry was 1 up and twice Miss Bauer held that advantage.

From the tee of the extra hole Miss Bauer hit into a bunker and Miss Verry lashed one down the middle. Miss Bauer found her ball in a poor lie up against a slope with no chance for distance and after chopping it out with a niblick and playing five conceded to Miss Verry who had put her third four feet from the cup.

Their cards:

Bauer	—456 €35 553—44

DEARDORFF DEFEATED IN BILLIARD GAME

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 11.—Eddie Lee of the New York A. C. tonight stroked his way into at least temporary possession of first place in the world's amateur three-cushion billiards championship tonight when he defeated Eugene Deardorff of St. Louis, 50 to 34, in 50 innings.

It was the shortest game of the series, the previous best mark having been 52 innings, also held by Lee. Although Lee's high run was only five, his average of a point an inning was enough to enable him to pull steadily away from his opponent. The victory gave Lee three triumphs and no defeats, for a total of six points.

Edmond Soussa of New York and Cairo, defeated Emile Zaman of Belgium, 50 to 46, in 60 innings.

Hendrick Robyns of Holland, who has held the championship three times, defeated Alfred Lagache of France, the defending champion, by 50-39 in 59 innings.

HELEN STEPHENS WINS AT MEXICO (MO.) MEET, BUT SETS NO RECORDS

MEXICO, Mo., April 11.—Miss Helen Stephens, the 18-year-old Fulton (Mo.) athletic star, opened the 1936 outdoor campaign that she hopes will carry her to the Olympics as a member of the United States women's team, with exhibitions in the 100-yard dash and eight-pound shotput here today.

Miss Stephens, opposed by a trio of Wright City High School girls, ran easily to win the century in 11.5 seconds, .9 slower than her best mark of 10.6 set in the Canadian National Exhibition meet, in Toronto, last summer. Her best toss in the shotput was 41 feet, 11 inches shy of the new national indoor record she established in the Central A. A. U. meet at Chicago, last month.

DETROIT DEFEATS TORONTO, 3 TO 1, TO WIN STANLEY CUP greatest teams in modern hockey, spot Toronto a goal in the first period and then stepped out in front to dominate the proceedings from there on. The Wings, who had captured the league championship with three straight victories over the Montreal Maroons and then downed Toronto twice before the Leafs rose up to win the overtime game, went into action after Joe Primeau sent the Leafs into the lead with a dazzling individual effort in the first period.

Although George Hainsworth played one of his greatest games in the Toronto goal, the Wings managed to get two pucks by him in the second period. Ebbie Goodfellow and Marty Barry scored less than a minute apart.

Midway through the third period Pete Kelly, utility forward, made victory certain when he took a pass from Herbie Lewis, speedy little wingman, who held Charlie Conacher scoreless throughout the series, and slammed it home. Bill Thoms scored again for the Leafs but from there on Detroit took charge of proceedings and was forcing the pace when the buzzer ended the game and the league season.

The Derby Draws Near.

TWO weeks from next Saturday the Kentucky Derby will be run. Only one of the top-rank choices has been under colors this year, Brevity, and his odds have been cut to a point where no sane bettor would wager.

His low price is due to a remarkable race in the Florida Derby.

Odds of 11 to 5 may be all right on Derby day, in a field of 10 or 12. But as a future book enticement the price is out of line.

Another amazing feature is the 7-to-2 odds quoted against Hollyrood, which not only has not been to the post but has not, according to information, grown much during the winter.

Hollyrood will be tested in the Wood Memorial Stakes at Jamaica on April 25, just one week before the Kentucky Derby is to be run.

It's asking a lot to back such a candidate at such odds, to beat a proved racer and an overwhelming favorite.

Capable Long Shots.

IF the boys want to shoot a bit, however, there are some good opportunities to guess among the good ones of last season that have not yet shown their form in a race this year. Grand Slam at 10 to 1 is interesting. He's a great racer and a superior mudder. Despite Brevity and Hollyrood, this candidate must be given consideration, mud or dry.

Then there's Coldstream at 15 to 1. He beat many of the top notchers. There is Tintagel at 12 to 1—and he gained victories over practically all of the great horses entered in the Derby.

He was retired after winning the Belmont Futurity from Hollyrood and other stars, but has been especially prepped for this big race, for many weeks.

You'll know more about Tintagel when he starts in the Paumonok sprint at Jamaica. Of course, if you wait until he wins—if he does—that will be the end of the 12 to 1.

There's Bien Joli of the "Look out for Bradley" group. This one is highly-esteemed by the stable which has bet on him at 20 to 1 and better.

The long chance punters will have to choose from among the above mentioned nominees to get both class and a real chance for their investment.

Not Found Wanting.

OF the horses besides Brevity that have been tested this year, there are some that may interest the boys who want something more than cigarette money for the investment.

The Fighter and Sangreal, the Milky Way Farm's entry, are stake horses, every pound.

The Warm Stable candidates, He Did, winner of the Santa Anita Derby, and Valevictorian, both of good class, are quoted at 20 to 1. Bright Plumage won a splendid race recently, but is held at 25 to 1.

ONE entry that has many Derby fans guessing is the Phipps-Belair pair, White Cockade and Granvile. Separately and coupled there has been considerable play on these and the punters would like to know why they rate only 10 to 1 in Eastern future books.

They don't figure that good on their records.

The jockey players have doubtless plunged on Sylvia Coucci's mount, Memory Book, to account for only 20 to 1 against this racer.

Brevity Natural Favorite.

BREVITY is a rightful favorite and will remain so until the Derby is run. If his workouts are good he may go to the post at a shorter price than now quoted, but that will depend on what his rivals show in their coming 1936 debuts.

No matter what they show, if Brevity can duplicate that Florida Derby and carry on for another furlong, he will win almost to a certainty.

He won the Florida Derby at one and one-eighth miles by five lengths easily, in 1:48 4-5. Continued another eighth, at the same average per furlong, Brevity would run the mile and one-quarter at Hialeah in a fraction over 2:02, which would be the second fastest time ever recorded in the Kentucky Derby. Twenty Grand's time in 1931 would excel it by about one-fifth of a second and he still had that five lengths' margin at Hialeah indicating a reserve that had not been tapped.

Brevity is the logical choice and would deserve the short price, except for the fact that he is an unknown in the mud and an unknown on the Churchill Downs track.

30 NEWCOMERS TO PLAY IN MAJOR LEAGUE OPENING GAMES

Five First Basemen Are Noted on List With 13 Outfielders

By Herman Wecke.

Despite the wholesale trading during the past winter and the fact that more than 100 players from the minors were taken South by the 16 major league clubs, indications are that when the season opens next Tuesday, not more than 30 newcomers will make their appearances in the batting orders.

Of the newcomers 12 performed in the minors last season, while 16 were with rival clubs in the majors. Five teams are scheduled to open the season with new first basemen; there are two changes at second base; two at shortstop; three at third base, while three receivers will make their first appearance. A total of 13 new outfielders appear destined to begin the campaign, while at least one team will open with a new pitcher on the hill.

Cards and Browns.

There will be a new face in the lineup of each St. Louis team. For the Cardinals, Manager Frisch has announced that if "Pepper" Martin fails to recover from an injury King will begin the season in right field.

"Sunny Jim" Bottomley, after 14 campaigns in the National League, as a member of the Cardinals and Reds, is scheduled to hold down first base for the Browns in the season's opener at Chicago with the White Sox. However, the other places in the Cardinals' and Browns' lineups will be manned by the regulars of the 1935 pennant races.

Two clubs, the pennant-winning Cubs in the National and the Indians of the American League, will begin with veteran clubs. There is, however, one change in the Bruins' battle-front in that Manager Charlie Grimm has placed himself at first base instead of the young Phil Cavaretta, who proved something of a "bust" in the world series. Cleveland's club will be the same as the one of 1935 with the exception that Bruce Campbell, former Brownie, out last fall because of illness, will again be in right field.

The world champion Tigers have made one change. Al Simmons, purchased from the White Sox for $75,000, will be in center field. He will hit in fourth place. How long he will remain as a regular depends entirely on his hitting, inasmuch as Simmons is no longer as great on defense as in the past. He has lost much of his speed and is playing a field where he will be called upon to roam far and wide. Jo Jo White will be right on hand to replace him if he falters. White can field. He's one of the best in the league. But he's not rated as good in hitting. Last season he hit .240. Simmons' mark, however, was only .267. It was the first time in his major league career that Simmons fell under the .300 mark.

"Million Dollar" Sox.

Tom Yawkey's "million dollar" Red Sox will show the greatest number of changes. Four new men, all experienced toilers in the big leagues, will be in the Red Sox battle front when Joe Cronin sends his pennant hopefuls against Connie Mack's hapless crew. Roger Cramer and Heine Manush will be in the outfield and Jimmy Foxx and Eric McNair in the infield. They are expected to add the punch needed to make the Boston entry a real pennant contender.

Three athletes who played in the minors last season will be in the lineup of the Athletics. They are Jim Oglesby, at first base, who will strive to make the Philadelphia fans forget Foxx; George Puccinelli, back for another chance, after leading the International League in all slugging departments and Frank Hayes, young catcher, back from Albany and a far better workman than he was during his stay with Mack a year ago before being sent to Albany for further seasoning.

Of the other teams, the Senators will show the most changes. Jesse Hill from the Yankess will be in left field and Carl Reynolds, last year with the Red Sox, in right. Buddy Lewis, a 20-year-old graduate from Chattanooga, is scheduled to begin the season at third base. Lewis proved the club's batting star in the South, his specialty being three-base hits. He proved himself a fine fielder with a strong arm. Roy Johnson, last year with Boston, is due to open in left field for the Yankees, while Joe Di Maggio will be in right. Morrissey, from the International League, is due to play third base and Kreevich, center field, for the White Sox. Monte Pearson, ex-Indian, will hurl for the Yankees.

In the National League, the Giants, picked to fight it out with the Cardinals and Cubs for the pennant, will have Burgess Whitehead, ex-Redbird, at second base; Fred Schulte, one-time Brown, last season with Washington, will be in center field for the Pirates, while Al Todd, from the Phillies, will be behind the bat. The Reds will show McQuinn, from Newark, at first base instead of the veteran Bottomley.

One New Phillie.

Jimmy Wilson will open with only one new player — Leo Norris, a shortstop from Milwaukee, although Lou Chiozza, last season's regular second baseman, has been moved to center field. Gene Moore, who hit .324 for the Cardinals' Rochester "farm" last season, will be in right field for the Boston Bees, with Tony Cuccinello and Al Lopez, former Dodgers, at second and behind the bat, respectively.

Brooklyn will have the veteran Freddie Lindstrom, unconditionally released by the Cubs, in left field; John Cooney, batting champion of the A. A. in center; Hassett, from the International at first, while there is a possibility that Geraghty will be at shortstop, with Linus Frey at second base.

Generally Fair Weather Likely For Opening Day

NEW YORK, April 11.

BRIMFUL of hope, just like the managers of the rival teams, the weather man said today, "general fair weather with moderate temperatures can be expected for the opening of the major leagues' baseball season next Tuesday.

"But don't hold me to it," he cautioned. "Anything can happen."

Showers are expected late Tuesday afternoon and Wednesday, he said.

MR. SCHIEFELBEIN IS UMPIRE "O'BRIEN" IN OPENING DAY LINE-UP

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 11.—Believe it or not, Harold Schiefelbein, former Milwaukee amateur league umpire, will become rollicking "Harold O'Brien" when the American Association opens tomorrow.

Schiefelbein, who preferred to shorten his name to O'Brien, has been added to the umpiring staff by President George B. Trautman and will help handle the opening game at Columbus.

The assignments:

At Toledo—Rue and Johnson.

At Columbus—Dunn, Borski and O'Brien.

At Indianapolis—Swanson and Guthrie.

At Louisville—Kober, Eggleston and Kelley.

NORTHWESTERN CO-EDS WIN SWIMMING MEET

DETROIT, April 11.—Northwestern University won first place in a women's intercollegiate telegraphic swimming meet, it was announced yesterday at Wayne University.

Scores of schools which placed were: Northwestern 16, Chicago 14, Connecticut 10; Wayne, Iowa and Georgia, nine points each.

Led by Claudia Eckert, national 100-yard free style champion, who won 10 points, the Northwestern co-eds took the title from Wayne, defending champion.

Frick Expects Young Players To Help Make League's 60th Birthday Year Prosperous One

By Ford Frick,
President of the National League.
(Written for the Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, April 11.—The National League has every reason to launch into the 1936 baseball season with enthusiasm. It's the league's sixtieth birthday year and in each city we plan a "birthday celebration" which will bring together the players and fans of all the decades that have passed into history since the National League was organized in 1876.

FRICK

Two points in the April outlook stand out as reasons why this season should be keenly enjoyable from start to finish. One is the assurance of a closer race than last year, from top to bottom, and the other is the risng tide of youth so strongly in evidence in the lineups of all eight clubs.

Last Year's Battle.

I am not rash enough to expect a more exciting September than last year, when the Cubs, Cardinals and Giants all were in the running and the title wasn't decided until Friday, Sept. 27, two days before closing day.

It's asking entirely too much to demand another pennant dash like the one the Cubs made when they scored 21 straight victories. If we have just two clubs neck and neck in September this year, I'll be happy. Three or more would be wonderful. But I'm not basing my outlook for an interesting year on those September possibilities.

We'll have closer bunching of our eight clubs in May, June, July and August, no matter how many there will be in that select group shooting it out for the pennant when summer turns the corner into autumn. It looks like one of those years in which the pennant-winning club will make the grade on about 90 victories.

"Young Men's Clubs."

The Cubs and Reds are "young men's clubs." Younger players predominate in all departments. The Cardinals also showed me a wonderful group of swift youngsters available as replacements. Bill Terry has the youth idea, too, and in the Pittsburgh ensemble important parts will be played by first-year and second-year players.

Brooklyn's pony infield is already the talk of the league. The Phillies will have a brand-new keystone combination and will be depending on young pitchers largely. Boston's rebuilding program likewise has put the accent on youth.

service, are inclined to agree with can make any deals we think will strengthen us."

Frisch will be at second base for his team when play starts this afternoon. He glanced quickly at the writer when asked if he would be in the lineup, even with the field heavy from rain.

"Sure I'll be in there," he barked. "Why not? You gotta play in the league games on wet fields. I'm all right."

Observers, despite Frank's long him. He played through most of the spring exhibition games without any sign of acute leg trouble. Naturally he is not as fast as he was in the days when he was dubbed the Fordham Flash. But he's still a rather capable second baseman. He went through the spring exhibitions without an error, and he was diving after line drives and grounders as though the games were world series contests.

By the way, speaking of Frisch's legs, Lyle Judy, the base stealing sensation, reported back to the Cardinals yesterday. He is the young man who was slated to be Frank's No. 1 understury. He was sent home from Bradenton when it seemed that a shoulder injury, suffered in an automobile accident, had impaired his batting and his throwing arm, but he showed so much improvement training with Columbus that he was ordered back to the Cardinals.

Four Clubs Good Enough to Win American League Flag, President Harridge Writes

By William Harridge
President of the American League.
(Written for the Associated Press.)

CHICAGO, April 11.—I confidently believe the American League will ennjoy an exciting and interesting race in 1936. I know the baseball public will agree with me when I say there are four clubs—Detroit, New York, Boston and Cleveland—that figure they have a chance to win the championship. I am willing to go even further than that by predicting that Chicago, St. Louis and Washington are going to make much more trouble for the above four named than they did in 1935. There is even a chance that one of the latter trio may finish in the first division.

HARRIDGE

That nothing is certain in baseball has been demonstrated year after year. We have seen clubs that were unanimously picked for second division berths win the pennant, we have seen clubs that were touted as almost sure flag-winners meet with unexpected accidents and finish close to the cellar.

That is why April predictions often are knocked into a cocked hat.

It is my honest opinion that the American League clubs have been strengthened, either by trades or by the acquisition of minor league stars.

Contenders Strengthened.

The Detroit club has brought up several promising players and also added that star veteran, Al Simmons, to its line-up. New York is about ready to show the public its highly touted outfielder, Joe Di Maggio, who, experts declare, is the greatest player to come out of the Pacific Coast League in years.

Boston has retained its stars of 1935 and added Heinie Manush of Washington and Jimmy Foxx, Roger Cramer, Eric McNair and Jimmy Marcum of Philadelphia.

Cleveland has acquired Johnny Allen, fire-ball pitcher, from New York and counts upon Steve O'Neill, starting his first season as a major league manager, to work wonders with the team that finished third in 1935.

Chicago has strengthened its pitching staff and is better equipped with infield reserves, in addition to uncovering a star center fielder in Mike Kreevich.

Senators Improved.

The Washington club showed me down in Florida that it possessed plenty of punch and speed and was imbued with a wonderful spirit. I also believe that the placing of Lewis, a rookie, upon third base and the switch of Third Baseman Travis to short is going to prove satisfactory.

Rogers Hornsby has had the St Louis Browns clicking all spring and I see no reason why they should not prove to be one of the most dangerous teams in our league.

The Athletics? If Mr. Mack is able to develop a pitching staff his team will win more games than it did in 1935.

In addition to expecting a most satisfactory season in the American League, I am also happy to learn that there is a continued renewed interest in the national game on the sand lots and also in the high schools and colleges.

RACING CONCESSION IN MEXICO GRANTED AMERICAN SYNDICATE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MEXICO CITY, April 11. — A sweeping 10-year concession for the re-establishment of horse racing in Mexico was granted by President Lazaro Cardenas today to Albert J. Olivier of New York and New Orleans, representing a powerful syndicate of New York and Boston financiers.

The concession, obtained by Olivier through Minister of War Gen. Andres Figueroa, gives Olivier and his syndicate exclusive right to promote horse racing in Mevico for the duration of their concession and also provides for the transformation of Balbuena Field, Government airport on the outskirts of Mexico City, into a race track.

Plans to Play in 100 Games.

Rabbit Maranville, at the age of 44, plans to play 100 games in the Elmira infield this year. He will manage the club.

DINNER, PARADE WILL USHER IN BASEBALL RACE

RICKEY DUE HOME TODAY

BRANCH RICKEY, vice-president and general manager of the Cardinals, who spent more than a week in a Columbus (Ga.) hospital after an automobile accident, was expected to return to his home here this morning, and to resume tomorrow his duties as director-general of the far-flung St. Louis National League organization.

Rickey was motoring from Albany, Ga., to Columbus, when the automobile, driven by William O. DeWitt, vice-president of the Cardinals' minor league clubs, collided head-on with a truck.

Unusual ceremonies will mark the opening of the baseball season in St. Louis this year, with a dinner at the Jefferson Hotel tomorrow night and a parade Tuesday morning as high lights of the festivities.

About 1000 fans and business leaders are expected to attend the dinner, at which members of the Cardinals and Browns will be honor guests, on the eve of the opening of the major league pennant races.

Baseball stars of today and of other years will participate in the parade Tuesday morning, the downtown line of march starting at Twelfth and Washington boulevard, with 11 a. m. as the scheduled starting time.

Five old-fashioned, horse-drawn vehicles have been obtained for use in the parade, as reminders of the days when baseball players rode to and from the ball park in hacks. The collection of vehicles assured for the parade consists of a large, yellow hack, many years old and which will seat 25 persons; a large station wagon capable of transporting 12 persons; two victorias, each seating six passengers, and a tally-ho in which 11 can ride. Stars of the Cardinals and Cubs will ride in the old-fashioned vehicles.

The high lights of baseball history since founding of the National League 60 years ago will be recorded on placards to be carried in the parade.

Gov. Park has informed the Chamber of Commerce that he will be in the procession, along with Mayor Dickmann. Mayors of communities in the surrounding territories also will take part in the parade, and numerous fraternal organizations and other groups of St. Louisans will be represented.

Big league players of earlier years who had accepted invitations to join in the celebration, up to yesterday, were: Chick Mattick, outfielder, White Sox; Lefty Leifield, pitcher, Pittsburgh, Bill Joyce, third baseman, Giants; Walter Holke, first baseman, Giants; Johnny Brock, catcher, Cardinals; Bobby Byrne, third baseman, Cardinals and Pirates; Frank Decker, outfielder, Washington; Jim Feeney, pitcher, Cincinnati; Heine Meine, pitcher, Pirates; Hugh Miller, first baseman, Phillies; Red Roche, third baseman, Browns; Ray Schmandt, first baseman, Brooklyn; Johnny Tobin, outfielder, Browns; Jack Ryan, first baseman, Cubs; Lew Whistler, first baseman, Giants.

BRIGHT LIGHT, DERBY CANDIDATE, FAILS IN BOWIE RACE

VANDERBILT HORSES SWEEP CHOICE PRIZES ON DAY'S CARD

By the Associated Press.

BOWIE, Md., April 11.—It was a typical Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt week-end party here today as the local 10-day meeting came to a close beneath cloudy skies. The young master of Sagamore Farm, leading money winning owner in 1935, served notice that he has designs on the same title again this year when his cerise and white silks were borne to victory in the two stakes attractions.

Shortly after Irrepressible had won the Bowie Kindergarten Stakes by four lengths, Vanderbilt's Purple Knight and Good Harvest finished one, two in the second Southern Maryland Handicap before more than 12,000 howling fans. Townsend B. Martin's gray Miami record breaker, Steel Cutter, was third. Purple Knight, although he only triumphed by a head, was merely galloping, while Good Harvest had a half dozen lengths to spare over Steel Cutter.

Bright Light Fails to Shine.

The Shandon Farm's Kentucky Derby hopeful, Bright Light, winner of last year's Kindergarten and recent hero of the Rowe Memorial when he won after being left at the post, failed to distinguish himself today. The colt broke better than usual, moved up leaving the far side, then flattened out badly in the stretch.

Over a muddy track, Purple Knight completed the mile and a sixteenth in 1:50 1-5 and earned $3975 for his popular owner. Good Harvest's share of the purse was $1000. The entry, favorite over six others, paid $7.90, $7.10 and $4.40. L. Knapp rode the winner.

It was a fitting close to the Southern Maryland Agricultural Association's meeting, which had to stand off cold and rainy weather a majority of its days.

Vanderbilt Youngster Wins.

Vanderbilt scored his first stake triumph of the Maryland season when his Balko filly, Irrepressible, won the tenth Bowie Kindergarten Stakes by four lengths. Alvin Untermyer's first time starter, Scintillator, a long shot, was second in a bunched battle for that position. T. B. Martin's Balkanese, recent conqueror of Irrepressible, and E. K. Bryson's Whiscenda followed, heads back. The time for the half mile was :49 2-5. Irrepressible, paying $8.70, earned $1435 for her owner.

The Fighter away fastest of all, but saved when outrun, was put to good urging when improving his position, was inclined to loaf during final quarter, but responded to strong pressure in last stages and won drawing away. Ttennob a strong factor from the start, moved into command nearing final three-eighths, drew clear rapidly, was put to strong handling when threatened but weakened near the end. He Did began well, took command nearing final half-mile was unable to draw clear, gave way when challenged and held on well. Doran sprinted into a clear lead early, was allowed to drop back when outrun, came again in last stages and finished strongly. Miss Diavolo raced evenly. Miss Bam was outrun. Tugboat Frank was used up in reaching contention at loss of ground was done after five-eighths. Irish Ford was outrun.

10-DAY LAYOFF FOR SHAMROCKS AFTER GAMES WITH BOTAFOGO

By Dent McSkimming.

Postponement of the Eastern Soccer Cup final between the German-American Club of Philadelphia and St. Marys' Celtic of Brooklyn removes one worry of the Shamrock club and makes it possible to concentrate on games here Tuesday and Thursday night with Botafogo Club of Rio Janeiro, Brazil.

Rain and unfit grounds at Philadelphia yesterday caused officials to set back one week the Eastern final, a two-game, home-and-home series. While this creates a very troublesome situation in the matter of obtaining grounds here at a later date for the National final, in which the Shamrocks will oppose the Eastern champions, the breathing spell next Sunday permits Manager Bill Lehman and his players to remove all wraps when they faced Botafogo. The result should be more attractive soccer in the two night games at Walsh Memorial Stadium.

The Shamrocks will not be held strictly to their regular lineup in the games with the Brazilians and among the changes designed to strengthen the team will be the addition of Buff Donelli of Pittsburgh in one or both games, at center forward.

Playing under electric lights will be no new experience for Botafogo players. Frank Vaughan, former star fullback, who played on the United States team during its tour of Brazil in 1930, told the Post-Dispatch that the home grounds of Botafogo, called Fluminense Stadium, in Rio Janeiro, is equipped with flood lights, and games are played there at night twice a week throughout the league season, which extends through the months of May to December.

Play Fast Football.

"We played five games in Brazil," said Vaughan. "Two were played at San Paulo, one at Santos and two at Rio, both on the grounds of the Botafogo club. The typical Brazilian soccer team looks very much like a team of Americans in physique and mannerisms. The Heidelberg club of Pittsburgh put me in mind of the clubs we met in Rio. They like fast football in Brazil, and the Shamrocks will find they will get no time to walk around with the ball."

Vaughan says the typical Brazilian team can play nice combination football, but unlike Central European teams, they are very forceful in front of the goal.

"They like to shoot," he said. "Their forwards 'first time' the ball, like Pâtenaude does when he's right."

All but two of the 17 players in the Botafogo roster are natives of Brazil. The exceptions are Left Halfback Hector Canelli, who comes from Italy, and the outside left, Rodolfo von Patezcko, who originated in Hungary.

Six of the regulars were chosen to represent Brazil in the world title tournament at Rome in 1934. They are: Right Fullback Octacilio Guerra, Center Halfback Martin Silveiro, who is also captain of the club; Hector Canelli, Leonidas da Silva, Carvalho Leite and Von Patezchko, forwards.

Newspaper reports of the six games just played in Mexico City, of which the Brazilians won four and lost two, indicate Center Forward Carvalho Leite is the outstanding star in a brilliant forward line. He is much above average height, well built, very adept in the use of his head and a fine shot. Botafogo scored 18 goals in those six games, and Leite either scored or had a hand in 12 of them. He played in two games against the United States team in 1930 in Brazil.

Botafogo is Brazil's champion team, having won that honor in the past three seasons (1933, 1934 and 1935).

OKLAHOMANS TO DOMINATE FIELD IN U. S. MAT TRYOUTS

By the Associated Press.

BETHLEHEM, Pa., April 11.—Strictly by weight of numbers, the wrestling cowboys from Oklahoma's colleges are going to dominate the final American Olympic team tryouts on Lehigh University's mats this week-end.

Disregarding the 18 regional qualifications, in which all sections of the country are about evenly balanced, and taking into consideration only the three national tests—collegiate, A. A. U. and Y. M. C. A.—the Oklahoma grapplers have 24 places in the final tryouts of Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Their nearest rivals, so far as states are concerned, are the 13 contenders from Pennsylvania. Other states trail far behind, with New York, Indiana, Iowa and Illinois sending seven men each; Maryland, six; Massachusetts and Michigan, three; Kansas, two, and Delaware, Ohio, Minnesota, Virginia and California, one each.

South Almost Shut Out.

East, Mid-West and Southwest representatives probably will take the lion's share of the places on the American team for the international games. The South was all but shut out of the national qualifications, with only big Hugo Bonino of W. & L. getting under the wire, while Herb Ferguson of the Oakland (Cal.) Y. M. C. A. will be the only standard bearer for the Pacific Coast.

Thirteen of the Oklahoma collegians are from Oklahoma A. & M., four of them qualifying in the national intercollegiates, and nine winning their spurs in the A. A. U. tournament, in which the Aggies took six individual titles. Oklahoma University, Southwestern Teachers and Central Teachers hold the other qualifying berths.

Of Pennsylvania's 13 qualifiers in national tournaments, Franklin and Marshall College has three, Lehigh and Penn State College two each, and Temple University one. The others are Y. M. C. A. wrestlers from Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Wilkes-Barre and Allentown.

Most of the Mid-Westerners who qualified are collegiate athletes, with Cornell of Iowa holding four places, University of Indiana three, Iowa, Chicago and Illinois two, Michigan State, Michigan, Kansas State and Minnesota one each.

Y. M. C. A. Well Represented.

Five of the Maryland contingent are Baltimore Y. M. C. A. grapplers; the sixth is from the U. S. Naval Academy.

Matthews and Martinez to Box Again, April 28

ALLEN MATTHEWS, St. Louis Negro, and Emilio Martinez, Denver, Colo., Mexican, have been rematched for a 15-round bout at the Auditorium, April 28, it was announced by Lew Raymond, matchmaker for the Jackson Johnson Post of the American Legion, yesterday.

Matthews gained a decision over Martinez in 10 rounds at the Auditorium a short while ago due to three knockdowns which the Negro scored, but finished so strongly that many of his supporters contended that he would have won had the bout gone 15 rounds.

If Matthews wins again, he plans to seek a bout with either Babe Risko, middleweight champion, or John Henry Lewis, holder of the light heavyweight crown.

DEAD HEAT IN STEEPLECHASE IN MARYLAND

By the Associated Press.

MONKTON, Md., April 11.—Two crack jumpers ended a rousing stretch duel in My Lady's Manor point-to-point race today in a dead heat for the first time in the 28-year history of the classic 19-jump steeplechase.

Racing home nose to nose in the three-mile chase over natural country were Mrs. Francis P. Garvan's Sporting Print and Stuart S. Janney Jr.'s Justinian II. Peter O. Reid rode Sporting Print and Janney was up on Justinian.

Sportsmen said the tie in the My Lady's Manor was the first not only in that race but, as far they recalled, in the history of steeplechasing in Maryland.

The dead heat robbed Mrs. Garvan of permanent possession of the Challenge Cup, on which she already had two legs by virtue of as many victories in previous runnings. As it was, she will retain the trophy for another year.

Her horse was first believed to have won but a conference of the judges resulted in a decision of dead heat.

Only a few lengths back of the leaders was the riderless Tres Bon, another of Mrs. Garvan's horses. It had tossed Page Edmunds, its jockey, in the first mile, and was disqualified, giving third place to Dan McGee, owned by Benjamin L. Behr of Chicago and ridden by Sidney Watters Jr.

WASHINGTON U. HELD TO 2 HITS; KRAUSE LEADS ST. L. U. ATTACK

In a seven-inning game played in a cold rain the St. Louis University baseball team scored a 5 to 0 shutout over the Washington University nine yesterday morning on the Bears' field. Roy Scott, pitching for the Billikens, held the Bear batters to two hits, Harris and Williams getting the safeties.

The Blue and White nine scored two runs in the first inning. McDonald, first batter to face Steve Hopkins, Bear hurler, reached first when Herbert, shortstop, missed his grounder. Paino singled to left and McDonald, skidding through the mud to third, scored when Ed Drone laid down a sacrifice bunt to Hopkins. Paino advanced to second. Fash was out, Herbert to Harris at first, and Paino made third and came home when Kause singled to center. Krause was out trying to reach second on the blow.

The 15 or so spectators saw St. Louis score another in the fourth inning on doubles by Krause and Veith.

The Billikens added another pair of runs in the seventh when Scott, the hurler, tripled to left and came in on McDonald's single. Paino flied out and Ed Drone forced McDonald at second. Drone went to second on a passed ball and Fash walked. Krause hit safely between Shade's legs at third and Drone scored.

Washington failed to score in its half and Gale Bullman called the game as a fresh torrent of rain poured down.

"Red" Krause, St. Louis U. football star, was the leading batter, with a pair of doubles and a single.

The Billikens have two games scheduled for the early part of this week. Tomorrow they will meet the Illinois State Normal team and Tuesday they will oppose the Illinois State Teachers. Both games will be played in Forest Park, starting at 3:30 p. m.

U. S. DAVIS CUP TEAM CLINCHES SERIES WITH MEXICO

tions would depend on form shown by the team members on grass courts in practice at Philadelphia.

Only a short while after he had toured 18 holes in near par golf, Allison stepped on the courts, played the tennis that won him top ranking in the United States—and went back to the golf course for another nine holes. There he started by snagging a birdie on the long, par four first hole.

Americans Charge Net.

Allison and Van Ryn charged the net to overwhelm the youthful Mexican team. Van Ryn, his usual steady self, had his smash shots finding the corners. Allison was near perfect with hard volleys and terrific overhead shots.

The Americans won the first 10 games in quick time but Martinez, a husky youth, finally won his serve, a streaking drive that Allison lauded as one of the hardest he ever had tried to handle.

Singles Matches Today.

The Mexicans tired rapidly under the blazing sun and showed very little until the final set when Martinez again won his serve and Allison dropped his after a lengthy deuce game.

Two singles matches will be played tomorrow, Donald Budge playing Daniel Hernandez, star of the Mexican troupe, and Grant tangling with Esteban Reyes, the No. 1 Mexican player.

Budge squeezed through Reyes in three straight sets Friday to give the United States its first victory in the series, but in the second match Hernandez gave Grant quite a struggle before yielding, three sets to one.

For the most part the doubles was a rout. The United States captured five games in succession in the third set. The match was closed as Mestre drove out of bounds.

Central's Smooth Fielding Downs McKinley Nine, 3-2; Two Other Games Postponed

By Harold Tuthill

Fast, errorless fielding enabled Central to defeat McKinley, 3 to 2, in the only city High School League baseball game played yesterday at the Public Schools Stadium. After the morning contest had been completed it rained hard enough to wash out the afternoon contests.

The postponed games, between Soldan and Roosevelt, and between Cleveland and Blewett, will be played off this week, the first-named game tomorrow and the second, Tuesday.

Central set something of a record when it turned in its second victory by playing errorless ball and therein lies the reason for its leading the league at this stage of the race. The snappy defensive play of the Red and Black cut off a run which might have changed the game's outcome, and here's how it happened:

The score was tied at one-all when McKinley went to bat in its half of the second. Two were gone when Lange drew a walk off Pitcher George Janz. Lange then displayed his speed by stealing second. Marciak singled to right and tried to reach second, but McDermott rifled the throw to Cissell who tagged him out. In the meantime, Lange had not reached home, although it appeared at first that he had scored before the third out was made. Umpire Pete DeLong, who was watching the play closely, declared that Lange had not crossed the plate, so the run did not count.

Red Jost Does His Part.

McKinley, which is having something of a slump after two years of being in a contending position, suffered its second loss. The defending champions took the lead in the first frame when Leo "Red" Jost pumped a home run into the right field stands with two gone and nobody on base.

Central came back to tie it up in its half of the second. With two out, Foege popped to Hatch, but the latter collided with Mugavero, dropped the ball and Foege reached second. The play was ruled an error for Hatch. Schaeffer then singled to center, scoring Foege. On the play at the plate, Schaeffer went to second, but he was out trying for third, Jost to Marciak to Turley.

McKinley almost tied it up in the second, but failed due to the alertness of the Central fielders, as before mentioned.

The Red and Black nine then picked up another run in the fourth when McKinley threw the ball over the field. Cissell opened with a single to left. He stole second, continued to third when Marciak threw into centerfield and reached home when Jost fumbled the ball.

In the fifth, McKinley managed to pull up to even terms, 2 to 2. Lange walked, but was forced at second by Marciak, Foege to Wulfemeyer. Buchek sacrificed, Janz to Schneider. Bernsen hit a looping double along the left field foul line, Foege scoring. Wulfemeyer tossed out Hatch to end the inning.

One Swing, One Run, One Victory.

Ray Kwiatkowski won the game for Central with a home run to start the sixth inning. The ball was a line drive into the left field stands.

George Janz, Central's newly-found pitching sensation, turned in his second victory. Last week Janz let Soldan down with five hits to win, 5 to 1. Yesterday, he dished out five hits during the seven innings, no two of them coming in one frame.

Charles Buchek, making his first start for McKinley, didn't pitch such bad ball, but his support wasn't as tight as that thrown up behind Janz. Buchek was found for seven hits. He issued no walks and struck out only one batsman.

Cissell, Central shortstop, is one of the finest fielders seen in the high school league in a long time. He handled two putouts and six assists with ease yesterday. Cissell, so far, has shown up as well as Tom Cigno did last year. And now Cigno is getting a trial with the Browns' farm, the San Antonio club.

Edwardsville to Hold Relay Meet

The annual Edwardsville High School relay meet will be held, the night of May 1, it was anounced yesterday by S. A. Kole, the school's coach. Preliminaries in the various events will be held in the afternoon, with the finals beginning at 8 o'clock on the Edwardsville Field.

The meet will be conducted under the rules of the Illinois State District, which limits the participation of athletes to a certain number of events. The entry fee will be 25 cents a man for the special events and 50 cents a team in the relays.

The program will be made up of the following events: 120-yard high hurdles, high jump, pole vault, shot put, 100-yard dash, one-mile relay, one-mile run, 880-yard freshman relay, 440-yard run, two-mile freshman relay, broad jump, javelin throw, discuss throw, 220-yard dash, four-mile relay, 200-yard low hurdles, 880-yard run and varsity 880 yard relay.

WHITE SOX SLAM FRENCH TO TRIM CHAMPION CUBS

CHICAGO, April 11.—Pounding Larry French for seven hits in the five innings he pitched, the Chicago White Sox today won a 5 to 1 victory over the Chicago Cubs in the first of their city series.

Jimmy Dykes' boys merely were making good the long-standing tradition that while the Cubs may be able to win a league or world championship they find it mighty tough grabbing a series from their South Side rivals.

The Cubs, while the Sox were getting to French heavily in the third and fifth innings, were having difficulty making any progress at all against Monte Stratton and Babe Phelps, so a final four innings of excellent pitching by Mike Kowalik served little purpose.

A single by Appling with the bases filled in the third accounted for the first two scores of the White Sox. In the fifth French walked Kreevich with one out, then Haas singled to center putting Kreevich on third. French forgot all about Haas on first and wound up, the "Mule" trotting down to second. He scored behind Kreevich when Washington's fluke double bounded off Grimm's shins. Dykes then lashed a single into right, to make the Sox run total three for the inning and five for the game.

Hartnett and Hack doubled in the seventh for the Cubs' lone run.

FORT WORTH TO OPEN TEXAS LEAGUE SEASON AGAINST DALLAS TODAY

By the Associated Press.

FORT WORTH, Tex., April 11.—Dallas and Fort Worth, two of last season's "weak sisters" who have been outfitted with much new talent, will open the Texas League season here tomorrow.

The two Texas clubs received league permission to open before a Sunday crowd, two days ahead of the other six teams.

Tuesday's opening schedule for the rest of the league will find Tulsa at Oklahoma City; Houston at Galveston and Beaumont at San Antonio.

DOWNTOWN "Y" WATER POLOISTS IN U. S. TOURNEY

The Downtown Y. M. C. A. water polo team, composed of members of the Meramec Life Saving Patrol, will compete in the National Junior A. A. U. water polo championship at Indianapolis, April 24 and 25, according to an announcement made last night. The Indianapolis event will aid in determining the team to represent the United States in the Olympics.

The St. Louis team has made a definite splash in mid-western swimming circles in recent years, having beaten squads from Northwestern, the University of Chicago, the University of Illinois and Iowa University. In their last game with a ranking team, the St. Louisans downed the strong Hoosier A. C. team of Indianapolis by the overwhelming score of 9-0.

Members of Team.

The men who will make the trip are Ben J. Schaller and Harry Queensen, holders of numerous Municipal and A. A. U. swimming records; Lawrence H. Cohn, captain of the team and a former Washington University swimming star; David Ruhr, Winston Weseloh, Charles Blitt, Ralph Yourtee, Roy Davids, Gordon Olson, William Traugott, and Ernest Vornbroch, swimming coach of the Downtown Y. M. C. A.

Water polo, regaining its popularity in the United States, is one of the popular sports in Europe, with leagues in every big city. The game has been played by the Europeans for 66 years, according to students of swimming. Most adept at the game are the Hungarians, who have dominated the play in the Olympics.

In discussing water polo recently, Harry Hazelhurst, veteran coach of the Chicago Athletic Club, pointed out that the game has become "civilized" since the early years of the century, when several near-drownings resulted from rough play.

Have Tightened Up Rules.

"In the old days, about the only rules of the game were that you couldn't take a knife into the water with you," said Hazelhurst.

"You could hold a man under water as long as he had possession of the ball. Now you can still tackle the man with the ball, but as soon as the ball carrier goes under the water, it is a foul on the fellow with the ball. Thus it behooves him to get rid of the ball. Skillful ball-handling and accurate passing are stressed now, and this is made more difficult because the rules prohibit a player from handling the ball with both hands at the same time."

ED. MILLER, ST. LOUIS BOY, NAMED CAPTAIN OF HARVARD FENCING TEAM

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., April 11.—Edwin Ochler Miller, a junior from St. Louis, Mo., today was elected captain of the 1937 Harvard University varsity fencing team. Miller succeeded Philip Lilenthal of New York.

The newly-elected Crimson fencing captain comes from a family of fencers. His father, Dr. H. Edward Miller, a physician, himself was a good fencer in his day. When pressed for details about honors he had won, Dr. Miller said:

"Let's not say anything about that. That was too long ago. Besides, just now all the honors belong to the boy."

In addition to Dr. Miller and Edward, another son, Robert O. Miller, is quite a fencing star. Robert was in Detroit yesterday competing in the Midwest fencing tournament. He is a senior at Roosevelt, and just as his brother did, has won events in which the high school has been represented.

Edwin Miller is 20 years old and is six feet, three inches tall. He has been a member of the Harvard varsity fencing team for a year competing in the epee. His home address is 3842 Flora place.

Robert Loses.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Mich., April 11.—Robert Miller, St. Louis, was eliminated today from the annual Midwest fencing championships, winning one bout and losing two in the epee division.

His victory was over Charles Reinboldt, Detroit. He lost one bout to Robert Mattson, Cleveland, and another to Krentel, Chicago.

The winner in tonight's finals will enter the competition for the United States Olympic fencing team.

ILLINOIS AGAIN WINS OVER OHIO STATE, 5 TO 3

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., April 11.—The University of Illinois baseball team made it two straight over Ohio State here today, 5 to 3. The Illini won the opening of the Big Ten campaign yesterday, handing the Buckeyes a 2 to 1 setback.

Howard Berg limited Ohio State to six hits, while Illinois made 10 off Edwards and Amuger.

CHICAGO BEARS SIGN WEST VIRGINIA STAR

CHICAGO, April 11. — George Halas, coach of the Chicago Bears of the National Professional Football League, said last night that Joe Stydahar, former star center for West Virginia, has signed to play with the Bears next fall. Stydahar, whose home is in Shimnston, W. Va., weighs 220 pounds and is 6 feet 3 inches tall.

25 EVENTS IN KANSAS RELAYS NEXT SATURDAY

By the Associated Press.

LAWRENCE, Kan., April 11.—Hundreds of Midwestern athletes, many with eyes on Olympic berths, will assemble here next Saturday for the fourteenth annual Kansas Relays. Entries already received point to another record-smashing orgy such as the meet produced last year.

The Kansas meet is one of the accredited preliminaries for the Olympics. Several events peculiar to the Olympic games will be on the program, including the 3000-meter steeplechase, the 400-meter hurdles, and the hop, step and jump. The 1500-meter run has been on the program the last four years.

25 Events on Program.

Including the decathlon, which starts Friday and ends Saturday, and the three added Olympic events, the program this year lists 25 events. The decathlon will hold more than usual attention because three United States entrants in the Olympic decathlon in 1932 were Kansas products. They were James Bausch, Wilson (Buster) Charles and Clyde Coffman. Only Coffman, who won the event here last year and who will defend his title, still is in competition.

Early indications were that Coffman's rivals this year would include Jay Berwanger of Chicago, Don Elser of Notre Dame, Ward Parker of Wisconsin and possibly Lovett Burk of Oklahoma.

Eight new records were set last year, including five in the relays and three in the special events. Two of the relay marks were set by the University of Iowa and two members of the combination again will compete.

Chicagoan to Referee.

A hint that even the sensational marks set by the Iowa relay teams in the quarter and half mile events may not be safe this year is contained in the fact the University of Texas has seven sprinters all capable of running 100 yards in 10 seconds or less. The Longhorn athletes, who set two new marks in the recent Texas relays, are pointing for the Kansas event.

Thomas N. Metcalf, athletic director at the University or Chicago, will referee the meet.

WOMAN SETS WORLD DUCK PIN RECORD IN NATIONAL TOURNEY

By the Associated Press.

HARTFORD, Conn., April 11.—Lucille Young, Washington, D. C., became a world bowling champion tonight, smashing out a women's all-events record of 1169 in the last day of bowling in the National Duck Pin Bowling Congress Tournament.

She rolled 418 in the singles, 358 in the doubles, and came through late tonight wtih 393, bowling with the Swanee team to round out her world record.

The southern girl shattered the record of Miss Ida Simmons of Norfolk, Va., No. 1 ranking woman bowler in the United States, who, a week ago tonight, totaled 1149 to eclipse her own record of 1119.

The new world record holder also took first place in the women's singles, shading, by eight pins, the total of 409, set by Mrs. Catherine Quigley, Washington, D. C., grandmother, who had been leading until the Washington girl ace swung into action tonight.

The Willimantic Blue Ribbons rolled their way into first place in the men's team competition, firing a total of 1948, which failed by only three pins, to tie the record team total of the Morgan and the Hartford combination which pinned a record total of 1951 in 1933.

Chicago Bowler Ties for Seventh In A. B. C. Event

By the Associated Press.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 11.—After two dull days scoring opened up again in the doubles and singles events of the American Bowling Congress tournament today.

George Lawrie, Chicago, went into a tie for seventh place in the solo event with a strike spree in the last two games for 207, 259, 236, and 702.

Sparkling counts in the doubles were topped by Jim Krizek and Jerry Peck of Cicero, Ill., who collected 1257.

The last of the 1935 titleholders passed into the realm of past champions today when Clyde Sumerix and Harry Souers of Akron, O., tallied but 1031 in defense of their doubles crown which they won at Syracuse last year with 1348.

Scores still in the money are: Team, 2665; doubles, 1124; singles, 569, and all events, 1795. The tournament ends Tuesday.

$10 IN N. L., $5 IN A. A. TO SHAKE HANDS

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., April 11. — Handshakes between players of opposing clubs in the American Association this season will cost them just $5 per shake per man.

"This is no pink tea party," commented Association President George Trautman in a long distance telephone conversation from Louisville relative to opening the baseball season Sunday.

"If the players want to shake hands while they are in uniform on the field, they may do so, but it will cost each of them $5 every time they do. Our umpires have been instructed to report every instance of this kind that they see."

SHARKEY OPENS WORK HERE FOR GHNOULY BOUT

Raymond Sharkey, Cleveland lightweight, who hopes to displace Joe Ghnouly among the top ranking 135-pounders of the country when they meet at the Coliseum Wednesday, arrived yesterday afternoon and went through a short workout at the Business Men's Gymnasium.

Sharkey, whose real name is Ciacchi, is of Italian parentage. He is about 20 years of age and has been boxing as an amateur and professional for four years.

He deserted the amateurs after being runner-up to Edwin Waling of Detroit in the National A. A. U. tournament here in 1934, and since that time has done most of his boxing in and around Cleveland, although he recently won some matches in Chicago.

Ray started in a Cleveland Community Center, in which he won the championship. He went on to win the Golden Gloves novice title, the senior crown and finally the open championship.

Activity as Featherweight.

All of this boxing was done in the featherweight class, which was the division in which he boxed here. The files show that in 1934 he defeated Earl Brooks, California Negro, one of the favorites for the championship, in the first round of the A. A. U. tournament at The Arena; won from Marvin Liddell, Kansas City, in the second round, then lost a close fight to Waling in the final, after defeating Mike Pancienza, Boston; in a semifinal.

Ghnouly has been training hard for the match for while he realizes that Sharkey is not so experienced in the professional ranks as he is, Joe knows that all that amateur boxing meant a lot to Ray.

Joe lost to Champion Tony Canzoneri and to Jimmy Garrison in a recent match in Kansas City, two blemishes which he would like to wipe off his record.

Reward for Victory.

Sharkey may be awarded a bout with Geno Salvatore, Chicago youngster, if he defeats Ghnouly. He was offered the match in Chicago for tomorrow night but felt it was too close to the Ghnouly contest to take a chance. Salvatore is favorably known in Chicago and a fight with him should be a reward for any young lightweight.

In other contests on the card, Irwin Striebel, South Side heavyweight, boxes Jock Hannibal, Indianapolis Negro, in six rounds; Elmer Savage, featherweight, meets Kid Irish Alton, six rounds, while Lorenzo Lovings, Chicago Negro, fights Herman Barnett, Cleveland, also in six rounds.

DAVEY DAY TO MEET LOUISVILLE BOXER ON DERBY EVE CARD

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 11.—The Derby eve boxing card virtually was completed today with the announcement that Davey Day of Chicago, lightweight contender, and Johnny Durso of Louisville have been matched for one of the three eight-round supporting bouts.

With Jack Dempsey as referee, Barner Ross, welterweight champion, will box Chuck Woods of Detroit in the 10-round main event.

SPICA AND TROUPE LEAD OZARK BOXERS IN U. S. TITLE QUEST

TEAM OF EIGHT ST. LOUISANS TO CONCLUDE TRAINING TODAY

By W. J. McGoogan.

Eight St. Louis boys, four white youngsters and four Negroes, will complete their home training today for the National A. A. U. boxing tournament to be held in Cleveland Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

They are Paul Spica, featherweight, captain of the team; Forrest Potts, flyweight; Eric Koberg, bantamweight; Bill Henrey, lightweight; Al Brendle, welterweight; Jimmy Fields, middleweight; Monroe Harrison, light-heavyweight, and Quincy Troupe, heavyweight. Henley, Fields, Harison and Troupe are Negroes, the latter a recent winner of the national junior title in the tournament held in Providence, R. I.

Fields takes the place of Cortland Schultz, 160-pound Golden Gloves winner, who was entitled to the place but who has been unable to make arrangements to go.

Another Golden Glover not on the team is Delmar Rowland of Columbia, Mo., who lives outside the district of the Ozark A. A. U. and is, therefore, ineligible to compete for this city.

These boys are to leave for Cleveland tomorrow afternoon in automobiles under the guidance of Charles Gevecker, president of the Ozark A. A. U., and Dr. Norman Rathert, a director of the organization.

Spica Chief Title Hope.

Spica seems to be the one to carry the chief hopes of the team to bring back a championship. He went to the finals of the Western Golden Gloves event at Chicago and was included in the team which fought against the New Yorkers, where he also was defeated.

Paul is 23 years of age and the father of two children. He has been boxing in amateur ranks for five years and has turned down every suggestion that he turn professional, for he has no interest in that sort of career. He likes the amateur sport for the pleasure he gets out of it, that is all. Boxing is his avocation and he does not intend to make it his vocation. He is thoroughly matured and of very sturdy build. He has the fast, quick punching style which attracts the eyes of judges of amateur bouts and he can keep going at top speed for three rounds.

Troupe was not particularly impressive in the District Golden Gloves event but went on to win the junior title. He has a fairly good punch but is rather slow moving.

Harrison is a veteran of two previous national tournaments, held here in 1934 and 1935. His boxing has improved and he must be given a chance in his class.

Fields a Capable Contender.

Fields was barely squeezed out of a title in the Golden Gloves when he lost a semifinal match to Schultz on a decision which has since been the cause of much dispute among boxing fans.

Henley was a Golden Gloves winner but was unable to go to Chicago because of the illness of his wife. He doesn't appear to pack the guns necessary for a national victory but he has plenty of courage and may be able to go through.

Koberg lives in Belleville, Ill. He has been boxing in the amateurs here for some time. He has a good punch and can take it but is another who seems hardly strong enough for the national.

Al Brendle, Barney McCarthy's hard punching 147 pounder, depends almost exclusively on a hard overhand right for his victories but he leaves himself open too much and the boys in the national tournament are always quick to take advantage of such a fault.

Reports from Cleveland are that the event promises to be one of the best in the history of the organization but to be any better than the tournaments held here the past two years it will have to be of high order.

Max Roesch of Dallas, Tex., Southern A. A. U. heavyweight champion, on his way to the National, worked out yesterday afternoon at the Business Men's gymnasium here. Roesch is accompanied by William Campbell, Dallas boxing enthusiast.

25 HITS AS SENATORS PLOW ALBANY UNDER

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—In a 25-hit contest, marked by 10 extra-base blows, the Washington Senators today defeated their Albany farmhands, 9 to 7.

Neither Earl Whitehill nor Buck Newsom was particularly effective, the former giving up nine hits and five runs in the six innings he worked. Jesse Hill, fleet outfielder, led the Washington attack with a triple and home run, followed by Joe Kuhel, with two triples. Smead Jolley, who once was tops among American League batters, smacked out five hits in five trips to the plate for Albany, including a double and triple.

Russo Takes 3 Firsts But His Team Loses Meet

MEXICO, Mo., April 11.—The Louisiana Bull Dogs, 1935 champions in the Northeast Missouri Conference, won the annual Missouri Military Academy invitation meet here today, scoring in 14 of 15 events, with a well-balanced team, for a total of 68½ points, to lead a field of 11 competing high schools. It was the first major meet of the outdoor season in Northeast Missouri, and was a Class B State qualifying event.

The Missouri Military Academy finished second, paced by Sammy Russo, sprint and hurdle star, who took individual honors with three firsts in the high and low hurdles and the 100-yard dash, and trimmed 1.3 seconds from the 200-yard low hurdles, negotiating it in 26 seconds flat. It was the second year in succession that the M. M. A. star, a St. Louis cadet, who has won 11 major letters in three years of competition, has annexed individual scoring honors, with three firsts, for 15 points, in his specialty events.

The Mexico Bulldogs, with 16½ points, took third place, with the Fulton Hornets, in fourth place, with 15. Other team scoring was by Vandalia, with 12 points; Centralia with 8, Montgomery City and Wright City with 5 each, and Bowling Green, with 1 point. Boonville and Warrenton failed to score.

Bremer of Wright City set the other meet record of the day, winning the mile run in 4 minutes, 58.9 seconds, to shave 1.7 seconds from the previous mark, made by Rogers of Bellflower, 10 years ago. Roberts of Louisiana, with 12½ points, and Davis, a teammate, with 12, led the meet victors, the victorious Bulldogs taking seven firsts, in doubling the score of their nearest opponents.

100-YARD DASH—S. Russo, M. M. A., first; Sartor, Fulton, second; Davis, Louisiana, third; Hall, Louisiana, fourth. Time, 10.9s.

DISCUS THROW — Roberts, Louisiana, first; McMillen, Louisiana, second; Hammond, Fulton, third; Hale, Vandalia, fourth. Distance, 116 ft. 11½ in.

BILLIKEN RUNNERS TO MEET MINERS AT ROLLA, TOMORROW

The St. Louis University track team will depart tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock for a dual meet with the Missouri School of Mines at Rolla tomorrow afternoon. Coach Ed Hall of the Billikens expects to take a squad of 18 men.

Hall has definitely decided on only six of the men who will make the trip. They are Dan Wolken, Maurie Pierce, Bob Shea, Bob Wilson, John Barbaglia and Martin Rossini. Barbaglia and Rossini will compete in the field events.

MUNY BASEBALL ENTRY LISTS TO CLOSE APRIL 20

More than 75 teams already have filed their entries for participation in the softball and baseball leagues of the Municipal Athletic Association, it was announced yesterday by Recreation Superintendent Frank D. Sullivan.

In softball, "old" teams (those which were members last year) have until Tuesday afternoon to exercise their preferences, while all teams must have filed by 5:00 o'clock next Friday at Room 330 Municipal Courts Building. In baseball "old" teams preferences will be honored until Thursday afternoon and all clubs must have filed not later than April 20.

Softball managers and league representatives will hold their final organization meeting on Tuesday, April 21 at 8 p. m. at the Sherman Park Community Center. Baseball team and league delegates will conduct their annual organization confab on April 23 at a site to be determined in the next few days. At both of these meetings, rules for the season will be adopted and officers elected.

Two of the oldest divisions in the 24-year-old Muny baseball organization are returning to city activity, the Empire League and the Ban Johnson League, both of which have been re-organized by the veteran baseball and soccer figure, Phil Kavanaugh.

Among the larger groups on file for the softball campaign are the American Legion League of seven teams and the Y. M. H. A. Senior League of seven clubs.

Both softball and baseball associations will open their season on the same day, Saturday, May 2.

For the information of teams planning to enter, the Muny office will be closed next Monday.

Bowling Notes

A three-game team handicap sweepstakes will be rolled at the Saratoga Recreation next Saturday and Sunday with squads bowling at 2 p. m. each day. Entry fee is $5.25 per team, including bowling, and reservations can be made by calling Clarence Stein, HIland 9633. Classic league teams not eligible.

The Cinderella Recreation has a handicap women's team sweepstakes scheduled for the same days. A guaranteed first prize and three other place prizes will be awarded. Entries can be filed by calling Larry Jouet or Walter Kerr, PRospect 8751.

The Gasts took second place in team high three in the Mound City League at Feuser's Del-Mar Recreation last week, scoring 2898 and taking the odd game from the Hermanns. Gourley starred for the winners with a three-game total of 696, which included games of 267 and 237. His score placed him second in individual high three. In the other matches the Liberty Bells took three from the Morris Five, the Olives two from the Pardues and the Kools two from the Flowers. High scorers: Furer, 628; Mel Tietjens, 612; Levin, 609, Sertl, 581, and Toeniskoetter, 576.

The Carbonites gained a three-game victory over the Angelica Jackets in a special match at Vescovo's Recreation last week, winning by 76 pins. Steiner was high for the winners with 582, while Schurnacher had 238 for high single. Another match will be rolled at Vescovo's Tuesday, with the Carbonites meeting the Schoss team.

The Schumachers totaled 2809 to take two games from the Metropolitan No. 2 team in the Metropolitan Handicap League last week, F. Barry doing the heavy work with a 654 which included a high count of 262. Dr. Dichards cracked 586 to lead the Turner Taverns to a two-game victory over the Met No. 1 team. The Mets were paced by Collier's 584. In the other match, the Schultes won three games on forfeit, Detweiler rolling 609 with a high single of 255.

PALANGIO LED POINT GETTERS IN PLAYOFFS

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, April 11.—A record-breaking total of 60 points was registered by Oscar Hanson, St. Paul star, during the recent American Hockey Association season, the official final team and individual standings made public today by league headquarters revealed. Dahlstrom of St. Paul finished in second place with 43 points.

In the St. Louis-Tulsa and St. Paul-St. Louis playoffs Palangio of St. Louis was high scorer with six points, followed by McPherson, also of St. Louis, with five.

St. Louis, which finished second in the regular league play, won the playoff by taking three out of five games from St. Paul.

What Can the Poor Angler Do?

ANGLING for game-fish is now at its season's low mark, thanks to the closed season on all game species except trout. Not until Decoration day, when the ban is lifted, will activity get into full swing.

About the only fishing during the past week was in the State parks where trout received some attention. The weather was unfavorable practically all week, but it was possible to take the legal limit of 10 rainbows at Roaring River, Bennett Spring and Montauk Park, according to reports of State wardens.

At Roaring River where most of the available fishing grounds are reserved for fly fishermen, gray hackles have been used with success, fishermen report. At Bennett Spring and Montauk Park liver and dough bait continued to lead in popularity and fish-getting results.

More Anglers, or Hunters?

Devotees of various forms of recreation, particularly hunters, are apt to take exception to the statement of a writer in Sports Illustrated's current issue.

That there were, in 1935, more fishermen in the United States than there were participants in other forms of sport. He based his belief on the fact that more than 6,000,000 fishing licenses were issued in the various states of the United States and that, in addition, there were 13,000,000 combination hunting and fishing licenses sold.

His conclusion seems to be that there were 19,000,000 fishermen and not more than 13,000,000 hunters. However, in many states to buy a state hunting license it is also necessary to buy the state fishing license, since the two are combined.

Considering this fact it is doubtful if half of the 13,000,000 hunters took advantage of fishing privilege. Also there is no mention made of the large number of hunting licenses in which no fishing privilege is combined, such as are sold by counties. Nor is it taken into account that hunting on property owned by the hunter requires no license.

Fly vs. Bait Fishermen.

The writer of the article does not attempt to divide fishermen into the various types, numerically, but he still thinks that the fly fisherman's sport beats that of the stiff pole and live bait fisherman, for enjoyment. Whether it is better as a provider of food deponent sayeth not.

"Fly-fishing is the highest form of angling," he says. "The art is difficult and delightful whether it be wet or dry fly fishing. With the possible exception of golf, casting demands more concentration and skill than any other sport." Which is taking in a lot of territory.

Probably, if the country could be polled, it would be found that there are more live-bait, pole-and-line, hand-line and trolling fishermen than there are casters. But it must be said that once an angler turns to casting, he seems forever lost to still fishing.

Those Bootleg Fishermen.

That "bootleg" fishing goes on despite closed fishing seasons and wardens is evident from the fact that during the month of March 11 arrests were made for violating the fishing laws of the State. The fact that 23 convictions were made and that two cases are pending may act as a deterrent.

Of the 25 cases 12 charges were for fishing without a license, two for using a trammel net in the Grand River, one was for trapping out of season, five for gigging, three for catching illegal size bass and two for having a fishing net too close to a dam.

Odds and Ends.

Some hair from a red squirrel's tail and a bit of raw sheep wool tied with brown silk thread makes a good bass "tempter" for underwater fishing.

Fire Control Helps Wild Life.

Fires, which each year in the past have taken a heavy toll of wild life and cover throughout the Ozarks, are not seen so frequently now that the hill country is being patrolled by forest rangers assisted by Civilian Conservation Corps workers. Scores of fire towers over the Ozarks and particularly in the National Forest areas are manned daily by lookouts.

Perched in towers, more than 100 feet above the ground, CCC workers stay throughout the day and scan the country for whisps of smoke. Through use of field glasses and a type of transit mounted over a map of the area these sentinels can determine the exact location of the fires and immediately telephone this information to the nearest ranger station from which fire fighting crews are dispatched.

Spokesmen believe this will help the natural propagation of game birds and animals throughout Missouri's Ozarks.

Tennis Club Election.

Henry Tebben was elected president of the Kingshighway Tennis Club at its annual meeting last night. He served as treasurer last year and succeeds Harry Penzler, who was recently named head of the Municipal Tennis Association. Other officers of the Kingshighway club are Melita Howard, vice-president; Gertrude Penzler, secretary, and Claude Smith, treasurer. The club now has 102 regular members.

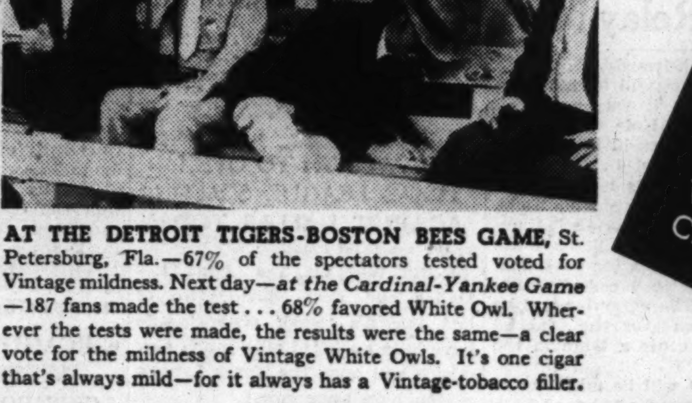
Taste Test No. 2— BASEBALL TRAINING CAMPS

71% choose Vintage Tobacco by Taste Alone

ST. PETERSBURG, FLA.—What cigar do men prefer when judged by taste alone . . . when there are no familiar bands or names to prejudice them? To find out, we made a taste test among 438 spectators at several baseball training camps in Florida.

We gave each smoker who made the test two unidentified cigars—a Vintage White Owl and another—representing the leading nationally advertised brands. Each man smoked both cigars—then indicated the one he liked best. 71% preferred White Owl with its Vintage-tobacco taste. White Owl won hands down by its taste alone.

AT THE YANKEE TRAINING CAMP . . . 81% of the spectators tested voted for the milder, better tasting Vintage White Owl. As the players warmed up, crowds gathered along the side lines. And while the practice went on, many of the spectators made the taste test. Another victory for White Owl!



VAN MUNGO, smokeball ace, says: "I made the taste test and picked the mildest cigar . . . it was the White Owl. Give me a Vintage cigar every time." At the Brooklyn-Tigers Game, Clearwater, Fla.—77% of the fans tested preferred White Owl. Sports writers, ushers, ticket sellers joined the spectators in making the test—and in every group the majority preferred the mildness of Vintage tobacco—when choosing by taste alone.

AT THE DETROIT TIGERS-BOSTON BEES GAME, St. Petersburg, Fla.—67% of the spectators tested voted for Vintage mildness. Next day—at the Cardinal-Yankee Game—187 fans made the test . . . 68% favored White Owl. Wherever the tests were made, the results were the same—a clear vote for the mildness of Vintage White Owls. It's one cigar that's always mild—for it always has a Vintage-tobacco filler.

MORE SMOKING PLEASURE . . . Today's White Owl is a double "best buy." It's a Vintage cigar—and it's larger, too. Look at this actual-size picture. Compare White Owl with your present brand. Taste the Vintage tobacco—see the extra size. Try a White Owl today . . . wherever you are, you can get the same mild Vintage cigar that won these taste tests. It costs but 5¢ at your nearest cigar store.

ST. LOUIS DAIRY CO. NEW BUILDING WILL FACE ALOE PLAZA

Contracts Let for Block Square Milk Plant and Garage at Chestnut and Twentieth.

LARGEST BUILDING PROJECT SINCE 1929

Concern Was Several Years in Assembling Ground on Which New Structure Will Stand.

By Berry Moore

The St. Louis Dairy Co., of which J. M. Lide Jr. is president, has let contracts to the Fruin-Colnon Construction Co. for the erection of a new main milk plant, together with garage, on the block bounded by Chestnut, Pine, Twentieth and Twenty-first streets— conspicuous as the largest building project of its kind undertaken here since 1929.

Three stories in height, the new building will stand at the northwest corner of Twentieth and Chestnut streets, overlooking Aloe Plaza, opposite Union Station. It will have a frontage of 200 feet on Chestnut, and a depth of 100 feet on Twentieth. Construction will be of reinforced concrete, and absolutely fireproof. The interior will be immaculate in tile floors, walls, ceilings, etc. Dairy equipment of the most advanced type will be installed. From the office and entertainment room of the building the operation of the entire plant, replete with interesting features, will be visible.

The new plant will be used for milk and by-products.

Covers City Block.

The present three-story plant and office building of concrete fireproof construction at the southwest corner of Twentieth and Pine streets will be treated and altered to conform with the new building, of which it will form a part. It will be used exclusively in the manufacture of ice cream.

The consolidated structures, extending from Chestnut to Pine, will span the east and west alley of the block, which will be availabe as a driveway, which virtually will form an integral part of the new big plant. A finished basement will underlie the entire block structure.

The garage, a one-story fireproof structure, extending from Chestnut to Pine, will occupy the Twenty-first street side of the block. It will have a lot fronting of 233 feet on Twenty-first and of 72 feet on both Chestnut and Pine. There have been provisions made to accommodate 80 trucks.

Plans for both buildings were drawn by Gerad W. Wolf, with J. K. Anderson as engineer.

Several Years in Assembling.

The St. Louis Dairy Co. was several years in assembling the Chestnut street side of the block, divided into small plots, held by estates and individuals. The most important was the northwest corner of Twentieth and Chestnut streets, 100 by 109 feet, owned by the Cooper Real Estate Co., a holding company of the Cooper estate. Negotiations for this holding were handled by Richard C. Spackler, president of the Hemmelmann-Spackler Real Estate Co. Another was the northeast corner of Twenty-first and Chestnut streets, owned by clients of the C. W. McDonald Real Estate Co. Purchase of the southeast corner of Twenty-first and Pine streets completed acquisition of the block, the rest of the Pine street frontage being occupied by the present buildings of the dairy company.

Site Acquired for Hotel.

Just prior to his death, Nathan Frank, former Congressman, purchased the entire Chestnut street side of the block between Nineteenth and Twentieth streets, with ambitious hotel plans. Facing Aloe Plaza and Union Station, the site was regarded as one of the most attractive in close proximity to the business center for a pretentious structure of this character.

E. D. NIMS PURCHASES WASHINGTON AVE. SITE

Acquires Ground on South Side of Avenue West of Twenty-Second.

The property at 2214-16-18-20 Washington avenue, 123 feet west of Twenty-second street, has been acquired by Eugene D. Nims, former president of the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., represented by J. H. Farish-Knapp & Co. The price paid is withheld.

The site, the improvements of which are of negligible value, has a frontage of 125 feet on Washington, with a depth of 155 feet, extending to St. Charles street.

William L. Gourley, the seller, had just acquired the property from the Gay heirs, residing in Louisiana, California and other parts of the country. The re-sale was made at a handsome advance in price, it is understood.

The site, which has a second frontage on St. Charles, is attractive for a large commercial building. The adjoining ground, 123 by 155 feet, at the southwest corner of Washington avenue and Twenty-second street, is occupied by a filling station.

The six-story supply building of the Brown Shoe Co. stands at the northwest corner of Twenty-second street and Washington avenue. The Mississippi Valley Paper Co. recently purchased the five-story slow combustion commercial building at the southwest corner of Twenty-first street and Washington avenue. Located at 316 North Second street for a number of years, the paper company was the first large concern in the area embraced in the Jefferson Memorial river front improvement plan to acquire new quarters.

Apparently Nims acquired the ground as a speculative investment, predicated on the future of this part of Washington avenue, which seems destined to be developed with high class business structures.

RALSTON PURINA CO. BUYS BUILDING ADJOINING PLANT

A three-story building at 813-15-17 Chouteau avenue has been purchased by the Ralston Purina Co. The lot, having a frontage of 63 feet on the north side of Chouteau avenue, abuts on the south the Ralston Purina mills, covering approximately a half block at the southwest corner of Eighth and Gratiot streets.

The company made the purchase with plans of enlarging its loading building. The consideration was not disclosed.

Officers of the Ralston Purina Co. are Donald Danforth, president; Woodson K. Woods, vice-president, and E. G. Cherbonnier, secretary.

The property was owned by the John H. Reel estate, of which the Mississippi Valley Trust Co. is executor. Arthur S. Martin & Son handled the transaction.

TWO CONCERNS CLOSE LEASES FOR QUARTERS

The Trucking Service Co. of which Hyman Goldstein is president has leased the northwest corner of Seventh street and Park avenue for a long term. The property will be used for the servicing of trucks and for the sale of truck equipment. Possession will be taken on May 1.

The Dau Furniture Co. has completed arrangements for warehouse space in the Brecht building at Hadley and Cass avenues. The premises are served by the Illinois Terminal railroad.

Negotiations in both instances were handled by Eugene L. Wehmeyer of the Breitt & Naumer Realty Co.

Sales Totaling $120,000 Reported.

John H. Armbruster & Co., 8854 St. Charles road, reports sales for the first three months of the year aggregating more than $120,000 worth of homes and home sites. They included 44 homes and 17 lots on which houses are being built.

William La Bagge is salesmanager and vice-president of the company.

For latest rental vacancies see today's Post-Dispatch Want Pages.

An Error Corrected.

The Post-Dispatch last Sunday published, on the Real Estate page, an item telling of the purchase of Ashburton, a farm in Pike County, by Wade T. Childress of St. Louis. The 344-acre tract was owned by Miss Mary Belle Meriwether and two nieces, and the house was built by John Winn Davis, grandfather of Miss Meriwether. In this connection the item said that the Meriwethers and Davises were "descendants" of Meriwether Lewis of the Lewis and Clark expedition. This was an inadvertence, and should have read, "collateral relatives," instead of "descendants." Meriwether Lewis was a bachelor, and Mrs. John Winn Davis was his cousin. George M. Block, St. Louis attorney, called the attention of the Post-Dispatch to the error. His mother, Mrs. Alice Meriwether Block, was the owner of the adjoining farm, Aberdeen, which was sold recently to Ira E. Wight of St. Louis.

Recent Transactions Reported.

The Duerbeck Realty Co. reports the sale of a cottage at 5016 Plover avenue, two lots in Arbor terrace, a flat at 1719 N. Leffingwell avenue and several exchanges.

REAL ESTATE EXCHANGE TO HOLD LUNCHEON MEETING

A luncheon meeting for realtors and their salesmen has been arranged by the Real Estate Exchange for Thursday at 12:30 o'clock at the York Hotel.

Lawrence H. Wood of Coral Gables, Fla., will speak on "Selling Real Estate in 1936."

Wood started his real estate career with the Joseph P. Day Co. of New York, and for 22 years headed his own real estate establishments in California and Florida, building and selling over 1000 homes.

Cyrus Crane Willmore, president of the exchange, will preside at the meeting, arrangements for which are in charge of Arthur C. Hoehn, chairman of the exchange's Committee on Programs and Entertainment.

COMPETITION FOR THE MORTGAGE BUSINESS SEEN

Housing Agencies Find a Line Up of Banks on One Side and Savings and Loan Institutions on the Other.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Harmony in the family of Federal housing agencies, already ruffled by disagreement over details of a long-range dwelling program, has encountered another obstacle in competition among mortgage lenders.

Housing authorities, while unanimously dedicated to advancement of building recovery, view with mixed feelings the search of idle dollars for employment in the mortgage business.

With the movement was seen prospects of growing competition among banks on one side and savings and loan institutions on the other. That is where the rub comes in among the housing agencies.

Under the wing of Federal home loan banks is a rapidly growing brood of savings and loan associations, long rated the leading source of capital for home building in this country.

Money Is Available.

A substantial amount of Government money has been made available for savings and loan groups, and the home loan banks have sought to provide them with a reserve of capital for expansion of lending.

Beyond the Home Loan Bank Board is the Federal Housing Administration, strenuously working to make the insured long-term amortized mortgage the lever for acceleration in new building and refinancing of load loans at more attractive rates.

Lured by insurance, as well as liberalization of real estate lending

HOME FINANCING

THE FEDERAL LOAN PLAN HAS MANY ADVANTAGES

1. The most satisfactory way of paying all the home loan. The cost is very low and is spread over a long period of years.
2. The Federal Plan does away with frequent renewals, frequent commissions and other expenses.
3. One single monthly payment takes care of all interest, principal, taxes and fire and tornado insurance premiums.
4. Each month the interest cost reduces; each month the principal payment correspondingly increases.
5. The monthly payment is made to fit your income. No more taxes to pay each December. No more insurance premiums coming due at inconvenient times.
6. The monthly payment remains unchanged during the loan.
7. Under supervision of the Federal Government.

CONSTRUCTION OF 200,000 HOMES FORESEEN IN 1936

Federal Experts Point to Shortage of Houses Estimated From 750,000 to 1,500,000, Caused by Depression.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 11. — This year will see the construction of 250,000 new homes, says Stewart McDonald, Federal Housing Administrator. The Federal Home Loan Bank Board foresees construction of "over 200,000" new homes during the year.

Federal experts point to the shortage of homes, estimated from 750,000 to 1,500,000, created by the depression years when new construction slumped. They also point out that there is a large "marriage reserve" among persons unable to marry during the depression; to widespread doubling-up of families which now are seeking homes of their own; to accumulated obsolescence of old homes; to the normal desire of householders to escape run-down neighborhoods, and to the return of movement from farms to cities.

New schemes to finance home building, inaugurated by the Federal Housing Administration, have opened avenues to a new set of would-be home-owners. Prior to the Government's entry into the field it was customary to write no mortgages for longer than 12 years.

Many of the homes were secured by first and second mortgages, necessitating periodic renewals with extra charges. Furthermore, most financial institutions limited their lending on homes to 50 to 66 per cent of the value of the property.

Federal housing put into effect last year a plan for mortgaging that permitted payments over 20 years. The plan was a single mortgage arrangement which also permitted lending a higher per cent of the value of the home.

Federal housing records for last year forecast the types of homes and loans that the majority of Americans will be seeking. The average value of the new one-family homes secured by Federal housing last year was $6000. Terms for payment averaged between 17 and 20 years, and 70.8 per cent of those mortgages were written for 76 to 80 per cent of the value of the homes.

FHA Strides Ahead.

The Federal new home housing program started in January, 1935, and 12,360 loans totaling $60,248,256 were made that year. These figures are expected to double during 1936.

In addition 708,405 loans totaling $245,070,729 were made for the modernization of old homes.

Mortgages accepted by the FHA in the first three months of 1936 for home building and modernization totaled $63,043,685, compared with $7,070,013 in the same period last year.

Many other institutions are engaged in combatting the housing shortage. The Federal Home Loan Bank Board is releasing money to building and loan associations.

PWA expects to construct 25,000 dwelling units this year at an approximate cost of $130,000,000. These units will be, for the most part, in large apartment communities, and will be rented to those who move in.

Resettlement plans under way will provide 29,315 new homes this year. They will average in cost from $1407 for a three-hoom house to $2500 for a six-room house.

Increased building also is anticipated by people who have the cash. Financing also is available from private banks which will lend without Government security, and from private individuals who engage in loaning money for home-building.

COMPETITION FOR THE MORTGAGE BUSINESS SEEN

regulations in the 1935 banking act, banks have turned toward mortgages as a promising outlet for surplus funds. A trend toward increasing bank loans on real estate has become noticeable.

Some savings and loan associations have complained that the insured mortgage has been the means of diverting loans to other lenders.

First Borrowers' Market.

The Federal Home Loan Bank review, in its current issue, hails the arrival of the "first borrowers' market in the history of home financing in this country" as a result of the competition.

"Severe competition for loans," it says, "is a relatively new experience for most savings and loan associations.

"Many of these institutions have operated in communities where the demand for home-financing funds exceeded the supply. Their use of the long-term amortized loan plan gave them a virtual monopoly of a large part of the home-financing business. As a result of these advantages, savings and loan associations were largely free to adopt what lending policies they saw fit.

"Today the situation is completely changed. All types of lending institutions are offering long-term amortized mortgage loans. An excess of idle funds, coupled with standards set by the Home Owners' Loan Corporation and the activities of the Federal Housing Administration, has brought down interest rates.

"The absence of desirable investments has turned the attention of commercial banks as never before to home mortgages."

TO THE RENTER
WHO BOUGHT HIS CAR ON TIME
What a thrill you had when you made the last payment and the car was yours. You then owned something besides your clothing and furniture. Don't stop acquiring more. Even more important is to own the house you live in. Real estate maintains a far better value than all those other things. Many a man has lived in a home for 10 years and sold it without a penny loss; in fact, made money on it. A home, therefore, is even a better investment than the other things, especially now, when rents are being raised. We can finance 80 per cent or more of the appraised value of a home for you, so see us as soon as you can handle the remaining safe equity.

California

IN CALIFORNIA SMALL FARM HOMES beat the depression; less working hours per week make it possible to derive a good part of the living for the average family from a small tract. California offers this opportunity where many varieties of fruit and vegetables are grown the year 'round. The Santa Fe Railway has no land to sell, but offers free information service to help you get the right location; low fare to California. Write for illustrated Southern California folder and our farm paper, "The Earth," free for six months. Santa Fe Railway, 934 Railway Exchange, Chicago, Ill.

HOME OWNERS OBTAIN TOTAL OF 151 LOANS

Building and Loan Associations Report Advances in March Aggregating $453,090.

More loans were made by building and loan associations in St. Louis and St. Louis County during March than in any other month since November, 1935, E. A. Kamp, secretary of the St. Louis League of Incorporated Building and Loan Associations, reported yesterday.

Twenty-seven associations recorded a total of 151 loans to home owners during March, Kamp stated. The total amount loaned was $453,090.

Pointing out that the loan volume would be more than $5,000,000 a year at this monthly rate, Kamp continued, "It is the belief of building and loan association officers that loans made during the spring and summer months will continue to show considerable increases over corresponding figures a year ago."

The average loan made in March was $3,000 as compared with the February average of $2,818, he added.

TO OCCUPY QUARTERS IN MONOGRAM BUILDING

Dunbar & Sons, Inc., has leased a large part of the seventh floor of the Monogram Building at 1700-1718 Washington avenue, owned by the Central State Life Insurance Co.

A modern plant for the designing and manufacture of shoe patterns is being installed including super-speed power graders, which with other improved devices insures perfect pattern making.

H. J. Dunbar, president and treasurer of the company, has been operating plants in the major shoe centers of the United States and Canada for the last 40 years. Herbert E. Dunbar and Harold L. Dunbar, who will be in charge of the St. Louis office.

Arthur H. Fuldner, manager of the commercial leasing department of the Central Life Insurance Co., negotiated the lease which is for a long term.

ADMITTED TO MEMBERSHIP IN BUILDING AND LOAN LEAGUE

The Mutual Federal Savings and Loan Association of University City was admitted to membership in the St. Louis League of Incorporated Building and Loan Associations at the monthly meeting held (Wednesday) at the Mayfair Hotel.

James F. Williams, president of the league and secretary of the Public Service Savings and Loan Association, was elected delegate to the annual meeting of the Southwestern Building and Loan Conference, to be held April 17 and 18 at Wichita, Kan. The conference is composed of representatives of building and loan groups in Missouri, Kansas, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Texas, Louisiana and Colorado.

WEBSTER GROVES HOME BOUGHT BY WILLARD E. GOSLIN

Mary Potter Love, Inc., reports the sale of the residence at 46 South Rock Hill road, Webster Groves, for Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence E. Pierce to Willard E. Goslin. Colonial Type in Silver-Gray Shingle

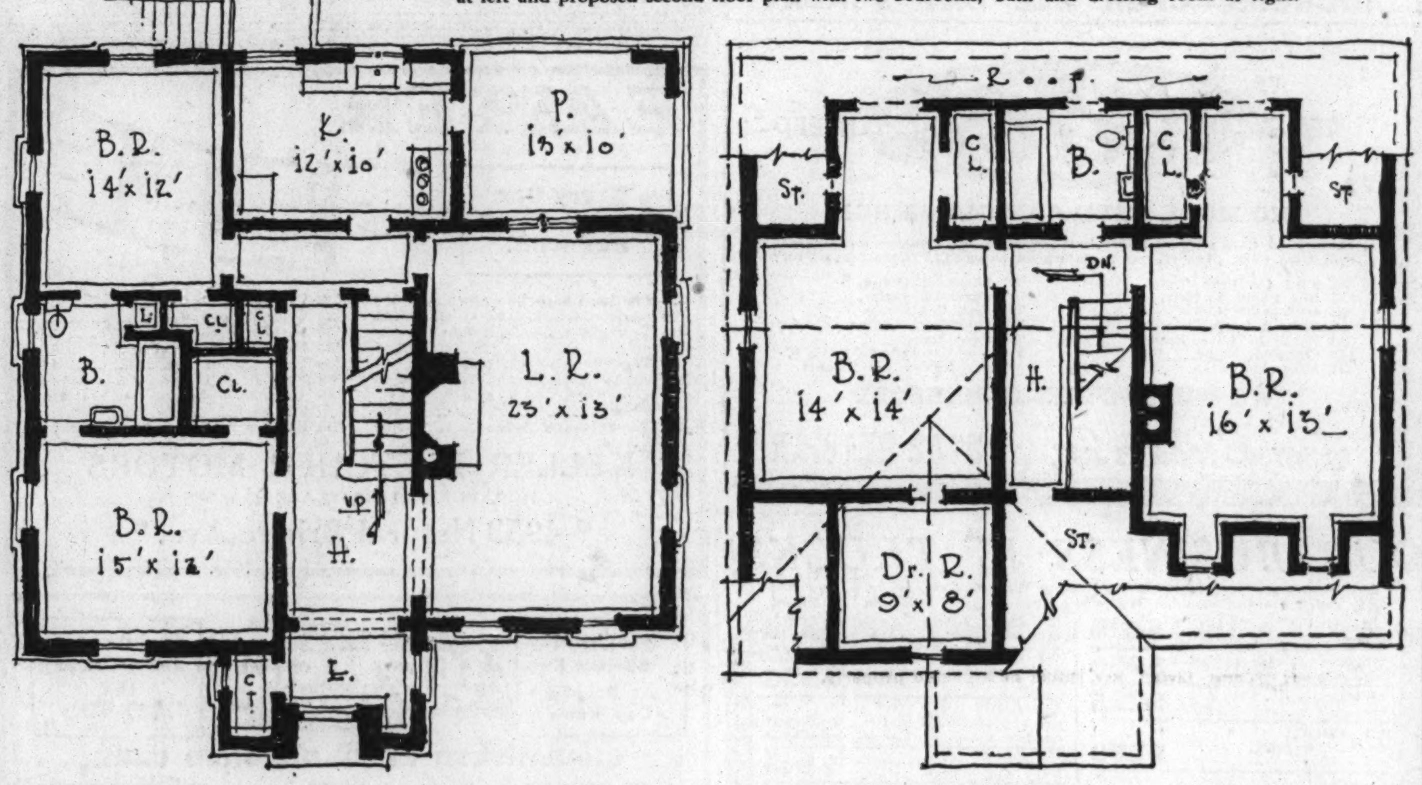
COURTESY
AUSTIN FITCH ~ Architect
Member St. Louis Chapter Amer. Inst. of Architects

Above—Facade shows recessed colonial doorway with classic pediment and shingle trim. Below—First floor plan at left and proposed second floor plan with two bedrooms, bath and dressing room at right.



Adapted From Colonial and Cape Cod This House Combines Most Interesting Features of Each Type.

THIS week's house is a combination of two types of architecture usually chosen by the home builder who wants a conservative design. The architect in planning the house has retained the best details of both types. The Cape Cod influence manifests itself in the shingled exterior, the dormers and general rectangular plan; the details of the doorway, shutters and central hall and interior are Colonial.

Much thought and careful planning have gone into this small house. There is a certain balance and repose which the layman feels even though he does not always understand what bring them about.

The silver-gray shingles which lend such an attractive weathered air to the house are 26-inch singles laid 12 inches to the weather. The horizontal line of the shingle has been planned to coincide with the horizontal line of window heads and door frame, doing away with piecing and half shingles about these openings. A trim of smaller shingles about the dooway adds to the interest of this major detail.

THE doorway is a beautiful example of the classic simplicity of the Colonial with its pediment and the well balanced panels of the door. A wrought iron handrail on either side of the two shallow steps leads to the entrance. The door itself is deeply recessed. Window trim, blinds and doorway have been painted a light cream.

The interior of the house has true Colonial feeling and is planned about a central hall. As it has been planned for first floor living there are two bedrooms with connecting bath on one side of the hall with the living room on the other side. There is no dining room and the breakfast room has been intentionally omitted in favor of the screened porch which opens off the living room. This dining porch, floored with one-inch thick sawed stone flagging fills all the requirements and has the additional charm of al fresco dining. It is framed with rose lattices and is used during the greater part of the year. During the cold weather one end of the dining room does duty and the kitchen is often used.

GREAT care has been taken to make this room look as little like a kitchen as possible. It is larger than most present-day kitchens and one corner only is used as work space leaving the rest free. The distance between the living room, porch and kitchen is very short and therefore quite convenient.

There is ample closet space on the first floor. A coat closet has been placed in the gabled entrance and both bedrooms are well provided. A linen closet has been placed in the bathroom and a hall closet may be used as a kitchen annex for supplies. A cleverly designed mail slot opening inside has been placed in the niche at the right side of the entry.

The interior gives particular attention to Colonial detail. The fireplace in the living room is Colonial with wood panelling above which reaches the cornice. The stairway has the white spindles and dark handrail of the best Colonial period.

Walls and woodwork have been painted throughout. The bath is tile.

THE second floor is unfinished but has been planned to provide two additional bedrooms and a bath. The eaves furnish ample closet and storage space. The second bath has been carefully placed to take advantage of the kitchen plumbing and is within easy access of both bedrooms. Two dormers in the east bedroom give the room three exposures. The west bedroom has a large dressing room in the gable.

There is a heating plant and a laundry in the basement and room for a future rathskeller.

The house faces south and was built for Mr. Thomas Harmon. It is located on the river bluffs near the Belleville road. Its total cubage is 31,000 feet and the approximate cost, including the porch, is 24 cents per cubic foot. The furnace is arranged for future air conditioning and the house is completely insulated. The central chimney is of brick painted gray to harmonize with the exterior and the roof is shingled. Construction is concrete block.

The architect who planned the house is Associate Professor of architectual construction at the School of Architecture, Washington University.

FOR BETTER LIVING

Hardware to the homebuilder is something more than just hinges, door knobs and bolts. Houses must have character and hardware has its share of instilling it. If your home is to be of Colonial type you will want to retain the traditional "H" and "HL" hinges. Latches and bolts that look for all the world like the old handwrought article are availabe.

Where a door is heavy and is opened and closed hundreds of times daily a hinge with ball bearings has been put on the market which insures ease of operation and smooth opening and closing. These hinges, by the way, are bronze and are unaffected by the weather.

Don't tear your hair when the careless motorist instead of stopping at the walk pulls up anywhere and tramps blissfully over the little spears of green that you are coaxing into being in that worn spot. A concrete curb walk from six to 18 inches in width will prevent this and will make it possible to get indoors without tracking rainy day mud and soil into the house.

Lighting effects are now being installed in many private gardens, so that they may be enjoyed both day and evening. Such effects should be well concealed and the source of the light should be out of view. A beam thrown on a particularly lovely flowering bush, or group of flowers, or on a statute over a pool, make delightful pictures from the house windows. It should not be overdone, however, for gardens should retain their intimate feeling and avoid the character of public amusement parks, so no attempt should be made at general illumination. Lights should be so arranged that the various parts of the garden can be illuminated in their loveliest season.

To many of us the idea of going up or down a few steps to enter a room is intriguing, but be careful where they are located and be sure there is more than one step. Do not change floor levels between rooms where things must be carried, as, for example, between the kitchen or pantry and dining room. One step frequently will not be noticed and will cause many a fall; have at least two risers and then you are fairly safe, for the difference in levels between the two rooms will be sufficiently great to attract attention and make one careful of the steps. And don't put such steps in dark places; if one can't see clearly there will surely be trouble.

Home-makers will be very interested in the new mixing bowl which has just been placed on the market. It is made of aluminum, has a stainless finish and a convenient spring type handle which makes it slip proof. Best of all, it has a pouring lip which assures all the batter finding its way into the cake tins.

Many of the hardy annuals should go into the ground as soon as it is workable. Zinnias, petunias, salvias and marigolds are a few for early seeding.

Questions Before the House

Q. Do you have any suggestions about what to do to improve the appearance of a gas stove that has gone shabby? I have scrubbed mine but nothing seems to help.

MRS. M.

A. There are a number of black fire resistant stove enamels on the market that will do the job for you. Have the surface clean and free of any grease. Two coats of this enamel over the surface of the stove, including the back and ventilating pipes, will improve the appearance and give a lasting finish.

* * *

Q. I want to make a whitewash mixture that will stand the weather. Do you have any recipes?

HOME OWNER.

A. The best whitewash for any class of work is made as follows: Soak 10 pounds of casein in four gallons hot water until soft. Dissolve six pounds of trisodium phosphate in two gallons of water, add to the first solution and stir to dissolve the casein. Make a smooth cream of 25 pounds of whiting and 50 pounds of hydrated lime in seven gallons of water. When the solutions are cold, add the first slowly to the second, stirring constantly. Just before using add slowly three gallons of cold water in which five pints of formaldehyde have been dissolved, stirring vigorously. Make no more of this than can be used in one day.

Q. Do you recommend outside enamel rather than paint for windows and garage doors? Also, in painting window frames before putting, should the paint be dry? Should putty be hard before painting? H. J., Webster Groves.

A. In view of the higher cost of enamel, there is nothing particular gained. A good house paint will do. When, after a year or two it loses its gloss, give it a coat of spar varnish.

The paint should dry before applying the putty. Putty need not harden completely before being painted.

Q. I own a frame house in the county which has had four paintings in five years. The paint looks very well to begin with and after a short time it begins to peel and flake off. I have always heard that a paint job should last at least three years. Is this true? Also, what is the best time of year for painting? BRENTWOOD.

A. A good paint job should last at least four years or longer so there is some very definite cause for the peeling off of the paint. Usually this is caused by moisture in the wood. It may be that the house was painted in the damp season or at a time when the wood was not quite dry. A house should be painted only after several dry days have passed and then only late in the morning in order that the dampness of the night may have dried out. Use a high quality house paint and have it put on by a painter who is thoroughly reliable and knows his business.

Q. My house is an English house with cement stucco and exposed timbers. Just recently I noticed that the stucco has bad dark brown stains. Are these stains from the wood or from the copper flashings and how can they be removed?

E. J. M., University City.

A. The discoloration which you notice may be from a stain finish of the wood or from natural wood gums. Stains from the copper drip would be green. A stain of this kind cannot be removed. The only remedy is through painting.

Q. I have an opportunity of buying a bungalow of which the roof is in bad shape. Can you suggest materials for reroofing? C. W.

A. If the rafters are still in good condition a new roof can be laid on top of the old one. If the old roof is of wood shingles it should be flattened. Curled shingles should be split, loose ones nailed down and missing ones replaced. Your new roof may be wood or prepared shingles of which there are a great many reliable kinds on the market. Your roofer can give you estimates and furnish you with samples.

Q. The front door of my home shows bad patches of varnish. Is it possible to remove the varnish by any other way than using sandpaper? R. C., North Grand Ave.

A. To remove varnish use sandpaper, using a coarse grade at first and then a finer grade. Where the surface is flat a scraper may be used and if you are skillful you might try discarded safety razor blades.

Consider Cellar Steps for Safety

Cellar stairs are frequently given little or no consideration. If it is necessary to duck going up or down, that is just too bad, but the stairs go in that way just the same. If a 10 or 12 inch rise from one step to the next must be used to get the stairway in, that also is just too bad, but in they go, in spite of the fact that probably more heavy loads are carried up the cellar stairs than any other. In many cases no railings are provided, and the treads, or steps, are made of any kind of leftover planks that may be around.

Cellar stars need not be well finished like the main stairs, but they should have just as much consideration as far as safety and usability is concerned. The head room should be adequate; the height of the rise should be not over 8 inches; the treads should be sturdy and wide enough for full bearing for a good-sized foot; a strong railing should be provided from top to bottom, and not cut off at the floor line; the width should be not less than 2 feet 6 inches in the clear, and preferably 3 feet; if winders are used, there should be no more than two diagonal steps to a 90-degree turn.

A refinement that is of little extra expense and which will be greatly appreciated by those who have to go up and down—particularly up—is to tip the treads, so that front edge is about one-eighth to one-fourth of an inch higher than the rear edge. This gives the user a pitch forward in going up and makes it much easier going, especially if he has his arms full.

Garden Wall

A garden without a wall is only half a garden. It need not be a brick wall or a stone or concrete wall, for a living wall of evergreens or some hedge shrub will serve admirably. But something there should be to shut out the world and form a background for flowers. If the garden is small, the wall can be kept low so as not to shade it too much, but even a low wall gives a feeling of privacy that is necessary for the read enjoyment of a garden.

Grand Opera and Sports Reviews Featured on KSD

Plans Made to Broadcast Part of "La Traviata" Thursday Night—J. Roy Stockton and James Conzelman, Washington U. Coach, to Start Sports Programs Next Tuesday Evening.

A BROADCAST of part of the opera, "La Traviata," from the Municipal Auditorium Thursday night, and a new series of sports broadcasts six evenings a week by J. Roy Stockton, of the Post-Dispatch's sports staff, and James G. Conzelman, coach of the Washington U. football team, will be features on KSD this week.

MARINA SCHUBERT,

WHO got her first big radio chance by substituting on one of Bing Crosby's KSD programs for her mother, Nina Koshetz, the famous Russian soprano. Now she has a contract to sing frequently on Crosby's broadcasts.

The opera broadcast, scheduled on KSD from 10 to 11 o'clock Thursday night, will be carried by the country-wide WEAF network, through KSD's facilities, from 10:15 to 11:00. It will cover the last part of the third act of "La Traviata" and most of the fourth act, as performed in the Municipal Auditorium by the St. Louis Grand Opera Company. Artists cast for leading roles in the performance include Mario Chamlee, the tenor; Edith Mason, the soprano; Hazel Sanborn, Carlo Morelli and Ludovico Oliviero.

In addition, from 10:15 to 10:45 next Saturday night, KSD will broadcast the reception in connection with the Opera Ball in the Opera House of the Municipal Auditorium. KSD will have a microphone in the foyer and one on the stage where St. Louisans will be introduced to Lily Pons, of the Metropolitan Opera. It is possible that Miss Pons, Gennaro Papi, the conductor, and other opera artists may speak during the broadcast.

Starting next Tuesday, the sports reviews by Stockton and Conzelman are scheduled on KSD from 6:30 to 6:45 p. m. Tuesday through Saturday and at either 9 or 9:05 p. m. Sundays. There will be no Monday broadcast in this series. This schedule will be maintained until April 26, when it will be changed to 9:15 p. m. Tuesday through Saturday.

Conzelman, a native of St. Louis, attended McKinley High School and Washington University. He has played football, baseball and basketball, and in the boxing ring won the middleweight championship at the Great Lakes Naval Station. He was quarterback on the team that won the Rose Bowl game in 1918.

Subsequently he played football at Washington and in the pro league, where he was picked as the most valuable player in the circuit. He also was a professional baseball player, managing the Rock Island team in the Mississippi Valley League in 1922. He has been head football coach at Washington University since 1932.

Stockton began his newspaper work with the Republic more than 20 years ago, and has been with the Post-Dispatch since 1917. He has covered world series since 1921 and has seen the Cardinals win five pennants and three world championships. He also was with the Browns as Post-Dispatch correspondent when the Browns almost won the American League pennant in 1922.

Tuesday, from 11:40 a. m. until 12:10 noon, KSD will broadcast a description of the baseball parade. Pick-ups for the broadcast will be at the Statler Hotel on Washington boulevard.

Baseball scores will be broadcast on KSD at 2, 2:30, 4, 4:30 and 5:15 p. m. weekdays and at 2, 2:30, 4, 4:30 and 5 p. m. Sunday.

Frank Fay Opens Own Series on KSD Saturday

FRANK FAY, whose comeback as a comedian and entertainer on the Rudy Vallee program has been one of the interesting developments of the past few months, will start his own series under the title, "Frank Fay Callin'," at 8 o'clock next Saturday night on KSD. His program will replace that of Rubinoff. Fay will be his own announcer, commentator, singer, comedian and master of ceremonies, with Eddie Kay and his orchestra supplying the music.

Another of the Junior League amateur shows will be carried by KSD at 4:30 Wednesday afternoon.

The St. Louis Grand Opera Co.'s season this month will be discussed on KSD at 6:05 this evening.

A talk on "The Importance of Jury Service," by Rodney M. Fairchild, is set for 6:45 p. m. Tuesday on KSD.

Jessica Dragonette is singing again in KSD's concerts at 7 o'clock Friday night.

The first performance of an Easter cantata by Lily Strickland will be broadcast by KSD at 1 p. m. today.

Mrs. Richard Mansfield and Joe Howard are billed for Ted Hammerstein's Music Hall on KSD tomorrow night.

Ceremonies at the start of the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra's country-wide tour will be described at 11:45 tomorrow morning on the WEAF net. There will be brief talks by Mayor Wilson of Philadelphia and Leopold Stokowski, conductor of the orchestra, and a dog mascot will be presented to Stokowski by a women's committee. The orchestra will travel on an air-conditioned train, which has been equipped for use as living quarters. (Probably on KSD.)

* * *

Lee Tracy and Fay Wray, the movie actors, will play the leading roles in "Shore Leave" in the Radio Theater tomorrow night.

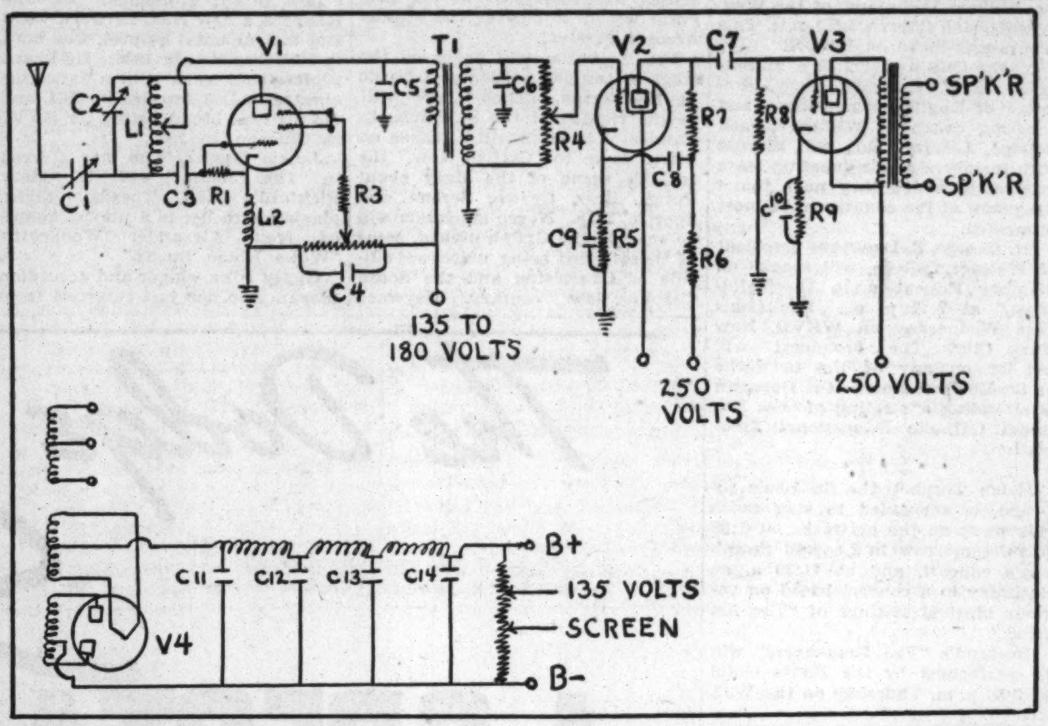
How to Build An Ultra Short Wave Set



R 2, a 50,000-ohm potentiometer, in the above circuit, is the one in the screen circuit of the V 1 tube, with C 4 across it. R 10 is the 20,000 resistor from B plus to B minus of the power pack.

THE circuit and list of parts for building an inexpensive radio set with which to listen to the programs broadcast daily on 31.6 megacycles by W9XPD, the Post-Dispatch's ultra short wave station, are printed herewith. Anyone who is adept at radio set building should be able to construct it, or it can be built at low cost by any capable radio service man or amateur radio operator. The set can be used with the speaker of virtually any home radio by installing a simple switch and making sure that the secondary of the ultra short wave set's audio output transformer matches the speaker.

This ultra short wave set, which has an '89 type tube as a super regenerative detector and a two-stage audio amplifier, is not an untried, theoretical receiver. It works. It worked on Pershing avenue, near De Baliviere avenue. It is working now in Kirkwood, tuning in W9XPD with good volume and tone.

It is not difficult to construct. However, it is essential that all wire leads be short and that the '89 tube and the aerial coil, L-1, be properly placed in relation to tuning condensers and other parts. Also, the tap on the aerial coil must be adjusted properly.

All parts for the set may be obtained at a radio parts store, except the aerial coil, which should be wound of enameled wire — three turns one-inch in diameter. The tuner may be built on one metal chassis and the audio amplifier and power pack on another, or all three may be constructed on the one chassis.

It is worth having such an ultra short wave set, for W9XPD broadcasts a number of fine programs every day. Also, there will be important developments on the ultra short waves, including television police and facsimile broadcasting and extension of the present regular broadcast services. It should be understood that the tuning range of an ultra short wave set is only 20 to 25 miles or so, and that the radiation of ultra short waves is of such a character that reception of ultra short wave stations in other cities or foreign countries cannot be expected.

Quality parts required to build the ultra short wave tuner, audio amplifier and power pack, can be purchased for $21, including sheet steel chassis. In addition to the chassis, the parts are as follows:

L1—aerial coil; eight turns of No. 14 enameled wire, wound one inch in diameter.

L2 radio frequency choke; 2.5 millhenries.

V1 one '89 type tube.

V2 one '77 type tube.

V3 one '42 type tube.

V4 one '80 type rectifier tube.

Three tube sockets.

C1 three-plate tuning condenser.

C2 trimmer condenser (screw type).

C3 .001 condenser.

C4 .1 condenser.

C5 .005 condenser.

C6 .0003 condenser.

C7 .1 condenser (600-volt type).

C8 2.0 condenser (450-volt type).

C9 and C10 25-mfd. condensers (50-volt type).

C11, 12, 13 and 14 filter condensers (8 mfds each).

R1 250,000 ohm resistor (two watts).

R2 50,000 ohm potentiometer.

R3 250,000 ohm resistor (two watts).

R4 500,000 ohm potentiometer.

R5 3000 ohm resistor (two watts).

R6 10,000 resistor (two watts). watts).

R7 100,000 ohm resistor (two watts).

R8 500,000 ohm resistor (two watts).

R9 400 ohm resistor (10 watts).

R10 20,000 ohm resistor with slide (50 watts).

T1 Audio transformer.

T2 Audio output transformer for '42 tube.

T3 Power transformer to deliver 100 mills current to filter and filament current for tubes.

CH1, CH2 and CH3 filter chokes to handle 100 mills.

Chassis for tuner and audio amplifier.

Chassis for power pack.

The output audio transformer should have a 7000 ohm primary to match the '42 type power tube, which is used as a pentode. Its secondary should match the coil of the speaker, which may be a magnetic, permanent magnet or dynamic type. The better the input and output audio transformers and the speaker, the better the reproduction.

If one has a power pack that will deliver up to 250 volts B current without hum or ripple, and the necessary filament current for the tubes, it may be substituted for the pack shown in the accompanying schematic drawing, saving about $9. But it will hardly be feasible to substitute an audio amplifier, as the very high gain obtained from a '57 and a '42 type tube is required.

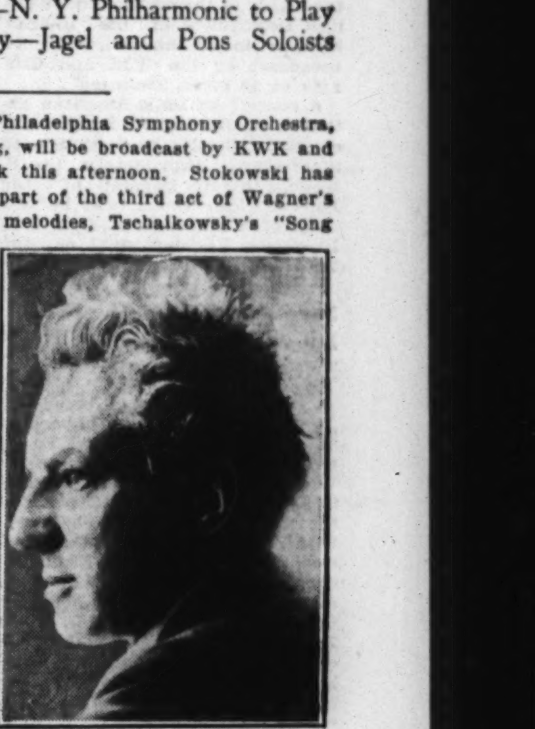
Concert at 1 P. M. Today By Philadelphia Symphony

Stokowski to Conduct—Klemperer to Direct Broadcast From Los Angeles at 8 A. M.—N. Y. Philharmonic to Play "New World" Symphony—Jagel and Pons Soloists Tonight.

A FULL hour concert by the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra, Leopold Stokowski conducting, will be broadcast by KWK and the WJZ network at 1 o'clock this afternoon. Stokowski has programmed three pieces by Bach, part of the third act of Wagner's "Parsifal," two ancient liturgical melodies, Tschaikowsky's "Song Without Words" and Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Russian Easter" music. Monday, Stokowski and the orchestra will leave Philadelphia for an 11,000-mile tour of the country in the course of which they will give a concert on May 9 in the St. Louis Municipal Auditorium.



LEOPOLD STOKOWSKI,

WHO will lead the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra in a concert from 1 to 2 o'clock this afternoon on the WJZ network and KWK.

Richard Bonelli, the baritone of the Metropolitan Opera, will replace Nino Martini in the concerts at 8 p. m. next Saturday and April 25. Martini is leaving New York for Hollywood to be featured in a new musical movie.

This week's radio concert and recital schedule is announced, as follows:

Today—8 a. m. on KMOX, Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra, Otto Klemperer conducting. 9:35 a. m., on KMOX, Alexander Semmler's Beethoven sonata recital. 11:30 a. m. on KWK, Radio City concert; Father Finn and his Paulist Boys' choir and symphony orchestra.

At 2 p. m. on KMOX, New York Philharmonic Orchestra, Hans Lange conducting; Purcell's "Four Fantasias," composed in the seventeenth century; "Two Symphonic Sketches," by Otto Luening, a young American composer; the "New World" symphony of Dvorak. The program also may include the Gold mark Concerto in A-minor for violin and orchestra, with Mishel Piastro as the soloist.

At 6:30 p. m. on KSD, Fireside Recital; Sigurd Nilssen, basso, and Willie Morris, soprano; 8 p. m., on KMOX, Victor Kolar's Symphony Orchestra and Frederick Jagel, tenor of the Metropolitan Opera; music by Mendelssohn, Giordano, Lehmann, Granier, Mascagni, Davidica, Weber, Humperdinck, Bach and Rimsky-Korsakoff. 8:30 p. m., on WJZ net, ballet music played in the Metropolitan Opera House by the orchestra of the Ballet Russe; 9 p. m. on WEAF network, Erno Rapee's Symphony Orchestra, Lily Pons and 1200-voice chorus; music by Adams, Bach, Mozart, Gounod, Bizet, Grieg, Delibes, Wagner and others.

Tomorrow — 10 to 11 a. m., on KSD, light opera; 1:30 p. m., on KSD, Helen Troubel, and orchestra; 3 p. m., on CBS net, Concert Miniatures; 7:30 p. m., on KSD, Nelson Eddy, baritone; Margaret Speaks, soprano, and orchestra; 10:45 p. m., on KMOX, George L. Scott, organist.

Tuesday—12:45 noon, on WEAF net, Pro-Arte String Quartet of Brussels; 5:35 p. m., on CBS net, Alexander Cores, Russian violinist; 7 p. m., on CBS net, Navy Band; 8 p. m., on WGN (720 kc.), Attilio Baggiore, tenor, and orchestra.

Wednesday—1 p. m., on WEAF net, Pro-Arte String Quartet; 2 p. m., on KWK, Rochester Civic Orchestra; 4 p. m., KSD, Cesare Sodero's concert orchestra; 8 p. m., on KMOX, Lily Pons of the Metropolitan Opera; 9 p. m., on KWK, John Charles Thomas, baritone of the Metropolitan Opera; 9:30 p. m., on WLW (700), grand opera in miniature.

Thursday—2:15 p. m., on KWK, Rochester Philharmonic orchestra; 7 p. m., on KWK, Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra and Dusolini Giannini of the Metropolitan Opera.

Friday—2 p. m., on CBS net, concert; 8 p. m., on WJZ net, Pro-Arte String Quartet; 9 p. m., on WJZ net, symphony orchestra; 9:30 p. m., on KSD, Marion Talley, soprano.

Saturday—9:30 a. m., on CBS net, concert from Russia; 10 a. m., on CBS net and KMOX, Cincinnati Symphony orchestra; 11:30 a. m., on KSD, the story of the composers who have set Goethe's songs to music; 1:30 p. m., on KSD, Carnegie Tech Symphony Orchestra; 6:30 p. m., Bruna Castagna, contralto, and concert orchestra; 7:15 p. m., on KWK, symphony orchestra; 7:15 to 9 p. m., on WGN, Chicago Symphony Orchestra; 8 p. m., on KMOX, Richard Bonelli, baritone of the Metropolitan Opera.

Toscanini will conduct the New York Philharmonic Orchestra's concert next Sunday in an all-Debussy program. The orchestra will be assisted by Bidu Sayao, the Brazilian soprano; Rose Bampton, the Metropolitan Opera contralto, and the Schola Cantorum chorus in Debussy's "La Demoiselle Elue" and the prelude to the first part of "San Sebastien." Also programmed are the "L'Apres Midi d'un Faune" prelude, the "Nuages" and "Fetes" nocturnes, "Iberia" and the "La Mer" symphonic sketches.

Joseph Knitzer, the American violinist, will be the soloist with Victor Kolar's symphonic orchestra next Sunday night. Soloists in the concert at 9 o'clock that same night by Erno Rapee's symphony orchestra will be Anna Kaskas, soprano, and Arthur Carron, the tenor, who were the winners of Metropolitan Opera contracts in the Sunday afternoon auditions concluded recently on KSD and the WEAF network. On the following Sunday, April 26, the soloist in this concert will be Florence Easton.

Conductors of the New York Philharmonic radio concerts next fall and winter will be John Barbirolli, the young British director of the Scottish and Leeds symphony orchestras; Igor Stravinsky, the famous Russian composer and conductor; Georges Enesco, the Roumanian; Carlos Chavez, director of the National Mexican Symphony Orchestra, who conducted two concerts recently on the CBS network, and Artur Rodzinski of the Cleveland Symphony Orchestra.

Radio Transmitter Built Into Hat.

A SILK top hat will house the newly developed NBC microwave radio station when it gets its first real tryout in broadcasting in a network sidewalk description of the Easter fashion parade along Fifth avenue.

The silk-hat transmitter, size 7⅜, will be worn by Announcer George Hicks. At his lips will be a tiny microphone, and under his coat a belt, bearing 30 small 6-volt batteries to produce 180 volts and four others to light the three tiny acorn type transmitting tubes.

The transmitter, weighing only 11 ounces, has been built into the crown of the hat together with a hollow alumni rod six and a half inches high for the antenna. It is connected by an inconspicuous cable to the battery belt, which also has a couple of operating switches and a microphone connection.

Because the tiny station's range will be only a quarter mile, the chain's motorized transmitter will transmit on 1.1 meter, or 270 kilocycles, to the network on a longer short wave.

Sunrise Services; Pope's Benediction Broadcast Canceled.

SUNRISE services broadcasts scheduled for today will begin at 6 a. m. with the annual Easter pageant at Mount Roosevelt, in the Wichita Mountains, Oklahoma. This is scheduled on the WJZ net. At the same time, the CBS chain will be broadcasting the non-denominational service in Soldiers' Field, Chicago. At 6:30 a. m. the CBS net will cover the ceremonies in Arlington Cemetery, at Washington, D. C. At 7 a. m., station KWK will broadcast the services on a point overlooking the Grand Canyon, in Arizona, and the CBS chain the ceremonies and music in the Hollywood Bowl, in California. At 7:30 a. m. the WEAF net will carry the service in the Mount Helix natural theater near San Diego, Cal. At 8:30 a. m. a broadcast on KMOX from Rome, Italy, will bring Easter chanting by the choir of St. John's Lateran Church, the Pope's own basilica. At 9:45 a. m. the WEAF network will broadcast the annual Easter sunrise services at Honolulu, Hawaii. At 10:30 a. m. a WJZ net broadcast from Berlin will bring traditional German Easter songs in a concert by the chamber choir of and the Berlin National Radio orchestra. (This will be on KWK.)

Because of notice from Italy that Pope Pius XI's Easter benediction rites will not be broadcast, plans have been abandoned for the CBS network program originally scheduled to begin at 4:30 this morning.

KMOX AND KWK will broadcast a play-by-play story of the Cardinals Chicago Cubs game Tuesday. KMOX has arranged to broadcast all home games of the Cardinals and Browns, with France Laux and Del King at the microphone.

The Police Quartet is scheduled on KSD at 6:45 p. m. tomorrow, Wednesday and Friday.

Listeners and United States stations are protesting to the FCC because a dozen or so high-powered stations just across the border in Mexico are using channels assigned to this country. Dr. John R. Brinkley's XERA, former XER, and Norman Baker's XENT are reported to be the chief trouble makers. Both use 150,000 watts power. Nothing can be done about them, except through diplomatic representations to Mexico.

Bing Crosby to Sing With Stokowski's Symphony Orchestra

BING CROSBY is to sing as soloist with the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra, led by Leopold Stokowski, during his regular program on KSD Thursday night, April 30. His singing with the orchestra will be a result of a suggestion made by Stokowski several months ago.

A special broadcast at 5:35 p. m. Wednesday on the WJZ net will bring a "We Say What We Please" discussion in which Courtney Ryley Cooper, William Seabrook, Thyra Samter Winslow, Maurice Hindus, John Oskison, Todd Downing and Warden Lewis E. Lawes of Sing Sing, are to take part.

Service of the University of Arkansas to farming in Arkansas will be a feature of the Farm and Home Hour on KWK Wednesday forenoon.

The town of Waters, Ark., is to change its name to Pine Ridge, the mythical location of the Lum and Abner programs, on April 26. A broadcast to mark the change of name is planned at 2 p. m. on that day on the WJZ chain.

Dean Brothers, Hornsby, Frisch, In Broadcast Tonight.

DIZZY and Paul Dean, of the St. Louis Cardinals, are among the players announced for a broadcast at 7:30 tonight on the CBS net and KMOX. Other noted players and managers scheduled for the program are Gabby Hartnett and Charley Grimm of the Chicago Cubs; Casey Stengel and Buddy Hassett of the Brooklyn Dodgers and Bill Terry, manager of the New York Giants. Connie Mack, Mickey Cochrane, manager of the Detroit Tigers; Lou Gehrig of the New York Yankees, and Joe Cronin, Jimmy Foxx and Al Schacht, of the Boston Red Sox. Ford Frick, president of the National League will speak. Buddy Hassett will sing, and Pete Appleton of the Washington Senators, will play the piano. Tris Speaker will conclude the broadcast with reminiscences of oldtime baseball days. Program pick-ups will be made in New New York, Chicago, St. Louis, Boston, Washington, Cincinnati and Philadelphia. Ted Husing will be the chief announcer, and France Laux will handle the St. Louis part of the program. Frankie Frisch, manager of the Cardinals, and Rogers Hornsby, the Browns' manager, also will take part in the broadcast.

The opening National League game between the New York Giants and Brooklyn Dodgers will be described play-by-play by Ted Husing Tuesday on the CBS chain, starting at 2 p. m.

Outstanding events in the Penn Relays, at Franklin Field, Philadelphia, and the Drake Relays, at Des Moines, Iowa, will be covered Friday and Saturday afternoons, April 24 and 25, by the CBS net.

Fifi D'Orsay And the Howards Start Series Wednesday

WILLIE AND EUGENE HOWARD, the comedians, and Fifi D'Orsay, the French singer, comedienne and movie actress, will open their Folies Bergere of the Air series at 7 p. m. Wednesday on the WJZ net and KWK.

Ruth Etting is billed for Ben Bernie's period Tuesday evening.

Bob Brown, the Chicago announcer who has won a reputation as a humorist, has replaced Don McNeill as master of ceremonies for the Breakfast Club at 8 a. m. daily except Sunday on the WJZ net.

Jean Dickenson, the young Denver coloratura soprano, who is a protege of Lily Pons, was billed on the Hollywood Hotel program Friday night, and is expected to sing on that program regularly.

George Wood Jr., the 13-year-old announcer and singer, is heading a new program on WIL at 7 p. m. Saturdays.

Missouri Boy Who Won Contest On Cantor Program

LOYD LEWIS, the 17-year-old high school student of Plattsburg, Mo., who won the Eddie Cantor peace essay scholarship, will fly to New York to speak on the comedian's program at 6 o'clock this evening.

Lincoln Ellsworth, the aviator-explorer, is to speak on Robert L. Ripley's program tonight. He is expected to relate some of his experiences in Ant-Arctica.

Pat O'Malley is to repeat his humorous skit, "Sam, Pick Up Thy Musket," during Jack Hylton's broadcast at 8 o'clock tonight on KWK.

The start of Mrs. Florence Dibble's attempt to break the coaching record from New York to Atlantic City will be described on the WEAF net May 12. The record, 12 hours and 18 minutes for the 134-mile trip, was made by Paul Sorg in 1910. Sorg had the advantage of dirt roads, whereas Mrs. Dibble's horses will have to travel on pavement. Thomas F. Walsh, Mrs. Dibble's trainer, believes that the coach will roll enough more swoothly over the paved roads to offset the disadvantages. He plans to use 12 horses, in three teams. Whenever a change is made, the tired team will be loaded into a motor van and carried ahead to a change point where they again will be hitched to the coach. Mrs. Dibble's coach, named "Valliant," weighs 3400 pounds. It was built in France by Mignon Guet for William Tiffany. Mrs. Dibble, a Boston society matron, has won a number of coaching races with her "big-four" horses.

St. Louis Minister Church of Air Speaker.

TODAY'S speaker in the CBS network's Church of the Air service at 9 a. m. will be the Rev. Dr. William B. Lampe, of the West Presbyterian Church, St. Louis. This program is listed on KMOX.

On the CBS net at 2:30 p. m. Saturday, Prof. Casper Harvey, professor of English composition and debating coach at William Jewell College, Liberty, Mo., will discuss with members of his debating team matters in which they have found the youth of the country to be most interested.

Safety Film Shown Twice Every Day in Los Angeles Court

It Depicts for Accused Motorists Driving Faults and Violations of Law.

Judge Charles Newell Carns, of the Los Angeles Municipal Court, has discovered a new way to eliminate excuses and alibis offered by motorists on charges of reckless driving, speeding and other traffic violations.

Tired of lecturing traffic violators on the seriousness of their offenses, Judge Carns ordered a new safety film, "Everybody's Business," to be shown twice daily in his courtroom. Officials of the Los Angeles Bar Association, who passed on the ethics of showing the motion picture in court, believe this to be the first time the "talkies" have invaded an American courtroom.

"We have had a third fewer excuses and alibis in the first week of showing this picture," Judge Carns said. "Drivers who are graphically shown the appalling consequences of traffic violations, similar to offenses which they have committed, seem more willing to admit their guilt without offering blundering excuses."

Produced by the Plymouth Division of the Chrysler Corporation and sponsored by the National Safety Council, the safety film dramatically presents the common faults of traffic violators, and the serious accidents which may result.

Judge Carns said that one episode in the film, which shows a specially staged race across a busy city, had practically eliminated the old "I-was-in-a-hurry" alibi. The winner of the 12-mile race, driven at breakneck speed in violation of virtually every traffic law on the books, gained a margin of only three minutes over the second car, which was driven carefully and with regard for every traffic law.

"The 10-minute motion picture showing is proving more effective than any lecture which I might deliver from the bench," Judge Carns said. "The success of this experiment has demonstrated the possibilities for visual education of traffic violators in the courtroom. Safety education is truly 'Everybody's Business' and I believe it is the business of our courts to do their part."

The safety film was produced in Hollywood as another contribution of the Plymouth Division of the Chrysler Corporation to the cause of safe driving. The motor corporation also sponsored Barney Oldfield's recent safety education tour, during which the noted driver lectured to thousands of business men, school children and club members on the importance of safe driving.

One of the pioneers in safety education work, Plymouth has long been identified in motor car circles as pioneer in safety engineering, with the perfection of such features as hydraulic brakes, safety-steel bodies, safe-vision headlights and other safety aids.

Lubrite Inaugurates Extensive Newspaper Advertising Campaign

With indications that the coming season will find more persons driving cars than ever before, the Lubrite Division of the Socony-Vacuum Oil Co. is inaugurating an extensive newspaper advertising campaign throughout the Middle West to promote the sale of Mobiloil and Mobilgas, it is announced by Roy B. Dill, advertising manager.

This advertising campaign will be carried by newspapers in 239 cities, Dill said. It will be educational in nature, featuring the importance of proper care of motor cars from the viewpoint of lubrication and maintenance. Draining of dirty, "winter-worn" oil from the automobile crankcase, and the importance of refilling with full-bodied summer lubricants, will be stressed.

"We have found that newspaper advertising through this section of the country has been highly effective in building up an increasing demand for our products," Dill said. "The fact that Mobiloil is today America's largest selling motor oil can be traced in no small part to the effectiveness of our newspaper advertising.

"There is every reason to believe that the coming tourist season will offer a greater market for automobile lubricants and fuels than ever before. The automobile industry last year had one of the biggest years in its history, and even more cars are being sold this year, indicating that there will be a great many cars on the highways. Similarly, demand for touring information indicates that more people will be traveling than ever before."

March Buick Retail Sales Double Those In Previous Month

Domestic retail deliveries of the Buick Motor Co. in March totaled 15,057 units, more than double the sales in the previous month, and a gain of 130 per cent over March a year ago, according to figures made public by Harlow H. Curtice, president.

The volume reflected an unprecedented upturn in spring business of the company in which Buick registered considerably more than seasonal gains and greatly exceeded the average increase for the industry, Curtice said.

March deliveries compared with 6577 sales reported in February, a gain of 8480 units, or 128 per cent, and with 6534 in the corresponding month a year ago, an increase of 8523 cars, or 130 per cent.

April production schedules for Buick have been stepped up by 2000 units, Curtice said, bringing the total projected output for April to 18,602 cars, including export and Canadian shipments.

President Coupe In Studebaker Line, Winning Popularity

The Studebaker President coupe of 1936 is occupying an increasingly prominent place in the Studebaker sales.

The President coupe is considered the "personality" car of the Studebaker line. It was styled by Miss Helen Dryden, well-known New York designer, around the "Champion" chassis and motor.

Built upon a wheelbase of 125 inches, the President coupe has an eight-cylinder, 115-horsepower engine. Equipped with over drive, the President does 90 miles an hour.

The swift-flowing contours, the ultra-modern streamlining of the body, especially the rear sections, make this the most attractive coupe ever produced by Studebaker. The rear of the body curves gracefully to rear deck, which houses the comfortable two-passenger rear seat and capacious baggage compartment. The heavily insulated body has an all-steel roof and is a single sphere of welded steel, heavily reinforced by box sections. Fenders are molded skillfully into the body design and add strength and safety.

Ost Motors, Inc., Now Chrysler Dealer on Morganford Road

L. M. Stewart, Inc., announces the appointment of Ost Motors, Inc., as a new dealer. Paul Ost, who is president of the firm, for years has been engaged in the automobile business, and sold Chrysler cars at the time of their introduction.

Joseph Schulz, who is secretary of the Ost company, also has been selling cars for years.

The firm has a modern building at 3142 Morganford road, where cars are on display in an attractive showroom, and has adequate service facilities.

Its used car operations are handled at 3620 South Kingshighway.

Tires on Bus Average 104,855 Miles Each

An exceptional performance record on bus tires has just been reported by the Public Transport Co. of Chillicothe, O., to the B. F. Goodrich Co.

Citing the record of tires on their bus No. 5, equipped with 7.50-20 express type balloons, the company reports that the six casings have been run on the bus for a total of 629,134 miles, an average of 104,855 miles per tire.

The mileage of each tire was: No. 1, 116,592; No. 2, 109,956; No. 3, 103,682; No. 4, 100,856; No. 5, 100,559; No. 6, 97,849.

Newspapers to Carry Most of Goodrich Co. Advertising, Tew Says

One of the largest advertising campaigns in the history of the B. F. Goodrich Co., Akron, O., will be conducted in 1936, principally in newspapers, it is announced by J. D. Tew, president of the company.

Goodrich, one of the world's oldest rubber manufacturers, is serving the sixty-fifth anniversary of its founding by Dr. B. F. Goodrich.

Oldsmobile Retail Sales in March Best Since Factory Opened

Oldsmobile retail sales in March were greater than in any month in the long history of the company.

Oldsmobile production scheduled for April is the highest ever set up by the company.

Retail sales in the last 10 days of March were 26 per cent greater than Oldsmobile's best previous 10-day period.

More than twice as many Oldsmobiles were sold at retail in March as in February.

So says D. E. Ralston, Oldsmobile vice-president and general sales manager.

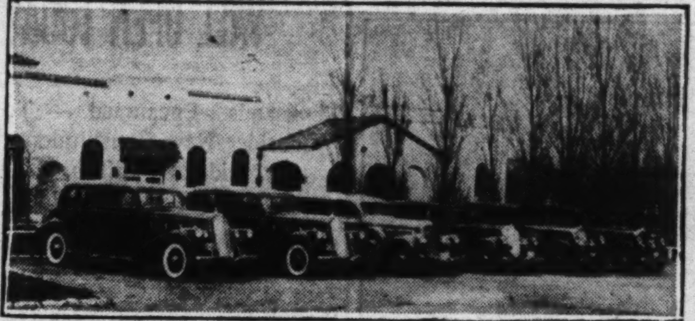
"Oldsmobile dealers delivered 11.5 per cent more cars in March than in April of last year, the record month up to this time. March retail sales were 19 per cent above those of the same month in 1935.

"Sales for the first quarter set a new all-time high, being 21 per cent greater than those of the first three months of 1935, the previous record," he said.

The production schedule for this month has been stepped up 20 per cent over that of a year ago, when the month's output set a new high for Oldsmobile.

"Since the introduction of the new 1936 cars, Oldsmobile had built 107,773 up to the end of March.

For Funeral Service



Fleet of cars operated by the Kriegshauser Mortuaries, to which the firm has just added the two 1936 Pierce-Arrow commercial sedans in the foreground at the left in the picture. The new sedans were delivered by the Pierce-Arrow St. Louis Co., Inc. These commercial sedans were designed especially for funeral and livery service. They are on a 147-inch wheelbase, and have a large, full rear door so that passing over the rear fender is not necessary. Body and chassis, except for interior trim and engine, are the same as on the Model 1603 12-cylinder custom seven-passenger sedan. A built-out trunk is among the features.

Speedier Cars Predicted.

Bulletlike cars speeding 600 miles an hour are predicted by a group of engineers in Germany. Reports from Berlin say tests of models have led the men to declare that some day some of the country's mountain gorges will be traversed by huge electrified metal rings through which the cars will flash.

Motor Car Increase.

According to preliminary registration figures, there are now about a million more automobiles in use throughout the United States than there were at this time last year.

Fewer Casualties in England.

Road deaths in England last year were 700 fewer than in 1934.

Site Oil Corporation To Open Six Accessory Stores at Its Stations

Six automobile accessory stores will be opened by the Site Oil Corporation in connection with its filling stations in St. Louis.

The first two stores to be opened will be at Vandeventer and Market street, and at 3420 North Kingshighway. The other four stores will be in operation in about four weeks, Phil Siteman, president of the Site Oil Corporation, said yesterday.

Each of the six stores will carry a complete line of automobile accessories, including batteries, tires, radio sets and the like, Siteman said.

Horn-Blowing Banned.

A new city ordinance of Greensboro, N. C., prohibits blowing of automobile horns between the hours of 10 p. m. and 8 a. m. except in cases of emergency. The Court will judge whether an emergency existed.

Car's Light Denotes Speed.

A new invention in England consists of a lamp on the switchboard of an automobile, the light showing green constantly until the car travels more than 35 miles an hour, the new legal speed limit in Great Britain.

New Sales Managers' Division Formed by Auto Dealers' Group

Organization Meeting Called for Tuesday Night by Automotive Association.

Inauguration of a new sales managers' division of the Greater St. Louis Automotive Association has been decided upon. Members will consist of sales managers for firms which are members of the association.

A general meeting of the new division, to which all sales managers of the new and used car departments of member firms have been invited, will be held at 6:30 o'clock Tuesday evening at the Melbourne Hotel.

Milton B. Strauss, president of the Greater St. Louis Automotive Association, will open the meeting. He will turn it over to Carroll Cartwright of L. M. Stewart, Inc., who was elected temporary chairman of a program committee. The other members of this committee are: J. B. Ashner of Arthur R. Lindburg, Inc.; Charles K. Saltsman of Hudson-Frampton Motor Car Co.; W. R. Willis of Roberts Chevrolet Co., and W. W. Wilson of West Side Buick Auto Co.

The speaker for the evening will be Joseph N. Kellerman, part owner of the Auto Exchange, Inc., 3650 South Kingshighway. Kellerman has been in the automobile business since 1903. He is a St. Louis man and has worked in all of the departments of the motor car business, both mechanical and sales, was connected with several prominent distributors of automobiles in St. Louis, and was for several years on the staff of the N. A. D. A.

The Program Committee has suggested the following highlights which will be discussed by Kellerman: goodfellowship, understanding among sales managers, unethical business relations, comparing allowances on used cars.

Immediately after Kellerman's talk, the definite formation of the division will take place and officers and directors will be elected. Only sales managers will be eligible to the board.

Ford Co. Operates 30 Vessels on Seas And the Great Lakes

Much of Material Used in Ford Cars Transported by Them to Rouge Plant.

Thirty vessels operating on the Great Lakes and salt water make up the fleet of the Ford Motor Co., linking sources of raw materials with the manufacturing plant and aiding in the distribution of cars and trucks.

Much of the bulkier material used at the company's great Rouge plant is taken there by Ford ships running on the lakes to the Detroit River and then up the Rouge River to the plant docks. Two 600-foot freighters, the largest motorships on the Great Lakes, carry ore from the Ford mines in the Upper Peninsula of Michigan and from other mines in the Lake Superior district, coal from Lake Erie ports and limestone.

At the Rouge docks, dippers that pick up 12 to 17 tons at a time unload the ships at the rate of 1000 tons the hour. Thirteen modern barges, hauled by four 150-foot tugs, transport coal, coke, sand and lumber between Great Lakes ports and the Rouge plant.

Heavy Tonnage Carried.

In the 1935 Great Lakes navigation season, from April 15 through November, approximately 1,500,000 tons of coal, 560,000 tons of iron ore and 200,000 tons of limestone were carried by Ford vessels to storage bins at the Rouge plant. Fully 325,000 tons of sand was transported by water and unloaded into railroad cars for transporting to sand storage. More than 22,000,000 feet of lumber were taken by Ford vessels to the Rouge docks during the year.

Raw materials are unloaded from the Ford vessels into primary storage bins having a capacity of 2,000,000 tons. Adjoining these storage bins is a concrete structure 40 feet high and three-quarters of a mile long called a "high line" and referred to as the "backbone" of the plant. Served by five railroad tracks, this structure is of open-girder construction, which permits unloading of bottom dumping cars at a great saving in time and handling. Beneath the high line are open storage bins and elaborate machinery for charging the giant blast furnaces.

Iron ore that arrives at the Rouge at 8 o'clock in the morning may leave the plant in a finished Ford V-8 by noon the following day.

The Ford system of production is based on close and constant control of materials. From the time the iron ore leaves the mine until it emerges as part of the finished product, someone knows exactly where—and why—it is going. There is no warehouse storage at the Rouge plant after raw materials leave the high line.

Seven Ships on the Oceans.

The company has seven modern ships for overseas service. The regular itinerary of some includes far-distant ports; others are engaged in coastwise and South American service. The cargoes of these salt water vessels are made up of lumber and completed products such as Ford parts and cars.

Included in the Ford fleet are two recently constructed canal boats. Twin screw ships of a revolutionary type, they are especially designed for operation between the Rouge plant, Chester and Edgewater branches through the New York State Barge Canal.

The many savings effected by the use of the company's own transportation facilities in linking sources of raw materials with the processing and manufacturing plant, as well as in aiding the distribution of the finished goods are passed on directly to the consumers of Ford products, the company says.

Noted Aviatrix Tours by Car

Amelia Earhart, the aviator, and her own 1936 Terraplane car which she was driving when she stopped off in St. Louis recently on her way to Jacksonville, Ill., and Chicago on a lecture tour of the Middle West. This is the third Terraplane she has had since 1932, Miss Earhart told W. S. Milton, zone manager for Hudson Terraplane.

Specially Styled Coupe

Studebaker President coupe, styled by Helen Dryden, noted artist and designer. Among the features of this eight-cylinder model is the "hill holder," which prevents the car from rolling backward when stopped on a grade and make starting on an incline easier.

For Taxi Service

Eleven Studebaker cars delivered to the Black and White Cab Co. by Arthur R. Lindburg, Inc., as part of a fleet ordered.

Chrysler Overdrive Tested in California In 'Gas' Economy Run

An economy run to test the Chrysler automatic overdrive was made in three cars from San Francisco to Del Monte and return by three San Francisco newspaper observers.

The cars used in the test were a Chrysler Six, with a cubic piston displacement of 241.5 inches, a Chrysler DeLuxe Eight, with a piston displacement of 273.8 inches, and a Chrysler Airflow Imperial, with a piston displacement of 323.5 inches. All three were sedan models.

The running time in each direction was 2 hours and 45 minutes, which means that an average road speed of from 45 to 60 miles an hour was generally maintained. The cars were driven by amateur drivers. Rules required that cars be kept constantly in gear when the engine was running.

The official report of the test showed that the Chrysler Six averaged 20.5 miles per gallon of gasoline, the DeLuxe Eight 17.9 miles, and the Airflow Imperial, a big, powerful car, with a wheelbase of 128 inches and 130-horsepower, 17.2 miles.

Chevrolet Reports March Best Sales Month in Its History

Chevrolet sales in March of 126,119 units were the highest in any month in the history of the company, it is announced.

A new record was set also for first quarter sales which totaled 272,149, a gain of 97,839 over the same period last year. The previous Chevrolet high record for a single month had stood ever since May, 1928, at 122,437 units. The largest previous first quarter record was 248,875 units, in 1929.

Sales of used cars by Chevrolet dealers were 165,170 in March and 481,834, a new record, in the first quarter.

Georgia Backward in Patrol.

Georgia is now the only State in the Union not having a State highway patrol system.

Best Month Since July, 1929, Reported By Pontiac Dealers

March was the biggest month Pontiac Motor Co. dealers throughout the United States have had since July, 1929, says H. J. Klingler, president and general manager of the company.

Retail deliveries in March were 17,466, which was more than double the February deliveries, greater than January and February combined, and almost 1500 more than in March, 1935.

The last 10-day period of March, with 8129 deliveries, was bigger than any other 10-day period since April, 1929, and was the third largest in Pontiac's history. The two periods which exceeded it were in 1929. Nothing equaled it prior to 1929.

"Pontiac dealers had the biggest used-car month in their history in March. They sold 35,367 used cars," Klingler said.

"Since the first of the year they have sold 76,807 used cars, which is one and one-half times as many used cars as have been sold by Pontiac dealers in any first three months' period in the history of the company."

Minnesota Dealer Sells Cars by Barter

Scarcity of cash does not seem to handicap George Gillespie, who sells Pontiac cars in Cambridge, Minn.

In the last few months, Gillespie has bartered new and used cars for the following materials with cash value as listed: Barbering and beauty work, $100; advertising, $50; roof repairing, $150; meal tickets, $100; chickens, $25; oil, $1325; ready-to-wear clothing, $350; paint jobs, $[illegible]; dental work, $72, and more than 200 cords of wood.

Car Inspection Severe.

Autos undergoing State inspection in Pennsylvania are required to have one wheel removed for brake-lining test.

How the Motorists Pay.

Federal automobile tax receipts in the United States in 1935 set an all-time record of $296,086,934.

INDIAN CONGRESS WILL OPEN TODAY

Thousands Encamped — To Consider New Constitution Provided by British.

By the Associated Press.

LUCKNOW, India, April 11.—Tens of thousands of members of the Indian national congress camped in temporary shelters on the outskirts of Lucknow tonight awaiting the opening of the annual session tomorrow. The congress this year will attempt to decide whether to accept offices under the new constitution provided by the British Parliament in 1935.

The congress, which celebrated its fiftieth birthday in December, claims a membership of more than 7,000,000 persons. A miniature city covering two and one-half square miles has been erected on the plains beyond the city. In addition to some 500 huts where the delegates will reside, barracks have been erected for the thousands of volunteers called to the scene.

On simple hut will provide living quarters for Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru, president-elect of the congress and the Oxford-educated successor to the Mahatma Gandhi as been the subject of many private conferences of its leaders.

Sixty thousand persons will be accommodated in the central meeting place and a smaller hall will accommodate another 10,000 persons for committee sessions.

The convention plans include an extensive outdoor exhibition of handspun and handwoven cloth and other examples of village industries upon whose development Gandhi has concentrated his efforts since he retired from politics.

CLAIM OF $31,167 ALLOWED AGAINST T. S. WELLS ESTATE

Probate Judge Arnold Rules in Favor of Receiver of Third National Co.

A claim for $31,167 against the estate of Thomas S. Wells was allowed yesterday by Probate Judge Glendy B. Arnold in favor of the receiver of the Third National Co., defunct brokerage firm, of which Wells was president at the time of his death in July, 1934. The claim was presented by Walter F. Faust, receiver of the company. He informed the Court that the amount represented a shortage in the accounts of Wells, who, the receiver charged, operated a bucket shop and used customers' funds for his personal account, as revealed by an auditor's examination.

Milton F. Napier, counsel for the receiver, explained to Judge Arnold that a settlement in the estate of Wells showed a balance of $308.82, but it was desired the claim be granted as a protection to creditors of the brokerage firm in the event more assets of the estate were found.

He added it was rumored that Wells, shortly before the failure of the business, removed about $50,000 in bonds from a safe deposit box, but so far no trace of them had been found. Public Administrator Walter F. Sheehan, in charge of the estate, did not oppose the claim.

A report recently filed in the receivership case in Circuit Court listed liabilities amounting to $110,000 against the company, with assets totaling $78,882 in cash.

Dubinsky Quits Socialist Party.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 11.—David Dubinsky, president of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, resigned tonight from the Socialist Party. He said he disagreed with its policies and wanted to work independently during the 1936 presidential campaign.

DEDICATION OF NEW HALL BY SALVATION ARMY TODAY

Chicago Leader of Organization in Midwest to Conduct Exercises at 3 P. M.

The Salvation Army will dedicate its new hall, Tower Grove and Vista avenues, at 3 p. m. today. The hall, seating about 800 persons, occupies the newly completed main floor of a church building which, as purchased from a neighborhood church, was only of a basement. The building will be used as a neighborhood center.

Commissioner W. A. McIntyre of Chicago, leader of the Army in the Midwest, will conduct the dedication service, which will also be the Easter service. Lieutenant-Colonel Victor Lundgren will assist, and the divisional staff band and a chorus of 100 will furnish music. Mayor Dickmann, the Rev. Dr. C. Oscar Johnson, president of the Church Federation, and Lawrence McDaniel have been invited to attend.

Woman Astronomer Dies.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, April 11.—Mrs. Mariana Low, 76 years old, astronomical physicist, died here today. She was the widow of Soren F. Low, one-time literary editor of the New York Times and the Boston Transcript. A sister, Mrs. D. W. Evans of Detroit, survives.

Flick your finger...gears shift!

Shift with both hands on the wheel . . . with the Electric Hand

COME in for a "Discovery Drive" in a Hudson or Terraplane with the Electric Hand. See what it means to shift gears at a finger flick . . . smoothly and surely. . . with both hands on the wheel and both eyes on the road.

Then let us show you FOUR MORE ways in which the Electric Hand makes driving almost magically simpler, easier and safer. Once you drive this modern way, the old fashioned gear shift lever will seem as out of date as the starting crank.

No Levers to Stumble Over

Now you can enjoy a front seat ride with no gear or brake lever in the way . . . with the floor all clear. A front seat, at last, in which three can stretch in comfort. That's another Electric Hand advantage.

At the wheel of a 1936 Hudson or Terraplane, you'll soon find many other reasons why these cars are growing so fast in popularity.

You'll discover more power, and smoother power, than you find in cars priced hundreds of dollars higher. More room, too ... in the biggest cars ever priced so low. With the newest, most advanced style of the year.

Try These New Features

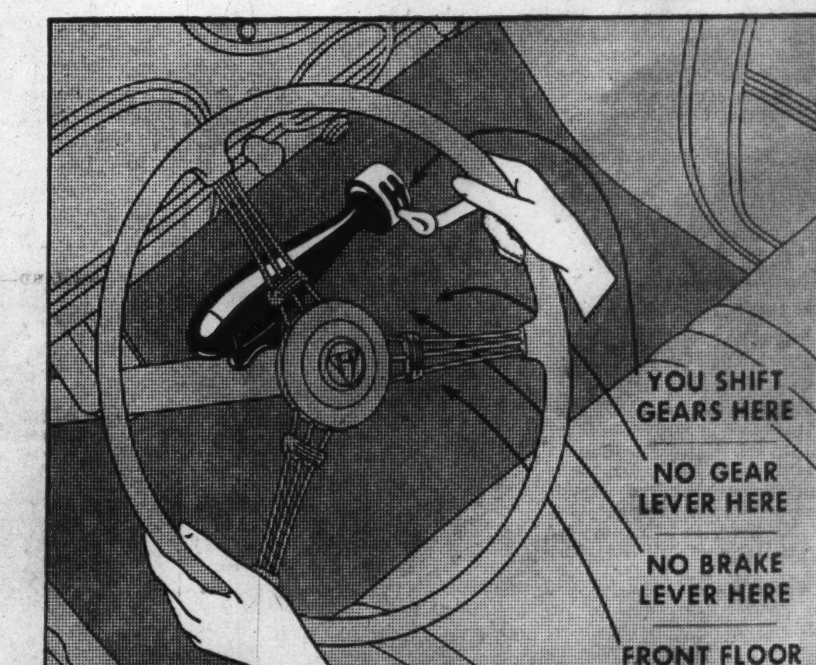
Put your foot on Duo-Automatic Hydraulic Brakes (patent applied for) . . . and you'll discover safer stopping than cars ever had before. Get out on the highway, and you'll learn what the Rhythmic Ride, Tru-Line Steering and Radial Safety Control (patent applied for) mean in greater comfort, safety and easy handling.

Then let us show you what others have discovered about the amazing economy and long life of Hudsons and Terraplanes. The proof is waiting . . . come and see.

Hudson and Terraplane Dealers of St. Louis and Vicinity



Drive Today . . . the Modern Way!

The Electric Hand, an optional extra, is mounted conveniently under the steering wheel. There you see the same familiar gear positions, in their regular order.

PRICES BEGIN AT $595

for Terraplane De Luxe Models (88 or 100 horsepower, 115-inch wheelbase); $710 for Hudson Six (93 or 100 horsepower, 120-inch wheelbase); $760 for Hudson Eight (113 or 124 horsepower, 120 and 127-inch wheelbase). All prices f. o. b. Detroit. Standard group of accessories extra.

MRS. HENRY C. STRIEDER & FAMILY.

IN MEMORIAM

BERGMANN, BARBARA—In memory of my dear sister, whom God took home April 11, 1933.
Sadly missed by
SISTER AND FAMILY.

CHESNIK, LILLIAN—In loving memory of my dearest daughter "Lillian" who fell asleep April 15, 1929.
A soul as pure as winter's snow was passing with the April breeze.
A mother knew as mothers know and watched her child on bended knees; the muffled rush of Angel's wings, the strains of Angel's harps "grow dim" and "Lillian" smiling softly sings her last and sorrowful partnig "Hymn" Ave Maria. MOTHER.

DREWS, MRS. MATILDA—Who departed this life April 9, 1935. Sadly missed by grandchildren,
EDNA AND WALTHER H. DREWS JR.

HUMPHREY, MRS. ANNA—In loving memory of our wonderful mother, who departed this life 5 years ago, April 8, 1931, and our dear brother, Arthur L. Humphrey, 17 years ago, Feb. 25, 1919.
Only those who lost a loved one,
Knows the depth of our regret,
We remember what others forget
Thoughts come drifting in our dreams to stay.
Sadly missed by SON and BROTHERS,
FRANK and FRED HUMPHREY.

KLUDAS, IDA T.—In loving memory of our dear mother, Ida T. Kludas, who departed this life April 10, 1933.
THE FAMILY.

KRAMER, AMALIA—In loving memory, who departed this life April 6, 1925.
Sunshine passes, shadows fall,
Love's remembrance outlasts all,
And though the years be many or few,
They are fileld with remembrance, dear of you.
Sadly missed by daughter,
MRS. FERDINAND KNITTEL
AND GRANDDAUGHTERS

MOORE—In loving memory of Ralph A. Moore, who died suddenly 9 years ago, April 9.
More and more each day we miss you;
Friends may think the wound is healed,
But they little know the sorrow
Lies within our hearts concealed.
MOTHER, FATHER AND BROTHER.

OWEN, SARAH ADELINE LINK—In remembrance of my wife and mother who died April 13, 1934.
HUSBAND AND SON.

REILLY, JOHANNA—In memory of our dear wife and mother who departed this life April 13, 1934.
If all this world were mine to claim
I'd give it all to have my darling mother again.
Sadly missed by
HUSBAND, DAUGHTER, SON-IN-LAW AND GRANDDAUGHTER.

REIMUND, JACOB—REIMUND, OSCAR—In loving memory of husband and father, who passed away April 22, 1935, and son, April 5, 1933.
I mourned for you in silence;
No eyes can see me weep,
But many silent tears I shed,
While others are asleep.
Sadly missed by
WIFE, MOTHER AND FAMILY.

RODENBERG, AUGUST H. — In loving memory of my dear father, who departed this life April 12, 1933; sadly missed by Daughter, Edna Gerard, and all who loved him.

THOMAS, ANNA—In loving memory of my dear wife, who departed this life April 8, 1931.
Sadly missed by
HUSBAND, SONS, DAUGHTER AND DAUGHTER-IN-LAW.

THOMPSON, ELSIE—In loving memory of my dear daughter, who departed April 13, 1935.
Who suffered hours of pain,
To wait for cure, but all in vain,
Till God alone knew what was best:
He called her home to give her rest.
Gone but not forgotten; dear to our memory you will always be. Sadly missed by MOTHER, BROTHER, SISTER AND THOSE WHO LOVED HER.

SOCIETY NEWS SECTION

PART SEVEN | ST. LOUIS, SUNDAY ~~MORNING~~, APRIL 12, 1936. | PAGES 1—14G

Miss Helen Fusz Is Bethrothed to Roy W. Jordan

Prospective Bride Former Debutante and Maid of Honor at Veiled Prophet Ball—Wedding to Be in Early Summer.

A LUNCHEON was given yesterday by Miss Helen Fusz, daughter of Eugene A. Fusz, 6925 Delmar boulevard, at which announcement was made of her engagement to Roy Wilcox Jordan, son of Mrs. William E. Jordan, 6132 Waterman avenue.

Before her introduction to society in the fall of 1932, at a dinner dance given by her father at the St. Louis Woman's Club, Miss Fusz was graduated from the John Burroughs School and attended Holton Arms in Washington. She served as a maid of honor at the Veiled Prophet ball in her first season. She is a sister of Mrs. Cabell Breckinridge, the former Miss Marie Reine Fusz, who has just returned to her home in Lexington, Ky., after a visit; Mrs. John Brownrigg, who was Miss Elizabeth Fusz; Miss Josephine Fusz, who returned for her spring vacation from Trinity College in Washington in time for the party, and Louis James Fusz.

Mr. Jordan is a stock broker. His clubs include the Missouri Athletic Association.

Spring flowers decorated the long luncheon table. The places were marked by cards, on which were baby chicks beside the words: "It's just come out," and the names of the bride-elect and her finance. When luncheon was announced, each place card, except for the name of the guest, was covered with a fresh gardenia, given as a corsage.

In addition to Mrs. Brownrigg and Miss Josephine Fusz, the guests included Mr. Jordan's sister-in-law, Mrs. Harold R. Jordan; Miss Jane Armistead, Miss Judith Harris, Miss Anne Lawry, Miss Anne Gruner, Miss Helen Feuerbacher, Miss Clara Frampton, Miss Betty Mara, Miss Adele Hartrich, Miss Madeline Pape and Miss Laura Jane Davis.

Miss Fusz will leave Friday for Lexington to attend the wedding of Cabell Breckinridge's sister, Miss Dudley Breckinridge, and will then go to Washington to be a page at the Congress of the Daughters of the American Revolution, in which her mother, the former Miss Eliza Ring, who died several years ago, was an active member. She will return late in April to prepare for her wedding, scheduled for early summer.

M. L. Bartley Weds Elise Armstrong

THE Blessed Sacrament Chapel of the St. Louis Cathedral was decorated with Easter lilies and lighted by white tapers in gold candelabra for the wedding of Miss Kathryn Elise Armstrong, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Carroll Armstrong, 8014 South drive, Hampton park, and Malcolm Laurence Bartley, son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Bartley, 6633 Kingsbury boulevard, yesterday morning at 11:15 o'clock. The Rev. Sylvester Tucker officiated in the presence of the immediate families.

Mr. Armstrong gave his daughter in marriage. She wore a costume ensemble of navy blue wool crepe trimmed with gray caracul. Her hat was a spring model of dark blue straw trimmed with gray velvet flowers and a short blue veil. She wore a shoulder corsage of orchids. Mrs. Kendall Hopkins was the bride's only attendant and William H. Bartley was best man for his son.

Mr. Bartley and his bride left from the church for the honeymoon and on their return will live at 5623 Kingsbury boulevard. She is the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John C. Parker. She was graduated from Hosmer Hall, and while attending Washington University later was pledged to Pi Beta Phi. Mr. Bartley is a graduate of St. Louis University and the law school of Washington University.

Miss Painter Is Bride Of H. William Purcell

THE wedding of Miss Mary Jane Painter, daughter of Mrs. Hazel J. Painter and H. William Purcell of Cleveland, O., took place at 11 o'clock yesterday morning at the home of Miss Painter's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. George A. Peters, 7256 Pershing avenue, with whom she and her mother make their home. The marriage service was read by the Rev. Dr. William Lampe, pastor of the West Presbyterian Church in the presence of the immediate family.

The ceremony took place in the living room, which was decorated with clusters of spring flowers in delicate pastel shades. Mr. Peters gave his niece in marriage. She wore a tailored suit of brown shark skin fabric with a yellow chiffon blouse, a small brown straw hat and a shoulder corsage of orchids. Miss Sally Purcell, sister of the bridegroom, was the only attendant. She wore a gown of gray crepe and a corsage of gardenias. The ceremony was followed by a breakfast. The bridal table was adorned with white spring blossoms and was lighted by ivory tapers in silver candelabra.

After the wedding trip Mr. Pur-

Miss Johanna Niemeger of Holland Is Visiting Miss Martha Love

MISS JOHANNA NIEMEGER (or Niemeyer, with two dots over the "y") of Groningen, The Netherlands, is the guest of Miss Martha Love, 44 Westmoreland place. Miss Niemeger, who met Miss Love at Garmisch-Partinkirchen, Germany, last summer, landed in New York March 8, and as a visitor and sightseer has been touring the United States. Her father, Theodorus Niemeger, is a Hollander, but as her mother was Miss Helen Gieske of Baltimore, Md., she has many friends and relatives on this side of the Atlantic.

Before coming to St. Louis, she visited cousins in Baltimore and an aunt and uncle in Westfield, N. J. She was also entertained in New York by Mme. Olga Samaroff, and when she leaves St. Louis she will stay with friends in Boston. When she is at her home, she and her family often go to the island of Schiermonnikoog. They always spend the Pentecost holidays there, and go for their long summer vacation to the Bavarian Alps. Snow-capped peaks can be reached from Groningen in a day's trip, while in America a New Yorker must travel for 48 hours to see the Rocky Mountains.

Many of her friends have, as a courtesy, tried to find Dutch restaurants and German beer gardens, but the evenings she has spent in "atmospheric" places, reminiscent of home, are as nothing compared to lunches snatched at drug stores. In fact, Miss Niemeger likes best the moments spent over ice cream sodas.

Aside from soda fountain Dutch treats, Miss Niemeger has been entertained in St. Louis at several parties. Robert B. Smith gave a small dinner in her honor, and Miss Emily Lewis, Clayton road, entertained her at a luncheon. She was also the guest of Mme. Samaroff's mother, Mrs. Carlos Hickenlooper, 4545 Maryland avenue, at a tea. Next week-end a house party in the country is being planned for her and for Paul Nordoff, also a guest of Miss Love.

GLADYS McREE ENGAGED TO JOHN R. CAULK, JR.

Announcement Made at Buffet Supper at Home of Prospective Bride's Parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry McRee.

THE betrothal of Miss Gladys Amelia McRee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry McRee, and John Roberts Caulk Jr. was announced to about 40 of their young friends invited to the McRee home on the Warson road last evening for a buffet supper. The guests were told of the news informally soon after their arrival. The bridegroom-elect is the son of Dr. and Mrs. John R. Caulk of Jenifer Farms, Ballas road.

Miss McRee is the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William H. Scudder and of the late Mr. and Mrs. William G. McRee, both socially prominent families, and is a niece of Mrs. John H. Overall and Mrs. Maude Scudder di Rosa. Her mother was Miss Gladys Cupples Scudder. After attending Mary Institute, she became a student at Miss Porter's School in Farmington, Conn., for two years, and later traveled abroad chaperoned by Mrs. Atwell T. Lincoln. Miss McRee made her debut a year ago at a ball at the St. Louis Country Club, and is now completing her provisional membership requirements for the Junior League.

Mr. Caulk prepared at Country Day School for Princeton University, from which he was graduated with the class of 1935. As an undergraduate he became a member of Cloister Inn, and belongs to the St. Louis Country Club. He is a direct descendant of William Henry Harrison, former president of the United States, and is a great-nephew of Walter Jenifer, former Ambassador to Egypt. He is the grandson of Mrs. Henry Tucker Harrison of Baltimore County, Md., and the late Dr. Harrison. His mother was Miss Bessie Harrison.

The young women, who, with their escorts, were invited to the announcement party are Miss Jane Wells, Miss Jane Johnson, Miss Kate Davis Pulitzer, Miss Betty West, Miss Mary Elizabeth Bascom, Miss Peggy Wendling, Miss Blanche Fischel, Miss Judith Oliver, Miss Lois Burkham, Miss Blair Boyle, Miss Amelia Overall and Miss Maude Overall, cousins of Miss McRee; Miss Mary O'Fallon, another cousin; Miss Betty Caulk, sister of the prospective bridegroom; Miss Judith Gamble and Miss Martha Nicolaus.

MISS JOHANNA NIEMEYER of Groningen, The Netherlands, the guest of Miss Martha Love.

Gerard B. Lambert To Wed Easterner

ANNOUNCEMENT has been made of the engagement of Mrs. Lansing Mull of Canandigua, N. Y., and Gerard B. Lambert of New York and Princeton, N. J., formerly of St. Louis. Mrs. Mull is the daughter of Mrs. Henry Livingston Lansing and the late Mr. Lansing. She is a direct descendant of Gerrit Lansing, who came to this country from Holland in 1640, and of Robert Livingston, the first Lord of Livingston Manor. She is related to many prominent New York families, including the Schuylers and Van Rensselaers.

Mr. Lambert is the son of the late Jordan W. Lambert, founder of the Lambert Pharmacal Co., and a brother of Albert Bond Lambert, St. Louis; J. D. Wooster Lambert, New York, and Jordan W. Lambert, of Sea Island, Ga. In addition to his estate, Albemarle, in Princeton, he is the owner of Carter Hall, Millwood, N. J. Mr. Lambert, a famed yachtsman, is the owner of the Atlantic, the Vanitie and the Yankee. During the Royal Yacht Club races at Cowes, England, last summer, the Yankee won several of the races, and is spoken of as America's best challenger in the next cup race with England. In 1934 the Vanitie was defeated only in the last trials by the Rainbow. The Atlantic set a record in crossing the ocean in 1928, in the race to Spain.

EASTER EGG-HUNT PARTIES for the CHILDREN

St. Louis Celebrates the Day

By ALICE LINN BROKAW

EASTER! The children of St. Louis will celebrate the day in the traditional way. Preparations have long been under way. Easter egg hunts and tea parties have been planned, parents, a group of Junior Leaguers and storekeepers all have lent a hand to the Easter Rabbit in his arduous task of dyeing eggs for the youngsters.

From dawn to sunset today thousands of youngsters will romp through the woods and fields, peeking behind bushes and under foliage, in search of the bright-colored eggs which, with the Easter Rabbit, have from pagan times symbolized the new life of this season of the year. It is Easter. Spring is here.

The most elaborte egg hunt of
The most elaborate egg hunt of Mrs. Charles Eames for their 5-year-old daughter, Lucia, at their home on Geyer road. Mr. Eames and four of his friends, Mr. and Mrs. Wayman Whittemore and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Quest, have hand-painted enough eggs for 15 of Lucia's friends who will arrive at 4 o'clock.

The Eames residence is situated on a 40-acre tract, much of it wooded. The children will be conducted to the edge of a wood in which eggs have been hung from trees by ribbons and hidden in and under bushes; some even will be buried under ground with only a bit of ribbon for a clew to the hiding place. Most of the children will be accompanied by their parents. Later in the day Mr. and Mrs. Eames will entertain about 100 friends at a buffet supper.

The children invited to the party include John Strauch Meyer, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Meyer; Lewis Petring, son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Petring; Charles Brandon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brandon; Margot and Tassy Meyer, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Roderick Meyer; Christine and Buddy Meyer, children of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Meyer; Anne Ward, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Ward; Horace Scott, son of Dr. and Mrs. Wendell Scott; Joan Bliss, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Huntington Bliss; Edward Hager, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Hager; Carlton Dean Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Carlton Dean; Jerry and Bernal Chomeau, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Henri Chomeau; Bobby Walsh, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert P. Walsh; Jay Goldstein, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Walter Goldstein, and Bill Kershaw, son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Kershaw.

NANCY AND LUCY LEVIS, young daughters of Mr. and Mrs. T. Middleton Levis, 9 Wydown terrace, have invited their playmates, Kenneth and Nathaniel Green, to accompany them to Alton where their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Levis, is to hold their annual egg-hunt at their home on the Mississippi bluffs. A tea party always follows the hunt. The Green boys are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth L. Green Jr., 4 Wydown terrace.

Mrs. Harry B. Wallace, 4976 Pershing avenue, will collect her grandchildren and nieces and nephews and take them to her little country house for a hunt this afternoon. Among the guests will be the children of Mr. and Mrs. Chapin S. Newhard, Mr. and Mrs. John K. Wallace Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Ingram F. Boyd Jr.

Every Easter morning Mr. and Mrs. Francis Linton Gross of Litsinger road and their three children jump up from the breakfast table and start a search for the eggs that the rabbit has hidden all over the house, in the backyard and in the front yard.

Easter commenced yesterday afternoon for 3-year-old Tommy Pettus, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Pettus, when his grandmother, Mrs. Charlton Messick, 4537 Maryland avenue, held an egg hunt in the backyard for him and 10 of his playmates.

A GROUP of Junior Leaguers dyed eggs for sale for the benefit of the Junior League Shutins. They filled orders for 35 dozen Thursday afternoon. The group of workers—which included Mrs. Henry Hitchcock, Mrs. Robert Cochran, Mrs. William J. Dick, Mrs. Stephen King, Mrs. Robert Semple and Mrs. William Carter Sloan—gathered in the kitchen of Mrs. H. Torrey Foster's home, 32 Oakleigh lane. In smocks and kitchen aprons they officiated at the stove, the sink and the tables. As soon as one batch of eggs was cooked, another went into the boiling water. Three young women did nothing but dip and dye. Then the eggs were packed away for delivery. Two young women specialized on fancy eggs, decorating them with pictures of dogs, cats, flowers and even the familiar characters of the comic strips.

At about 4 o'clock in the afternoon there was a lull and the group adjourned to the living room for refreshments.

Miss Katherine McMahon took orders at the Junior League Open Door, 4934 Maryland avenue.

Annual Festival Revives The Ante-Bellum South

By W. E. REYBURN

NATCHEZ, Miss., April 11.

"WHERE the spirit of the Old South still lives"—thus the Garden Club of Natchez, Miss., characterizes its city, scene of "The Pilgrimage," or fifth annual festival, which took place from March 27 to April 5. Historic homes built before the Civil War were thrown open to the public. Pretty misses in hoop skirts were on hand to help recall the spirit of the South. Balls in ante-bellum mansions and Negro spirituals lent gaiety to the spring evenings.

The originator of "The Pilgrimage," Mrs. Balfour Miller, was given the Silver Trophy for civic achievement. She also guided a similar festival at Vicksburg. She hopes to unite Natchez, Vicksburg and Mobile, Ala., in an annual pilgrimage to the old South.

Gov. Hugh L. White of Mississippi and his lady, together with the Governor's staff, were here for the opening day of the festivities. They inspected some of the old mansions and were entertained for luncheon at Monteigne, the beautiful old estate of Col. and Mrs. William Kendall. The Governor and his party were guests of honor at the Confederate Military ball held that evening. At the ball tableaux depicted memorable scenes of old. One entitled "Ready for the Hunt" drew hearty applause. Display of the Stars and Bars of the Confederacy and the entry of men in gray uniforms evoked a rousing demonstration.

On a later evening, a candle light concert took place. Entertainments of this sort used to draw famous musicians, who traveled here on the luxurious Mississippi steamboats or by coach over the Old Natchez Trace.

NEGROES of Natchez, sponsored by the Garden Club, entertained the visitors with a collection of spirituals called "Heaven Bound." It was held in an old Negro church, one part of which was labeled, in golden letters, "Heaven," and another part "Hell." The Negroes came singing up the aisle in turn, and turned to the one gate or the other. In either case, a wicked-looking Satan had come out to tempt them. A host of Negro angels in "Heaven" sang the choruses. "Throw Out the Life Line" was sung, and a real line was tossed to the sinner.

A Ball of the Gypsies was held at Longwood. Surrounded by moss-grown woods, said to resound with eerie cries at night, Longwood is a huge octagonal building of five floors and a cupola.

The upper four floors and cupola are uncompleted, and the tools are left just as they were dropped when the workmen joined the colors in '61. There are 32 octagonal rooms. When construction was begun by Haller Nutt, the mansion was called "Nutt's Folly." Meritt Ward, grandson of Haller Nutt, now lives by himself on the lower floor.

A Ball of a Thousand Candles, a supper dance, was given at Elmscourt. Lighted candles above the doors and in chandeliers illumined the rooms. Ladies danced in crinolines. In one corner of the dining room is a pier table, a Chippendale, bearing on its edge a carved black snake, the family emblem of the Cavendish family, the family of the Dukes of Devonshire.

An old-fashioned barbecue was held at Auburn. Chickens were barbecued, and visitors feasted as of old. A musical and dancing program was presented beneath the old trees before the stately old mansion, illumined by brilliant floodlights. A bright moon smiled down on the old costumes and scenes of gaiety.

Within the mansion are bronze chandeliers, carved in the form of wild game, and a Duncan Phyfe table, seating 18. There is a rare hand-carved spiral staircase of mahogany. Celebrities, such as John Howard Payne, author of "Home, Sweet Home," were entertained here by the former owner, Dr. Stephen Duncan.

"The pleasure of your company is solicited at a ball to be given at the 'SOUTHERN EXCHANGE' on Wednesday, the 15th inst., in honor of our distinguished and veteran guest, GEN. ANDREW JACKSON."

Thus read an original invitation, dated 1840, of the ball given for Gen. Jackson. A re-enactment of this ball was held here with appropriate tableaux. "Beautiful Dreamer," a duet composed by Stephen Foster, was sung. The cotillion somewhat resembled the modern Paul Jones.

NATCHEZ has been under five flags, French, British, Spanish, United States and Confederate and then American again. It was founded in 1716 by Sieur Jean Baptiste le Moynede Bienville, who erected Fort Rosalie aux Natchez and planted a colony on the bluffs. In 1729, the colony was nearly wiped out by an Indian massacre. At the time of the English victory over the French in Canada, 1763, the English took over Natchez territory. During the American Revolution, in 1779, Spain snatched from the British the entire section of West Florida, including Natchez. In 1798, Natchez became a part of the United States. John James Audubon, the naturalist-painter, was dancing master to the older children of Mr. and Mrs. John Randolph at their plantation in Iberville Parish, La., a number of whose descendants live in Natchez. Mrs. Charles F. Sparks of St. Louis is the youngest daughter of the Randolphs.

MANY of the estates date to the Spanish period or earlier. The Spanish era was marked by low ceilings, hand-hewed beams, secured with pegs. Later noble mansions with tall columns were built by the cotton planters during the prosperous times just before the war between the states. All of the historic homes, except Magnolia Vale, are built above the bluffs in Natchez on the Hill. Natchez-under-the-Hill, the lowlands by the river, used to be a rendezvous for pirates. Just adjoining the lowlands north of the city is the Devil's Punch Bowl, where the bandits, Mason and Little Harp, Murrell and Hare used to lie in ambush. Mason was caught and executed, and his head was mounted on a pole in the upper part of town.

The residences, ennobled by tradition, abound in antiques. In nearly every old house was a punkah, or vertical fan, above the dining room table, formerly swung by a slave.

Hope Farm, the home of Mrs. Balfour Miller, is one of the oldest dwellings in Natchez. Parts of it date to 1775. Its antiques include an old harpsichord and four rare old hand-painted applewood chairs with rush seats.

Homewood is one of the estates of David Hunt. The richest Mississippian of his day, he once owned 28 plantations and 1700 slaves. Homewood has silver door knobs and hinges on four entrances, facing, respectively, the four points of the compass. On either side of the front door is rose-colored glass from Belgium.

D'Evereux, quite the finest example of Southern Colonial architecture in this vicinity, was the setting for the film, "The Heart of Maryland." The mistress of D'Evereux once buried her silver under the very spot over which a Union General later pitched his tent, and it was undiscovered.

The oldest home in Natchez is King's Tavern, which was originally a hostelry. The exact date of erection is unknown. On stormy nights, the spirits of travelers are supposed to knock at the door after their ghostly rides over the Natchez Trace.

Rosalie was built in 1820 by Peter B. Little for his ward, whom he had married at the age of 13. He received her there on her return from school. Antiques abound within, including huge mantel mirrors, Rose Du Barry china and rosewood chairs.

Rare old curios and antiques may be found in Clovernook. Among these things is a small drum, made of the hair of Gen. Andrew Jackson, which he gave to the present owner's grandmother, Mrs. Andrew Macreary, about 1840.

A fine example of Southern Colonial architecture is Dunleith. It is said to be haunted.

Arlington has lovely pink azaleas outside and a tiny summer house, known as a gazebo. Within is to be seen old hallmarked silver; also paintings by Vernet, Sully and Audubon.

In front of Windy Hill Manor in Madeline's Walk, where Aaron Burr courted the lovely Madeline Price . . . Stanton Hall is a replica of a home in Ireland. A carved crown on the head of a walnut bed in the home here stamps it as made for the nobility. During the Civil War, Union soldiers were quartered in Stanton Hall. Two of the Misses Stanton hid the silver under their bed. One mornnig they were found unconscious from chloroform, silver gone. . . . Clifton Heights was once the home of the Lintons, who gave a dinner and failed to invite the officer in charge of erecting the Union fort. Out of revenge, the officer planned the fort on the site of Clifton Heights and had the home demolished.

Across the Mississippi is the traditional site of the grave of Hernando De Soto. Directly across the river is Sandbar, an old dueling spot, where Jean Lafitte, the pirate, once sold his loot.

Magnolia Vale is noted for its gardens or camellia, japonica and boxwood hedges. In Melrose, there is a landscape by Audubon — a rarity, for he concentrated on animals. In the dining room is a beautifully carved mahogany punkah. Also found here is a white hand screen, common in the old days, to ward off the heat of the fireplace. On the wall is a portrait of John C. Calhoun by Rembrant Peale.

At Linden, the front doorway, true Colonial and painted white over a cross design, is very famous. Flanking it are reeded columns and a fanlight window above. The stairway within is hand-carved in hte same pattern. Shown at Linden also is an account book in the handwriting of George Washington.

Monmouth is supposed to be haunted. . . . Gloucester has heavy shutters and wooden bars to the doors, a former defense against Indians and bandits. Here are crystal chandeliers and Meister ware. . . . At The Elms may be seen the old slave bells which, according to their pitch, called the slaves to their respective chores.

Nearby stands the old Profilet home, visited by Audubon and by Napoleon Achille Murat, former Prince of the Two Sicilies and son of Joachim Murat, Napoleon's marshal.

Richmond contains a piano to the strains of which Jenny Lind sang while here in 1851. The gloomy Spanish lower floor of the house was supposed once to have been a rendezvous for pirates.

At Green Leaves live Mr. and Mrs. Melchior Beltzhoover. Mr. Beltzhoover visited St. Louis twice last year as a guest of Field Goltra. The home contains some rare blue-rimmed china, decorated by Audubon. In the rear of the house is a patio, containing a huge oak, beneath which the Natchez Indians once pow-wowed.

The Briers, built on the bluffs, commands a broad view of the Mississippi. Here Varina Howell was married, in 1845, to Jefferson Davis, future President of the Confederacy.

Ellicott's Hill was once a famous inn on the Natchez Trace. It was named after Col. Andrew Ellicott of Pennsylvania, who raised the American flag here in 1797 for the first time over this vicinity—in defiance of the Spanish Governor, Gayoso. The place has been purchased by the Natchez Garden Club and is being restored.

Democratic Women To Hear Eulogy of Thomas Jefferson

MRS. CARL PRYOR of Burlington, Ia., who will deliver a eulogy on Thomas Jefferson at the breakfast which the Democratic Women's Club of St. Louis will give Easter Monday at the Hotel Chase, will arrive in St. Louis tomorrow morning and will be a guest at Hotel Chase.

The breakfast will commemorate the birthday anniversary of Jefferson, the founder of the Democratic party.

Mrs. Thomas G. Ratcliffe will preside at the luncheon. Mrs. Thomas Francis is chairman of the committee of 34 women who are sponsoring the breakfast.

Mrs. Albert Bond Lambert, Mrs. Thomas L. Anderson, Mrs. Edward A. Faust, Mrs. John P. Higgins and Mrs. Francis will have charge of the decorations of the tables and the dining room. They will also be in charge of the seating arrangements.

A special menu featuring favorite dishes of Jefferson will be served at the breakfast including Jefferson's favorite dessert, "gooseberry fool" which will be made after a recipe which Mrs. E. M. Grossman obtained from an old cookbook of the Jefferson family. Mrs. Pryor is a member of the Iowa Library Commission. She is also associated with the adult educational program of the Iowa State University. Her political activities include the chairmanship of her county Democratic women's organization. She also represents the Democratic National Committee's educational program in the State of Iowa.

MISS MARY JANE HARRINGTON, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George L. Harrington, 147 Cornelia avenue, Glendale, entertained at a luncheon Wednesday for Miss Marianne Plank, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Plank, 1005 North Taylor avenue, whose marriage to Curtis B. Singleton Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis B. Singleton Sr., 708 Radcliffe avenue, University City, will take place next Thursday evening at the Plank home. Yesterday Mrs. Singleton, the prospective bridegroom's mother, gave a luncheon for Miss Plank at Algonquin Golf Club. The guests were Miss Martha Hogan, Miss Mary Jane Harrington, Miss Eleanor Wells, Miss Virginia Brown, Miss Ruth Sherrick, Miss Elizabeth Curry, Miss Margaret Parman, Mrs. Houston Betty, Mrs. R. A. Blauner, Mrs. R. C. Atherton, Mrs. John A. Walsh, Miss Jean Henderson, Mrs. Plank, Miss Enid Bayer and Mrs. Singleton's sister, Mrs. Opal E. Monroe.

Mr. and Mrs. John A. Walsh, 7912 Kingsbury boulevard, Clayton, gave a party for Miss Plank last night at their home. Mrs. Walsh was formerly Miss Lucy Ann Hogan of Kirkwood. Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Blauner of East Orange, N. J., formerly of St. Louis, arrived yesterday to attend the wedding, at which Mr. Blauner will be the only groomsman.

Mrs. Charles Williams of Kansas City visited Mr. and Mrs. Alfred N. Engle, 400 Miriam avenue, last week while attending the hockey games.

Miss Eleanor McCarthy, daughter of Mrs. Marshall McCarthy of Bodley avenue, will return to Miss Porter's School, Farmington, Conn., tomorrow after spending the Easter holidays with her mother.

Mrs. W. W. Ritzinger, 331 East Argonne drive, entertained at a dinner party at her home last night.

Mr. and Mrs. William A. Kraus, 721 North Taylor avenue, drove to Culver, Ind., this week-end with their daughter, Miss Beverly Jane Kraus, and Miss Ann Morgan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Morgan, 500 North Taylor avenue, to visit Mrs. Kraus' brother-in-law and sister, Col. and Mrs. W. R. Kennedy. The young women attended the Easter Hop at Culver Military Academy.

Mrs. Arthur S. Gilson Sr. of Portland, Me., arrived last week to visit her son and daughter-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. Arthur S. Gilson Jr., 639 East Jefferson avenue. On her way here she stopped in New York and Boston.

Try-outs for the Theater Guild's final major production of the season, "You and I" by Philip Barry, a comedy in three acts, will be held tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock on the second floor of the Adams Avenue School. The play, which has seven characters, will be directed by Miss Constance Abbott.

The nominating committee for next year's officers has recently been appointed. Howard Becker is chairman, and the members are Mrs. Helen Dierking, Mrs. Crombie Buckner, H. Edmund Mack and Clark Fiske. Miss Virginia Lord has been appointed chairman of publicity to succeed Mrs. John Jordan, who recently resigned.

Mrs. John W. Livingston, 306 North Woodlawn avenue, entertained at luncheon Wednesday.

Mrs. Harry L. Higgins will lead the discussion on "The History of China" at the first regular meeting April 21 of the group recently organized by Mrs. Hollis E. Suits to study the causes of war. The meeting will be held at Mrs. Suits' home, 321 North Harrison avenue.

Mrs. Lachlan MacLeay, 340 East Argonne drive, was hostess at a tea Friday in honor of her sister-in-law, Miss Elizabeth MacLeay of Olympia, Wash., who is making an extended visit with her and Mr. MacLeay. Yellow roses and white spring flowers were used on the tea table and throughout the house. Mrs. James R. Thursby, Mrs. W. W. Ritzinger, Mrs. Walter Hoch, Mrs. Eugene Lehman and Mrs. William H. Reinhardt assisted Mrs. MacLeay.

Mrs. David Lee Jones, 403 East Jefferson avenue, was elected president of the Junior Study Club at its meeting last week. Other officers are: Mrs. W. J. VanNice, vice-president; Mrs. H. Grant Barngrove, recording secretary; Miss Nancy Crosby, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Norman Gerrish, treasurer; Miss Elizabeth Jones, historian and Mrs. J. D. Parks, Junior Council Representative.

Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Martin of Ottawa, Ill., arrived yesterday to visit their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon F. Peterson, 211 Jewel avenue. Mr. Martin will remain only over the week-end, but Mrs. Martin will stay several days.

Miss Sue Hamilton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Hamilton, 646 Cleveland avenue, was married last evening at her home to Rex Stevens of St. Louis. The Rev. Hugh O. Isbell of Kirkwood Methodist Church performed the ceremony in the presence of a small group of relatives and friends. There were no attendants.

After a short honeymoon Mr. Stevens and his bride will live in St. Louis.

Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Tatman, 221 Way avenue, have as their guests over Sunday Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Tatman of Connersville, Ind.

Mr. and Mrs. I. B. Williams and family, 411 East Argonne drive, left Thursday for Indianapolis, Ind., to spend a few days with Mrs. Williams' parents, Dr. and Mrs. J. M. Lochhead.

FERGUSON

MR. AND MRS. F. W. ROEBBEL, 311 Tiffon avenue, have for guests their granddaughters, Mrs. Louis Cull and her daughters, Carol Jean and Leola Ann, and her grandson, Paul Belleville, all of Springfield, Mo. Mrs. Cull and her children will be here a week and then go to Cleveland, O., where they will make their home. Mr. Bellville will return to Springfield the first of the week.

John Fowler of Los Angeles, Cal., is the house guest of Joseph Thatcher of "Glen Owen," Chambers road.

Mrs. Victor Cullin, 123 South Clay avenue, will entertain the Sewing Guild of St. John's Methodist Church at luncheon Friday.

Miss Helen and Miss Annie Atwood, 425 Darst road, arrived home yesterday from Miami, Fla., where they spent the winter.

The Ferguson Garden Club will meet Wednesday evening, at 8 o'clock, at the Vogt High School. Officers will be elected and delegates selected to attend the spring meeting of the Associated Garden Clubs of Missouri at Maryville, April 29 and 30. Herman Schwartz will give a talk on "Wild Life."

Mrs. Samuel Lyle, 426 Tiffin avenue, entertained her luncheon bridge club Wednesday.

Mrs. A. C. Leggat, 420 Hereford avenue, entertained at luncheon Monday for her cousin, Mrs. James Brannon of Jerseyville, Ill. The guests were: Mrs. F. Baker de Camp, Mrs. Roy Johnson, Mrs. D. Wyman Currie, Mrs. H. V. Farr, and Mrs. Leggat's daughter, Mrs. H. C. Roeder of Webster Groves. Mrs. Brannon's sister, Miss Dorcas Robinson, formerly of Ferguson, is visiting her cousin, Mrs. Marian Strickland of Dallas, Tex.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Boyd Stephenson, 124 North Elizabeth avenue, will move to Oklahoma City, Ok., next month.

Mrs. Russell Clark and her children, Wade and Phyllis, of Columbia, Mo., are spending two weeks with her sister, Mrs. John E. Kriegler, 25 North Clark avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Thomas and their son, David, of Versailles, Ky., arrived Wednesday to spend Easter with his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Thomas, and his sister, Mrs. A. S. Hamilton, 101 Tiffin avenue.

PATRIOTIC SOCIETIES

A RECEPTION and dinner dance in honor of Lloyd C. Stark, Democratic candidate for Governor of Missouri, will be given Wednesday, April 22, at Norwood Hills Country Club. Dinner at 6:30 o'clock will be followed by the reception. Many State, city and county officials are expected to attend. Mrs. Karl Oliven is chairman of arrangements.

The Women's Patriotic Council of St. Louis held a meeting at the Hotel Statler March 28, at which officers were installed. The officers are: Mrs. Anna McVey, president; Mrs. Mary Blair, first vice-president; Mrs. Anna Steiner, second vice-president; Mrs. Blanche Lot, third vice-president; Mrs. Winifred Garside, fourth vice-president; Mrs. Marie Schroll, fifth vice-president; Mrs. Bertha Batz, recording secretary; Miss Julia Hoelsher, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Helen Sherman, treasurer; Mrs. Bernice Nicholson, chaplain; Mrs. Ruth McCourt, patriotic instructor; Mrs. Adeline Hinchey, chairman of music, and Mrs. Florence Letherwood, press correspondent.

"A Patriotic Breakfast" will be a feature of the annual Americanism program of the St. Louis Chapter, American War Mothers, to be given tomorrow at 10:30 a. m., at the Melbourne Hotel.

Tribute will be paid to George Washington, Abraham Lincoln and Thomas Jefferson, in addresses by the Rev. F. G. Wieberg of Hillsboro, Jesse W. Barrett and Chilton Atkinson.

The committee on arrangements: Mrs. R. J. Leacock, chairman; Mrs. E. R. Sterbenz, Americanism chairman, and Mrs. Anne Steiner, chapter president.

Costumes and customs of the Colonial Period will be described by Mrs. Joseph H. Fugate to the members of the St. Louis Chapter, Daughters of the American Colonists at Jefferson Memorial Thursday at 2 p. m. Two groups of songs will be given by Mr. Frederick W. Schneider, with Miss Betty Binkard at the piano.

Hostesses for the party will be Miss Dorothy E. Seay and Miss Clara L. Tufts, and Mrs. F. H. Pough, Mrs. Marshall Rust, Mrs. Lon Sanders, Mrs. Frank L. Scott, Mrs. P. A. Shaffer, Mrs. H. W. Stallworth, Mrs. G. F. Stapleton and Mrs. Samuel M. Tipton. Mrs. Charles H. Seay will preside. Mrs. Warren Bruce will be music chairman.

The St. Louis League of Business and Professional Women will meet for dinner tomorrow at 6 p. m., instead of Thursday. The meeting will be in charge of Miss Ann Wemhoener, chairman of the transportation committee.

The Auxiliary of Quentin Roosevelt Post No. 1, American Legion, will have its annual card party Thursday evening at the Columbus Club, 3917 Lindell boulevard.

Post members have been invited to join in the party immediately after a short business session.

Legionnaires, members and their friends may attend.

The annual benefit bridge of the Missouri Women's Memorial American Legion Post, No. 108, will be held Wednesday at 8 p. m. at the Elks Club, 3619 Lindell boulevard, under the supervision of the chairman, Dr. Esther Coffman.

Amaranth Lodge will hold its semi-monthly meeting at 1 p. m. Friday in the auditorium of the Pevely Dairy Co. at 1101 South Grand avenue. Following the meeting a card party will be held to raise funds used in charitable work. Mrs. Margaret LeGear is presiding officer.

The April meeting of Camp St. Louis No. 731, United Confederate Veterans, will be held this afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Jefferson Memorial Hall.

Miss Beverly Bubb, accompanied by Miss Mary Robinson, will play two cello solos. The Rev. John M. Claypool will speak on "The Good Shepherd."

The Jackson Johnson Jr. unit, No. 72, American Legion Auxiliary, will hold initiation tomorrow at 8 p. m. Mrs. E. R. Sterbenz is president of the unit and Mrs. Clark Hudson is chairman of the program. The initiation will be conducted by the 8 et 40 team, with Mrs. I. N. Kessler as director.

The guests will include District Committeewoman Mrs. Tom Coleman, and Mrs. Adolph Kleinecke; the District Membership Committee, Mrs. Earl Broeg, Mrs. A. Bierman and Mrs. Tony Meglitsch, and Mrs. A. L. Bardgett, publicity director.

RARE OLD ORIENTAL . . . RUGS

Through unusual circumstances we were able to buy these Rugs to sell at such wonderful price advantages! They were in the stock of an old firm in New York, considered a leader in importing rarest and finest Oriental Rugs. A few family partners of this firm wished to sever connections, necessitating the immediate liquidation of the entire stock! This collection presents an exceptional opportunity to the lover of fine and rare Oriental Rugs . . . in it you will find many from 100 to 250 years old, mellowed through time and use . . . the kind of Rugs for which collectors and museums have paid large sums.

Miss Marion Thompson and Givon Parsons are in charge of the program. After the service the entire assembly will have breakfast in the church parlors, 733 North Union boulevard. There will be no meeting of the regular Sunday Evening Tea-Forum.

The Wydown Women's Guild of the First Congregational Church will sponsor the showing Tuesday and Wednesday nights of "The Informer," starring Victor McLaglen, and "Navy Wife," featuring Ralph Bellamy, at the Richmond Theater, Big Bend and Clayton roads. Mrs. Jesse T. Friday, president of the guild, is in charge of tickets. Half the proceeds will go to the guild for its charity and church work.

The Missionary Society of Cabanne Methodist Episcopal Church, South, will meet at the church Wednesday, luncheon to be served by the members of the Sunshine Circle at 12:15 p. m. Mrs. Edmund Piccard will conduct the program at 1:30 p. m. in which Mrs. A. H. Green and Mrs. H. C. Turner will take part.

Thursday, Mrs. R. R. Bywater will be hostess to the Missionary Society at luncheon at 1 p. m. at her home, 5751 Bartmer avenue. She will be assisted by Mrs. B. C. Perry, Mrs. J. V. Inman and Mrs. H. C. Turner. A kitchen shower for the Missionary Society will be held in the afternoon.

The annual Spring luncheon and bazaar of the University Methodist Missionary Society will be held Tuesday, April 21, at the church, Trinity and Washington avenues. Mrs. G. H. Harrah is general chairman and will be assisted by Mrs. Arthur G. Dibble.

A dramatized sermon in eight scenes will be given by the young people of Kingdom House, 1102 Morrison avenue, at the Easter night service. Those who will take part are Charles Dunn, Lenore Bertram, Ray Hughes, Doris Grampp, Geneva Melton, Dolores Morgan, David Cissel and Eldon Underwood. Mrs. J. F. Chilton will furnish the music.

Mothers of the Boy Scout troupe of the Episcopal Church of the Holy Apostles, Union and Maple avenues, will have a bridge party tomorrow afternoon, at 2 o'clock, in the bridge room of Stix, Baer & Fuller, the proceeds to go to the troupe.

The annual tea of the Junior Auxiliary of the German General Protestant Orphans' Home will be held next Saturday from 3 to 7 p. m. at the Home, 4447 Natural Bridge avenue. Exhibits from foreign countries and a collection of quilts will be on display. Miss Oma Koch, 4515 Maryland avenue, is general chairman of arrangements and will be assisted by the following: Miss Martha Kamp, Miss Elfreda Koch, Miss Matilda K. Kallmeyer, Miss Caroline Boechenstein, Miss Margaret Junior, Miss Alma Loeb, Miss Arline Kuhn, Miss Marie Hetlage, Miss Edna Koch, Miss Della Wright and Miss Mamie Wodraska.

The Lutheran Deaconess Association will meet Tuesday, at 8 p. m., at St. Stephen's Lutheran Parish Hall. A social hour will follow the business meeting.

The Annual Meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society of the St. Louis Conference, Methodist Episcopal Church, South, will be held in the New McKendree Methodist Church at Jackson, Mo., April 28 to May 1. The old McKendree Chapel is three miles east of Jackson and is the oldest Protestant Church still standing west of the Mississippi. Erected about 1810, it is in good condition and will be used for one service during the conference.

The Rev. J. C. Montgomery is pastor of the New McKendree Church and will have part in the program. Dr. Ivan Lee Holt, pastor of St. John's M. E. Church, St. Louis, who preached the annual sermon 25 years ago will preach the sermon again this year, and Bishop John N. Moore will speak. The guest speaker will be Mrs. J. W. Mills of Beaumont, Tex., vice-president of the Woman's Missionary Council. Mrs. A. R. Walker of St. Louis, president of the society, will preside at all meetings. A pageant, "That We Might Be One," will be presented by the women of Jackson, and Miss Mary Blackford, a missionary to China who is home on furlough, will take part in one of the programs.

Officers from St. Louis who will attend the Conference are: Mrs. E. B. Warson, Mrs. E. A. Kitchell, Mrs. H. F. Clinger, Mrs. Carl Burris, Mrs. A. H. Duwe and Mrs. F. E. Williams.

The Missionary Society at Jackson, composed of 125 members, with Mrs. D. I. L. Seabaugh as president, are planning to entertain the delegates. A Silver Anniversary Banquet will be held the first evening.

The David Livingstone Guild of West Presbyterian Church, Maple and Maryville avenues, will meet tomorrow, at 10:30 a. m., to sew. Luncheon will be served at 12:30 p. m. Mrs. Gordon W. Corn is in charge of the program which includes a review of the first half of the book, "The Jew and the World Ferment,' by Basil Matthews.

Panhellenic

INTERNATIONAL Reunion day will be celebrated Saturday by the five Canadian and the American chapters of Alpha Gamma Delta. Epsilon Alpha chapter at Missouri University will be hostess to all alumnae living in this state and has planned an all-day program of business and social meetings. There will be a luncheon at the sorority house followed by a round-table discussion. The alumnae business meeting is scheduled for 3 o'clock. After this, there will be initiation services and a formal dinner at the Daniel Boone Tavern. Mrs. J. Guy McQuitty Jr., a former St. Louisan now living in Columbia, is state chairman for the reunion. Mrs. Lawrence R. Glass, president of the St. Louis alumnae chapter, is in charge of the luncheon program. The speakers will be Miss Helen Mae Clarahan, Miss Gertrude Bishop and Miss Isabelle Pitts. Mrs. McQuitty has arranged the dinner program which includes addresses by Miss Sarah Dritt, dean of girls at Clayton High School; Miss Clara Louise Hanser and Miss Irene Kobs, president of the student chapter. The reunion is an annual event and part of a national program for the organization of all alumnae.

The anniversary of the founding of Alpha Xi Delta at Lombard College, Galesburg, Ill., will be celebrated by the student and alumnae members of the sorority at a banquet at the Forest Park Hotel Friday evening. Mrs. Charles Schraudenbach and Miss Alice Keller, president of the Washington University chapter, are in charge of arrangements. The monthly business meeting of the alumnae chapter will be held in the Women's Building tomorrow at 7:30 p. m.

The Gamma Phi Beta alumnae will meet tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock in the sorority rooms in the Women's Building of Washington University. Miss Jane Doty, instructor in art at the Community School, will speak on "Finger Painting." Arrangements for the benefit bridge to be given Saturday afternoon, April 25, in Vandervoort's tearoom will be discussed by Miss Doty, who is chairman. The money will be sent to the Gamma Phi Beta International Camp Fund for the upkeep of three camps maintained by the sorority in the United States and Canada which entertain underprivileged girls each summer. The members of the committee in charge of ticket sales are: Miss Christine Chapin, Miss Marian Wind, Miss Sylvia Kleinschmidt, Miss Katherine Stephens, Miss Edith Kleykamp, Miss Rose Marie Holekamp, Miss Clara Tarling, Miss Marguerite Van Booven, Mrs. Chester Kotsrean, Mrs. Louis Kraft, Mrs. Arthur Winklemeyer and Mrs. H. V. Howes.

Mrs. Vincent M. Carroll, 7245 Maryland avenue, will entertain the Pi Beta Phi alumnae chapter at her home Tuesday at 4 p. m. Officers will be elected. After the business meeting, Mrs. Dorothy Godwin will give a book review. Supper will be served by the following committee: Mrs. Frank C. Ball, Mrs. William R. Gentry Jr., Miss Annie Meroe Burnet, Mrs. Claude M. Gray, Mrs. Albert E. Happel, Mrs. F. G. Hoffmeister, Mrs. Webb Kammerer, Mrs. Winona W. Nohl, Miss Emilie Dean Pope and Miss Virginia Withington.

The province secretary of Delta Gamma, Mrs. J. E. Kollmann of Kansas City, will be the guest of the Delta Gamma alumnae at a supper meeting tomorrow evening in the sorority rooms in the Women's Building. There will be installation of alumnae officers and election of a convention delegate.

There will be a reecption for alumnae members of Zeta Tau Alpha and their husbands, student members and parents Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock in the lounge of the Women's Building. Miss Evelyn Moehle is chairman of the Arrangements Committee.

The spring Eleusinian festival of Chi Omega will be celebrated by the alumnae chapter Tuesday evening. It will be a dinner meeting at the home of Mrs. Wendell Griffith, 578 North Laclede road, Webster Groves. The assisting hostesses will be Mrs. Chandler F. Rinehart, Mrs. W. R. Tuley and Mrs. John P. Nafe. Mrs. Ralph Wilson is program chairman.

Delta Zeta alumnae will meet for luncheon Saturday at Ye Old-Fashioned Tea Shoppe, 3750 Lindell boulevard, at 1:30 p. m. Miss Vivian Teeter will be hostess.

Alpha Chi Omega will give a musicale Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock in the sorority rooms in the Women's Building. The sorority's Choral Club will sing and the student members will present the songs they sang in the university singing contest. Mrs. J. W. Enloe, chairman for the evening, will be assisted by Mrs. William Heede and Miss Marjorie Broesel.

The alumnae of Phi Omega Pi sorority will meet Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Wade C. Smith, 7344 Arlington drive, Richmond Heights. There will be election of officers.

Beta Sigma Omicron has elected the following officers: Mrs. Gerard Kevil, president; Mrs. Carleton B. Fox, vice-president; Mrs. Charles L. Stone, secretary; Mrs. Brandon Hope, treasurer, and Miss Page Wright, warden.

"I like these bargain long distance rates"!

"No bus man's holiday for me. After teaching writing all day, a 'school marm' has had enough. That's why I like these 'bargain' rates on long distance calls made at night or anytime on Sunday. Instead of spending Sunday afternoon writing to the folks back home, I get on the telephone. It's almost as good as really going home."

Save After 7 . . . and Sundays

It used to be the only "bargain" rates were on station-to-station calls after 7 at night.

NOW—after 7 o'clock every evening, both person-to-person* and station-to-station calls cost less. And these reduced rates are in effect all day Sunday, too.

The reductions apply to all calls to points over 100 miles distant, and to many shorter calls.

Just ask Long Distance for the new rate to any point.

*PERSON-TO-PERSON—You will talk only with a particular person.
STATION-TO-STATION—You are willing to talk with anyone who answers or can be called to the distant telephone.

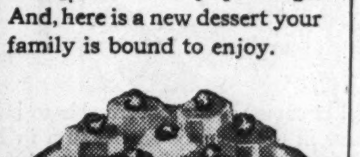
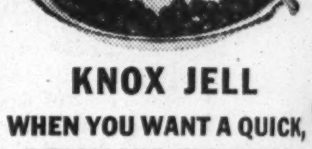
KNOX SPARKLING GELATINE
WHEN YOU WANT TO MAKE SALADS, PIES, CANDIES AND SPECIAL DESSERTS

How many, many ways you have already used this famous, plain Sparkling Gelatine—and still you know there are scores of other delicious dishes to be made with it which you have not even tried yet. This pure plain gelatine combines with all foods—it makes pies and Bavarian creams as light and fluffy as you could ever dream—provides a variety of fruit and vegetable salads that never become tiresome. Each package of Knox Gelatine contains enough to make 4 different dishes, 6 servings each. Recipes in every package. And, here is a new dessert your family is bound to enjoy.



ORANGE TRIFLE
(6 Servings—uses only 1/4 package)
1 envelope Knox Sparkling Gelatine
1/4 cup cold water 3/4 cup hot water
1/2 cup sugar 1/4 teaspoonful salt
1/2 cup orange juice
grated rind of 1/2 orange
1 tablespoonful lemon juice
1/2 cup cream, whipped or evaporated milk, whipped

Pour cold water in bowl and sprinkle gelatine on top of water. Add sugar, salt and hot water and stir until dissolved. Add orange juice, grated orange rind and lemon juice and mix thoroughly. Pour one-half mixture into large mold, or individual molds that have been rinsed in cold water and chill. Cool remaining orange jelly and when it begins to congeal fold in whipped cream. When orange jelly is practically congealed pour cream mixture on top of it and chill. To serve, unmold on large platter and garnish with whipped cream and cherries.



KNOX JELL
WHEN YOU WANT A QUICK, DELICIOUS FLAVORED GELATINE DESSERT

Once you have tried Knox Jell for yourself you will be in a position to speak the real truth. Knox Jell is most delicious—most delicate—most tender—most full of delicious fruit fragrance and flavor. And because it's the only brand that contains the pure Knox Sparkling Gelatine you will not hesitate to serve it to your family when a delicious quick dessert is called for.

You will find it quick to set, that it comes out of the dish firm but never tough, brilliant in color and delicate in texture. Vegetable parchment wrapping keeps its wholesome fruity flavor intact and prevents its ever getting lumpy or hard in the package. Try it for dessert tonight! Six rich flavors from which to choose.

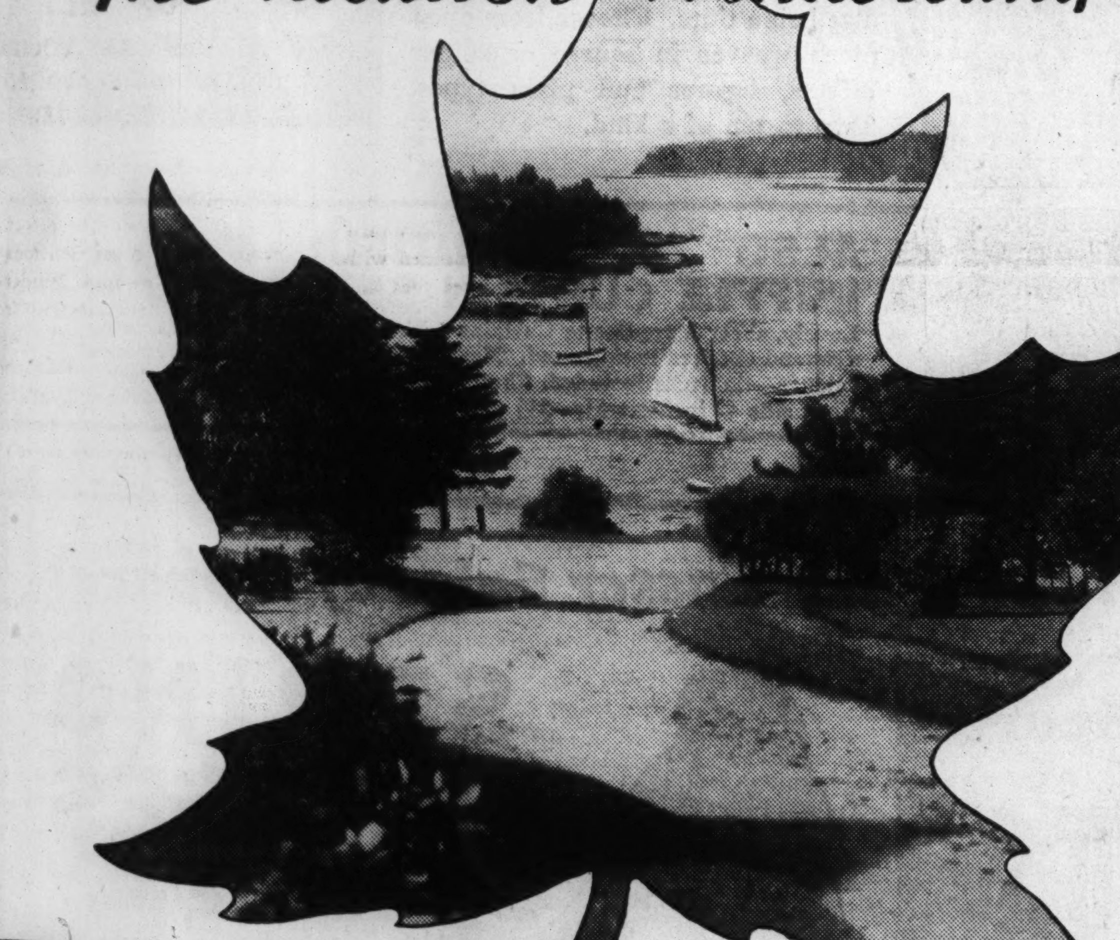
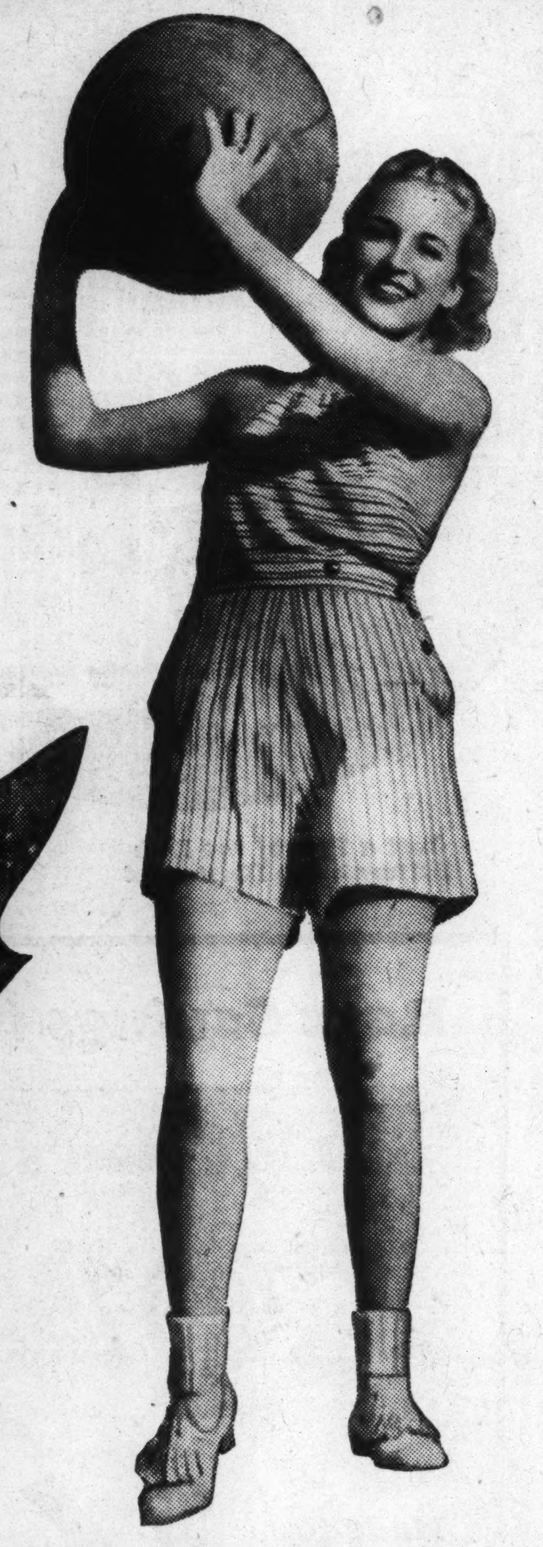
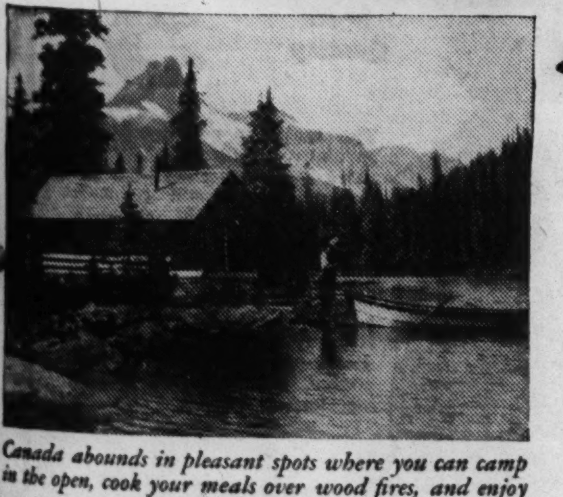
Travel and Resorts

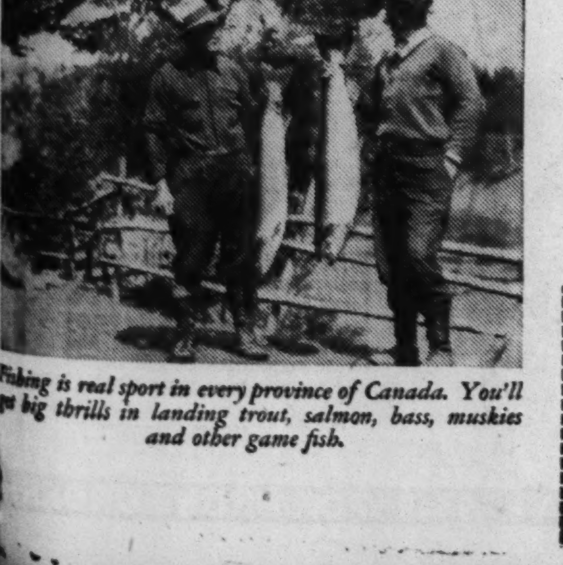
Come to CANADA
The Vacation Wonderland







Canada abounds in pleasant spots where you can camp in the open, cook your meals over wood fires, and enjoy real outdoor life.



Fishing is real sport in every province of Canada. You'll get big thrills in landing trout, salmon, bass, muskies and other game fish.

IN CANADA'S glorious natural playground you will find the perfect setting for your vacation. Here are beautiful lakes and streams, bordered by pine-scented forests . . . mountains rising majestically from sea-bound shores . . . great inland waterways that invite you to cruise . . . and historical towns and cities that extend to you a friendly welcome.

So plan now to be a "Guest of Canada" this year. You can be here in a few hours by motor, train or boat—free from any red tape at the border—and you will enjoy the experience of feeling "at home" abroad.

If you fancy the care-free vagabond life you can travel in Canada along smooth scenic highways, camp in picturesque spots and live in the outdoors. You can enter a sportsman's paradise where game fish will give you thrilling battles—where moose, deer, grizzlies and mountain sheep are prize trophies of your skill in marksmanship and stalking.

Or, if you choose the gay life of modern summer resorts, Canada offers you a wide choice of comfortable accommodations with distinctive Canadian cooking. You can indulge in swimming, boating, riding, golfing and every other diversion that goes to make up a happy holiday.

Last year, more than 12,000,000 Americans visited Canada. Thousands of them have written to tell us how much they enjoyed our Vacation Wonderland and the courtesy which was shown them by the Canadian people.

We will be glad to help you plan your vacation. Just fill out and mail the coupon below for free maps and illustrated literature which you will find decidedly helpful.

SCOTLAND
in Springtime!

It's the bluebells on the hillside—the daisies in the fields—the smell of lilacs in the air—and romance all around you, that make a visit to Scotland in the springtime the ideal holiday. Go the Scotch Way—by Anchor Line—to see this country of Robert Burns, Walter Scott, Bonnie Prince Charlie, and the tragic Mary Stuart. Send now for the booklet, "Travel the Scotch Way." Minimum one-way fares—Cabin Class $142; Tourist $110; Third $82. Reduction for round trip bookings.

TEXAS
CENTENNIAL CELEBRATIONS

$25,000,000 CENTENNIAL EXPOSITION
DALLAS, JUNE 6

Big things are being planned for you in Texas! A gigantic World's Fair that promises to surpass in beauty and interest any exposition ever held! Its more than 50 magnificent buildings—mostly permanent structures and the majority air cooled—will house America's greatest exhibits of Art, Industry, Agriculture, Science and History! On the big Midway are being assembled the cream of the world's finest amusements! It's truly a show that no American can well afford to miss!

FRONTIER CENTENNIAL
FORT WORTH, JULY 1

The Old West of the past century, reproduced in all its color and glamour. Featured are America's best known theatrical, radio, circus and rodeo stars. See it all, then travel to other parts of Texas for equally interesting celebrations.

MORE THAN 150
STATEWIDE CELEBRATIONS

Texans are celebrating! Pageants, fiestas, rodeos, reunions are being held in every part of the state. See picturesque San Antonio and her centuries-old missions, the old Spanish Governor's Palace, quaint Mexican quarters and other sights. Visit Houston and nearby San Jacinto State Park, Galveston and other resort cities along the Gulf. Travel west to El Paso through mountainous West Texas or North to Amarillo and the Plains country. See all of Texas that your vacation time will permit. You'll find a friendly, "Big Texas" welcome wherever you go

SCHOOL and COLLEGE LIFE

THE trustees of St. Louis Country Day School have announced the appointment as instructor for the year 1936-37, E. Lemoine Skinner Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Lemoine Skinner of Webster Groves. Mr. Skinner will take charge of the course in public speaking and will assist in languages. He was graduated from the school in 1932, was president of his class and received the Headmaster's Cup for all-around proficiency. He was also a member of the Cum Laude Society. He will be graduated from Princeton this June. He is a member of Phi Beta Kappa and has been secretary of the Theater Intime.

R. H. B. Thompson, headmaster of the Country Day School, will go to New York early this week to attend the spring meeting of the college entrance examination board as a delegate from the Private Schools' Association of the Central States.

Webster College, following the tradition of the years since the opening of the school 20 years ago, will again this spring present a Shakespearean play. The Loretto Players under the direction of Mrs. Anna McClain Sankey, in charge of dramatics at Webster, will appear in four performances of "Romeo and Juliet," Friday, Monday and Tuesday evenings, April 24, 27 and 28, at 8:15 o'clock, and Saturday afternoon, April 25, at 2:30 o'clock.

To give more opportunity to play in leading roles, a double cast will be used, one playing Friday and Monday evenings, the other Saturday afternoon and Tuesday evening.

Miss Virginia Carroll and Miss Marge Casey will double in the role of Romeo; Miss Doris Bick and Miss Mary Lou Kinkel, as Juliet; Miss Rosemary Noland and Miss Elizabeth Roehling, as Lady Capulet; Miss Lucy Graves and Miss Ann Ryan, as Mercutio, and Miss Peggy Chamberlain and Miss Virginia McCormick will alternate as Tybalt and the Nurse.

Other members of the cast are Miss Rosemary Boehm, Miss Peggy Gamp, Miss Victoria Mortland, Miss Lenore O'Connor, Miss Bernadotte Perez, Miss Jean Pickel, Miss Jane Rother, Miss Ruth Savage and Miss Louise Schmucker.

Music at the performances will be by the Webster College orchestra.

The Alumni Players of Washington University will meet Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock in the Women's Building on the university campus with all persons interested in participating in the final play of the season, which will be held late in the spring, according to an announcement by Miss Margaret Fitzsimmons, president of the group.

The players have planned a heavy spring schedule, including a trip to Columbia, Mo., Saturday to take part in the drama festival at the University of Missouri, and another trip late in April to Cape Girardeau, Mo., to appear before the State Teachers' College. Earlier this month they presented a play before the Washington Alumnae Club and on April 8 the Delphian Presidents' Council. All productions have been under the direction of Mrs. Ruth Kelso Renfrow.

Directing French Play

MRS. HARCOURT BROWN, 7317 Pershing boulevard, who is directing the production of "La Bataille de Dames," a French play, which will be presented by Washington University students, Wednesday, April 15, on the university campus.

Phi Sigma Iota, romance language honorary society at Washington University, will sponsor the first public performance of a French play on the campus when "La Bataille de Dames" is presented Wednesday night in January courtroom.

"La Bataille de Dames," a three-act play by Eugene Scribe and Ernest Legouve, concerns the period shortly after the exile of Napoleon.

A string trio directed by Dr. Louis K. Guggenheim, will play the overture and also play between the acts. Music by Hayden will be played. Genuine French furniture of the period will be used in the setting of the play.

A reception for those who assisted in the production will be given after the performance in Mrs. Starbird's apartment in McMillan Hall.

The complete cast follows: Charles, or Henri de Flavigneul, Edgar Beascoechea; Leonie de la Villegontier, Miss Winona Gunn; La Comtesse d'Autreval, Miss Thelma Richardson; Gustave de Grignon, William Jay Smith; Le Baron de Montrichard, prefect de police, Roger B. Oake; Un Domestique, Clark Mills McBurney, and Un Sous-officer de Dragons, Henry Miller.

The annual scholarship party of the St. Louis University School of Commerce and Finance will this year be held on May 2, in the afternoon and evening. The festivities will be conducted in the lounge of the commerce building, with preparations being made for the reception of 800 guests there.

Three seniors at St. Louis University have been appointed to Alpha Sigma Nu, Jesuit honor fraternity, by the Very Rev. Robert S. Johnston, S. J., president of the university, it was announced yesterday by the Rev. Louis W. Forrey, S. J., faculty adviser of the fraternity. They are Donald A. Gallagher of the College of Arts and Sciences, William P. Nolan of the School of Law and David J. Dugan, senior in the School of Medicine.

The president annually appoints three seniors from the university to this fraternity as a reward for high scholastic standing and for their service and loyalty to the university. His appointments usually follow the nominees of the deans, who last week named two each from their respective schools.

The St. Louis University Playhouse Club, through its director, Milton McGovern, has announced the cast for its forthcoming production of "Romeo and Juliet," which will be given in the university auditorium, 3642 Lindell boulevard, the nights of May 4, 5 and 6.

The cast is as follows: Prologue. Miss Marjorie Philpot; Prince of Aragon, Gregory M. Rebman; Paris, his kinsman, Edmund Stoltz; Lord Montague, Vincent Hatch; Lord Capulet, Gerald Koetting; Romeo Montague, Garvey Bridgeman; Juliet Capulet, Miss Mary Catherine McGrath; Mercutio, John Evans; Benvolio, James Stewart; Tybault, Jack Oates; Friar Lawrence, Milton McGovern; Balthazar, Eugene Kenefick; Peter, Paul Harris; An Apothecary, Raymond E. Law; Samson, Leonard Schlater; Gregory, Jules Brady; Lady Montague, Miss Jane Ratz; Lady Capulet, Miss Rose Lee Rhedemeyer; Nurse to Juliet, Miss Catherine Jett McCauley; Dancers at Juliet's Debut Ball, Miss Margery Hammer, Miss Rosemary Hart Case, Miss Susanne Lemen, Miss Inez Woodward, Miss Lois Lemen, Miss Mary Lou Moore, Miss Marian Gelzer, Miss Adele Daut, Carol Comer, Robert Ryan, Raymond E. Law, William Corley, Nester McCarthy.

The scenes of the play are laid in Verona, Italy, with the exception of one brief scene in Mantua.

The Dramatic Club of Hosmer Hall will meet Wednesday, April 15, at 10:30 a. m., with Miss Betty Ziock, club president, in charge. Two one-act plays, "The Noble Lord," by Percival Wilde, and "'Op o' Me Thumb," by Frederick Fenn and Richard Price, will be presented under the direction of Miss Peggy Lou Baker and Miss Nancy Gayler, members of the senior class. The two casts are comprised of the following club members: Miss Maryhope Chaney, Miss Isabel Kieffer and Miss Peggy Lou Baker, Miss Mary Ann Hecker, Miss Suzanne Mason, Miss Virginia Pease, Miss Marie Soell, Miss Nancy Streiff, Miss Laurian Taylor. Mrs. Ruth Kelso Renfrow is club sponsor.

The Hosmer Hall Parent and Teacher Association will meet Tuesday at 3 p. m., at the school, 6584 Wydown boulevard, for the election of officers for 1936-37. At 3:30 o'clock Miss Mary Hamilton, dean of girls of University City High School, will speak on the subject, "Some Unusual Angles of a Visit Abroad." Mrs. W. C. Gayler, president of the organization, will introduce Miss Hamilton.

Elks' Jefferson Day Banquet.

Bruce A. Campbell, chairman of the Illinois Democratic State Committee, will be the principal speaker at the annual Jefferson day banquet tomorrow evening at 6:30 o'clock at the Elks' Club. The banquet will commemorate the 193d anniversary of the birth of Thomas Jefferson.

Advertising Club's Scholarship Awards

SCHOLARSHIPS offered by the Women's Advertising Club in the "Careers in Advertising" course sponsored by the club will be awarded at the scholarship dinner to be held at the Sayman Town Club Tuesday evening.

The first scholarship, given by Washington University, will be presented by Frank M. Debatin, dean of the University College, who will be the guest speaker of the evening. The second award, known as the Women's Advertising Club Scholarship, will be presented to the student ranking second, names of the winners being withheld until the announcement at the dinner.

Certificates signed by the club's president, Miss Opal Sweazea, and Miss Helen Hurd, activities chairman, under whose direction the course was presented, will be given to the 90 students completing the course.

The regular weekly meeting of the club will be held at noon tomorrow at the Town Club, when members will hear Mrs. Helen Zagat, decorative consultant. At the same meeting, which will be limited to members, the revised bylaws of the organzation will be approved.

WASHINGTON SCENE

By the POE SISTERS

WASHINGTON, April 11.

IF HENRIK DE LEEUW, explorer and author who has been making research into the Roosevelt family history in the Holland district of Zeeland, in the Dutch kingdom, is entertained at a meal at the White House and fortunate enough to be served from the new china there, he will notice at once the small motif of roses on each piece.

De Leeuw arrived in the United States last week with Mrs. de Leeuw.

When Mrs. Roosevelt selected the new china, she approved the suggestion of the makers that the tiny rose motif was appropriate, dating the china as of the second Roosevelt administration. The name, of course, means "a field of roses."

According to de Leeuw, the Roosevelts and Van Roosevelts were leading families in Zeeland and he says he has traced evidences of the family's influence as far back as the early seventeenth century. He made a photograph of a panel in the Oud-Vossemeer City Hall showing the coat of arms hanging there since 1634. In one scene the crest of a certain Huize Roosevelt, one of the President's ancestors, is shown.

THE "D. A. R. lings," as the late Jules Jusserand, Ambassador of France called them, are coming to town next week. Headed by their president general, Mrs. William A. Becker of New Jersey, at least 5000 delegates, alternates, visiting members of the Daughters of the American Revolution are expected. Washington is the birthplace of the organization and the seat of its national headquarters.

A feature of the opening of the convention in Constitution Hall, will be a parade through the main aisle of 200 girl pages, drawn from every part of the Union, the first 48 bearing the emblem of the commonwealths they represent.

It will be the first Congress presided over by the new president general, Mrs. Becker.

THERE are five women members of the Daughters of the American Revolution, whose fathers actually served in the American Revolution. The oldest of them is 97 years old and the youngest 87. They are: Mrs. Angelina Loring Avery, Willimantic, Conn.; Mrs. Annie Knight Gregory, Williamsport, Pa.; Mrs. Caroline P. Randall, Springfield, Vt.; Mrs. Mary Pool Newsome, and Miss Sara Pool of Gibson, Ga.

Each month a check goes from the D. A. R. treasurer general's office in Washington to each of these women.

WASHINGTON, April 11.

IT'S cherry blossom time in Washington and the pink blooms around the tidal basin are attracting many visitors.

Tomorrow, given fair weather, the Easter Parade on Connecticut avenue should rival Fifth avenue's turnout.

The President and Mrs. Roosevelt will go to St. Thomas' Church with Miss Eleanor Roosevelt and Daniel Roosevelt, young cousins, and their stepfather, John Cutter of Boston, who are Easter guests at the White House.

On Monday, President Roosevelt will leave his desk to appear on the south portico and greet the thousands of children assembled for the annual egg rolling on the White House lawn.

One person who has an annual "date" with the cherry blossoms—and the photographers—is Ambassador Saito of Japan. This year he was asked to view them from the air. Each year he is besieged with requests to pose for pictures with his family under the cherry trees and always submits gracefully. Mme. Saito and her daughters don Japanese costumes and the little family strolls beneath the pink canopy of blooms as cameras click and hundreds of visitors to Washington look on.

Godey Party for Maryville Seniors.

Mrs. William Briscoe Kinealy, 6057 Goodfellow avenue, will entertain the seniors at Maryville College at a Godey Period Program Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Wednesday Club. Mrs. O. P. J. Falk, president of the Maryville College Alumnae Association, will be a guest at the party.

MRS. J. GUY McQUITTY JR., who is State chairman of arrangements for the International Reunion day program of Alpha Gamma Delta, which will be given in Columbia, Mo., Friday.

Miss Ruth Hawkins To Be June Bride

THE engagement of Miss Ruth Hennon Hawkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George L. Hawkins, 459 Fairview avenue, Webster Groves, to Rayburn Dean Tousley, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Tousley of Okmulgee, Ok., was announced yesterday at a tea given by Mrs. Hawkins and her daughter at their home. Pink roses and white sweetpeas formed a centerpiece for the table and were used throughout the house.

Miss Hawkins has been teaching in the Junior High School at Kirksville, Mo., since her graduation two years ago from the University of Missouri. She is a member of Gamma Phi Beta sorority. Her fiance received both his M. A. and A. B. degrees at the University of Missouri where he became a member of Lambda Chi Alpha. Their wedding will take place in June, and they will live in Okmulgee.

Miss Margaret Long To Be Wed April 21

INVITATIONS have been received from Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Lord Long, 6254 Berthold avenue, to the wedding of their daughter, Miss Margaret Blanche Long, and James Franklin Millen of Liberty, Mo., at the Third Baptist Church, Tuesday evening, April 21, at 8:30 o'clock. The ceremony will be performed by Dr. John F. Herget, the uncle of the bride, who is the president of William Jewell College, and he will be assisted by the Rev. Dr. C. Oscar Johnson.

Miss Edith Long will be her sister's maid of honor, and Miss Mary Ruth Millen, sister of Mr. Millen, will be the bridesmaid. Barbara Jean Bishop and Joy Cromwell will be flower girls, and Kirby Brown Jr. will carry the ring. Mr. Millen has chosen Harry Lewis Trotter of Carrollton, Mo., to be his best man, and Joseph Trotter of Carrollton, William Browning of Kansas City, Fred Pillsbury of St. Louis, and Glenn Alspaugh of Liberty will be ushers.

Mrs. John F. Herget will sing a group of songs preceding the ceremony, and Mrs. Chester J. Prince will play the wedding music. A cousin of the bride, Miss Lucy Lynn Herget, will light the candles in the chancel.

After a brief wedding trip the bridal pair will live at Liberty, Mo. Both Mr. Millen and Miss Long attended William Jewell College, Mr. Millen graduating in 1933. He is a member of Sigma Nu fraternity, and Miss Long of Beta Sigma Omicron sorority.

Women's Peace League to Hold Convention May 1-4

AROUND the fireplace at Mrs. Fred Taussig's tea this week, when plans were being made for the convention of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom to be held in St. Louis, May 1 to 4, there were tales of the early days. One of the guests, Mrs. Lola Maverick Lloyd of Winnetka, who used to go to Mary Institute and who is a cousin of Congressman Maury Maverick of Texas, was well qualified for reminiscences.

"It was a Dutch woman, Dr. Aletha Jacobs, who, while the world war was raging, had the courage to call on the women of all countries in the world to send delegates to a meeting at The Hague," she said. "They met in Holland in May when the tulips were in bloom and they called themselves 'The International Committee of Women for Permanent Peace.' The late Jane Addams of Hull House, Chicago, headed the American contingent of 25 women. From that meeting, delegations were sent forth to all belligerent nations to beg for peace. Miss Addams performed the almost impossible feat of crossing the Allied lines—a thing I believe no other man or woman in the world could have done. And I still think we would have brought about peace, if President Wilson had not refused to accede to the call to send delegates to an official neutrality conference. Guardedly, the belligerents said to us, 'God Bless You!' But none could, or would, take the first open step and the small neutral countries waited in vain for the United States to become their leader.

"Even when the United States entered the war, our women's international peace efforts did not cease. The national branch in Hungary sent copies of its magazine to the soldiers in the trenches. In our country, the Quakers gave us refuge. And this was largely due to the efforts of a Biddle of Philadelphia, Lucy Biddle Lewis, now living in Lansdown, Pa., one of our national founders and a member of the Board of Regents for Swarthmore College. She will, incidentally, be in St. Louis for our convention.

"So we struggled along, until in 1920, a world-wide meeting was called in Switzerland and there we adopted our present name: 'The Women's International League for Peace and Freedom,' which to make it short we call the W. I. L. Jane Addams was elected the first president. She remained in office for many, many years. Until her death she served as honorary president.

"And what are we doing today? Well, we are growing! Our international headquarters are now in a picturesque old stone house in Geneva which Jane Addams bought for us with the Nobel Peace Prize money he shared with Nicholas Murray Butler. In the United States, our numbers are greatest in the East where the Quaker influence is strongest. Only in Germany and Italy—both under dictatorships—is it impossible for us to organize and carry on our work. Russia is hard on pacifists, but you must remember that it was Russia that made the bravest stand for disarmament when Litvinoff made his world-echoing speech before the League of Nations. We are organized in Japan. Kagawa, who drew such crowds of young people when he spoke in St. Louis this winter, has promised to help us circulate among the Japanese our People's Mandate which calls upon the rulers of nations to renounce war as a means of settling international difficulties.

"We've come a long way since those dark days following the dismal Ford Peace Expedition. Though I shall never regret being on that boat nor regret having taken three of my children with me. Certainly, it was en experience they will never forget!"

In the group with Mrs. Lloyd at the tea table were the women who are responsible for arranging the program of the coming convention: Mrs. Frederick J. Taussig, the hostess, who organized the Women's Peace Party in St. Louis in 1915 and has served as treasurer and on the national board of the W. I. L.; Mrs. W. McKim Marriott, a director of the St. Louis branch and a niece of Miss Katherine Devereux Blake, who is a former president of the National Education Association and an early national leader of the W. I. L., having attended the Geneva conference; Mrs. Henry F. Lodge, president of the St. Louis branch; Mrs. E. V. Cowdry of the Washington University Woman's Club; other members of the board of directors, Mrs. Harold H. Tittman, Mrs. Ralph W. Thayer, Mrs. E. M. Grossman, Mrs. Virginia Weir, Mrs. Jerome Cook and the general chairman, Mrs. E. M. Harford.

Senator Bennett Champ Clark will speak at the convention. Speaker for the Sunday afternoon mass meeting at Soldan High School will be the Hon. George Lansbury of London, former head of the British Labor party, who will be introduced by Bishop Scarlett.

School Horse Show Includes Relay Race

MISS HELEN RAMSEY, Miss Catherine Burmeister, Miss Jo Reynolds and Miss Catherine Byreans will ride for Fontbonne College and Miss Mary Jane Payne, Miss Beverly Kraus, Miss Nancy Lee Spark and Miss Helen Marie Badaracco for St. Joseph' Academy in the mounted relay, which will feature Friday night's performance of the Centennial Horse Show, to be given by students and alumnae of both institutions at the Missouri Stables the evening of April 24 and afternoon of April 25.

In the handicap relay, novelty feature of Saturday afternoon's session, Miss Mary Alice Burmeister, Miss Ann McNamara, Miss Kathryn Mercurio and Miss Margie Salia will ride for the college and Miss Doris O'Connor, Miss Virginia Schuler, Miss Virginia Martin and Miss Betty James for the academy. In this novelty the first riders circle the arena on saddle and stirrups, while the second riders go around minus one stirrup, the third minus both stirrups and the fourth bareback.

Competitors for the best pair of riders in the college award, another Friday evening attraction, will be Miss Byreans and Miss Jane McLaughlin, Miss Reynolds and Miss McNamara, Miss Catherine and Miss Mary Alice Burmeister, Miss Ramsey and Miss Kay Higgins, Miss Virginia O'Hearn and Miss Vera Stueber, Miss Marie Morton and Miss Emily Ochman, Miss Hope Davis and Miss Mary Curtin and Miss Salia and Miss Mercurio.

The girls have been rehearsing several weeks. The show will be one of the features of the observance of the one-hundredth anniversary of the Sisters of St. Joseph in America. Miss Bernice Sommer is director of the show.

The following have been added to the Patrons' Committee for the Centennial Pageant, to be given by Fontbonne College and St. Joseph's Academy, at the St. Louis Theater, April 19 and 20: Mgr. George J. Donnelly, the Rev. Joseph A. McMahon, the Rev. Michael J. Bresnahan, the Rev. Francis J. O'Connor, Fontbonne College Music Club, Fontbonne College Press Club, St. Joseph's Academy Student Association, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore J. Harder, Mr. and Mrs. John E. Riley, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred J. Noble, Mr. and Mrs. T. O. Hall, Mr. and Mrs. John J. Barada, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J'annuzzo, Miss Mary A. Rice, Miss J. C. Cobb, Mrs. Elizabeth Amend, Mrs. A. B. Harrington, Mrs. John J. Koehler, Mrs. Gerald B. O'Reilly, Mrs. Ted Wetton, Mrs. N. Geissert, and Messrs. John T. Soy, Robert Clark, Joseph Hellrung, Paul Wendt, Glenn B. Farrar, Joseph A. McCarthy, Jack Foerster, A. N. Auler, Emmett M. O'Conner, Emmett Golden, S. B. Butler, J. Steinlage and W. Harmon Wilson.

The entire cast of the pageant, which will depict the history of the order, will be brought together for the first time this afternoon at the St. Louis Theater. Because of its magnitude—more than 1000 persons—it has been necessary to hold rehearsals in groups until the theater was available. Downtown ticket headquarters have been opened at 2004 Olive street. All seats are reserved, with the admission schedule ranging from 50 cents to $1.25.

Solfege Society To Meet Tuesday

THE Solfege Society, a musical organization, will meet Tuesday at 7 p. m. at the Melbourne Hotel, with Miss Mae Thompson as director.

Miss Dorothy Schulenburg of Webster Groves is honorary president of the society. She will go to New York soon to continue music and voice training with Charles Lagourgue. Other officers are Mildred Wulle Patterson, Belleville, president; Ivan Swerid, vice-president; Martha Cushman, secretary, and W. A. R. Morse, treasurer.

The Solfege Society is an auxiliary of La Chorale Francaise de St. Louis, and prepares its members for membership in that organization.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION DIRECTORS HERE TODAY

Three-Day Session to Precede Assembling of National Association Wednesday.

A joint three-day meeting of the National Association of Directors of Physical Education for College Women and the Middle West Association of Physical Education for College Women will open today at Hotel Statler, preceding the forty-first annual convention of the National Physical Education Association which will begin here next Wednesday.

After a meeting of the board of directors of the national association this morning, the first general session will be held at 3 p. m., with President Frederick A. Middlebush of the University of Missouri tentatively scheduled as a speaker. Dr. W. W. Charters of Ohio State University will discuss "Recent Trends in Higher Education."

Delegates will be guests of Washington University at a buffet supper at the school's Women's Building at 6:30 p. m.

At a session beginning at 8 o'clock tonight, Dean Malcolm McLean of the University of Minnesota will speak on "The Place and Process of Physical Education in a General Education Program." Chancellor George R. Throop of Washington University also has been invited to speak.

Reports and panel discussions of such topics as posture tests, required education programs, and preparation of professional gymnasium teachers and recreation leaders will be heard tomorrow and Tuesday.

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH
WOMEN'S SUNDAY MAGAZINE

PART EIGHT — ST. LOUIS, SUNDAY MORNING, APRIL 12, 1936. — PAGES 1—8-I

In the HOLLYWOOD WHIRL

by
Margaret Post Niemeyer
A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch

HOLLYWOOD, April 11.

HOLLYWOOD always goes in for Easter on a grand scale at an early, if not very bright hour, with mountain and bowl sunrise church services. Then, admitting freely enough, that it is the fashion center of the universe, the movie colony makes no effort to publicly display the gowns and hats and wraps designed by the highest-salaried male studio dressmakers in the world for the spring and summer season and purchased, at fabulous prices, by the darlings of the cinema. There is no Easter parade such as is common in most other cities, for instance. Movie stars prefer to do their parading in limousines and those who will attend the daybreak services tomorrow morning will find blankets and auto robes much more suitable wearing apparel than the most becoming gowns. After the singing and the sermons the stars will retire to their homes for a snooze before beginning the usual round of Sunday afternoon parties and polo matches.

Then some of the new finery will be shown although a good deal of it has already been displayed at the night clubs, the hotels, on the badminton courts and the other places where the movie people get together. New clothes, new hats and new styles in everything come and go so fast out here that Easter Sunday is, pretty much, just like any other Sunday. Still, no woman really ever had enough clothes and Easter is such a grand excuse to justify buying another new complete outfit or two.

Let's have a look at some of the really new things this Easter day, togs which the well-groomed stars broke out into the breeze before Easter really arrived. At a reception given by Joan Crawford and her husband, Franchot Tone, in honor of the visiting Musical Giant, Dr. Leopold Stokowski, fashion pointers were much in evidence.

—o—o—

Joan Crawford herself, appeared in an interesting "five o'clock" suit of navy crepe Romaine, with a knife-pleated blouse of white chiffon. A feature of the suit was a smart little jacket, patterned along the lines of a formal, masculine dinner coat, tails and all. Jeweled studs ornamented the blouse. The skirt was plain save for kick pleats front and back, and was several inches shorter than skirts of the past seasons. With this ensemble the hostess wore a large hat of matching navy straw. The brim had a saucer-tilt and the crown was noticeable by its absence.

—o—o—

● AND HERE IS a list of the things actually made, and saved up for Easter and the women who will wear them:

Mrs. Errol Flynn (Lili Damita) will be in a tailored suit of bright, thick green tweed, with white pique collar, cuffs and flower. Lili Dache hat of green felt; black patent leather pumps and bag.

Loretta Young's smart choice of vapor gray, yellow and white as an Easter color combination stamps it definitely as of spring, 1936. Gray dressmaker suit of light wool, pleated chiffon blouse of pale yellow, white orchids.

Janet Gaynor has selected an all-white redingote ensemble with coat of white canvas weave wool over a white silk crepe frock. A white Breton sailor of loosely woven straw, white buck pumps, and handbag, white silk knitted gloves, and for the lapel of her coat a red hibiscus—a flower of which she is particularly fond—are her accessories.

—o—o—

Josephine Hutchinson showed me a delicately printed frock in shades of green and brown, worn with corsage of Cypripedium orchids (a sort of chartreuse green flecked with brown) and small turban trimmed with large pom-pons of chiffon.

—o—o—

● MARLENE DIETRICH is always worth a paragraph to herself. She wears what she pleases and does still run to the mannish things for every day wear. I sat near her the other night at a premiere at Graumann's. It was the night when she left the theater while, in a short reel picture, a few shots of the late John Gilbert were shown. Marlene has a perfectly good husband in Germany but the sight of John, suddenly brought to life, was too much for her. On that occasion she was wearing a semi-formal evening ensemble entirely of black and a black tricorn hat.

As she came down the aisle, alone, for her escort had been momentarily lost in the crowd, there was first a hush and then the audible whisperings all over the theater, of "There's Dietrich." And Dietrich had again staged the unusual. The other stars, in their newest and most elaborate gowns, luxurious fur wraps and hair elaborately coiffured. And here was Marlene smartly using them as a background for her own severe black costume and hat.

—o—o—

Luncheon time in the film capital calls for a special type of outfit. Printed silk frocks, with gay matching jackets, seem to have the call at present. In the Brown Derby day before yesterday was the lovely Gail Patrick who is especially partial to these casual frocks, so practical and handy for wardrobe emergencies. She was wearing an ensemble of blue silk crepe printed in a chartreuse design. Box-pleating edged the hemline and the short sleeves. The wide belt was of chartreuse suede. Hat, gloves, shoes and bag were of white.

—o—o—

● I HAD MEANT to say something about the men at Easter but never got any further than talking to John Boles, who dropped over to my table at luncheon today in the 20th Century-Fox Cafe de Paris. All thoughts of other male stars vanished then and there. John has just returned from a six weeks' trip East on which he combined personal appearances in picture houses with a vacation.

The Boles, as you may or may not know, have a beautiful colonial house in Bel-Air and it is furnished entirely in keeping with its period. Each piece has been carefully selected for its beauty, authenticity and utility and the result is an air of dignity, charm and restfulness; a real home in which Mr. and Mrs. Boles live quietly with their two daughters, Marceline, 15, and Janet, 9.

Their Colonial furniture is not just a recent hobby. The Boles started buying it piece at a time when each additional treasure meant a very real economy in their household budget.

It would have been nice to have heard more of his new things but a director's assistant called for him to come onto a set at once and as he got up to leave there was only time for "What are your plans for Easter, John?" And his answer, "Church in the morning with

by Lucius Beebe

NEW YORK, April 11.

WANDERING afield, as this department has done of late, we have come to the conclusion that if Hollywood is at best a sort of gold lame, shanty-town suburb of Manhattan, San Francisco is a part and parcel of the urban civilization that is New York's principal claim to fame. More than anywhere else a Gothamite feels at home in San Francisco, and the principal reason for this is the food and restaurants of the town. Old settlers who showed us around maintained that the glory of San Francisco gastronomy perished with prohibition and has never-since achieved the lusty magnificence of other days, but there was quite enough left to fascinate and comfort this reporter. There is, for example, the establishment known as Julius Castle, casually clinging to the edge of Telegraph Hill and overlooking the marvelous harbor from the new Oakland Bridge to the Golden Gate. It is not only the castle of Julius and his inevitable collie dogs, but a stronghold of the urbane tradition of dining. The food inclines toward the Italian and the day we were there we had as fine a stewed chicken as one could ask, preceded by a Petite Marmite Henry IV, and assisted on its way by a bottle of Berncasteler Doktor Spatlese '31, which was very good, indeed.

—o-o—

THE atmosphere was vaguely reminiscent of Papa Monetta's celebrated house in Mulberry street, and the view was breathtaking. Then there was a venerable restaurant in Maiden Lane called Solari's, at the name of which gastronomes everywhere should pause and lift a pious hat. San Franciscans are particular to guide you to the Maiden Lane Solari's, as there is a competitor of the same name elsewhere, and here as nowhere else on the Pacific Coast flourishes the food known as cracked Dungeness crab. They are unknown in these parts, as big as a small lobster, served cold with mayonnaise and of unparalleled elegance. Along with Delaware shad and terrapin, Lake Superior whitefish. Cotuit oysters and Gulf pompano, they rank as one of the principal ornaments of American fish menus. If you require strictly liquid refreshment, there is the bar of the St. Francis Hotel, where they serve some of the best gin arrangements, slings, fizzes, rickies and such we ever encountered. Then—but the list is endless. We shouldn't be surprised if, the exchange being what it is, when they die, the souls of good

A FLOWER in YOUR HAIR for SPRING

By PRUNELLA WOOD

THE way flowers are going to the head these days is a Springtime stampede. Even the shortest kind of haircuts can be decorated with some kind of blossom arrangement, and when it comes to the girls who have longer hair—well, they don't care how exotic they look.

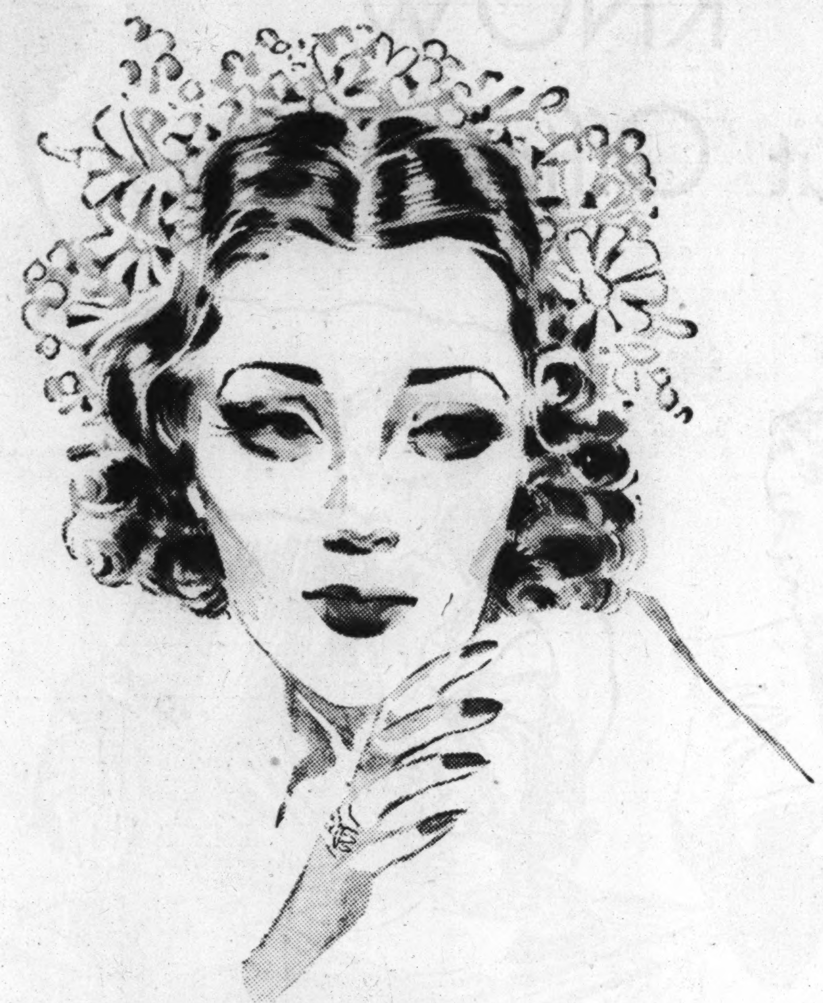
— o o —

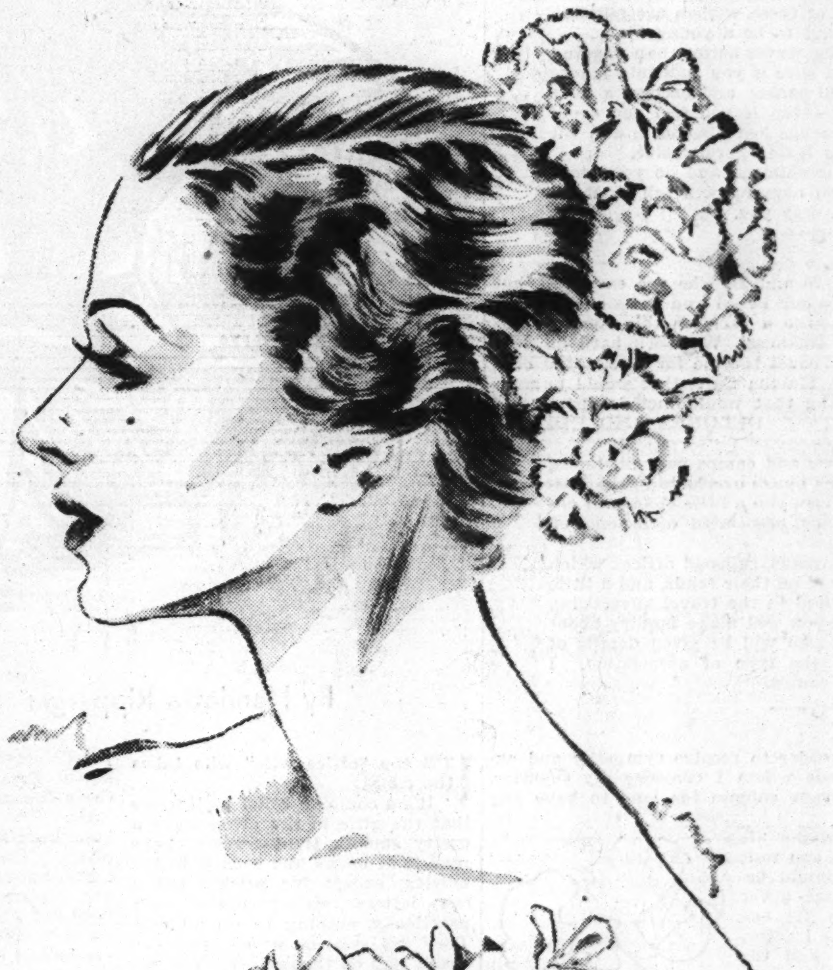
AT the left is a horseshoe tiara of daisies and mimosa, worn poised far back on the head, with the ends swept forward toward either temple. This is a becoming ornament for a coiffure which is conventionally flat over the head, and edged with soft curls.

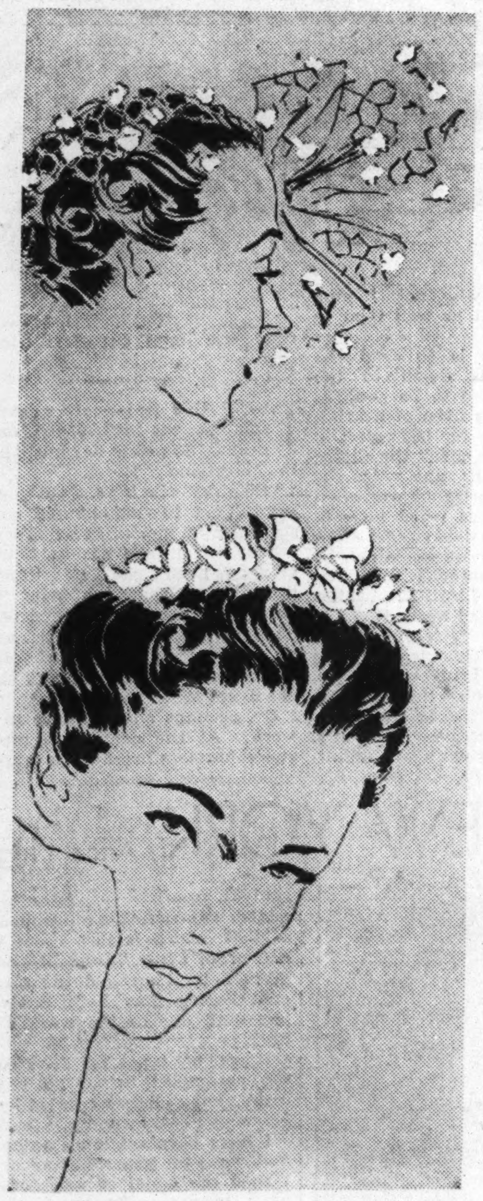
Center, below, is a side-part coiffure, very sleek and simple, decorated with a mass of carnations which cover the short ends of the hair where it is brushed up off the neck. All the flowers need not be poked in separately; they can be mounted on a tulle cap which may then be pinned securely onto the head.

— o o —

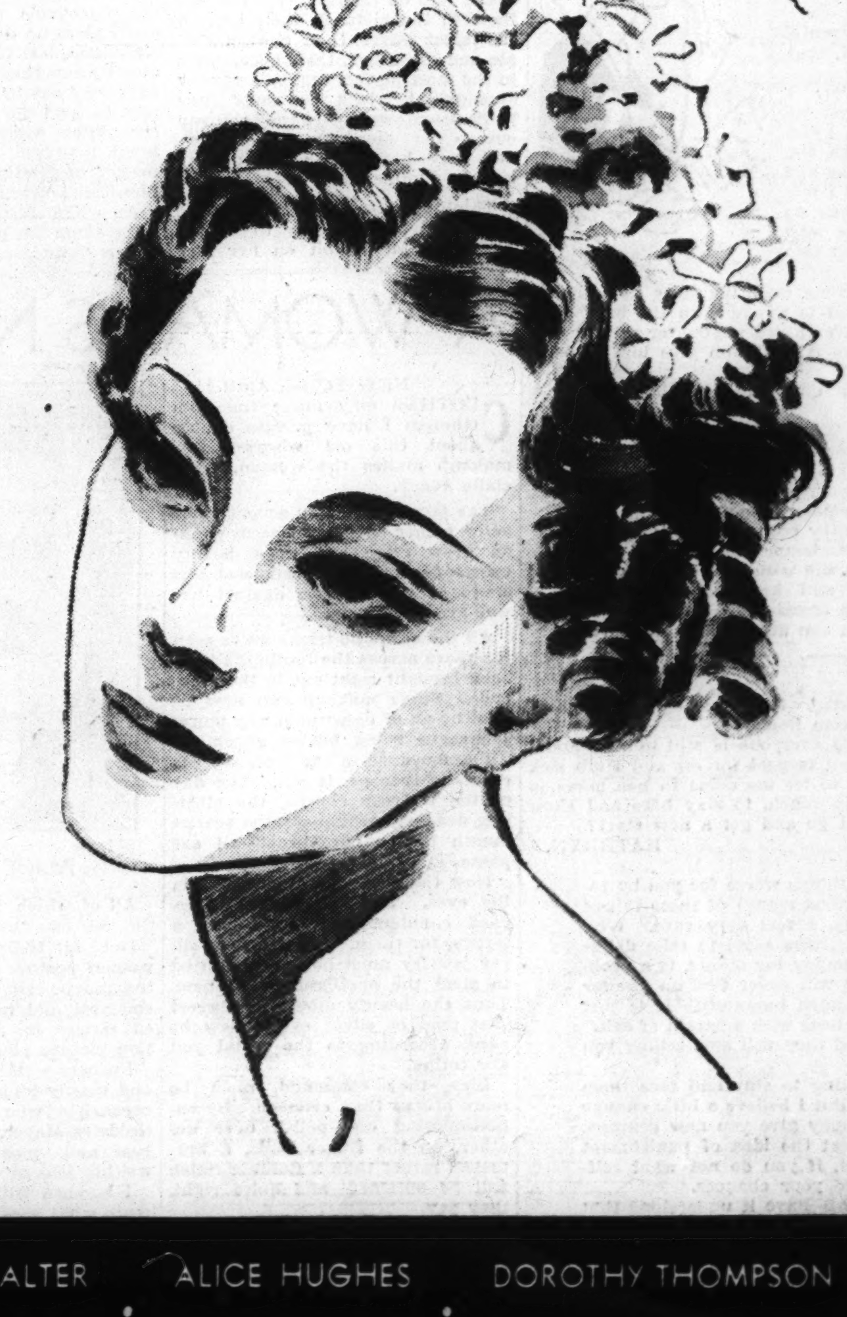
AT the bottom is a head-dress after Queen Victoria's "Princess Vickey" days. It is sketched with gardenia and orange blossom decoration, for it is perfect as a wedding veil foundation. But with gardenias, or with forget-me-nots and camellias, it suggests a lovely coiffure for any formal evening occasion.







The upper sketch, above, shows a boyish haircut trimmed with a cap and bow of navy veiling strewn with forget-me-nots. The other sketch shows short hair brushed up into a pompadour, across which is laid a narrow strip of rosebuds.



ON THE RECORD

by
Dorothy Thompson

NOW that it is revealed that Miss Frances Perkins really is Miss Frances Perkins and not Matilda Wutski, late of Russia—an enormously funny idea to anyone who personally knows that very New England puritan lady who is Secretary of Labor—now that this feeble Sinoviev letter is exposed, I should like to call attention to a far more subtle, far more dangerous piece of campaign propaganda, this time from the Democrats. It consists of drawing, not a red herring, but a Middle Bight Bonefish across the trail of national issues. In the midst of a debate on the new taxation bill in which the Administration has received the embarrassing kiss of the Communist party; in the midst of Secretary Wallace's unwilling revelations that amongst the destitute dirt farmers whom the American taxpayer has been saving from starvation are Florida, Puerto Rico and Hawaii sugar companies, the President has been fishing.

Now, it is one of the most impregnable traditions of the great republic that all fishermen are safe, sane fellows. Not only are they incapable of harm to anything except a fly or a fish, but they are sounder, mellower, and more profoundly learned than any other breed of humans.

—o-o—

AS long as the President is fishing, dark omens of impending dictatorship will fade. Whoever heard of a dictator who was a fisherman? Mussolini plays the violin and rides horseback, but so did Nero. Hitler loves dogs but so did Napoleon. These hobbies are not incompatible with tyranny. Stalin has a good press in an anti-Communist world. Why? Because he smokes a pipe. He smokes a pipe all the time, ruminatively, and even that intrepid pursuer of the neuroses of dictators, Mr. John Gunther, is mollified. Stalin, he thinks must be a good, common-sense fellow after all. But none of these gentlemen would think of posing as fishermen. The Austrian Emperor, Franz Josef, held together a decaying empire for 50 years, merely by hunting chamois.

All things being equal a fishing candidate has an immense break over a non-fisherman. Coolidge fished. Hoover fished in a half-hearted way. Grover Cleveland was very the type of the fisherman-statesman. But none of them, as far as records available to me show, ever landed a Middle Bight or any other sort of bonefish. This is fishing in the grand manner. This is a thousand dollar fish, so called, I take it, because it costs that much to catch one. Why should any one, then, worry about the unbalanced budget?

It is a most subtle blow against other possible presidential candidates. Has any one ever heard of Borah catching fish? I have been in Senator Vandenberg's Washington home and never seen so much as stuffed, glazed and mounted two-pound black bass. If Dickinson or Knox have trophies they should prepare to show them now. As for Landon, what are his opportunities, in Topeka? He might snare baby perch in one of the drainage canals. Possibly all these men are fishermen. If they are, the time has come for their managers to exploit the fact.

—o-o—

AND yet where is the completely convincing non-circumstantial evidence that the Chief Executive has ever really caught a fish? He is surrounded by picked and trusted guards, by aids, by press agents. Is there a single objective witness who can testify that tarpon or bonefish were dragged from the deeps by his own hand? Even the dispatches are guarded in reporting this significant detail.

It is possible, of course, that with a bonefish the President has overreached himself. There is something strange, foreign, fantastic and ominous about a bonefish. It is not one of the more neighborly fishes. The wily trout of the New England streams can comfortably be associated with Coolidge and safety. The bass of the Great Lakes are indubitably American. But these fishes of the Bahamas are fishes of foreign, of international waters. They are not the fish to which one is accustomed. They are not every fisherman's fishes. What manner of creature is the President landing on our shores? It sounds fishy.

THE WORLD AS WOMEN SEE IT

MY OPINION

by Martha Carr

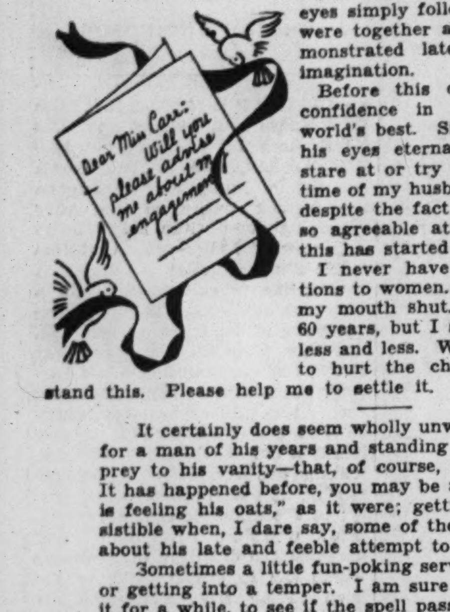
Letters intended for this column must be addressed to Martha Carr at the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Mrs. Carr will answer all questions of general interest but, of course, cannot give advice on matters of a purely legal or medical nature. Those who do not care to have their letters published may enclose an addressed and stamped envelope for personal reply.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

AFTER many years of happy life, thinking I was all the world to my husband, I found him encouraging, or at least tolerating, the advances of a dyed-in-the-wool, unprincipled vamp. It was so noticeable that no one could miss seeing it. My husband stood there like a stick letting her carry on, until I put a stop to it by wedging in between them. I know he saw how uncomfortable it made me and it lasted fully a half hour. And, moreover, it disgusted bystanders so that one man didn't hesitate to voice his opinion audibly.



Dear Mrs Carr: Will you please advise me about my engagement

But the rest of the evening my husband's eyes simply followed that creature until they were together again. Of course, when I remonstrated later, he said it was all my imagination.

Before this occurred, I had the utmost confidence in him and thought him the world's best. Since I have noticed it, I find his eyes eternally seeking some woman to stare at or try to attract. This sort of pastime of my husband's is getting on my nerves, despite the fact that he provides well and is so agreeable at home. The trouble is that this has started me nagging.

I never have minded his ordinary attentions to women. But now I just cannot keep my mouth shut. We are both bordering on 60 years, but I seem to understand him now less and less. What shall I do? I don't want to hurt the children, but I simply cannot stand this. Please help me to settle it.

PUZZLE.

It certainly does seem wholly unworthy and terribly silly for a man of his years and standing to become a ridiculous prey to his vanity—that, of course, is what it amounts to. It has happened before, you may be assured. The "old man is feeling his oats," as it were; getting so young and irresistible when, I dare say, some of these women are giggling about his late and feeble attempt to be a young blade.

Sometimes a little fun-poking serves better than nagging or getting into a temper. I am sure if you suddenly ignore it for a while, to see if the spell passes, and become a little preoccupied and quite amiable (even if you feel you could brain him), he will wonder if he has lost his charm and wit at home and possibly become a little apprehensive.

Center your interest in your children and do your very best not to see; accusations and nagging will fall as thunder on deaf ears and will hurt only you.

—o—o—

Dear Mrs. Carr:

● WE ARE TWO young women, 20 and 21, who are employed, but who make only about enough to pay our board and keep ourselves in clothes. However, we would like to take a vacation this summer, but find that trips are too high for our finances. We work hard all year and would like to get away from the usual routine for a few days or a week. Could you suggest something, Martha Carr, that would be suitable and not too expensive—something that would include sports and outdoor recreation?

DELORES AND EDITH.

There are many small resorts and camps near St. Louis, located in the Ozarks and on the bluffs overlooking the Mississippi River. These will even give you a little change of climate. And then, there are camps, associated with some of the churches.

You can go to the travel bureaus, railroad offices which have places listed that are located on their roads, and a little later, you will see them advertised in the travel advertising sections of the newspapers. If you will make inquiry about these at these business places, you will be given details of distance, cost, diversions and the type of association. I can send you a list of church camps.

—o—o—

Dear Mrs. Carr:

● I AM NOT writing to you in order to receive sympathy and excuses for my misdemeanors from one whom I consider my superior. No indeed, Mrs. Carr, I have read your column too long to have any such thought.

When a girl carries on a clandestine affair with a boy for three years, you can well know that everything isn't as it should be. In fact, nothing is. This affair has never made me happy. Truly, my whole life has been a torment from the first minute I began to deceive my people, my friends and the whole world as I knew it.

When I began going out with him, openly, he was, apparently, thought so little of, that I received rebukes on every side.

There is only one thing in my favor. I loved him and still love him. At first he didn't care. He treated me worse than I can describe and didn't even try to deceive me. But he grew to love me and two months ago told me so. He asks me respectfully if I will marry him. But like most boys, he has no money and I realize how futile it is to wait for good fortune to roll a lump of gold into our laps.

It isn't so simple to cast off the wrong man, it's more like cutting off a hand or a foot. I won't say what is wrong with the boy. You can imagine anything you like. He never killed anyone or robbed any banks; nevertheless, the things that are true of him give him a black eye in this small town.

Shall it be unhappiness with him or unhappiness without him?

KITTY.

Not knowing what his offenses may be, nor how vitally they may affect you, were you to marry him, you can imagine that you have given me very little on which to base my judgment and to help you decide. When a man is adjudged unworthy in a community, by both men and women, and his status is one which lacks honor and respect, generally the hope of happiness in a life with him can be very slight. If you can follow him, still knowing that your standards, because of him, must remain low—you are the one to decide whether or not you can accept such a future.

—o—o—

Dear Mrs. Carr:

● MY PROBLEM is one of the usual. Sometime ago, I was sent to a girls' school for running away from home.

I've been home some time now and everyone is still talking about me. The boys I go with have not decent respect for me and I am sick and tired of it. My aunt has offered to let me come to her home in Dallas, Tex. Should I go? I want, so much, to stay here and show everyone I am not bad. But, should I go and get a new start?

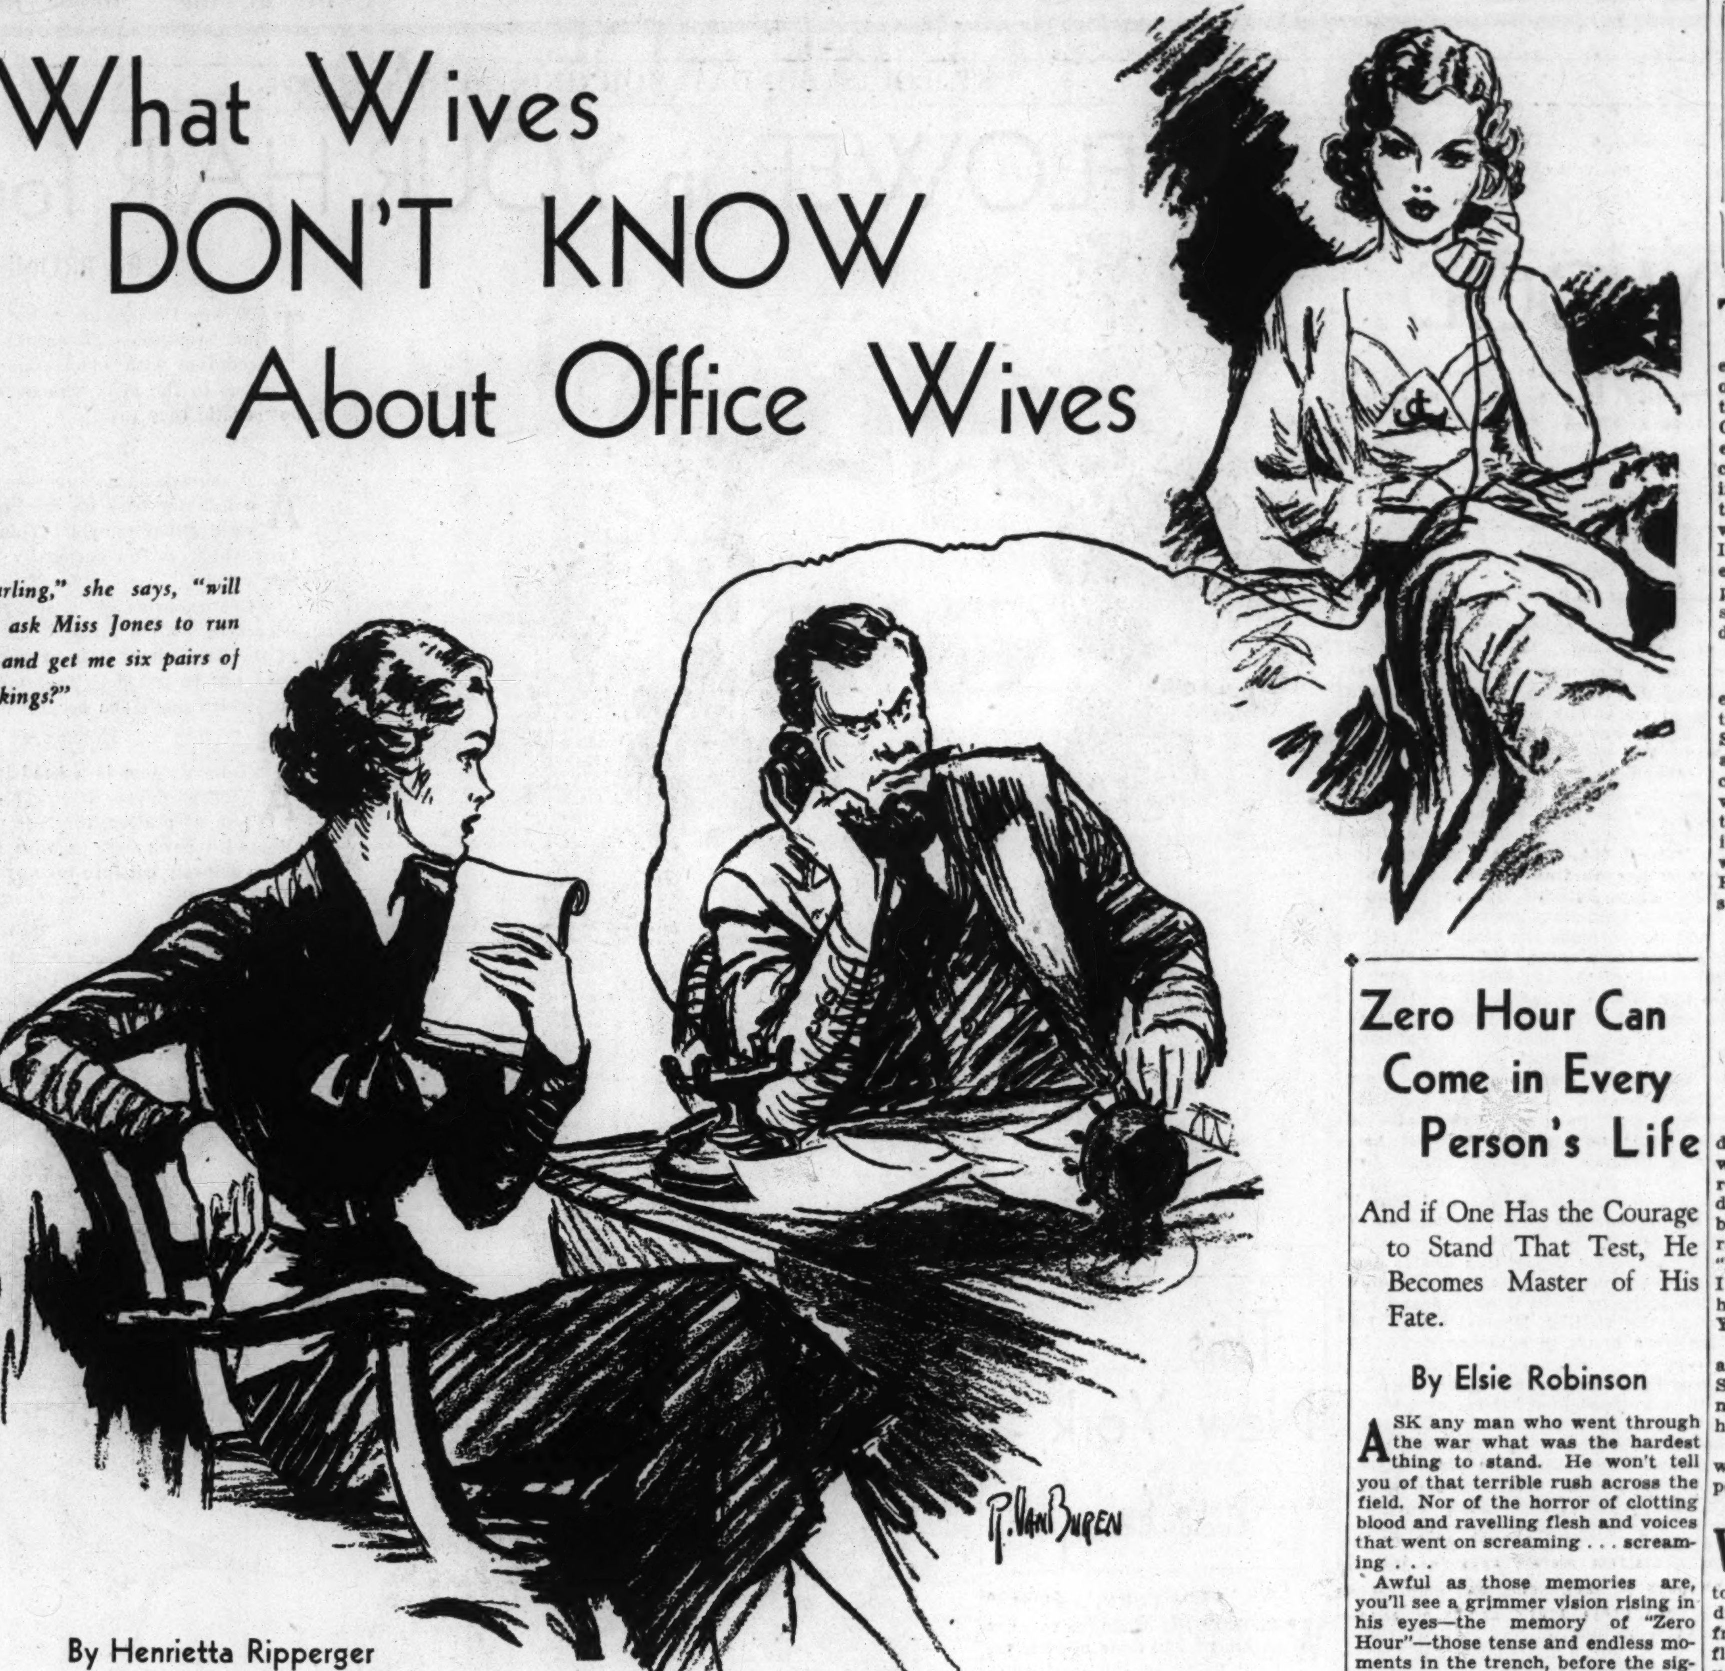
KATHRYN.

The busy-bodies are making things worse for you by repeating (or rather making up a good many) of these things you hear that people are saying, I feel very sure. Why there are so many unkind people, who seem to take deliberate pleasure in making life unhappy for others, is a problem—a conundrum that probably will never find an answer in the minds of normal, high-minded humanity. It is just inconceivable. Just take half you hear with a "grain of salt." Don't listen with any interest and they will stop telling you these things.

I admire your spirit in wanting to stay and face them out and to rehabilitate yourself. But I believe a little change of environment and association may give you new courage. But, remember, that you must get the idea of punishment and unfairness out of your head, if you do not want self-pity to spoil your disposition and your chances.

Why not go to visit your aunt—have it understood that it will be only for a visit, although of course you should want some occupation there, and you will feel better about it. Perhaps after you get there, your aunt will see that you are eager to improve yourself and are appreciative of the opportunity; and you will like it so well, after you become acquainted, you will prefer to remain for a long time.

What Wives DON'T KNOW About Office Wives



"Darling," she says, "will you ask Miss Jones to run out and get me six pairs of stockings?"

By Henrietta Ripperger

IT'S the "office wife" who takes the count.

It's a common belief with wives that the girls in the office have a pretty smooth time. They have read it in books and seen it in the movies; except for getting out a few letters, stenographers have practically nothing to do all day. They get salaries which they can spend just on themselves. You see them in the pictures, their hair in the latest waves, their clothes simple and expensive, their accessories in the most perfect taste. And why shouldn't they look that way? They work downtown where they can run out to the shops at any moment, and they have all that money to spend. Simple, isn't it?

Thinking about this, the little woman at home begins to unload her work bit by bit on her husband's secretary, who, not having much to do, might as well tend to these things.

Her first move is to send the housekeeping bills down to the office. These used to be paid at home, but she gets tired of hearing her husband ask for the electric light bill when she hasn't the slightest idea where it is. She hates the expression of surprise, or worse, on her husband's face when he suddenly picks up the department store statement, lost for weeks, which he didn't know they owed. It seems an easy way out to tell all the tradesmen to send the bad news direct to the office where Miss Jones can break it to him. This clears up the matter of family bookkeeping, too. She hasn't much of a head for figures, while Miss Jones' cleverness with them is positively uncanny. She is quite generous about admitting Miss Jones' superiority in this line.

—o-o—

FROM this it is only a step to sending the office girl on errands. She calls her husband on the telephone.

"Darling," she says, "will you ask Miss Jones to run out and get me six pairs of stockings? She's what—busy? Well, she has an hour off at noon, hasn't she? Any time will do; just so that you bring them home with you when you come. But darling, if she doesn't, I'll have to go way uptown! Cobweb sheers, size nine, in the new coppery shade; she'll know."

Or, perhaps she is active in club work. At the committee meeting she volunteers brightly to write circular letters and to send them out to the entire club of about 300 members. Down comes the copy to the office in the busiest day of the month, in none too legible writing, with orders that they are to be mimeographed, signed, folded and mailed that day, without fail.

If Miss Jones is at her job quite a long time she is promoted to other responsibilities. She is allowed to order the food for the week-end trip to the country. She shops for Belinda away at school. She gets Belinda's themes written in much-crossed-out longhand to do on the typewriter (fixing up the grammar and spelling as she goes along). She buys the tickets for the family's trip to Europe; selects the new bags and often sees them off. She has all the responsibilities of a member of the family and none of the fun.

In the meantime "H. G.," or whatever his initials may be, has no intention of letting his work suffer, so Miss Jones stays until 6 or maybe 7, getting out the late mail. She works when she's told; almost always on Saturday morning, once in a while on Sunday. Wives can get away now and then, but the girls in the office, if they want their pay, have to stick with the job, no matter what.

—o-o—

WE recently heard a manufacturer say about one of the girls in his office: "I consider her the best machine in our plant." The secretary's function in an office is a good deal like that of an oil burner in a home. She is supposed to be self-regulating and to keep the place comfortable. She learns to protect the boss from people he dosn't want to see and to cover his escapes with a good story. And if the wife at home does have an attack of temperament, it is Miss Jones who feels the effects. "H. G." comes in morose and irritable. You can't do anything to suit him. And this, too, is just part of the day's work.

And does he show his appreciation of it all? You win. He doesn't. The idea that men play around, consoling their secretaries and making it up to them for all they have to take, is bunk. Of course, there are exceptions, men being human like the rest of us. But as a general thing, business men, particularly successful ones, don't want to mix "playing around" with launching baby bonds or trying to sell a new prospect. They don't want to be bothered by a girl with tears in her baby blue eyes, when they are trying to think what to say to the bank this time.

Yes, the girl at the office takes the count. There's no alimony for her if she walks out on him.

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

by
Alice Hughes

NEW YORK, April 11.

CLOTHES may make the man (though I have private doubts about this old wheeze), but makeup makes the woman, especially today.

The faces of the day accent character rather than prettiness. Women grow more and more beauty conscious, and the unadorned girl stands a slim chance against her well-groomed sister.

All the cosmetic tricks we've seen for years across the footlights have been brought right out in the audience. Stage makeup can now be used by all of us without any moral asparagus being hurled at us.

Flamboyance in the face, say the cosmetic tycoons, is out. The day of the too-rosy cheeks, the startling dead-pan whiteness, the scarlet mouth like a cut throat—all are passe.

Now the face's drama centers in the eyes. The rest of the bedizened countenance must create a setting for them. Even gold or silver jewelry must not be permitted to steal the spotlight from them. Thus the beauty dictators suggest that gold or silver eye-shadow be used, according to the metal you are toting.

Lips, they command, must be more bronze than crimson. By superimposing one polish over another, on the finger nails, a burnished rather than a flaming finish will be obtained—and quite right, they say.

The cream kings and powder potentates, working in cahoots with the fancy barbers, decree that the new hairline is high and receding, and the coiffure is frothy, not sleek, with plenty of curls and puffs.

ALICE HUGHES

All of which, like the third martini, we can take, or let alone.

Not all Hollywood's successful women posture and prance before the movie cameras. Some of the smartest and most highly rewarded sisters in America write motion picture plays.

Frances Marion, the richest and mostly highly prized of all the scenarists who work for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, drawing all the best and most intricate script-writing jobs at that noted studio.

I lunched with her recently. She wore what seemed to be a peck of rubies, which is her favorite gewgaw. Ruth Waterbury, half-pint movie magazine editor; Adele Fletcher, Junoesque writer for such periodicals, were in the party. We fell to guessing Garbo's age. One said 31, another 40. Miss Marion added, subtracted, multiplied and said 34, which is just about right. But who, after "Anna Karenina," gives a toot how old the magnificent Swede may be? She's ageless—and one of the world's wonders.

If you have not yet done so, run (do not walk) to the store which displays the clothes created by that amazing Frenchwoman, Vionnet.

I have been scudding among the dud-racks for years, but never have I seen the equal of most of Vionnet's this-season designs for beauty, drama, sheer thrill. They are not only colossal, they are good. Agnes Booth Young, Cleveland costume-research authority, called the turn the other night as she was gazing pop-eyed at some of these amazing things. She said they were so beautiful that they entered the realm of high art.

Here's a recipe, but it's a thousand to one you won't try the dish. Mrs. Gordon MacCreagh, wife of the writer and African explorer, told me this one.

Not so long ago, when she and her husband were traipsing around the headwaters of the Congo, Mrs. MacCreagh made a swap with a native, trading him a jar of face cream for an African carving she craved. Unable to speak his lingo, she moved her hands over her face to indicate what the stuff was for. Comprehension dawned. He tasted it, dumped it into a frying pan, followed it with a fish and set the whole mess over a fire. Filet of Sole a la Creme Elizabeth Arden, or something. Try THAT on the old gas range!

Zero Hour Can Come in Every Person's Life

And if One Has the Courage to Stand That Test, He Becomes Master of His Fate.

By Elsie Robinson

ASK any man who went through the war what was the hardest thing to stand. He won't tell you of that terrible rush across the field. Nor of the horror of clotting blood and ravelling flesh and voices that went on screaming . . . screaming . . .

Awful as those memories are, you'll see a grimmer vision rising in his eyes—the memory of "Zero Hour"—those tense and endless moments in the trench, before the signal came, when there was nothing to do . . . nothing to do. . . nothing to do but wait.

Zero Hour—the deepest hell in war—the cruellest test in life.

You — you know — don't you? You've been through it, too, sometime. Perhaps not in France. But on as terrible a battle line—in as dark a trench.

You, who had always fought it out in the open, now trapped at last—trapped by poverty, or suffering, or grief, or shame—

Trapped—helpless—with nothing to do but wait!

—o-o—

IF ONLY there were something to do—some danger to face—some pains to be borne—some hardship to endure—some excitement—some action—

But . . . just . . . to . . . wait . . .

Alone . . . for no matter how many are around you, you're alone, at Zero Hour—

Helpless . . . for though you have wealth and power and wisdom unlimited, you're helpless in Zero Hour—

To just wait . . . alone . . . helpless . . . you can't do it.

Yet, sooner or later, you have to do it for Zero Hour comes to every life. And for many it lasts not an hour, but months—or weary years. Months and years when there's nothing to do but mark time . . . wait . . .

Wait . . . with your heart trapped deep in some trench waiting for the light . . . waiting for the signal that another chance has dawned . . . Another chance to get out and fight again—

"The waste of it!"

That's what you'll cry, when your time comes.

But take it from one who's been through it, stranger, it isn't a waste.

—o-o—

ZERO HOUR must come—and all your tears and all your prayers won't save you from it. But if you have the courage to hold yourself steady through it, you'll come out richer than when you went in.

For one thing, you'll know yourself. And no man can know himself unless he has gone through that trial. You'll know yourself, clear through to your lazy thread of cowardice, your last stout fiber of courage. And all the gold in the world couldn't buy you a more valuable lesson than that—if you have the sense to use it.

And, for another thing, you'll know life. Life has no more surprises, no more peak loads, for the man who's gone through Zero Hour.

And, best of all, you'll know something about God. For Zero Hour is the best of all places for a man to find his God.

YOU can't help thinking about the tricks the fates play on some of us. . . . Take George White and Earl Carroll, the late Ziegfeld's bitterest competitors in the revue business.. . . They feuded for years—and their contempt for each other was always comical. . . . Today White and Carroll are practically out of the girl-opera racket—they are not represented on the Main Drag, New York, at any rate. . . . But Ziegfeld, already several years in his tomb, remains Head Man. . . . At present his monicker blazes in the lights—but on both sides of Broadway! . . . Someone at "21" really should get acquainted with the better knowns of the town. . . . The other night, following the premiere of "Idiot's Delight," three people were sent to one of the upstairs rooms—and were informed, upon request, that the reason for the detour—was that the management wanted the lower floors reserved for "celebrities" who had been to the play. . . . The trio given the run-around were merely Brock Pemberton the producer of "Personal Appearance," "Strictly Dishonorable" and other hits; Lawrence Riley, the author of the first-named play—and Blanche Yurka, one of our better known stars!

One of the group, a lawyer, said he knew where most of them could be found. . . . They agreed to gather them and hold a party. . . . The lawyer collected the bunch of them—about 65—twelve of whom had climbed the heights to success, the majority of them still being weighted down with misfortune. . . . The alumni meet monthly—the affair being held at a swanky hotel in midtown. . . . The twelve prosperous ones assume the bills—each of them responsible one month in the year. . . . And at each party nearly every guest walks over to the lawyer (who is respected and loved devoutly by his fellows) and presses some money into his hands. . . . It may be a five-spot, or a tenner. More often it is only two or three dollars. . . . That money, it appears, is for a special fund, which at present contains $11,000. . . . The special fund is for those men who are in need—of rent, or a suit of clothes, or perhaps a baby is coming, etc. . . . Only the lawyer knows who is in need of coin—no one need be embarrassed or in want. The one in distress merely asks for it—and he gets it! . . . If he can—he pays it back some day—but if he doesn't—it doesn't matter. . . . They are a grand group of guys—the best definition we know of the word friend.

CLOSE-UP of ST. LOUIS FASHIONS

STYLE PARADE---What St. Louis Women Are Wearing

Around the City With the Post-Dispatch Fashion Reporter x x x By SYLVIA STILES

Sketch by Aithra Holland

Left, a navy blue petticoat frock, worn by Miss Ruth Carp. Right, Miss Elizabeth Castle, wearing a black pleated lace dress topped by a white jacket.

Center, Mrs. Vladimir Golschmann's black crepe frock which has a jabot of white lace. Her off-the-face hat also is of the crepe. Right, Miss Joan Pangman, whose printed tunic combines navy with white and subscribes to the new flaring mode.

ANYONE who has been watching the selections of well-dressed St. Louisans to determine how the fashion winds are blowing before purchasing her spring clothes knows now that there is a general gust of gayety and variable shifting from the mannish to the feminine.

She has learned also that the tailored suit, whether severe in its entirety or frilly in places, is the uniform of the daytime hours and that it knows no age or type limitations;

That the little fitted coat which buttons up snugly at the neckline and is as full at the hemline as it is tight at the waist adds swank to any street costume;

That a black frock with important looking lace to give a throaty emphasis is an essential for afternoon and that tunics which are brightly printed and accompanied by solid colored underskirts are second only to petticoat dresses in style and popularity;

That prints, exotic and therefore oriental in coloring and design continue to fascinate admirers after dark while jackets are the boon of the two-in-one costume addicts as well as those less careful of their budgets.

But to be specific as to the type of clothes that have definitely arrived, judging by the taste and good looks of their wearers, there is the tunic frock. It is heralded by Parisian designers, copied by American ones and liked by every woman regardless of whether she is the type to wear it. Slender figures do it justice, regardless of the contrast between the pattern of the tunic and the tight skirt beneath.

Miss Joan Pangman, whose marriage to Francis Kuhn will be a social event next Saturday, is one of those who wear this flaring new tunic as it should be worn. She is sketched in a lovely version of the mode which combines printed taffeta with solid colored crepe. The taffeta which has a white leaf design on a navy background is used for the tunic. The crepe is navy and serves beautifully for the straight underskirt. The blouse has a narrow standing collar and is fastened at the center front. Little strips of the taffeta are knotted into bows and placed at intervals down the front, the last one serving as a fastening on the belt. As the taffeta is a warp print, the pattern is reversed on the wrong side emphasizing white rather than navy. Bows are tied so that both sides show, thus adding greater contrast to the trimming. Sleeves have modified fullness at the shoulders. The hat which Miss Pangman wears with this is an off-the-face model of dark blue ribbed silk. Her footwear and accessories also are blue.

For shopping and general morning wear Miss Pangman prefers a suit and looks exceedingly well groomed in a dark beige short jacket model with which she wears brown and yellow accessories and a shadow plaid topcoat.

Miss Elise White, a close friend of Miss Pangman's who is seen much with her has been wearing a gray herringbone tweed suit of the mannish type. The jacket which is fitted at the waistline fastens with two buttons. Slit pockets emphasize its attention to the little details of styling. The skirt has an inverted pleat at the center front. A yellow linen blouse which has a ruffled frill at the neckline and a yellow sailor banded with gray, white and black offer a striking contrast. Black and gray pumps and yellow chamois gloves complete a smart ensemble.

For those blustery days which have been as frequent during early April as they were during March, many women don the country type of rougher tweed suit. Mrs. Boyle O. Rodes, for example, looks as well in this sort of costume as she does in afternoon attire and has been noted on several occasions recently in a suit consisting of brown and tan checked skirt and dark brown, double-breasted jacket. With this she has worn a brimmed hat of brown felt having the high, peaked Tyrolian crown, ghillie ties of brown leather and sable scarf.

The Friday afternoon concerts of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra have been attracting this season a large number of well-dressed St. Louisans and it has been interesting to observe that the debutantes as well as the matrons attend. An exceedingly fashionable person who is always there is Mrs. Vladimir Golschmann, wife of the conductor. She often wears black which is very becoming with her fair skin and blond hair. The artist has sketched her at the center of the group in a well designed afternoon frock of dull black crepe which has exquisite white lace forming a frilly jabot at the neckline. Frills of the lace peep from underneath the edge of the three-quarter length sleeves. A handsome turquoise pin holds the jabot in place and matches the setting of an onyx dinner ring, the two providing just the touches of colors that are needed to enhance this costume. A prystal buckle fastens the fabric belt. Front fullness of the skirt is provided by a shaped and stitched godet.

The hat which Mrs. Golschmann has chosen to complement this frock is also of black crepe and emphasizes the off-the-face vogue. A veil which is of cobweb weight and has a very open mesh is worn to cover the upper part of the face. Plain black pumps complete the costume.

Another devotee of the afternoon symphony concerts has been Mrs. Charles Rice who is attractively dressed at all times. Her most recent costume has been a tailored black frock heightened by white and red. White fabric outlines the standing collar and marks the center front of the blouse while white daisy-shaped buttons are placed at either side. Sleeves are long and tailored. Especially clever are the four little diagonal pockets, two on the blouse and two on the skirt, which fasten with bright red patent leather zippers. Mrs. Rice's glistening rough straw hat which matches her frock has the brim turned up abruptly at one side and down at the other. A bright red quill is tucked into the side of the upturned brim.

Among other matrons who attended this same concert was Mrs. Aaron Rauh in a black suit with which she wore a novelty white crepe overblouse and a black hat having a decided square front brim. Mrs. Leo Rassieur topped her turquoise and black printed frock with a black straw beret of the coolie type.

Many of the young women who have been attending the symphony this spring have preferred the tailored suit. Miss Irene Pettus, for example, was wearing a tailored model of dull blue covered cloth with which she chose brown felt hat and shoes, and added a bright yellow sweater. Her boyish topcoat was of a monotone brown tweed.

—o-o—

THE suit is the favorite costume with the college girl. This is evidenced by the number of Washington University students who have appeared in suits on the campus and at informal college affairs. At a recent event there were suits of all popular shades and types. The diversity of accessories illustrated the wide range of color combinations available this season.

Two costumes have been illustrated together in the circle. Miss Gene Penney, sketched at the left, is wearing a suit of navy blue rough diagonal woolen. The straight-line coat is very boyish in its styling, even to the vent at the

Peeking Petticoats

● The girl who appears in public with her petticoat showing is heralded as a very chic person, rather than being branded as a slovenly individual. The petticoats of this spring season have been designed to be seen—and also to be heard. Taffeta is the favored material, ruffled at the hemline and gored extravagantly so that there is a decided rustle of skirts when the wearer walks.

Many of the newest frocks on display in St. Louis stores have their own petticoats, but should the designer have omitted this fashionable garment, the lingerie counters have a supply rivaling that of the gay nineties. Skirt hemlines slashed at regular intervals permit the petticoat to show when it is made the same length as the frock. A drop of several inches is much more dramatic, especially when the underskirt is a bright and contrasting hue.

Culotte petticoats have been designed for active sportswear, supple fabrics replacing the crisp materials and dark, tailored colors emphasized. These are to be worn with one-piece sports skirts that have full hemlines as well as with the divided skirts that are so popular this season.

The House You Live In

LET ME SUGGEST

by
Josephine Walter

The author of "Let Me Suggest" will answer in this column questions on interior decoration addressed to her in care of the Women's Sunday Magazine.

IN St. Louis shops and stores it's no longer a question of "Shall we buy modern?" but rather, "What kind of modern?" Young newlyweds may now set out gaily to furnish their first homes as modernly as they desire. Time was when a young couple had to suppress such yearnings or be prepared to have everything made to order, which does not usually fit in to the beginner's budget. But the local buyers have evidently decided to respond to many a maiden's prayer.

From the various types of furniture now on display, it is possible to be just as individual in choosing modern pieces as it is to select from some period of the past. No longer need a modern room look like a factory set in a Chaplin film. For modern designers are now permitting you to relax on spongy modern fabrics and run your fingers over smoothly textured woods rather than perching you uncomfortably on chromiums and synthetic leathers.

So take a little jaunt around and have a look even if you don't intend buying any furniture and, above all, if you have always had the feeling that modern furniture is something that should be used in prisons as a form of punishment, the new pieces on display can't help but be a revelation to you.

● IF YOU HAVE gotten hold of some painter whose paternal pride has persuaded him to paint your bedroom walls in exchange for that old baby buggy that little Percy has long since outgrown, you can hardly expect him to spend hours trying to mix the exact shade of chartreuse that you have had in your mind's eye ever since you saw it years ago in a colored photograph in one of the decorating magazines. But be of good cheer; one New York decorator has divulged her secret formula for a delectable shade of chartreuse: two-thirds white lead; one-third lemon yellow, with crome green mixed in the yellow one part to 10.

—o-o—

Neatest trick of the week: A friend of mine had slip covers of transparent oiled silk made for her dining room chairs so that the color of the upholstery fabric shows through. So now the little dears of the family can spill their gravy without creating a domestic crisis and yet the room presents its original color scheme when guests arrive.

—o-o—

There has been a tremendous urge toward more individualized wall treatments for home interiors lately and no more charming method has ever been developed than mural painting. And don't immediately discard that suggestion as way beyond your modest budget. There are a great number of excellent young St. Louis artists who have not yet been crowned with the laurel wreaths of prosperity and posterity who could make your walls bloom with story and color and when you consider how much longer such a treatment would last than more temporary wall coverings, the slightly additional cost might easily prove an economy.

—o-o—

● IF YOU LACK the courage to burst forth with such a revolutionary idea before all your friends why not try fairy story pictures on the nursery walls or some hobby delineated in the game room? One of the most charming houses in St. Louis has a very unusual stained and painted floor done by a young artist who has since had displays of his paintings in many of the New York galleries. And remember: the Government is giving these young artists a chance; why shouldn't you?

THIS WEEK'S decorating term: TOLE: a French word for the alloy of tin and zinc which is very popular at the present time for making lamps, wall brackets and plant stands as well as a great number of other decorative objects.

Question: I wonder if you could tell me the proper material to use in the building of a thatched cottage? Also, what sort of a roof would you put on a neatly built log house? Thanking you for the information.

MRS. C. C. D.,
East St. Louis, Ill.

Answer: Thatched cottages were originally built of stone, brick or plaster, the latter two frequently being whitewashed. In many instances half timbering was combined with any of these. The choice of the material was usually determined by what was to be found in the neighborhood where the cottage was to be built. I am mailing you a picture of a charming little thatched cottage made of half timbering and plaster. Most of the real log cabins to be found in the Ozarks have roofs of split logs with "chinking" between made of sand and cement but if you desire a more dressy finish the roof could be made either of wood shingles or of tin with standing seams.

QUESTION: I have an old Toby jug which I haven't been able, so far, to find out anything about. It is made of mottled dark brown glazed pottery with a man wearing knee breeches, long tailed coat with buttons plainly shown on coat and vest. He has long hair, a three-cornered hat like Washington wore and a bow tie. On the bottom are the initials H. K. The crown of the hat is removable and there is a handle on the back reaching from the neck to below the waist. It stands 10 inches high and holds one quart. If it has any value could you tell me where I could dispose of it?

MRS. O. P.

Answer: I am very sorry to say that I have been unable to locate any information about the Toby jug that you describe although I have made an intensive search among reference books on this subject. The Rockingham potteries were famous for their mottled brown ware but I could not find any that were marked in this manner. Possibly some reader could give us the desired information. I am also sorry that it is impossible for me to give any advice in these columns about where such items may be sold.

—o-o—

Question: I have a very lovely old secretary but to me the glass doors in top part are an eyesore. Do you think it would ruin the piece if I removed these doors and simply left the shelves open?

MRS. L. M. K.

Answer: Might I think that you might remove the glass from the doors and substitute some type of metal grilling instead.

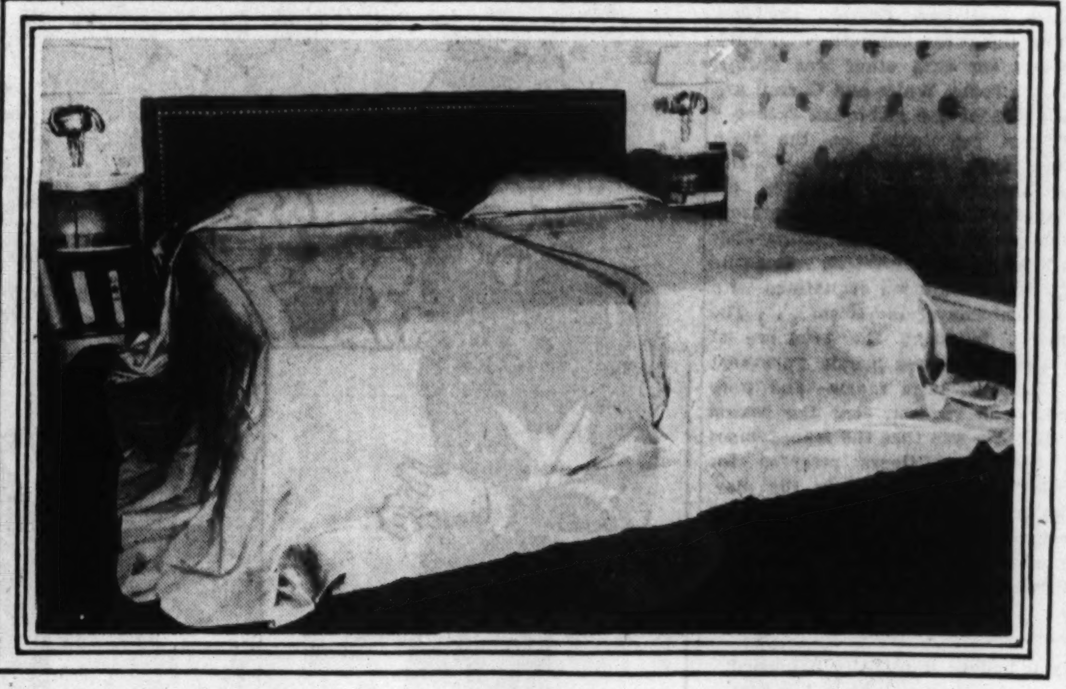
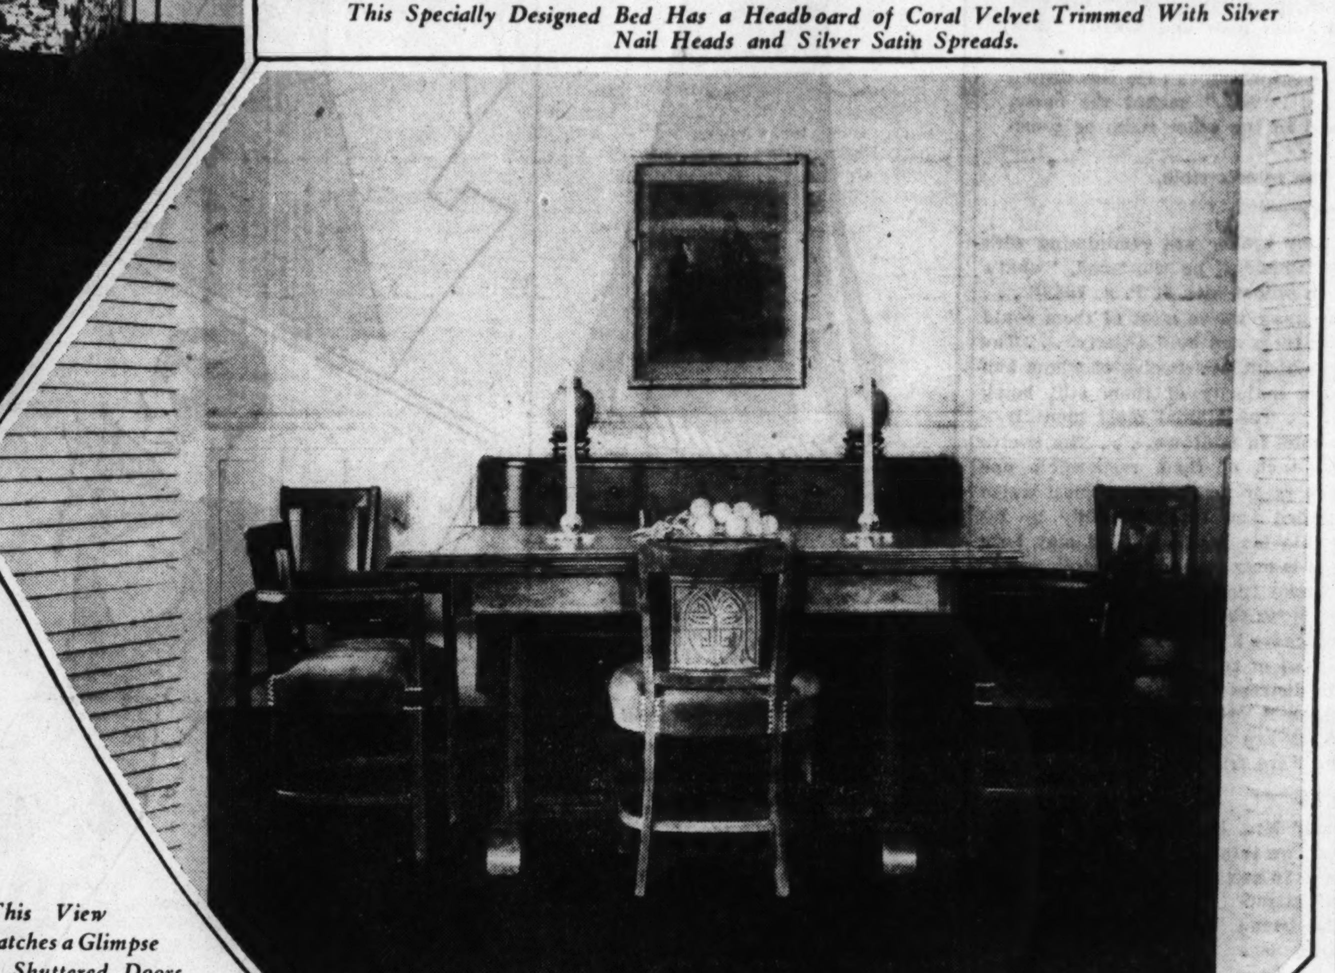
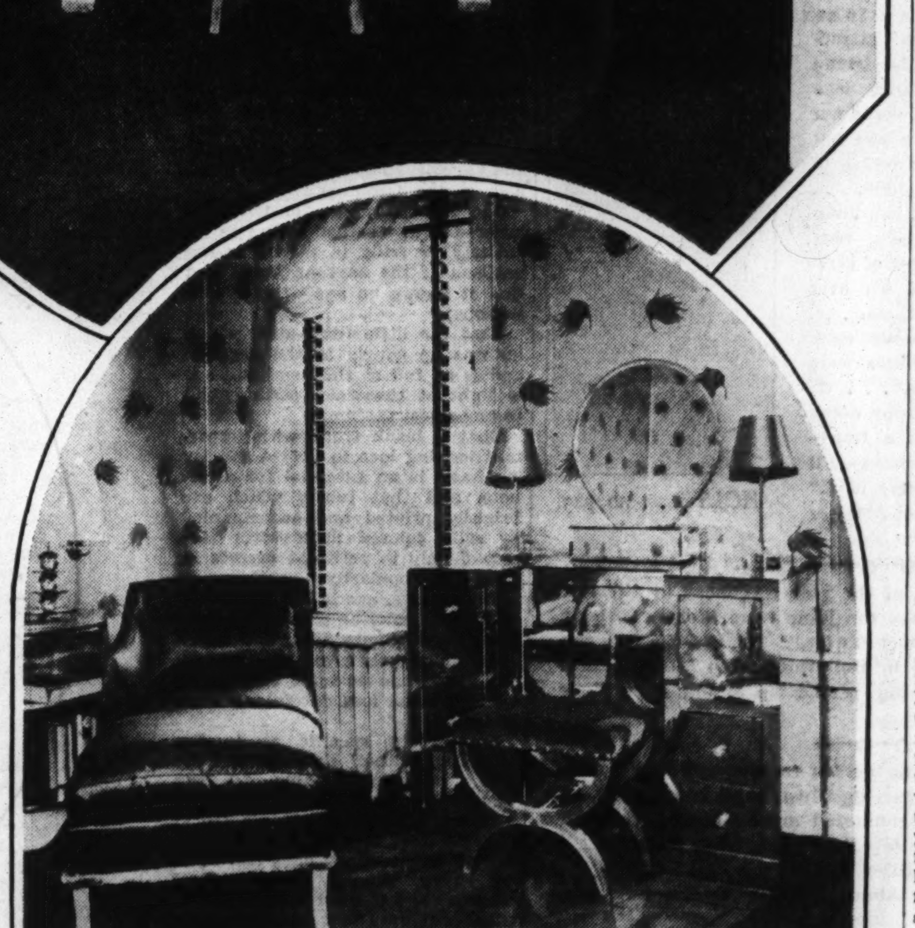
The Colorful Living Room in the Tenenbaum Apartment Is Done in Tones of Gray-White, Deep Blue and Apple Green.



This Specially Designed Bed Has a Headboard of Coral Velvet Trimmed With Silver Nail Heads and Silver Satin Spreads.



In This View One Catches a Glimpse of the Shuttered Doors Placed Between Living and Dining Rooms.



The Mirrored Dressing Table and Cellophane Draperies Add Sparkling Notes to the Bedroom.

HOW often have you sat looking at pictures of beautiful homes and suddenly felt the urge to heave the paper or magazine across the room while muttering to yourself, "That's just dandy, but what would these people do if they lived in a jolly little apartment with the duckiest red brick mantel, lovely stained glass windows and French doors stuck in odd spots throughout the place?"

If you ever have felt such a desire, look at the accompanying pictures and be cheered. For just such problems confronted Mr. and Mrs. Harry Tenenbaum when they started decorating their apartment on Waterman avenue. It had been chosen because the layout of the rooms was ideally suited to their family of four and they felt that any objectionable decorative details might be overcome with thought and planning.

The first stumbling block was encountered in the front hall, where a stained glass window was set high up in the wall, making it almost impossible to drape it effectively in any manner that would hide the glass. As the entire place had to be re-papered, it was a very simple matter to remove the window frame and close up the opening with plaster board. This, however, shut out the only light in the room and thus made it hard to achieve that cheerful note so necessary to a hall—where people get their first impressions of a home. It was decided to give this room a very "gardeny" atmosphere by using an iron bench, with a fretwork back, flanked by two plant stands filled with greenery instead of the more usual console and mirror. The wall paper chosen was in a Venetian Blind pattern in tones of white and gray, so that the effect is of a room lined with windows.

THE two major drawbacks in the living room, opening off the hall, were the wood panelled dado, interesting in itself, but stained dark brown in tone, and the big brick fireplace which was hopeless from a style viewpoint. To paint the panelling was a simple matter, but it took thought and ingenuity to make the mantelpiece attractive. A wood shell was placed around it and some simple mouldings applied, for it was desired to keep it as restrained as possible so that its proportions would not dwarf the room. The breast of the chimney was completely covered by a plain mirror and the mantel ornamented with a pair of urns filled with frosted and clear glass flowers on either side of a modern head which is in keeping with the spirit of the room.

The room itself has been built around a very fine print of a Van Gogh painting, which is in tones of grey-white, deep blue and apple green. The wallpaper is in deep blue with a geometric motif in off-white, and the carpet here, as well as in the hall and dining room, is also of the blue tone. The matching couches flanking the fireplace are covered in a deep blue chintz patterned in leaves of apple green and white. The sheer curtains are apple green in color and are effectively hung from crystal rods with mirrored arrow tips. All of the furniture in the room is English Eighteenth Century in design, but expresses a modern feeling of being made of dealwood, one of the new "blond" woods so much in vogue at the moment. The piano was sprayed with white paint to make it blend with the background, since the room is rather small proportioned and a big, dark piano would be apt to dwarf it.

The large opening between living and dining rooms was filled with French doors, again presenting a decorating problem, as it was desired to introduce different colors in the dining room. Thus the same curtain fabrics would not be suited to both rooms. These doors, therefore, were replaced by shutter doors which are not only attractive in themselves, but practical as well, when it is desirable to screen off the dining room.

The color scheme for this room was taken from the wall paper with its bamboo yellow background and delicate Chinese design in tones of deep blue and tangerine. The furniture, Chinese modern in feeling, is made of oak which has been specially dyed to match the deep blue tone of paper and rug. Chair seats and straight hanging draperies are of tangerine velvet, the latter being hung from a bamboo pole. Bamboo, too, was used in framing the fine old Chinese painting on silk and the modern lighting fixture which was also especially designed for the room. The accessories of this room have been selected with infinite care, particularly nottable being the fine cinnamon jars and the glass fruit on the table, the exact tone of the velvet chair seats.

Off the dining room is a sunroom, which presented no problem except that Mrs. Tenenbaum desired it to be a card and bar room rather than a regular sunroom. With a brown and white tile floor to start with, it was decided to carry out this room in these two tones. Walls were painted a deep chocolate brown to avoid too "sunny" a feeling in a room of this type and all of the windows were hung with Venetian blinds in white with bands of brown and no draperies at all. The bridge table was made with a columned base and two matching columns were placed at either side of the room to provide indirect lighting. Also classical in feeling is the long, low couch covered in cocoa velvet and the four comfortable bridge chairs upholstered in white leather piped in brown. The attractive bad is made of cork and before it are placed tall bar stools covered in brown leather. The only note of color in the entire room is a pair of amusing pictures with bright blue backgrounds.

The only thing wrong with the master bedroom was its size and, as that could not be remedied, it was necessary to select the furniture with unusual care so that it would not dwarf the room, A striking color scheme also was chosen to divert attention from the proportions of the room. The wallpaper has a design of coral fans on a silver background and coral, too, is the tone of the rug. Twin beds are placed against a single headboard covered in coral velvet with a design of silver nail heads and spreads are of silver satin. All of the wood pieces in the room are modern in design and executed in hardwood, which is a silvery grey in tone; while Mrs. Tenenbaum's dressing table is made entirely of mirrors. The third note of color is introduced in the sapphire blue satin chaise lounge and in the binding on the grey cellophane curtains which are hung beneath mirrored valances.

The two children's rooms, at the end of the hall, are each done in a distinctive manner. The boy's room, nautical in feeling, is done in tones of red, white and blue, with maple furniture, while the little girl's room has been kept dainty and feminine. Colors in her room are a soft, baby blue and corn yellow with painted furniture in an off-white tone.

This article is presented with fear and trembling for, although I hope it may prove helpful in solving some decorating problems, I also hope that every landlord in town will not be out gunning for my scalp.

JOSEPHINE WALTER.

Pots and Pans Acquire New Style

STYLE in pots and pans reaches new heights this year. It has been developing somewhat slowly in the last five years—but at a dizzy speed compared with the unchanging traditions of kitchenware during the previous hundred years.

This re-styling began when a kitchenware manufacturer turned a well-known artist loose on the idea of a coffee pot and the result was a colonial pot of real beauty. Then the teakettle was amazingly changed into a stream-lined affair with the handle and spout part of the design instead of stuck-on afterthoughts; the handle was squat, off-center and grooved for the fingers.

Then a Russian count transformed a line of enameled ware—skillets, teakettles, pots and pans—with real modern design, but, of course, in a Russian manner.

This year, all kitchenware seems to be styled—not only for beauty, but also for use. Broad flat bottoms fit snugly over gas and electric plates; corners are rounded for easy cleaning. Handles are modernized, easy to grasp and balance the pots so they don't tip. Lids are made to stay on—drip lines are out, so that domes fit smoothly. Colors, red, black or others, make handles interesting, and composition is used for knobs.

From the Ground Up

by
Amy Lu Schmitz

Mrs. Schmitz is a St. Louis landscape designer. She studied at Washington University and the University of Michigan. She will answer, in this column, questions concerning garden problems addressed to her in care of the Post-Dispatch Women's Sunday Magazine.

AS the cold snap has held back the spring growth of plants, there is lots more time to clean-up and plant-up this year. Take a critical tour of the garden and make your plans for setting everything in order. If your shrubbery is too crowded and large, cut it out or move it. If the three-foot pines or spruces of a few years ago are now six footers and are overlapping, move one or two before they get too large to handle. The large, fast-growing evergreens (pines, spruce and fir) should be planted where their eventual height is needed for shade or for a screen. Use junipers, dwarf pines, hemlock, block hill or Alberta spruce for under-plantings. The tall-growing shrubs (forsythia, spirea van houtte, mock orange, lilacs, viburnum) should be relegated to the background, and instead use spirea anthony waterer, deutzia gracilis, snowberry, honeysuckle, mock orange virginalis, etc., for plantings that are to stay low. Even if the shrub is now coming into leaf, it can be moved with a ball of earth, just as evergreens are moved. Water the transplant regularly and it will quickly acclimate itself to the new location. If plants are too large to move and too good to be torn out, then do some careful pruning. All the spring flowering shrubs are pruned immediately after the blossoms are gone, cutting out the old wood and shearing off the spray ends. All summer blooming shrubs will have to wait until fall for pruning. Evergreens can be sheared after May 15 until the new growth hardens in July. A little shearing each year will develop fuller and more vigorous plants, and keep your garden in ship-shape condition.

EVERGREENS that have been struggling through a winter in the St. Louis smog belt are badly in need of a bath. Make a solution of good laundry soap in warm water and spray on the trees until the grime drips off. Then turn the garden hose on them and rinse thoroughly. This should restore a good deal of their green color and their lust for living.

Remove leaf covering and mulches from around your plants between the middle of April and of May 1. Take only about half the covering off at first, then in 10 days or two weeks remove the rest, or if the ground is hard and heavy, spade in this remaining mulch. If there has been no mulch around your plants this winter, the ground will be packed solid and in much need of cultivation. Get yourself a good sharp spade and set to work. Turn over and loosen the soil to about six inches in depth around all the plants in your garden. If the so-called soil is nothing but hard-pan clay, you better spade in some peat moss, bone meal, or well-rotted manure. This spring tonic will result in stronger plants that will grow in spite of summer droughts.

Besides the spring cleaning plans, you will certainly want some new trees and shrubs for the garden. Have you enough shade for the south and west rooms, and particularly for the porch? If not, put in a few more shade trees—American elm, sweet gum, pin oak or red maple are the best long-lived trees. If you want the shade quickly, plant Carolina or lombardy poplar, Chinese elm, or silver maple, but start the hard wood trees now too so that they will be of good height when the soft wood trees die. Plant the large growing shrubs along your property lines to act as screens for unpleasant views around your home. If you have a firing-line effect across the back or down the sides of your property, vary it by using different sized plants, widen and heighten the corner groups and add a few evergreens for accent.

—o-o—

IF you have no porch to help you through the dog days of a St. Louis summer, you can plant yourself an outdoor living room. Select a level place in your garden—at least 10 feet square—that has shade in the afternoon and easy access to the house door. Inclose it with shrubs and trees for privacy and border it with flower beds for color. Keep it all quite simple in design, and get hardy, fast-growing stock now from your nurseryman. As you will use this outdoor living room in warm weather, elect summer blooming shrubs, such as the meadow or briar roe, weigelia, althea, honeysuckle, snowberry, summer-blooming spirea or bush clover. Use a few evergreens for their dark green color, and low-growing trees—such as redbud, flowering dogwood or peach—for a naturalistic effect.

Food and Drink

SAUCE for the GOOSE

by

Irma S. Rombauer

Mrs. Rombauer is a St. Louisan and an accepted authority on things culinary. She has written several books on the subject, the most recent of which is "The Joy of Cooking," soon to be published.

IRVIN COBB once wrote an entertaining article about the average European's aversions to taking a bath. He said: "As the fatal day approaches the Frenchman puts on a little perfume and waits." My attitude toward having my hair washed resembles the Frenchman's —(only I use orris-root).

When I can no longer face the world unless I sacrifice a few hours of my busy day to cleanliness, I dash madly to a neighborhood beauty parlor where I submit to the competent ministrations of its operators. In a short time I am immaculately curled (if doubtfully beautified) and seated under a drying machine.

Now come complete physical and mental relaxation. A great sheaf of movie and radio magazines is thrust upon me. I seize it as eagerly as a sufferer reaches for an anodyne. My mind takes a holiday and floats away from every-day happenings to the greater and lesser constellations who give the American so much to talk about.

These magazines are a revelation to me. In them the great and the near great are discussed or write articles explaining themselves — in part, at least—(a brave undertaking in some instances.) Countless people contribute letters of praise, of blame — of inquiry. Many of the letters sound as if prompted by the curiosity of idle minds. On the whole, these epistles are food for study — examples of the vox populi of the day.— as varied and as variable as they have always been. Suddenly the turbid mass of matters concerning the "on goings" of well known actors and actresses is pierced by a shaft of light for I find an article about Helen Hayes.

—o-o—

● A SANE QUALITY emanates from this pleasing personality—one senses a balanced mind—a happy nature—a serene acceptance of life's responsibilities. Now in addition to her histrionic gifts we learn that Helen Hayes is a cook. She has a number of unusual dishes—her specialties—some of which she prepares herself. Here is one of them:

Chinese Pork and Pineapple.

One pound fresh pork, cut from loin.

One and one-half cups diced celery.

Three-fourths cup pineapple tidbits (canned pineapple cut in segments, but not crushed pineapple).

One-half cup pineapple juice.

One tablespoon bottled Chinese sauce (soy sauce).

Additional water, as required.

Boiled rice.

Have butcher cut pork into very small cubes (approximately one-half inch). Place pork in deep skillet and fry in its own fat until it has lost its pink color (but do not brown). Add diced celery, pineapple and pineapple juice. Cover and cook gently for three-fourths hour, stirring frequently and adding a little water, if and when needed, to prevent burning. After 45 minutes, add Chinese soy sauce, cover again and simmer 15 minutes longer or until pork is tender. Serve with hot boiled rice. Pass additional soy sauce at the table. (Soy sauce is very salty, so no salt is called for in the recipe). The rice, should have been cooked in boiling salted water until tender, then drained, rinsed, steamed in a colander over hot water, a few minutes to achieve perfect results.

This sounds so tempting that I can hardly wait to try it out. On the way home I do some hurried shopping and soon after I dash bundle-laden and panting into the kitchen to consult my cook, Sarah Brown. Our huddle results in the following decision: The proportions of the recipe are to be reduced and the soy sauce is to be omitted. Let those who wish indulge in it—the dish should be good without it. We decide to try it out in the following manner and to call it:

—o-o—

● PORK, PINEAPPLE and Celery Dish: Cut into one-half cubes, one-half pound lean pork. Place it in a deep 10-inch skillet. Cook it gently until it is no longer pink. Stir it frequently.

One cup diced celery.

Six tablespoons sliced pineapple cut into wedges.

One-quarter cup pineapple juice.

Cover the skillet closely. Cook these ingredients gently for about one hour. Stir them frequently. Add, if required to prevent burning, boiling water. Keep the stew rather dry. Season it with: Salt, paprika.

Serve it with: Boiled noodles.

*One and one-half teaspoons soy sauce may be added for the last 15 minutes of cooking. In that case omit the salt and pepper. Additional soy sauce may be passed at table.

As this is cooking a delicious odor permeates the kitchen. Frequent inspections tend to heighten our curiosity. Presently we are ready to be served. Sarah, who has a good sense of color (or the lack of it) has placed the stew in an attractive flat dish and has garnished the center with a few tablespoonfuls of finely chopped parsley. Green beans (really green), lightly buttered, and a bowl of creamy noodles sprinkled with crushed corn flakes complete this course. We do not add bread for we belong to the calorie counters, fortunately not as yet to the dieters. Of course our count is a biased one with the benefit of the doubt always on the side of the consumer.

The new dish is heartily commended. It has character and distinction. As the day is chill we manage to tuck away most of it with gusto — but there is, as usual, a lengthy discussion as to the number the dish will serve. We finally agree that 4 servings — generous servings — is right.

This course is followed by a salad of sliced tomato and country lettuce.

As there were no garlic or onions used in the stew (there might have been, of course) we have a few chopped chives in the French dressing.

Our dessert consists of the simple, well flavored gelatine pudding that follows:

Carmel Sponge, Four Servings.

Soak:

One tablespoonful gelatine in:

One-quarter cup cold water.

Stir and melt in a heavy skillet until light brown:

One-half cup sugar.

One-half cup hot water.

When the sugar is dissolved add the soaked gelatine. Stir it until it is dissolved.

Scald:

One-half cup milk.

Beat it into:

Two egg yolks

Add:

One-half cup sugar.

Cook and stir these ingredients over a low flame until the yolks begin to thicken. Add the caramel mixture. Chill these ingredients until they are about to set. Whip until stiff:

Two egg whites.

One-eighth teaspoon salt.

Fold in:

One-half teaspoon vanilla.

Fold these ingredients lightly into the custard. Chill the pudding thoroughly. Serve it with:

Cream.

By way of elaboration you may fold in, if you wish, before the egg whites are added:

One-half cup broken nut meats.

The cheer that comes in the wake of good food is upon us. Over our coffee and cigarettes we sing the praises of Helen Hayes.

Corn Soup Paseo

Scald one quart of milk with a slice of onion, several pieces of celery and one small bay leaf. Simmer until the vegetables are soft, then rub all through a colander. Blend a generous tablespoon of butter and one of flour, and add to the milk and strain with a pint of cream and let cook for a few minutes. Have cooked three-fourth cup each of finely diced celery and carrots. Cook one can of corn for 15 minutes and rub through a sieve. Mix all together. Season with salt and pepper to taste and reheat.

Baked Shad

Clean and bone a shad weighing from four to five pounds. Season with salt and pepper and spread with creamed butter. Butter a glass baking platter and heat thoroughly, then place on the platter and bake in a moderate oven about 25 minutes. Around edge of platter pipe well-beaten and seasoned mashed potatoes and fill in space between potatoes and fish with cucumber boats filled with creamed peas. Run under flame to slightly brown potatoes and to heat all thoroughly. Serve a savory sauce from a gravy boat.

Savory Sauce

Mix one teaspoon of dry mustard, one-fourth teaspoon of paprika, one-half teaspoon of salt, one teaspoon of Worcestershire sauce, one tablespoon of chopped parsley and the juice of one lemon with one-half stick of butter. Melt together and serve very hot.

Cucumber Boats

Peel and halve desired number of cucumbers and scoop out seeds. Put in boiling salted water with a little lemon juice and a slice of onion and let cook for about 20 minutes. Drain and fill with creamed fresh peas.

Rye Crescents

One-half cake of yeast.

One cup of warm water.

One-fourth cup lard.

One-fourth cup sugar.

One and one-half cups of rye flour.

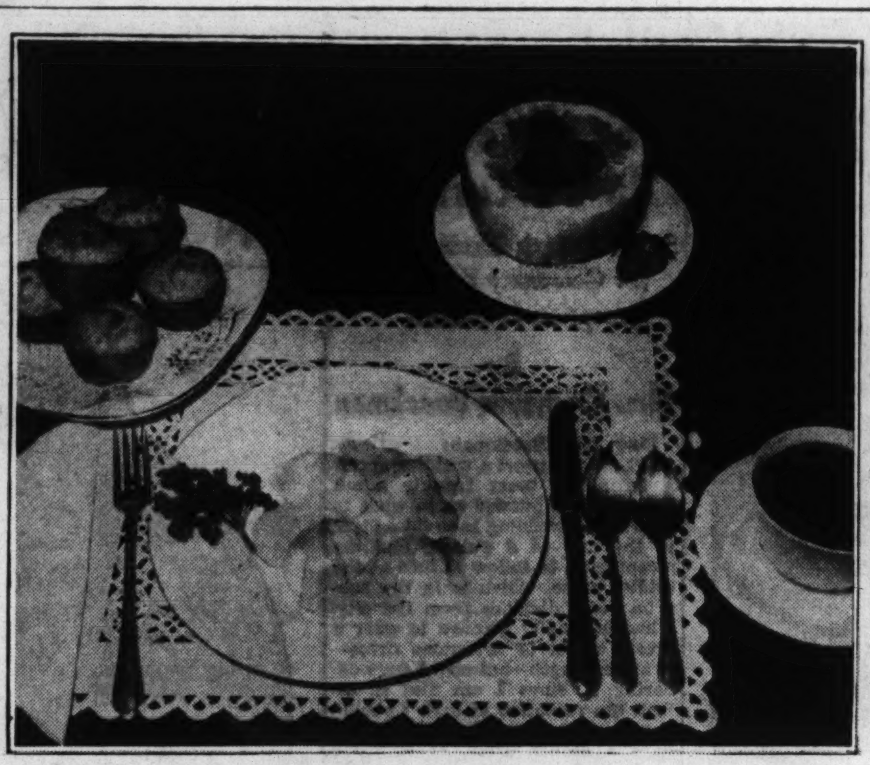
Two cups white flour.

One teaspoon salt.

Dissolve the yeast in the warm water and pour over sugar and lard. Into this sift the rye flour, white flour and salt. Knead thoroughly and place in refrigerator, lightly covered. This dough should be prepared in the morning. Two and a half hours before baking remove from refrigerator and roll out and cut into squares, then in triangles. Brush each triangle with melted butter and roll, shaping into crescents. Let rise in a warm place. Bake in a moderate oven for 20 minutes. Brush immediately with beaten egg yolk and sprinkle with coarse salt.

Macaroon Pudding

Dip eighteen large macaroons in one cup of sherry. Beat four eggs until light, add four tablespoons of light brown sugar, one cup of blanched and ground almonds, two cups of milk, one cup of stale sponge cake or toasted bread crumbs and flavor with one teaspoon of almond extract. Butter a mold, line with the macaroons and fill with the mixture. Place remaining macaroons on top. Set in a pan of water and bake until firm. Unmold and serve with a wine sauce or whipped cream sweetened and flavored with sherry.



A Breakfast to Make Your Mouth Water

The Big Parade of EASTER DISHES

Fresh Fruits, Vegetables, Salads and Meats Bring the Very Spirit of Spring to Your Table.

By Marie L. Casteen

TO PLAN an attractive menus for the post-Easter days it is necessary to feature dishes that convey the thought of spring to your family and guests. You must interpret in terms of food the warmth of the sunshine, the freshness of the showers, the crispness of the breezes and the beautiful colors of the flowers that belong to April. It is very simple to plan such a menu, if you will remember that the fruits and vegetables in season this month are closely associated with your thoughts of April.

So we plan our parade of spring dishes with the spring market in mind and not forgetting that eggs, too, belong in our menus.

Breakfast

Strawberries and Grapefruit
Golden Stuffed Eggs Bacon Curls
Corn Dodgers
Butter Maple Syrup
Coffee

Dinner

Cream of Tomato Soup, Whipped Cream
Crown Roast of Spring Lamb
Glazed Baby Carrots Butter Asparagus
Creamed Browned Potatoes
Hot Parker House Rolls
Easter Salad
Fresh Mint Dressing
Frozen Rhubarb Whip
Custard Sauce
Coffee

Supper

Spring Salad Bowl
Roquefort Cheese Dressing
Chicken Sandwich Fritters
Fresh Pineapple
Sunshine Cake
Hot Chocolate Coffee

Strawberries and Grapefruit

3 grapefruit
1 pint strawberries
¼ cup powdered sugar

Cut grapefruit in halves, crosswise. Remove the pulp in sections, place in bowl with the juice. From four grapefruit halves, remove white membrane and inner part of rind and place shells in cold water. Look over strawberries, wash, hull and reserve 12 of the largest leaving the stems on. Slice the remainder and add powdered sugar. When ready to serve place two tablespoons of strawberries in bottom of each grapefruit shell. Fill with grapefruit sections leaving a hollow in the center in which three large strawberries are placed. This recipe makes four portions.

Golden Stuffed Eggs

Six hard-cooked eggs.

One-half cup ground rice crispies.

Three strips bacon, cooked and diced.

One-half teaspoon salt.

One-eighth teaspoon pepper.

Pinch cayenne pepper.

One-quarter teaspoon dry mustard.

Few drops Worcestershire sauce.

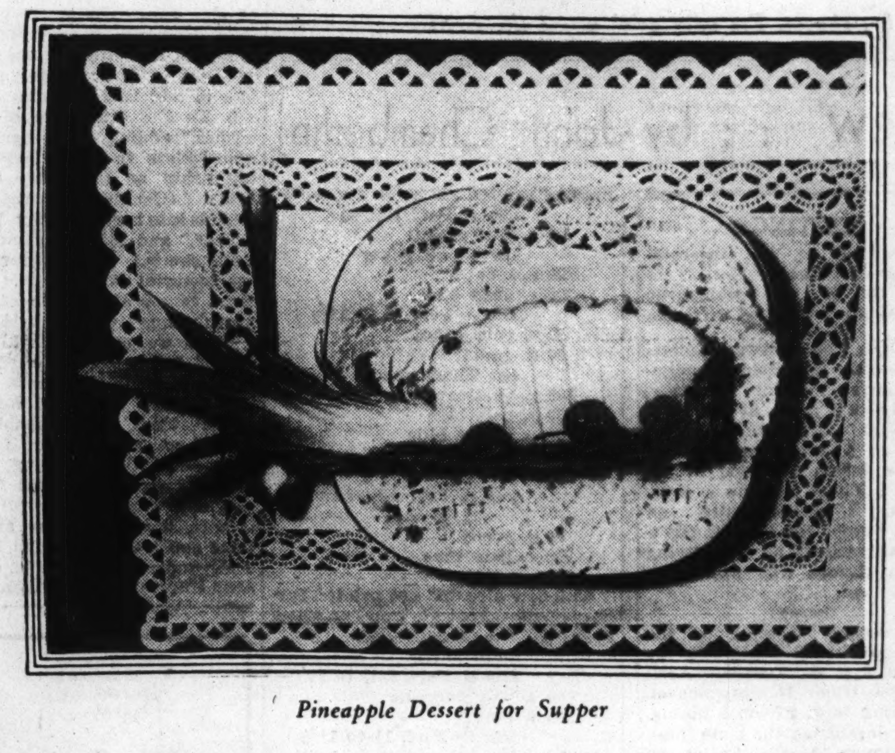
Milk.

Four slices toast.

Three tablespoons butter, melted.

Yellow cream sauce.

Cut eggs in half lengthwise, remove yolks and mash them. Add one-quarter cup rice crispies, bacon and seasonings. Mix well and add enough milk to moisten. Blend together until of soft, creamy consistency. Refill the whites with the mixture. Place toast in shallow baking dish, pour batter over it and place three stuffed egg halves, cut side down, on top of each slice of toast. Pour yellow cream sauce over the eggs and sprinkle remaining rice crispies over top. Bake in moderately slow oven, 325 degrees F. 15 or 20 minutes until thoroughly heated. This recipe makes four portions.



Pineapple Dessert for Supper

Yellow Cream Sauce

Two tablespoons butter.

One and one-half tablespoons all-purpose flour.

One and one-half cups milk.

One-half teaspoon salt.

One egg yolk.

One-quarter cup light cream.

Melt butter in top of double boiler. Blend in flour. Then add milk gradually, stirring until mixture is thick and smooth. Add salt and cook about three minutes. Remove from stove. Beat egg yolk and cream together until well blended. Add to sauce. Mix thoroughly before pouring over eggs.

Corn Dodgers

Three-quarters teaspoon salt.

Two cups boiling water.

One cup yellow corn meal.

Add salt to water and boil rapidly. Add corn meal slowly and stir until a thick mush is formed. Fill greased muffin tins about two-thirds full with the mush. Bake for 25 minutes, in a very hot oven 450 degrees F. Spread butter on top and serve immediately. This recipe makes eight dodgers.

Glazed Baby Carrots

Ten small carrots.

Three cups boiling water.

Sweet sour sauce.

Scrape and wash carrots and cut in halves, lengthwise. Cook in boiling water until tender. Place in shallow greased baking pan. Pour sweet sour sauce over carrots and bake for 25 minutes in a hot oven 400 degrees F. This recipe makes four portions.

Easter Salad

Two (three-ounce) packages cream cheese or one cup cottage cheese.

Salt.

Cream.

Green vegetable coloring.

One-half head lettuce, shredded.

Watercress.

Dash of black pepper.

Fresh mint dressing.

Season cheese to taste with salt and add just enough cream to make of soft smooth consistency. Tint a delicate green with the vegetable coloring. Mold into shape and size of robin's eggs, making 12 nests of shredded lettuce. Garnish with a few sprigs of watercress. Sprinkle black pepper very lightly over the cheese balls and serve with fresh mint dressing. This recipe makes four salads.

Sweet Sour Sauce

One-half cup water.

Three-quarters tablespoon cornstarch.

Two tablespoons granulated sugar.

One-quarter teaspoon salt.

One and one-half tablespoons lemon juice.

One tablespoon butter.

Bring water to boiling point. Combine cornstarch, sugar and salt. Stir into boiling water and cook about eight minutes, stirring constantly. Add lemon juice and butter. When latter is melted, pour sauce over carrots.

Fresh Mint Dressing

One-half cup vinegar.

One and one-half cups water.

One-half cup fresh mint, minced.

One-quarter cup lemon juice.

One and one-half tablespoons granulated sugar.

One-half teaspoon salt.

Place vinegar, one cup of the water and one-quarter cup of the chopped mint in saucepan. Simmer until reduced to one-half original quantity. Remove from heat and strain through fine strainer. Add remaining water, lemon juice, sugar and salt. Chill thoroughly before adding the remaining chopped mint leaves. This recipe makes one and one-quarter cups dressing.

Frozen Rhubarb Whip

One cup uncooked rhubarb, very finely chopped.

One cup granulated sugar.

One egg white.

Custard sauce.

Have all ingredients very cold. Combine in mixing bowl and beat until mixture becomes as stiff as meringue. As this requires at least five minutes of constant beating, it is best to use a mechanical mixer. Pour into freezing tray of automatic refrigerator and freeze about three hours, with temperature control set at highest point. When ready to serve, remove from pan and serve in slices with chilled custard sauce. This recipe makes six portions.

Spring Salad Bowl

To an assortment of crisp salad greens cut into about 1½-inch lengths, add sliced radishes, cucumber slices and tomato sections in any desired amounts. Toss together. When ready to serve, put greens in salad bowl. Serve with Roquefort cheese dressing.

Chicken Sandwich Fritters

One egg yolk, beaten.

Three-quarters cup medium white sauce.

Two cups chicken, finely chopped.

Salt.

Pepper.

Eight slices bread.

Two eggs.

One cup milk.

One-quarter cup butter.

Parsley.

Stir egg yolk into white sauce. Combine wtih chicken and season to taste with salt and pepper. Trim off crusts from bread. Spread filling about one-half inch thick on four slices and cover with remaining ones. Press lightly together, wrap in wax paper and place in refrigerator until ready to use. Beat eggs well. Stir in milk. Dip sandwiches into this mixture and fry in butter until nicely browned on both sides. Garnish with parsley and serve at once. This recipe makes four portions. Other kinds of cold chopped meat may be substituted for the chicken.

TOSSING 'EM OFF

FASHIONS change with the seasons for the connoisseur, at least for the connoisseur who came through prohibition with their sensibilities unimpaired. With the advent of warmer weather, tastes in general are likely to shift, the wine stewards say, from the drinks that foster a "fever," like highballs and toddies, to the long, cool beverages.

"Count" Henry Hoffman, hospitality chief in the Hofbrau at Hotel Mayfair, recently returned from Florida with a new sub-tropical drink which he intends to launch as soon as the right glasses arrive—elongated egg-shaped glasses with tall stems, which bring your temperature down a few notches just to look at them. The drink hails from Havana. It's a little like a Daiqueri, but served with plenty of shaved ice in the glass. "The Count" keeps an eagle eye on his barmen while they practice mixing it, but they will be ready to serve it by the time the glasses arrive. It's is to be called an "Havana swizzle."

With grand opera performances just around the corner Will Dorner in the Hotel Jefferson taproom plans to revive what he calls an "Opera Cocktail." "Bill" concocted it in competition with other bartenders. He won't give away the formula, naturally enough, but it tastes something like a dry Martini with a slight mint flavor. Most of his calls are still for Scotch highballs and Old-fashioneds or toddies for the ladies. He deplores the taste for mint juleps and Planter's Punch this early in the season, because, he says, they are really hot weather drinks.

IN the Cafe Rouge at Hotel Statler they get more calls for toddies and Scotch highballs than for anything else. Bartenders generally distinguish between just plain whisky—which means Bourbon or rye—and honest-to-goodness Scotch. They regard it as a healthy sign that drinkers are switching more and more to imported whiskies with the minimum of mixer. Mixed drinks are definitely in a decline, they say, except for the ladies, who stick to Sidecars, Pink Ladies and Manhattans for luncheon cocktails. "And how some of them can pour it down," one barman said. "They'll have several while their ecsort is content with one highball or a stein of beer with his meal."

Table wines are slowly gaining popularity, especially sherry, but are still too expensive for most purses. The man behind the Statler bar predicts a revival, with warm weather, of all the gin drinks—gin fizzes, silver fizzes (the white of an egg and a dash of cream is the only difference between the two), Tom Collins, and "the long sours." That is, a whisky sour, stretched out, like a Collins, and served in a tall glass with a generous amount of cracked ice.

Out at the Park Plaza, they are already getting many calls for juleps. And they have laid in the mint to take care of them.

—o-o—

JIM JENNINGS, who presides over the bar in the Grill Room at the American Hotel, thinks the cold spring will keep drinkers on a whisky diet for a while, but it's only a question of time before they change to gin. With warm weather he looks for a revival of interest in the so-called "American Cocktail," otherwise known as "Mr. Martin's Special." (E. Berkley Martin is manager of the hotel.) We won't try to give you the proportions for mixing it, because about all that was recognizable was the cream of mint flavor.

Bock beer, the goat-head advertisements for which are one of the reliable signs of spring, is out again, to stay about 30 days. It is darker than the year-round brew because it has caramel salt in it, and is supposed to have aged eight months. Many legends have grown up about the beer, one of which is told by the assistant brewmaster of a St. Louis brewery. He has traced the origin of the brew to early days before proper refrigeration, when no beer could be made during the warm months. Competing to make their last brew of the spring their most potent, a group of brewmasters got together to sample their choicest products. Full of too much beer, one by one they wove out of the tavern, and the last to go stumbled over a goat in the doorway. Defending his sobriety, he insisted it was the "Bock" and not the beer that threw him off his balance.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK— *SALT CODFISH PIE.

1 cupful salt codfish
2 cupfuls riced potatoes
½ cupful cracker crumbs
¼ cupful grated cheese
1 egg
½ cupful milk
2 tablespoonfuls butter, fat or oil
parsley

Shred the codfish and soak in lukewarm water for 15 minutes. Drain, add the potatoes and milk and put in a greased baking dish. Spread with the eggs beaten lightly. Cover with the crumbs mixed with the melted fat, and sprinkle with the grated cheese. Bake at 500 degrees F. for 12 minutes. Serve garnished with parsley. Serves four.

OFF the LEASH

by

H. F. Owen

H. F. Owen is the nationally known St. Louis dog trainer. He will answer questions concerning dogs addressed to him in care of the Women's Sunday Magazine.

SOME dogs are well mannered; some aren't. Dogs, like people, have to be taught. Training is to the dog, what education is to the child. A trained dog is a pleasure to own, and a source of pride to the owner. On the other hand, a dog that becomes "deaf" when called, jumps up on the master or mistress with muddy feet, or tugs so hard on the leash that he gives the impression he is leading his master, may be a constant annoyance.

The pride of the owner, who can leave his dog alone in the house, with full confidence that upon his return he will not find torn rugs, or wild confusion, is easy to understand. It cannot be denied, that in training the dog, the owner must go to some trouble, to accomplish anything, but it is time well spent in consideration of the fact that a little effort now will save many a strain on the disposition later. This does not mean that the dog must undergo an elaborate course of training, but simply the mastering of a few simple exercises such as coming when called, sitting, lying down, heeling properly at the left side of the master on or off leash.

The practical value of these exercises is easily seen since a dog who has mastered them is easy to control, and will not make a nuisance of himself. Another advantage has to do with the obedience trials that the becoming popular at dog shows. At these trials, the handler works the dog in competition with other exhibitors, and so gets double pleasure from a show. In the East and in England, where these tests originated, women have been the most consistent winners, which goes to prove that this is another field of sport, which offers women an equal chance with men. No breed has a monopoly on brains, and all may benefit.

—o-o—

● If training is important, we may as well begin telling how it's done right now. Today we will tell how a puppy may be house-broken; this will be the first of a series in lessons in training. Teaching a puppy house-manners should be started when the puppy is nine or 10 weeks old. Puppies younger than that seldom see well, nor can they locate sounds well, so it is difficult for them to locate you when they hear you calling. When they finally do locate you, they are likely to become so frightened at the seemingly large form looming above them and make a mistake which to them was done unknowingly.

Puppies should be made to form a habit of going out of doors rather than be punished for doing a natural and unavoidable act in the house.

Watch your puppy, and as soon as he has eaten, finished drinking or awakened from a nap, walk to the door, calling him in a "let's go play" tone. Then take him to an inconspicuous place in the yard and stand quietly, paying little attention to him. Praise him, and take him to another part of the yard or into the house and play with him. The younger the puppy, the oftener he will have to be taken out, but you will be surprised to see how quickly he will learn what you want of nim. If you will go with him to the chosen part of the yard a few times, he will always go there and come flying back to you for his praise and play.

The procedure at night is to tie the puppy by a chain, so that you can hear him when he gets restless. Then get up and let him out. Another way is to get a small dog house, such as are on sale in several stores in St. Louis. The one in mind is quite cheap, light in weight and durable, and has a grilled door, which can be locked, making it ideal for house-breaking puppies, for when they wish to go out at night, they soon learn that they have to make a noise to attract their master.

Do not leave a young dog loose in the home or basement until you have confidence in him, for like a child, he will probably get into mischief or forget himself, thus getting into the habit of doing the things you have been trying to teach him not to do.

Next week we will tell how the dog may be taught to lead and heel.

● The third annual Villa Duchesne dog show will be held at the school's grounds on Conway road on Saturday, May 2. All breeds will be judged by some half-dozen judges working in three rings. Miss Abigail Gross is in charge of the show. Entries close on April 25.

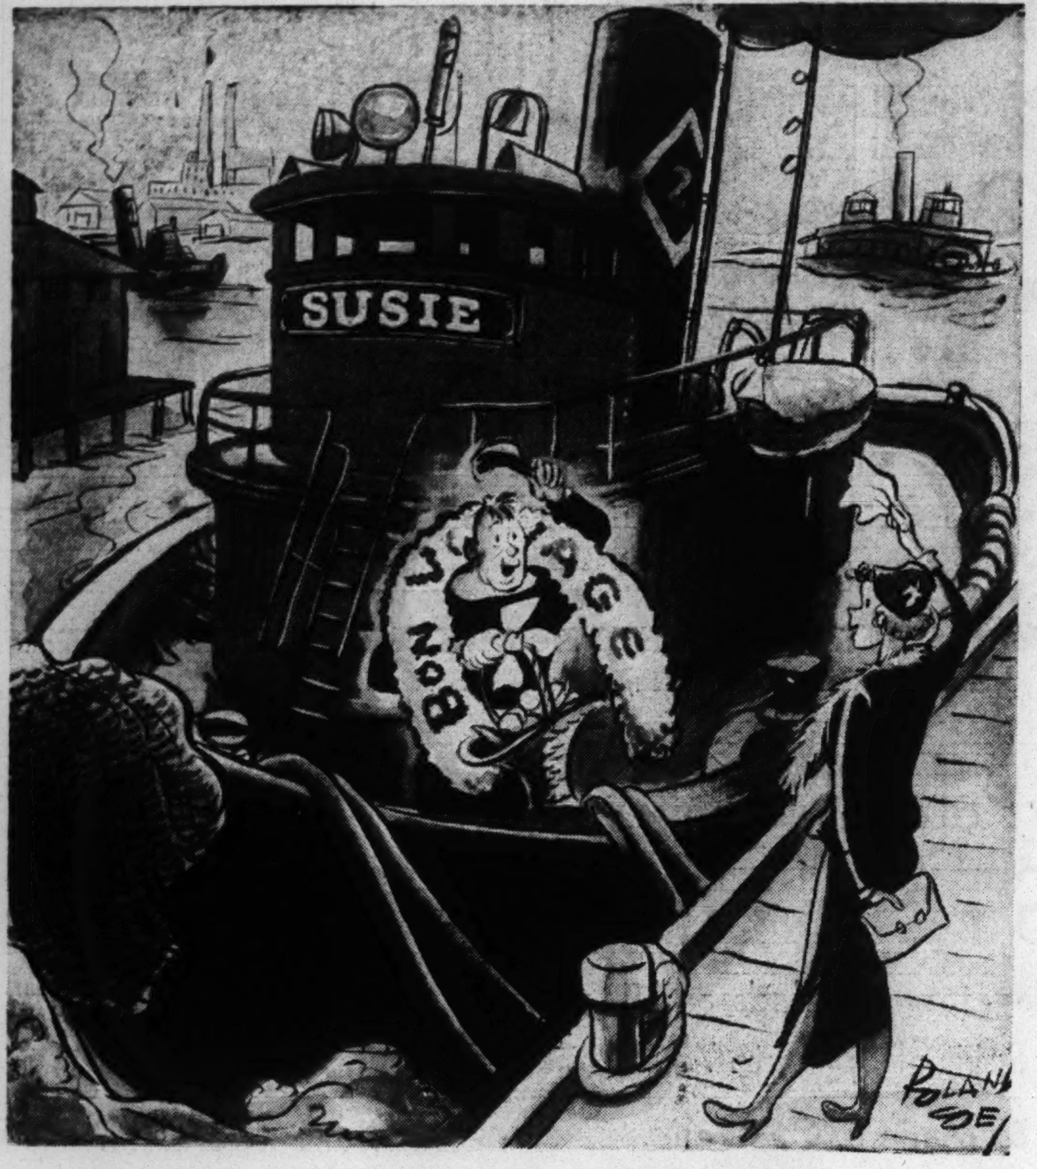
Small Beads

Threading small beads is often an irritating task, but it is much easier if the thread is dipped into liquid nail polish, the thread being twisted before it dries. Such a fine point results that it is quite a simple matter threading the tiniest beads.

IN THE BIG VILLAGE

By Roland Coe



"Awful nice of yuh, Babe—but shucks, I'm only goin' across the river!"

The Stamp Review : : by John Chamberlin

THE British Jubilee stamps will run if any attempt is made to watermark them. Benzine or carbon tetrachloride will dissolve the design, and if only a brief immersion in either fluid is made, the design will run, and then you have an "otherwise perfect" stamp. This is true, not only of the British Jubilee issue, but also of some issues of Egypt, Italy, Lebanon, Germany and other countries that print their stamps by the rotogravure method. The designs of most stamps printed by the rotogravure, heliogravure, oro photogravure method will wash away, fade, or run when an attempt is made to watermark them. The only safe method of observing the watermark is to hold the stamp up to a light. Rotogravure printing gives marked differentiations of shade in the printing of a single color, aand in the past few years has been used widely in the printing of stamps. Stamps on coated paper with which collectors are more familiar, will stand a brief immersion with no disastrous results.

The Sunday Post-Dispatch Rotogravure Section is printed in the same manner as stamps of this type. A special ink is used, which differs from ordinary printing ink in that the thinner or solvent is benzine or a similar but non-inflammable, fluid is used instead of linseed oil. Ink having a solvent the same as is used in detecting watermarks will dissolve or at least run.

JAPAN and Soviet Russia are complaining bitterly to each other concerning border clashes between their protected countries in China, viz., Manchoukuo and Mongolia, of which the latter is divided into two parts, Inner Mongolia and Outer Mongolia, the latter being better known as Tannou Touva. The capital of Inner Mongolia is Urga on the map, actually Ulan Bator Hoto meaning City of Red Heroes. Urga is one end of the ancient caravan trail from Kalgan, just inside the Great Wall of China, to Urga. By modern motor car it takes six and one-half days from Kalgan to Urga, formerly, and still, it takes 38 days by camel caravan, military forces permitting. Camels are reported to rent at $50 per day per camel, and caravans on this trail have been known to exceed 1000 camels.

The first issue of Mongolia is interesting from several points of view. The design, practically the same throughout, is the Scepter of Indra, Indra being in Indian design the God riding on an elephant, was in Vedic mythology the national god of the Aryans (Mr. Hitler, please note) who occupied the Iranian plateau, later moving into India.

The 1-cent, 5-cent, 10-cent, 50-cent and $1 values are perforated 13½, while the 2-cent and the 20-cent are perforated 10. The stamps vary in size according to the face value from 18 by 25 mm (1c) to 30 by 38 mm ($1), and come in addition to the normal way, perforated horizontally through the center enabling one-half of the stamp to be used for one-half of its face value.

MEETINGS

There will be an informal meeting of "Stamp Nerts" in Room 303 of the Melbourne Hotel Monday night at 8 o'clock.

The St. Louis Stamp Collectors' Society will hold its regular monthly meeting Tuesday, April 14, at 8 p. m., at the Mayfair Hotel. Ray Burns will give a talk on "Foreign Contacts and Results during the Past Thirty Years." There will be a prize contest, a questionnaire on United States. At the last meeting, the contest on identifying foreign stamps was won by a visitor.

The second meeting of the Overland Stamp Club will be held at 8 p. m. Tuesday, April 14 at the Home Heights School. According to J. Edward Vining, who is organizing the club, there were almost 70 collectors at the initial meeting, March 31.

The Webster Groves Stamp Club will hold a regular meeting Thursday, April 16, 8 p. m., at the Bristol School.

The Downtown Y. M. C. A. Philatelic Society will hold its second meeting Friday, April 17, at 8 p. m. in the assication building at 1528 Locust. This is a postponement of the meeting scheduled for last Friday. John Hovance will preside at the meeting, which is to be for organization purposes, and the nomination of officers.

In value the perforated through the middle stamps are worth from one-and-a-half to two times the price of the stamps not perforated through the middle.

At the time the Mongolian Government was set up (1923-24) the Russian Government disclaimed any knowledge of the movement, but it is very interesting to note that these stamps, the first by the Mongolian Government, were printed at the Russian State Printing Office in Moscow.

FOR those that like minor varieties, dies, shades, papers, etc., Brazil offers a good mine. Take for example Scott's numbers 159-61 inclusive. There is one minor variety listed along with the general heading that the perfs run 11 to 11½, 12½ to 14 and compound. The minor variety listed is the new die on the 100 reis, but no mention is made of the new die on the 200 reis.

On the original die of the 200 reis the head has a long neck, and the neck meets the two curved lines that form the frame in the direction the head is facing. On the later new die, the Liberty head has a short neck, and a white space between the horizontal lines of the background and the oval lines surrounding the background.

Gibbons lists 28 varieties, the early die known as A and the latter as B on the 100 and 200 reis as follows:

Stamps printed about ½ mm apart

Die A Perf 12½-14
50 r. pale green
(a) Thick paper
200 r. blue
200 r. deep blue

Die A Perf 11 to 11½
50 r. pale green
50 r. green
(a) Thick paper
100 r. pale carmine
200 r. pale blue
200 r. bright blue
200 r. indigo
(a) Thick paper

Die A Perf 12½-14 and 11 to 11½
50 r. green
200 r. pale blue
200r. indigo

The new dies "B" are printed further apart (about 1½ mm.) to allow space for the perforations.

Thin paper

Die B Perf. 12½ to 14
100 r. pale carmine
200 r. blue

Die B Perf. 11 to 11½
50 r. pale green
100 r. pale carmine
(a) Thick paper
100 r. deep carmine
(a) Thick paper
100 r. pink
200 r. blue
200 r. deep blue
(a) Thick paper

Die B Perf compound of 12½ to 14 and 11 to 11½
100 r. carmine
200 r. blue.

THE first issue of U. S. revenues is interesting, and many articles have been written about those stamps, the most interesting being the very rare "Boston Revenue Book," which gives the following information concerning the 6c proprietary, showing that they complained about taxes then, just as they do now:

First printed March 29, 1871.

First delivered to the Dep't. April 13, 1871.

Plate No.

No. of stamps per sheet, 170.

Size and design the same as the other 6-cent value, excepting that the lower label is inscribed "Proprietary."

The total number issued was 89,348.

The following information in reference to this stamp will doubtless be interesting:

"Norwich, Conn., March 10, 1871.

Jos. R. Carpenter, Philadelphia.

. . . We prefer the ordinary proprietary stamp to going to the expense of a private die, if we can obtain one of the 6c denomination. It seems very extraordinary to us that such parsimony should exist with the Gov't in so small a matter. To require the use of a 6c stamp for a $1.50 preparation (and there are more than a hundred of them), and then refuse to provide the stamp requisite, is what could hardly have been expected. If such a tax is to be exacted it surely belongs to the Gov't to provide the stamp."

(Signed) Charles Osgood & Co.

The above is endorsed by Mr. Carpenter: "The Government has not authorized, but will authorize a 6c stamp probably."

What to Wear For Weddings In Afternoon

Street Length Dress Correct for Ceremony Followed by Reception in Suburb.

By

Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I PLAN to attend a wedding shortly, but I must frankly admit that I am puzzled as to what to wear. The wedding is to take place in the city at 4 o'clock, and the reception is to follow at 5:30 at the bride's home, which is in the suburbs, some distance from the city. I had originally planned to wear a dressy street or afternoon dress—of street length—but now I am wondering if, since I am also to attend the reception at 5:30, I should not perhaps wear a long dress, perhaps a dinner dress, or rather a cocktail dress. What do you advise?

2. Also please tell me whether it is necessary to put anything more than the name on the card that you enclose with the gift?

3. Also what should one say to the bride's parents and to the other people in the receiving line?

GRACE.

Answer: To a 4 o'clock wedding and to a 5:30 reception, you should wear your "best" afternoon ensemble of street length. This would be especially correct when the marriage is to take place in the city and the reception is to be in the suburbs.

2. No. With a wedding gift we usually enclose our visiting-card or a plain white card with our name written on it. It isn't necessary to write a message on the card, since the fact that the gift is sent at this time carries its own message. However, it is definitely not incorrect to write a message on the enclosed card, and many people do like to add this personal touch.

3. To the bride you offer "best wishes," adding any other message appropriate to your degree of relationship or friendship with the bride. (Usually all the bride's friends kiss her, and offer her "best wishes," and tell her what a lovely bride she is.) To the groom we offer "congratulations" . . . but we must remember not to offer "congratulations" to the bride!

When we greet the bride's mother and father we tell them what a beautiful wedding it was, and how lovely their daughter was as a bride. That will probably be all that there will be time for as we pass down the receiving line. To the groom's mother and father we say, too, what a beautiful wedding it was, how handsome and proud their son looked. If you know the bridesmaids well, you will, of course, chat informally with them.

KEEPING YOUR HANDS

They Must Be Velvet Smooth and Fair

ON PAR WITH BEAUTY

CLAIRE TREVOR
Her Graceful Hands Are Always Up to Beauty Par,

NOTHING makes a woman more self-conscious than hands that are not up to beauty par. Even though she juggles pots and pans, her pretty paws must be velvet smooth and fair to the eye.

She must follow a policy of protection, avoid water very hot or very cold, never deal with cleaning agents that eat into the epidermis, dry her hands carefully and thoroughly after washing them. Furniture polish plays the dickens with pretty mitts. When shining up the mahogany heirlooms, gloves should be worn.

Corn meal is a friend to the hands. Its starchy contents are soothing. Foam up soap suds in the palms and a little corn meal. The fine grains will grind out every particle of dust and grime. Use a lotion freely. If you like to play at making cosmetics, soak 60 grains of whole gum tragacanth in 14 ounces of strong rosewater for three days, add one ounce of alcohol, one ounce of glycerine. You'll find this a worker of miracles for softening the skin, giving it a lovely texture.

A creamy molding once or twice a week is helpful. Use coconut oil and massage diligently. Pat in some almond meal, slip the hands in large white cotton gloves and wear them all night.

Any woman who suffers from pimples, boils, carbuncles or abscesses should pin her faith to thorough soapy cleansings which will remove extraneous matter that is a nesting place for bacteria, free the skin from deposits containing waste chemicals sent out by sweat and oil glands, stimulate its functions and enliven circulation.

Infections most frequently come on the neck where the friction of collars causes abrasions which invite bacteria to do their mean work. Soap is the queen of cosmetics, don't forget that, you who linger round cosmetic counters and fling money for beautifiers.

If the white-haired lady has dyed her hair and found the results appalling, as often happens with the home experimenter, she should put herself in the hands of an experienced specialist. Placing one chemical atop another makes matters worse. The hair may turn green or taupe, such things have happened.

The hair must be conditioned, a dye remover used, the whole business started again.

For Men It's Gray Weaves For Spring

Double-Breasted Jacket With Collar Rolling to Bottom Button Favored.

By Esquire

SPRING has rolled around again and we can let the camphor balls and the moths squabble over our overcoats while we try to decide between the polychromatic stripe and the gray diagonal weave. The dreary winter season is traditionally one of dark and heavy overcoats, but now that it is over, we turn with a sigh of relief to the bright and fresh spring suitings.

All of the clothes and accessories shown on these pages are authenticated by "Esquire," the magazine for men.

For town wear both the single and double breasted jacket will be popular. The double-breasted jacket will, be favored in the model rolling to the bottom button, and the new two-button peak lapel cut will find favor in the single-breasted models for business and town. Pockets in these suits will have no flaps and the sleeves will carry four buttons apiece. For men of average proportions the correct trouser measurements are 23 inches at the knee and 19 inches at the cuff.

Boldly patterned weaves such as diagonals and herringbones, will be popular and many of these will carry colored overstripes of silk or overplaid patterns, especially in the window-pane design. Clear-cut unfinished worsteds will be much in demand. The overplaid pattern will be even more popular in the shetlands, saxonys, tweeds and cheviots, which look so well in smart country suits. These latter will adhere to the traditional cut for country wear, which carries three buttons and a notched lapel. The pockets will have flaps and some models will carry slanted pockets as well as ticket pockets. Both side and center vents are increasingly popular. The former should be eight inches in length and the latter 10 inches, and both should have a generous overlap.

—o-o—

THAT perennial favorite, the covert cloth topcoat, probably will enjoy greater popularity than ever this year. It will be cut in both single-breasted notched lapel fly front models and tailored double-breasted models. The coat will be shorter than in previous years and the single-breasted model will carry four rows of stitching along the hems and at the cuff. The black and white herringbone tailored double-breasted lightweight town topcoat will be as popular as ever. For country wear similar materials to those described above as well as those described above as well as bolder plaids are suitable.

FACING the FACTS

by Helen Jameson

WHEN a woman is not pleased with what she sees in the mirror because the lady in the looking glass has accordion pleats in her face, she yearns for a quick and handy process of rejuvenation. Except for plastic surgery, there's no such magic to be found. Creams and massages will help, but they won't chase away the evidence of emotional sprees or 10 extra birthdays.

Every woman of 30 should do a bit of heavy thinking, realize that there is something more to complexion care than cleanliness and laying on the calcimine and the pretty tints. We're doing better by ourselves every year, but more could be accomplished. The big trouble is that no woman strives and fights to retain the bloom of youth until the bloom begins to fade.

Things will be different in the future. The goddess Hygeia will have more followers, woman may be young at 60. More attention will be paid to diet, food will be better prepared, more will be known about food elements that will keep the facial tissues toned and elastic. Exercise will be more of a passion, and that means there will be fewer of those beauty ills that are due to sluggish circulation.

—o-o—

● THIS OPTIMISTIC glance into the future won't help the woman whose countenance is unlovely with ugly lines and flabby fibers. She must get active. Much can be done. All the work must not be confined to local treatment. She must have fresh air and sunlight, long hours of restful sleep. She must eat wisely and keep cheerful. A woman's disposition stamps its imprint on the face.

The foundation fabric of muscles, tiny fibers close to the skin, the tissues and the skin itself must be toned. Blood streams must be stimulated. The best way to do that is to give oneself a regular 10-minute treatment every night. No stop-and-go method. Keep right on week after week. Deep furrows will not disappear, but some fine lines may be erased and the texture of the skin will improve. Conditions will not get worse. It's that prospect that makes may a woman heartsick. What new horror will old Pop Time bring?

—o-o—

GET A HEAVY massage cream or use toilet lanoline. Cold cream won't serve, it offers no resistance to finger-tips that slide over the skin surface, do nothing for the tissues.

Spread the emollient on a clean skin surface, using the fattened palms, working with an upward, outward stroke. Spread out fingers and thumbs, use them as if they were little hammers. Give the flesh a brisk slapping. With these movements there is no danger of pushing the flesh into folds, causing new wrinkles to form.

Let the cream remain on over night, the pores will lap it up. Use cold water in the morning. Once a day have an ice rub. And keep tranquil. No matter what happens stay poised, well-balanced.

And it is possible that it isn't any happier by those three or four permanents every year.

MINERAL SALTS are necessary for the health of the teeth. The boss of the kitchen should cook vegetables in very little water, never throw away the pot liquor but save it for broths. Eggs, meat, vegetables, milk and citrus fruits contain food elements that help preserve the white pearls. Outdoor life and sunlight contribute to their well-being because they furnish the human system with power of resistance.

By eating raw vegetables and hard bread the teeth and gums are exercised, receive nutriment freely from the blood stream.

Twice a year trot to the dentist's shop for repairs and removal of tartar. Tartar can kick up a lot of trouble.

The Lace Vogue

Lace is used for enchanting little tailored suits as well as for evening frocks. Black lace bound with black satin is used for an afternoon tailleur done on conventional lines, even to the notched revers. A suit of navy blue marquisette lace has a blouse of tucked sheer crepe in dusty pink. For evening there is an enchanting new gown of gray Chantilly type lace over russet red taffeta, with a belt of the taffeta. There is a jacket of the lace tied carelessly with lace ends at the high neckline. Navy blue lace over pale pink taffeta makes another striking frock with a ruffled skirt.

Toasted Ham and Cheese

Cut wheat bread into thin slices and spread with butter. Then place a thin slice of American cheese and one of cold boiled ham on the bread. Add paprika and the juice of one-half lemon and then place the other slice of bread on top. Toast in a double toaster until a golden brown. Serve piping hot.

The Bridge Boor Is Cured Only By His Own Efforts

by Ely Culbertson

A GREAT many of the letters I receive have points of unusual interest, but not in a long time has one appealed to me so much from point of view of earnestness as the following:

My Dear Mr. Culbertson:

This is rather out of your domain, but I am writing on behalf of three of us who play with a very wonderful man both in character and disposition (the latter quality only when he is not playing cards). Our wives play at one table and we at ours, once a week for over four years. This man is unbearable when the cards are against him; he quibbles about every little thing; he insists on throwing his cards down, even if he still has six or seven, when he thinks all the tricks are his opponents', without consulting his partner. He criticises unmercifully; he heckles his partner when he does not raise on a doubtful raise.

Now, what we want to know is how to handle this situation. Can you or one of your devotees give us some advice? We want to play with him, but we know many who wouldn't. If we put him out of our game it would hurt his wife dreadfully, and she is a marvelous woman; the only time I have ever seen her off balance was when she had to play with him. He's a swell guy, but we've answered him back, we've kept quiet, we've tried to show him the error of his manners at play, and all he answers is, "You do not have to play with me."

Have you ever played with such a man? Are there many? We think if you would publish this grievance maybe you would have replies that would solve this problem. Are we imposing on your good nature? We hope not. Very truly yours,

—o-o—

Yes, to my sorrow, I've met many men like this one! The pity is that they usually are, outside of bridge games, "swell guys"! I've seen wives bite their lips to restrain themselves—or become crimson with embarrassment! I've seen loyal friends finally give up in despair.

What's to be done? Absolutely nothing by anyone except the offender—or shall I call him the victim? No man or woman can give another the precious, the indispensable quality of self-restraint, of will power, of sportsmanship!

Dear Mr. Culbertson:

My first game of contract in 1936 was productive of a deal which is without equal in my experience and which I hope is not an omen of what is in store for me during the coming year! These were the hands:

♠AJxxxx
♥J10x
♦xxx
♣K

♠——
♥xxxxx
♦KJxx
♣xxxx

NORTH / WEST / EAST / SOUTH

♠Q10xxxx
♦Qxx
♣Qxxx

♠K
♥AKQxx
♦Axx
♣AJ10x

I was the dealer, vulnerable, and opened with one heart. To my partner's response of one spade I bid three clubs. I draw a veil over the subsequent bidding and will only say that we finally arrived at a contract of seven hearts! The silver lining to the black state of affairs that was revealed as the hand was played was the fact that West did not double mo for fear of a switch to seven spades!

I was quite satisfied to make 10 tricks, because by the time the deal was half way through I could only goggle—my nerve vanished completely when my bare king of spades was trumped by West.

I am still trying to explain to my partner, who asserts that he personally has never arrived at a grand slam contract and done down three. Your assistance would be greatly appreciated. How should the hand be called and played after a small club lead by West?

Yours still rather bewilderedly,
M. L.
Johannesburg, South Africa.

Undoubtedly M. L. ran against the sharp rocks of distribution! Still it is difficult to conceive how the grand slam could have been reached by logical bidding. The following would be correct:

South	North
1 heart	1 spade
3 clubs	4 hearts
4 no trump	5 spades
6 hearts	Pass

Using the new asking bids (which had not, of course, reached South Africa at the time this hand occurred), the same final contract would result. South would bid five diamonds over four hearts, but North would have to sign off at five hearts. South would go to six but avoid seven.

So far as the play was concerned, against that horrible lie of cards there was no chance of success. Nevertheless, based on the logical yardstick of probabilities, the small slam should have been bid.

—o-o—

EXPERTS fall into the habit of counting winning tricks only when playing no-trump contracts, preferring what is usually a short cut on suit contracts—counting losers. Occasionally, however, this latter process becomes very difficult, and at such times the positive count of winners is much more effective. The declarer in the hand shown below failed to recognize this principle and as a result went down two tricks on a laydown slam contract.

The bidding (North-South vulnerable):

South.	West.	North	East
1 ♥	1 ♠	Pass (1)	Pass
3 ♣	Pass	5 ♣	Pass
6 ♣ (final contract).

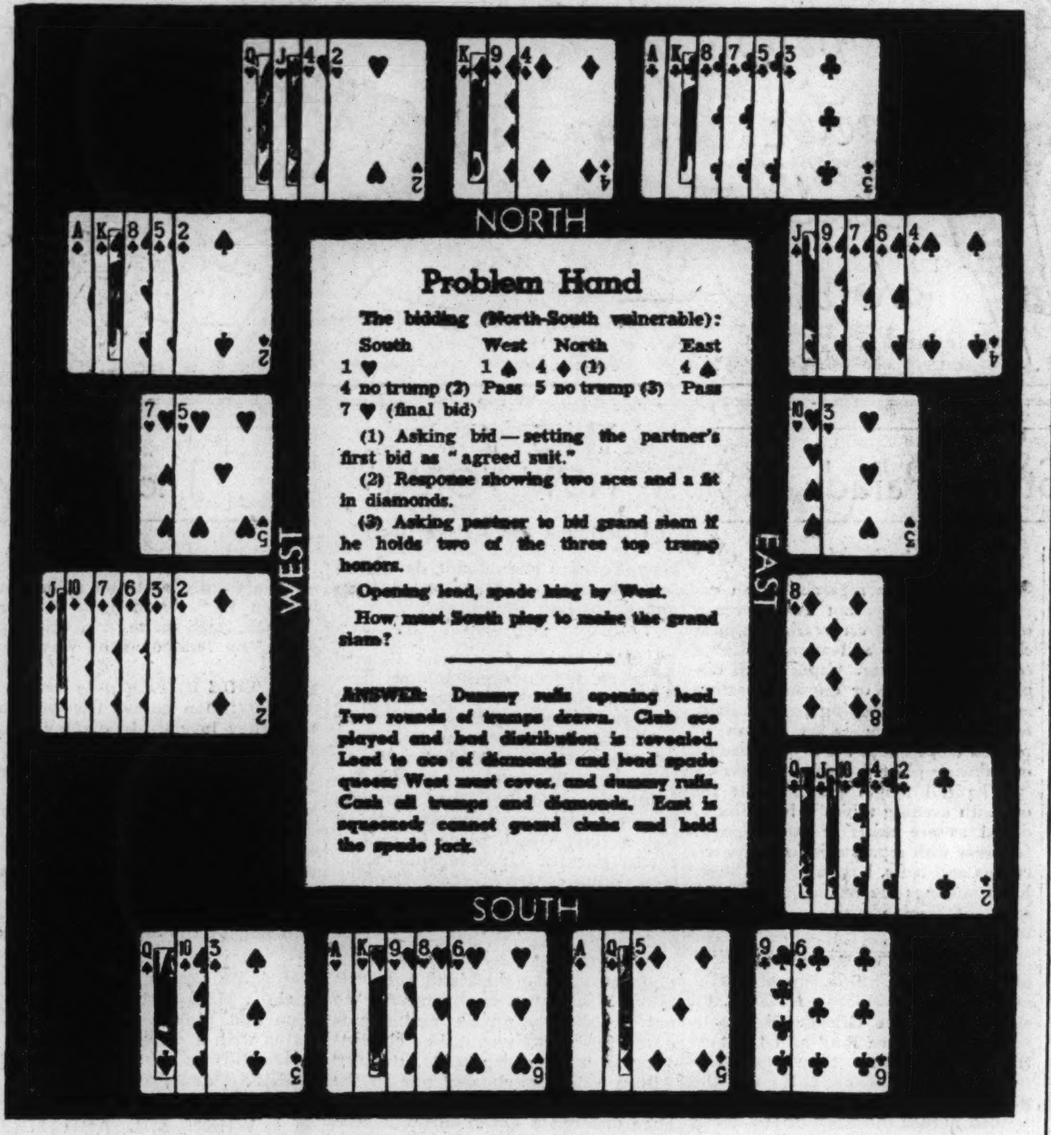
(1) North should not have passed; he should have doubled one spade.

West decided against the lead of the spade ace, preferring the unbid suit, diamonds. Declarer won the jack with the ace and embarked on a cross-ruff plan. All went well until he found near the end that West had got rid of his diamonds and still had three trumps to one of declarer's and one of dummy's. It was then too late to recoup.

A simple count of positive winners should have shown the correct line of play. Declarer could count five diamond tricks and five trumps in his own hand. One heart would make the eleventh trick and one heart ruff in dummy would fulfill the contract. After winning the first lead, three rounds of trumps should have been played. The king and queen of diamonds should be unblocked and then the king of hearts led and passed unless West covered with the ace, a spade, of course, being discarded from dummy.

A very easy contract if properly analyzed.

(Copyright, 1936.)



Problem Hand

The bidding (North-South vulnerable):

South	West	North	East
1 ♥	1 ♠	4 ♦ (1)	4 ♠
4 no trump (2)	Pass	5 no trump (3)	Pass
7 ♥ (final bid)

(1) Asking bid—setting the partner's first bid as "agreed suit."

(2) Response showing two aces and a fit in diamonds.

(3) Asking partner to bid grand slam if he holds two of the three top trump honors.

Opening lead, spade king by West.

How must South play to make the grand slam?

ANSWER: Dummy ruffs opening lead. Two rounds of trumps drawn. Club ace played and bad distribution is revealed. Lead to ace of diamonds and lead spade queen; West must cover, and dummy ruffs. Cash all trumps and diamonds. East is squeezed; cannot guard clubs and hold the spade jack.

TODAY'S QUESTIONS

Question: Playing at a heart contract, the trump suit was divided as follows:

Dummy	Declarer
K 5 4 2	A 10 8 3

What is the proper way to play the suit?

Answer: Lead to the king and on the return finesse the ten unless opponent plays an honor. This guards against four to the Q-J to the right of declarer—the only combination that can be guarded against.

Question: The bidding, with both sides vulnerable, had progressed as follows:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	2 ♦	3 ♠	4 ♦
4 ♠	Pass	Pass	5 ♦

What should South bid over five diamonds on the following hand:

♠ AQ983 ♥ AJ106 ♦2 ♣ Q105

Answer: He should make a forcing pass, leaving the decision to his partner as to whether to double or bid five spades.

Flexible School Offers the Best Type of Teaching

We Have Been Trying to Give All Children the Same Education and Are Failing.

By Angelo Patri

SOME day we are going to have the flexible school that the children need. This will not come tomorrow, but it will come in the future when the idea—now commonly accepted by educators, but not by the people themselves—that individual instruction, the stimulation and the satisfaction of each child's deepest hungers, his best qualities, are the answer to society's educational problems.

If one child can learn to read and another cannot master the art because of some lack in his physical, and consequently, mental endowment, and we keep forcing the nonreader to read, we are not giving the two children equal education. We are trying to give them the same education. And we are failing. What we need to do, and we are beginning to know it, is to give them equal opportunity to develop the powers they possess, to make the most of themselves, not in the same lines, but along their own, their individual lines of power.

—o-o—

THE theory is perfect, but the schools and the teachers are not equipped for this work. Individual education means schools with flexible, easily adjusted schedules. It means teachers trained to administer that sort of program. It means, too, different kinds of school buildings, more varied equipment, more elastic rules for the administration of the schools. All this will come by slow stages as people realize the needs and provide for them.

This sort of school will work out each child's salvation by letting him follow his lines of power, guiding him to them, holding him to his task of self-growth, not by force of law, but by force of attraction. He will go to school because school is the place that offers him satisfactions for hungers of mind and body. Each child will work for the joy of working, grow for the satisfaction of gratifying instinctive desire for growth, do his bit toward the progress of society because his sympathy has been caught and by himself harnessed to social forces for good.

BIG IDEA DEPARTMENT

Dear Big Idea Editor:

A dandy idea suddenly popped into my head the other day when I was playing a slot machine, by which it would be possible to eliminate slot machine gambling. Instead of passing laws against them, which are never effective anyway, why not just fix things up so that every time anyone puts a nickle into a slot machine it would start playing some tune like "The Music Goes 'Round and 'Round?" One's instinct to gamble would certainly suffer if anything so depressing were to happen.

Sincerely yours,,

The Process of Digestion and The Time It Takes

Under Certain Circumstances the Digestive Enzymes Work Very Rapidly.

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

A CORRESPONDENT writes to ask how rapidly after food enters the body it becomes assimilated into the nutritional machine. The answer depends a good deal on the kind of food and whether or not a small amount is taken, and whether or not it is part of a mixed meal.

Under certain circumstances, the digestion must be astonishingly rapid. The digestive enzymes work very rapidly. You can test this by noticing how soon a piece of cracker taken into the mouth becomes sweet, because the action of the saliva is to turn the starch of the cracker into a simple sugar.

Again, we know that in a case where too much insulin is given a diabetic patient, it brings on a condition in which the sugar of the blood is lowered below normal. The condition is treated by eating some simple starch or sugar, such as a glass of orange juice. Almost before the last drop of orange juice has been drained from the glass, the symptoms disappear, showing that this sugar is taken up with lightning-like rapidity from the stomach and utilized by the organism.

With an ordinary mixed meal, however, things go very much slower. It takes time for the food to be reduced to a proper kind of a mash in the stomach, and it is thrown into the intestine only in small amounts. The last part of a mixed meal leaves the stomach about six hours after it is ingested. It is probably not completely assimilated from the intestine for 24 hours. The body has many places for storing food which may not be used for many hours or days after storage has taken place.

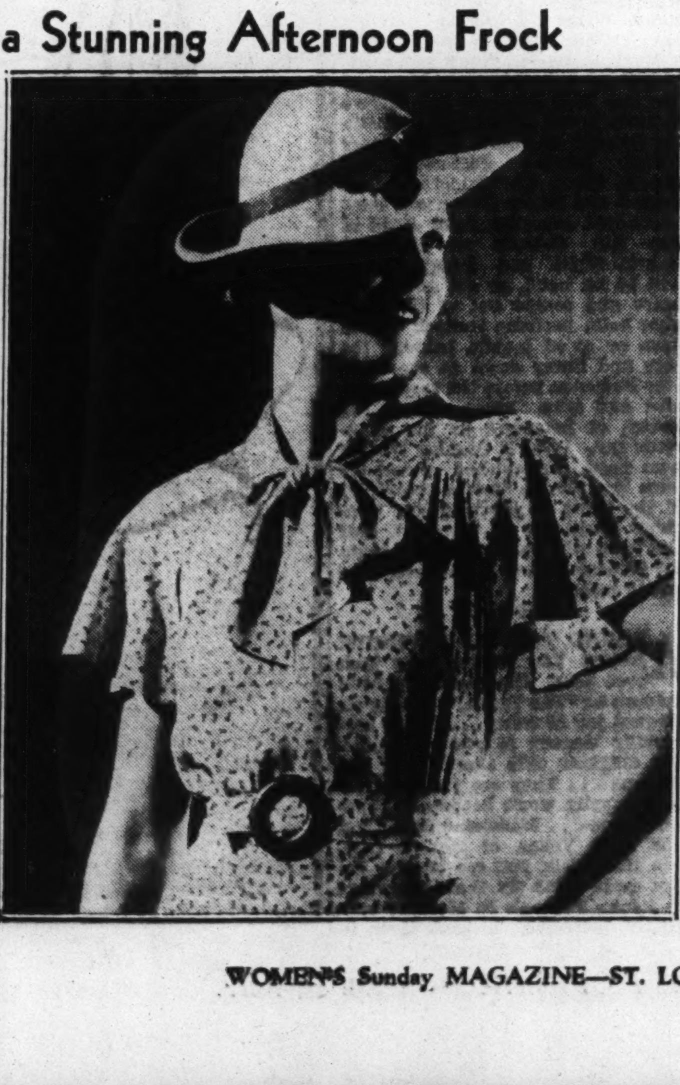
Pattern for a Stunning Afternoon Frock

By Anne Adams

ANY way one beholds this frock, it's stunning and styled to make one most alluring for the afternoon tea. Such soft, gracious femininity as those cape-sleeves bespeak. (They're cool as off-shore breezes.) And that rolling collar, beguiling bow and rippling skirt. You'll want to send for pattern X2702 post-haste when you learn its easiest of the easy to make, and that is welcome news for you to turn "Seamstress" when vacation's in the offing. To see the daintily patterned Celanese which fashioned the original, is to love it, though when you've all manner of figured cottons, printed crepes and dreamy sheers at beck and call, you can be "choosy" and individual as you please! The pattern is X2702 designed in sizes 14 to 20 and 32 to 44. Size 16 takes 3 5-8 yards 39-inch fabric.

Send 15c today for pattern X2702 to St. Louis Post-Dispatch, Pattern Department, 243 West 17th street, New York, N. Y.



Hats Are Floral

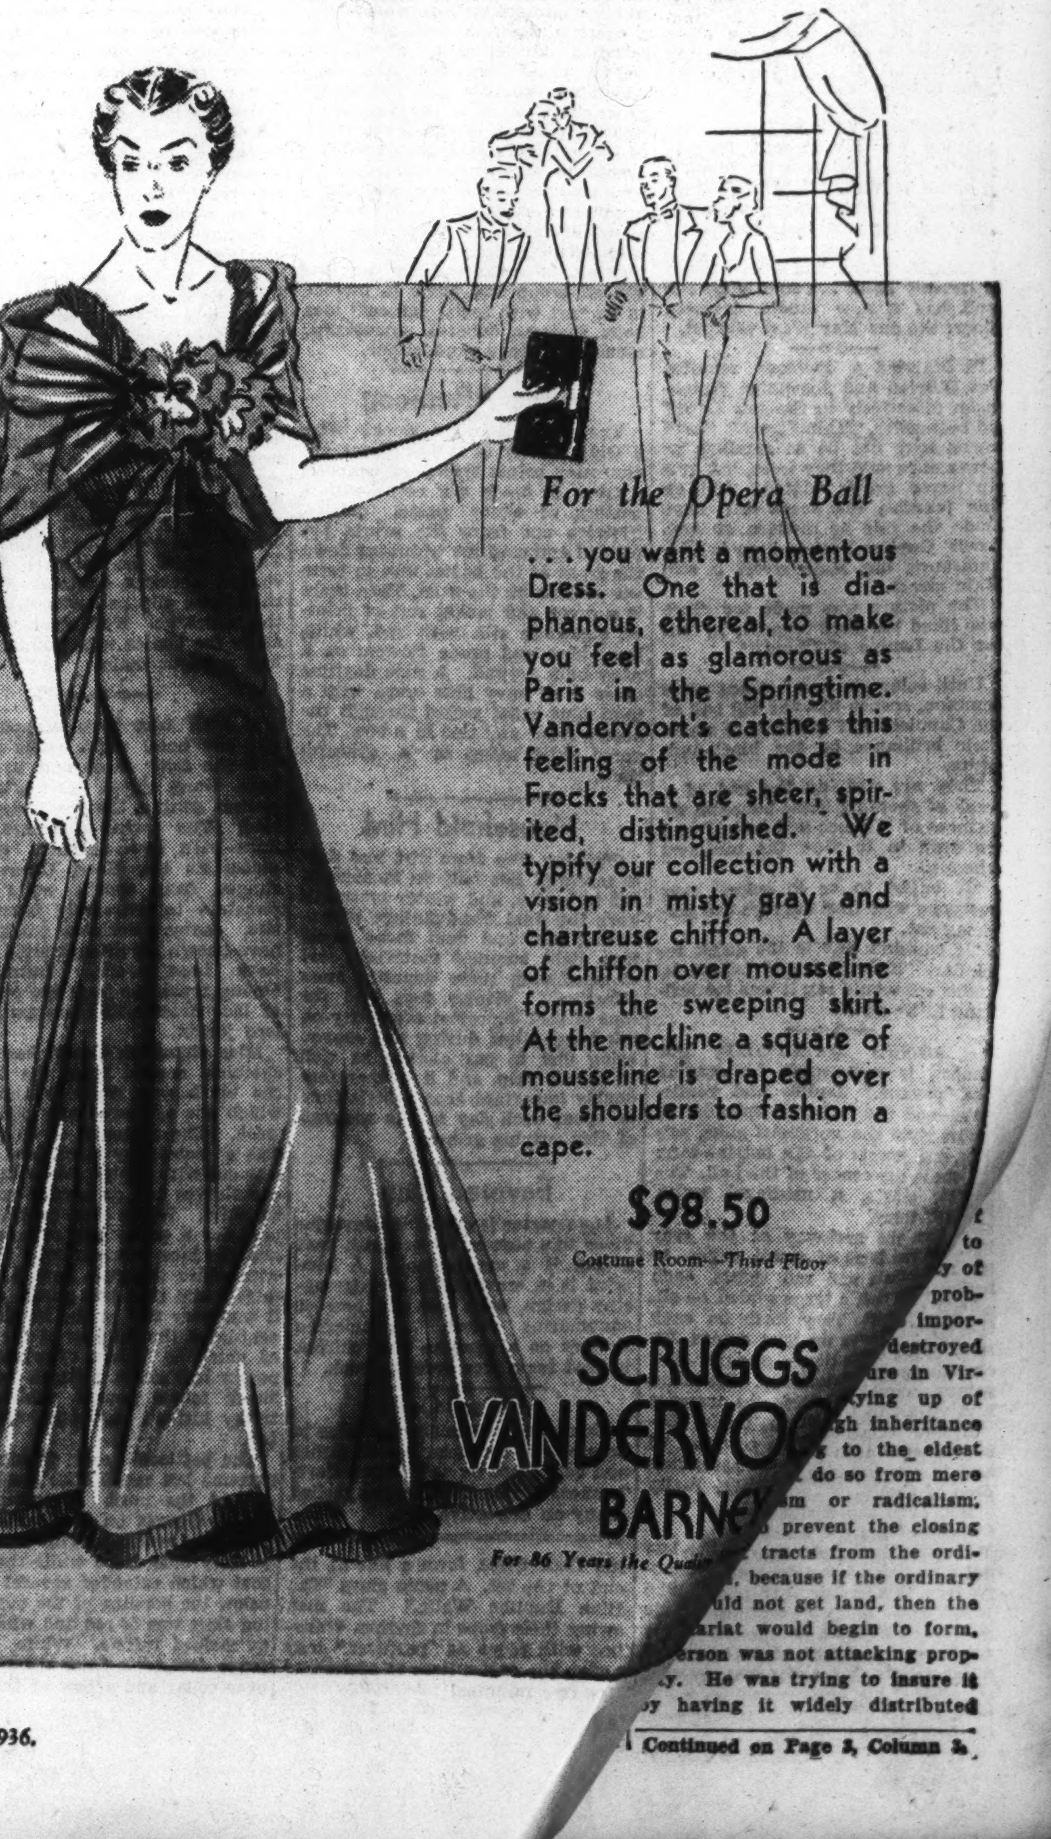
Trimming makes the hat this season. Veiling, flowers, ribbons, feathers and ornaments of various kinds, all are being used by the milliners to lend interest to spring models. White violets make an enchanting little toque with veil and perky upstanding bows of sheer black thread lace. A larger model, a Breton sailor of split straw, has its entire shallow crown made of red camelias. Pink and apricot yellow chiffon roses are massed in the cutaway side front brim of a brown toyo straw toque.

Parisian Novelties

Novelties shown at the recent Paris collections in New York include hats of spun glass in lovely Venetian glass colors and trimmed with flowers. These are from Agnes. Then there are capes of white fox tinted in "shampoo" effects, including ash-blonde, pale honey and pale amber. Taffeta umbrellas in small shepherd's plaid design are offered for rain or shine, and many houses showed parasols. A soft afternoon suit of navy blue faconne woolen has the jacket lined with pink georgette with enormous blue coin dots.

Potato Hint

When serving one or two courses before the main course and the mashed potatoes must be held for a while, place a pan of boiling water on the simmerer and into this put the pan containing the potatoes, keeping a lid on the pan.



For the Opera Ball

. . . you want a momentous Dress. One that is diaphanous, ethereal, to make you feel as glamorous as Paris in the Springtime. Vandervoort's catches this feeling of the mode in Frocks that are sheer, spirited, distinguished. We typify our collection with a vision in misty gray and chartreuse chiffon. A layer of chiffon over mousseline forms the sweeping skirt. At the neckline a square of mousseline is draped over the shoulders to fashion a cape.

FACING the FACTS

by
Helen Jameson

WHEN a woman is not pleased with what she sees in the mirror because the lady in the looking glass has accordion pleats in her face, she yearns for a quick and handy process of rejuvenation. Except for plastic surgery, there's no such magic to be found. Creams and massages will help, but they won't chase away the evidence of emotional sprees or 10 extra birthdays.

Every woman of 30 should do a bit of heavy thinking, realize that there is something more to complexion care than cleanliness and laying on the calcimine and the pretty tints. We're doing better by ourselves every year, but more could be accomplished. The big trouble is that no woman strives and fights to retain the bloom of youth until the bloom begins to fade.

Things will be different in the future. The goddess Hygeia will have more followers, woman may be young at 60. More attention will be paid to diet, food will be better prepared, more will be known about food elements that will keep the facial tissues toned and elastic. Exercise will be more of a passion, and that means there will be fewer of those beauty ills that are due to sluggish circulation.

—o-o—

● THIS OPTIMISTIC glance into the future won't help the woman whose countenance is unlovely with ugly lines and flabby fibers. She must get active. Much can be done. All the work must not be confined to local treatment. She must have fresh air and sunlight, long hours of restful sleep. She must eat wisely and keep cheerful. A woman's disposition stamps its imprint on the face.

The foundation fabric of muscles, tiny fibers close to the skin, the tissues and the skin itself must be toned. Blood streams must be stimulated. The best way to do that is to give oneself a regular 10-minute treatment every night. No stop-and-go method. Keep right on week after week. Deep furrows will not disappear, but some fine lines may be erased and the texture of the skin will improve. Conditions will not get worse. It's that prospect that makes may a woman heartsick. What new horror will old Pop Time bring?

—o-o—

GET A HEAVY massage cream or use toilet lanoline. Cold cream won't serve, it offers no resistance to finger-tips that slide over the skin surface, do nothing for the tissues.

Spread the emollient on a clean skin surface, using the fattened palms, working with an upward, outward stroke. Spread out fingers and thumbs, use them as if they were little hammers. Give the flesh a brisk slapping. With these movements there is no danger of pushing the flesh into folds, causing new wrinkles to form.

Let the cream remain on over night, the pores will lap it up. Use cold water in the morning. Once a day have an ice rub. And keep tranquil. No matter what happens stay poised, well-balanced.

—o-o—

● SCALP MASSAGE and hot oil treatments not only revive the life of the hair, but they show almost immediate effects upon the hair shafts, promoting a charming gloss and a state of general amiability. We see heads beautifully waved and arranged, yet the hair is lifeless and without character. It is pining for attention. It needs petting and grooming. And it is possible that it isn't any happier by those three or four permanents every year.

—o-o—

MINERAL SALTS are necessary for the health of the teeth. The boss of the kitchen should cook vegetables in very little water, never throw away the pot liquor but save it for broths. Eggs, meat, vegetables, milk and citrus fruits contain food elements that help preserve the white pearls. Outdoor life and sunlight contribute to their well-being because they furnish the human system with power of resistance.

By eating raw vegetables and hard bread the teeth and gums are exercised, receive nutriment freely from the blood stream.

Twice a year trot to the dentist's shop for repairs and removal of tartar. Tartar can kick up a lot of trouble.

The Lace Vogue

Lace is used for enchanting little tailored suits as well as for evening frocks. Black lace bound with black satin is used for an afternoon tailleur done on conventional lines, even to the notched revers. A suit of navy blue marquisette lace has a blouse of tucked sheer crepe in dusty pink. For evening there is an enchanting new gown of gray Chantilly type lace over russet red taffeta, with a belt of the taffeta. There is a jacket of the lace tied carelessly with lace ends at the high neckline. Navy blue lace over pale pink taffeta makes another striking frock with a ruffled skirt.

Toasted Ham and Cheese

Cut wheat bread into thin slices and spread with butter. Then place a thin slice of American cheese and one of cold boiled ham on the bread. Add paprika and the juice of one-half lemon and then place the other slice of bread on top. Toast in a double toaster until a golden brown. Serve piping hot.

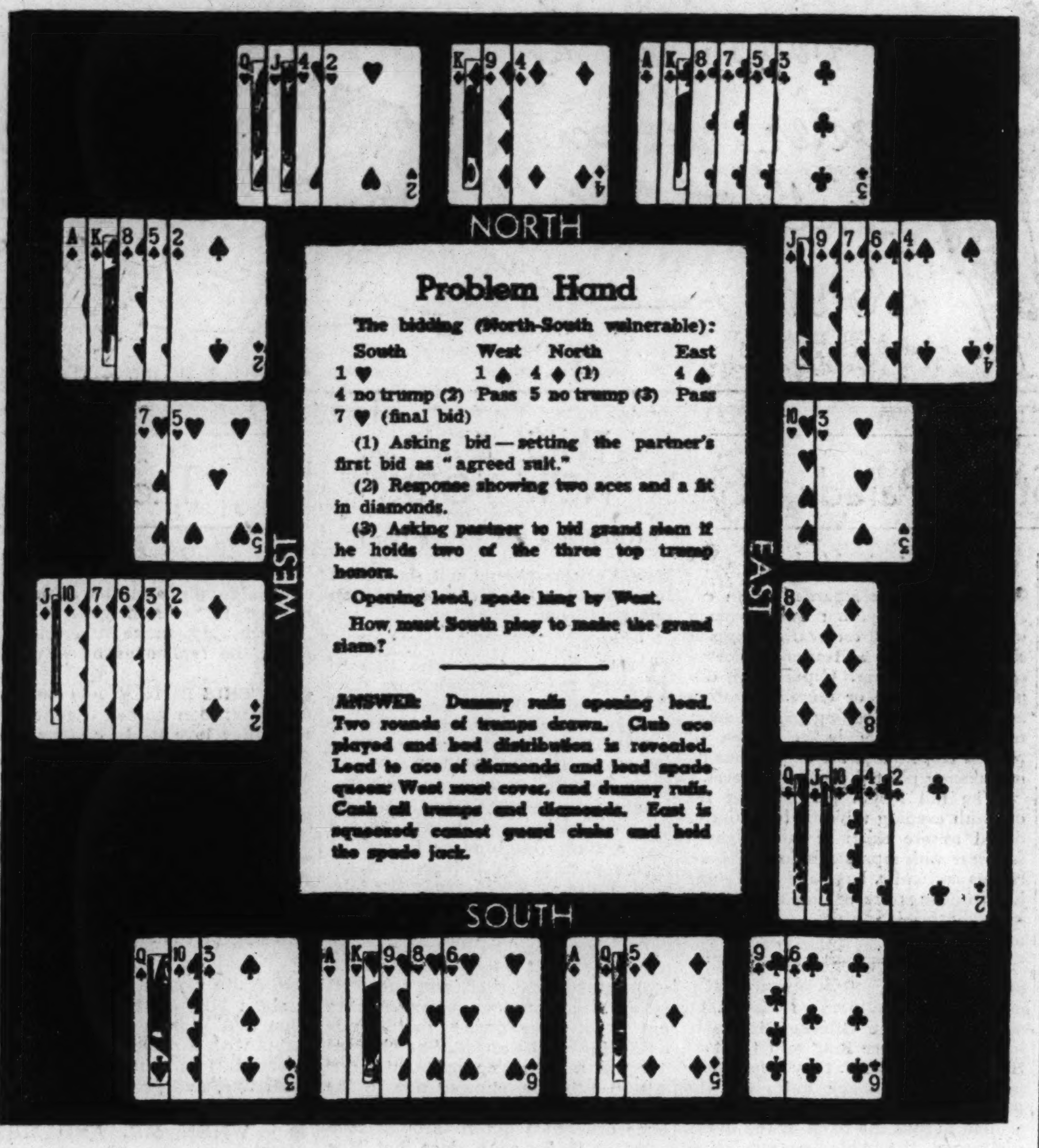
The Bridge Boor Is Cured Only By His Own Efforts

by Ely Culbertson



Problem Hand

The bidding (North-South vulnerable):

South	West	North	East
1 ♥	1 ♠	4 ♦ (1)	4 ♠
4 no trump (2)	Pass	5 no trump (3)	Pass
7 ♥ (final bid)

(1) Asking bid—setting the partner's first bid as "agreed suit."

(2) Response showing two aces and a fit in diamonds.

(3) Asking partner to bid grand slam if he holds two of the three top trump honors.

Opening lead, spade king by West.

How must South play to make the grand slam?

ANSWER: Dummy ruffs opening lead. Two rounds of trumps drawn. Club ace played and bad distribution is revealed. Lead to ace of diamonds and lead spade queen: West must cover, and dummy ruffs. Cash all trumps and diamonds. East is squeezed: cannot guard clubs and hold the spade jack.

A GREAT many of the letters I receive have points of unusual interest, but not in a long time has one appealed to me so much from point of view of earnestness as the following:

My Dear Mr. Culbertson:

This is rather out of your domain, but I am writing on behalf of three of us who play with a very wonderful man both in character and disposition (the latter quality only when he is not playing cards). Our wives play at one table and we at ours, once a week for over four years. This man is unbearable when the cards are against him; he quibbles about every little thing; he insists on throwing his cards down, even if he still has six or seven, when he thinks all the tricks are his opponents', without consulting his partner. He criticises unmercifully; he heckles his partner when he does not raise on a doubtful raise.

Now, what we want to know is how to handle this situation. Can you or one of your devotees give us some advice? We want to play with him, but we know many who wouldn't. If we put him out of our game it would hurt his wife dreadfully, and she is a marvelous woman; the only time I have ever seen her off balance was when she had to play with him. He's a swell guy, but we've answered him back, we've kept quiet, we've tried to show him the error of his manners at play, and all he answers is, "You do not have to play with me."

Have you ever played with such a man? Are there many? We think if you would publish this grievance maybe you would have replies that would solve this problem. Are we imposing on your good nature? We hope not. Very truly yours,

—o-o—

Yes, to my sorrow, I've met many men like this one! The pity is that they usually are, outside of bridge games, "swell guys"! I've seen wives bite their lips to restrain themselves—or become crimson with embarrassment! I've seen loyal friends finally give up in despair.

What's to be done? Absolutely nothing by anyone except the offender—or shall I call him the victim? No man or woman can give another the precious, the indispensable quality of self-restraint, of will power, of sportsmanship!

Dear Mr. Culbertson:

My first game of contract in 1936 was productive of a deal which is without equal in my experience and which I hope is not an omen of what is in store for me during the coming year! These were the hands:

NORTH
♠AJxxxx
♥J10x
♦xxx
♣K

WEST
♥xxxxx
♦KJxx
♣xxxx

EAST
♠Q10xxxx
♥——
♦Qxx
♣Qxxx

SOUTH
♠K
♥AKQxx
♦Axx
♣AJ10x

I was the dealer, vulnerable, and opened with one heart. To my partner's response of one spade I bid three clubs. I draw a veil over the subsequent bidding and will only say that we finally arrived at a contract of seven hearts! The silver lining to the black state of affairs that was revealed as the hand was played was the fact that West did not double mo for fear of a switch to seven spades!

I was quite satisfied to make 10 tricks, because by the time the deal was half way through I could only goggle—my nerve vanished completely when my bare king of spades was trumped by West.

I am still trying to explain to my partner, who asserts that he personally has never arrived at a grand slam contract and done down three. Your assistance would be greatly appreciated. How should the hand be called and played after a small club lead by West?

Yours still rather bewilderedly,
M. L.
Johannesburg, South Africa.

Undoubtedly M. L. ran against the sharp rocks of distribution! Still it is difficult to conceive how the grand slam could have been reached by logical bidding. The following would be correct:

South	North
1 heart	1 spade
3 clubs	4 hearts
4 no trump	5 spades
6 hearts	Pass

Using the new asking bids (which had not, of course, reached South Africa at the time this hand occurred), the same final contract would result. South would bid five diamonds over four hearts, but North would have to sign off at five hearts. South would go to six but avoid seven.

So far as the play was concerned, against that horrible lie of cards there was no chance of success. Nevertheless, based on the logical yardstick of probabilities, the small slam should have been bid.

—o-o—

EXPERTS fall into the habit of counting winning tricks only when playing no-trump contracts, preferring what is usually a short cut on suit contracts—counting losers. Occasionally, however, this latter process becomes very difficult, and at such times the positive count of winners is much more effective. The declarer in the hand shown below failed to recognize this principle and as a result went down two tricks on a laydown slam contract.

♥——
♦108762
♣A965

WEST
♠AQ7653
♥J5
♦J3
♣872

EAST
♠1092
♥A108642
♦954
♣J

♠——
♥KQ973
♦AKQ
♣KQ1043

The bidding (North-South vulnerable):

South.	West.	North	East
1 ♥	1 ♠	Pass (1)	Pass
3 ♣	Pass	5 ♣	Pass
6 ♣ (final contract).

(1) North should not have passed; he should have doubled one spade.

West decided against the lead of the spade ace, preferring the unbid suit, diamonds. Declarer won the jack with the ace and embarked on a cross-ruff plan. All went well until he found near the end that West had got rid of his diamonds and still had three trumps to one of declarer's and one of dummy's. It was then too late to recoup.

A simple count of positive winners should have shown the correct line of play. Declarer could count five diamond tricks and five trumps in his own hand. One heart would make the eleventh trick and one heart ruff in dummy would fulfill the contract. After winning the first lead, three rounds of trumps should have been played. The king and queen of diamonds should be unblocked and then the king of hearts led and passed unless West covered with the ace, a spade, of course, being discarded from dummy.

A very easy contract if properly analyzed.

TODAY'S QUESTIONS

Question: Playing at a heart contract, the trump suit was divided as follows:

Dummy	Declarer
K 5 4 2	A 10 8 3

What is the proper way to play the suit?

Answer: Lead to the king and on the return finesse the ten unless opponent plays an honor. This guards against four to the Q-J to the right of declarer—the only combination that can be guarded against.

Question: The bidding, with both sides vulnerable, had progressed as follows:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	2 ♦	3 ♠	4 ♦
4 ♠	Pass	Pass	5 ♦

What should South bid over five diamonds on the following hand:

♠AQ983 ♥AJ106 ♦2 ♣Q105

Answer: He should make a forcing pass, leaving the decision to his partner as to whether to double or bid five spades.

Flexible School Offers the Best Type of Teaching

We Have Been Trying to Give All Children the Same
Education and Are Failing.

By Angelo Patri

SOME day we are going to have the flexible school that the children need. This will not come tomorrow, but it will come in the future when the idea—now commonly accepted by educators, but not by the people themselves—that individual instruction, the stimulation and the satisfaction of each child's deepest hungers, his best qualities, are the answer to society's educational problems.

If one child can learn to read and another cannot master the art because of some lack in his physical, and consequently, mental endowment, and we keep forcing the nonreader to read, we are not giving the two children equal education. We are trying to give them the same education. And we are failing. What we need to do, and we are beginning to know it, is to give them equal opportunity to develop the powers they possess, to make the most of themselves, not in the same lines, but along their own, their individual lines of power.

—o-o—

THE theory is perfect, but the schools and the teachers are not equipped for this work. Individual education means schools with flexible, easily adjusted schedules. It means teachers trained to administer that sort of program. It means, too, different kinds of school buildings, more varied equipment, more elastic rules for the administration of the schools. All this will come by slow stages as people realize the needs and provide for them.

This sort of school will work out each child's salvation by letting him follow his lines of power, guiding him to them, holding him to his task of self-growth, not by force of law, but by force of attraction. He will go to school because school is the place that offers him satisfactions for hungers of mind and body. Each child will work for the joy of working, grow for the satisfaction of gratifying instinctive desire for growth, do his bit toward the progress of society because his sympathy has been caught and by himself harnessed to social forces for good.

BIG IDEA DEPARTMENT

Dear Big Idea Editor:

A dandy idea suddenly popped into my head the other day when I was playing a slot machine, by which it would be possible to eliminate slot machine gambling. Instead of passing laws against them, which are never effective anyway, why not just fix things up so that every time anyone puts a nickle into a slot machine it would start playing some tune like "The Music Goes 'Round and 'Round!" One's instinct to gamble would certainly suffer if anything so depressing were to happen.

Sincerely yours,,

The Process of Digestion and The Time It Takes

Under Certain Circumstances
the Digestive Enzymes Work Very Rapidly.

By
Logan Clendening, M. D.

A CORRESPONDENT writes to ask how rapidly after food enters the body it becomes assimilated into the nutritional machine. The answer depends a good deal on the kind of food and whether or not a small amount is taken, and whether or not it is part of a mixed meal.

Under certain circumstances, the digestion must be astonishingly rapid. The digestive enzymes work very rapidly. You can test this by noticing how soon a piece of cracker taken into the mouth becomes sweet, because the action of the saliva is to turn the starch of the cracker into a simple sugar.

Again, we know that in a case where too much insulin is given a diabetic patient, it brings on a condition in which the sugar of the blood is lowered below normal. The condition is treated by eating some simple starch or sugar, such as a glass of orange juice. Almost before the last drop of orange juice has been drained from the glass, the symptoms disappear, showing that this sugar is taken up with lightning-like rapidity from the stomach and utilized by the organism.

With an ordinary mixed meal, however, things go very much slower. It takes time for the food to be reduced to a proper kind of a mash in the stomach, and it is thrown into the intestine only in small amounts. The last part of a mixed meal leaves the stomach about six hours after it is ingested. It is probably not completely assimilated from the intestine for 24 hours. The body has many places for storing food which may not be used for many hours or days after storage has taken place.

Pattern for a Stunning Afternoon Frock

By Anne Adams

ANY way one beholds this frock, it's stunning and styled to make one most alluring for the afternoon tea. Such soft, gracious femininity as those cape-sleeves bespeak. (They're cool as off-shore breezes.) And that rolling collar, beguiling bow and rippling skirt. You'll want to send for pattern X2702 post-haste when you learn its easiest of the easy to make, and that is welcome news for you to turn "Seamstress" when vacation's in the offing. To see the daintily patterned Celanese which fashioned the original, is to love it, though when you've all manner of figured cottons, printed crepes and dreamy sheers at beck and call, you can be "choosy" and individual as you please! The pattern is X2702 designed in sizes 14 to 20 and 32 to 44. Size 16 takes 3 5-8 yards 39-inch fabric.

Send 15c today for pattern X2702 to St. Louis Post-Dispatch, Pattern Department, 243 West 17th street, New York, N. Y.

Hats Are Floral

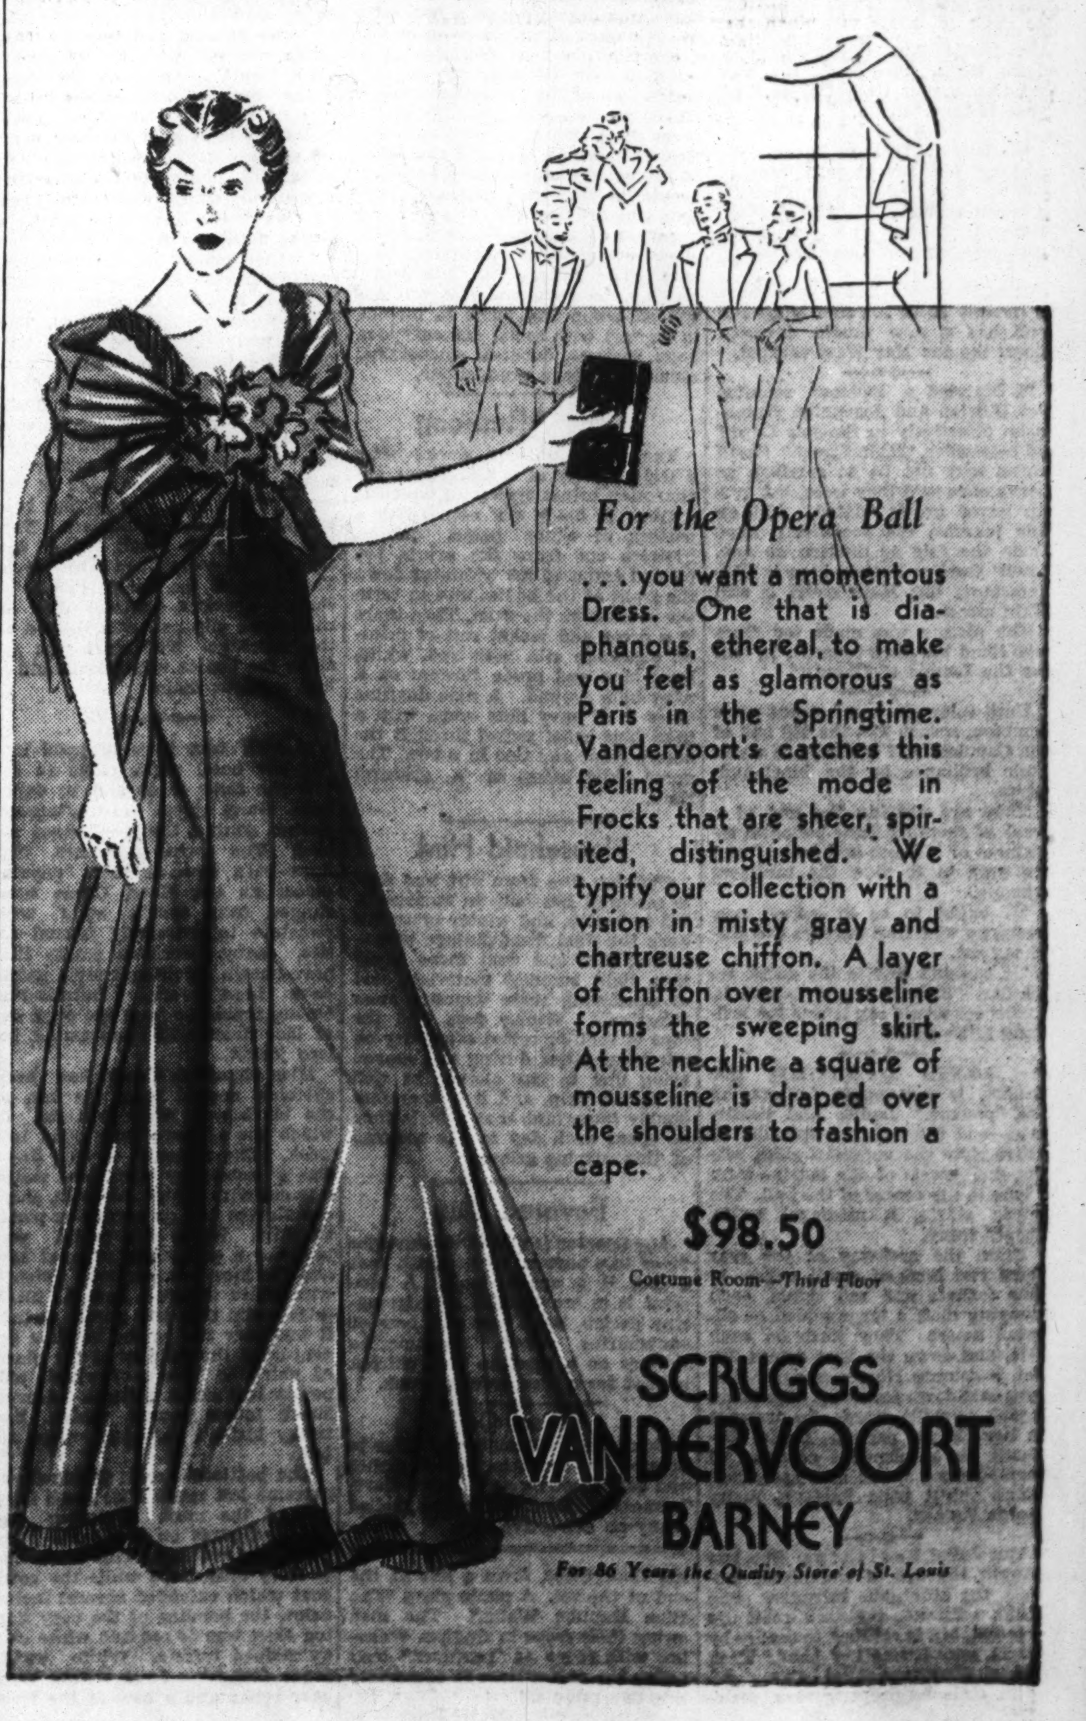
Trimming makes the hat this season. Veiling, flowers, ribbons, feathers and ornaments of various kinds, all are being used by the milliners to lend interest to spring models. White violets make an enchanting little toque with veil and perky upstanding bows of sheer black thread lace. A larger model, a Breton sailor of split straw, has its entire shallow crown made of red camelias. Pink and apricot yellow chiffon roses are massed in the cutaway side front brim of a brown toyo straw toque.

Parisian Novelties

Novelties shown at the recent Paris collections in New York include hats of spun glass in lovely Venetian glass colors and trimmed with flowers. These are from Agnes. Then there are capes of white fox tinted in "shampoo" effects, including ash-blonde, pale honey and pale amber. Taffeta umbrellas in small shepherd's plaid design are offered for rain or shine, and many houses showed parasols. A soft afternoon suit of navy blue faconne woolen has the jacket lined with pink georgette with enormous blue coin dots.

Potato Hint

When serving one or two courses before the main course and the mashed potatoes must be held for a while, place a pan of boiling water on the simmerer and into this put the pan containing the potatoes, keeping a lid on the pan.



For the Opera Ball

. . . you want a momentous Dress. One that is diaphanous, ethereal, to make you feel as glamorous as Paris in the Springtime. Vandervoort's catches this feeling of the mode in Frocks that are sheer, spirited, distinguished. We typify our collection with a vision in misty gray and chartreuse chiffon. A layer of chiffon over mousseline forms the sweeping skirt. At the neckline a square of mousseline is draped over the shoulders to fashion a cape.

FRANCES DEE

Horsemen in the McCrea family start training early. Frances Dee reports that Joel Dee, aged 18 months, already sits on a horse like a veteran, clinging to Daddy Joel's waist. The other youngster, David Thomas, will be put in the saddle as soon as possible. . . . He doesn't sit up yet.

—o-o—

Add to the saga of writers in Hollywood: A new scribe, fresh in the studio, arose at story conference and meekly requested the floor while he asked a question. The others felt that inspiration was in their midst. It wasn't.

"I wonder," he asked, "if it couldn't be arranged for me to—to have a room with a desk and a chair in it?"

He was given, of course, a fancy study, complete with decorations, dictaphone and secretary. He couldn't stand it, so much grandeur. He fled to work in a shack in the hills.

—o-o—

● HOLLYWOOD HAS become "road-show-minded" again. "The Great Ziegfeld" will be opened locally with a big old-time "gala premiere" at one of the former show theaters of the colony. This house, long dark except for intermittent benefits, stage productions and the like, has been in training for a revival of fame. Studios recently have leased it for special previews, to which stars turn out in glittering numbers. Frank Capra's latest, "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town," was shown there. The consensus was that Capra, plus Gary Cooper, had "gone to town" again.

—o-o—

"I Married a Doctor" reunites Pat O'Brien and Josephine Hutchinson effectively in Sinclair Lewis' old best-seller, "Main Street." Small towns may not be so smallish as Lewis once said they were, but gossip never grows "dated," and on this premise the scenarists have made the tale as modern as any. Lewis' Gopher Prairie here is Williamsburg, but Main street is still Main street.

The picture was made for those who liked the stars together in "Oil for the Lamps of China."

—o-o—

Until color pictures become more common, scenes like the big ball of the Capulets will continue to waste their brilliance on the black-and-white.

They are nearing the end of a week of shooting these ballroom sequences of "Romeo and Juliet," and we drop in to view the medieval whoopee.

"It ought to be in color," says everyone who first surveys the glittering set.

"It couldn't be," is the quick rejoinder. "Nobody would believe it. Audiences would say it was too brilliant to be real."

—o-o—

● AGNES DeMILLE, the dancer, is responsible for staging the "pavane." Ladies and gentlemen—and the latter in splendor of attire rival the gorgeous silks, satins, and jewels of the ladies—form a lane in the center of the hall. The music starts, a medieval waltz, deeply tinny.

From the archway at the rear come two lines of small pages, in blue jackets and red tights, each carrying aloft a large gilded or silvered bough. They form on each side, and down the lane comes Juliet, a demure Norma Shearer, her eyes cast down modestly. She bears a pink camellia, which she presents to her chosen partner, Paris. Beneath his resplendent costume of metal-decked black and spreading black velvet cape Paris is really Ralph Forbes.

—o-o—

But Juliet hesitates. She has caught the eye of worshipful Romeo, the Montague intruder. She looks offscene, registers romantic interest, but is recalled to reality by Paris, who kisses her hand. Then informal comedy relief begins.

Six stalwart property men, wielding floor mops, form a line at the end of the set. A piano plays "The Blue Danube Waltz." The men swing their mops in rhythm. Waltzing with mops as "partners," they polish the entire floor in something like two minutes!

In competition with the chamber music concert at the Woman's Club and the party at the Noonan-Kocian galleries where John Burroughs School opened an art exhibit, a full house was drawn to the new Vanguard Gallery at 3520 Franklin avenue last Sunday night. Those who came expecting radical demonstrations of some sort were disappointed. It was a dignified dedication of a center devoted to "art with a social content." Around the fresh-painted gray walls hung original cartoons by Daniel Fitzpatrick, because "he believes in the dignity of labor," and photo-murals by Piaget, who draws his materials from factory and farm. Fitzpatrick drew a caricature of Harmon Green, whose name was drawn out of a hat, into which names of visitors who made a contribution had been put. We satisfied our curiosity about the words of "The Internationale," which was on sale just like bourgeois sheet music in the Vanguard Bookshop which occupied the front of the gallery. Admission to gallery events "is free to unemployed persons who are members of any working class organization and who can show evidence of such membership." The gallery is non-profit making, is sponsored by an advanced group and plans to include in its "art with social content" idea book reviews, debates, symosiums, music and stage productions.

In the Afternoon

The new afternoon frocks offer a wide variety of styles. There are charming prints typical of which is a frock in black silk crepe with a pattern of white pastel daisies. Flowers cut from the prints are padded and used for trimming down the front of the bodice and to form the pockets on the skirt. Then there is a dress and jacket suit of printed shantung silk with red, white, light blue and green flowers on a navy blue ground. A nice daytime dress is of navy blue crepe with a light blue scarf pulled through the bodice front and tied in a bow. The gored skirt hangs in a graceful flare.

Household Hint

Clothing free from dirt and dust is essential not only to smartness, but to health, and winter materials have the dual disadvantage of collecting dirt and dust more easily than light summer materials, and of concealing these deposits more effectively. Winter fogs and the tons of soot deposited every day on our large cities during this season bring dirt to our clothes as well as to our skin, and it is therefore doubly important that a little time be spent each day in the removal of this surplus grime.

Favored Blue

Aquamarine is one of the favorite blues this season, its greenish cast giving it a spring look. A nice print is in brown with an aquamarine design, with belt and bow of aquamarine velvet. Aquamarine flowers on a medium blue chiffon is used for a nice evening frock.

Hot and Cold

Don't under-estimate the value in serving hot foods on heated dishes and cold foods on cold dishes. Carelessness in this direction has spoiled many an attractive dish.

center back. It is double-breasted and fastens with large white pearl buttons. The skirt is straight and slender. A white pique blouse has a standing collar tied at the front with a tailored bow, and a bosom front formed of rows of fagotting. Miss Penny's off-the-face hat is of navy felt and her low-heeled navy blue Oxfords have the new square toes.

Miss Helen Lipp who is sketched with her has chosen gray for her tailored spring suit. The material is a chalk striped woolen. The fitted jacket fastens with two buttons and the skirt has an inverted pleat at the center front. A tomato red silk crepe blouse is attractive against the gray of the suit. A gray felt hat with brim turned up at the back and gray suede ghillie ties are in harmony with the type of costume. For wear on cool days Miss Lipp has a gray Chesterfield topcoat that has the conventional gray velvet collar.

—o-o—

MENTION has been made of the unusually lovely prints which have been a feature of the formal mode this spring. Gay colors and designs have predominated and there has been a great variety of styles.

A striking printed satin evening frock was worn by Mrs. R. H. Ming on a recent evening at the Algonquin Country Club. This introduced brilliant blue flowers on a white background, the floral pattern being quite splashy and large. The bodice was cut with a high front and a deep V at the back, this decolletage outlined with cascade drapery of the material. Two large rhinestone clips held the bodice at the shoulders. The skirt was cut on the bias and was floor length. Slippers dyed the exact shade as the blue of the print were most effective with this frock.

Another good looking printed evening frock was worn by Mrs. C. K. Boyle at a dinner dance at the Hotel Chase and is sketched. The fabric was oriental red pussy willow silk printed with a ribbon pattern combining tones of green, dark blue and violet with black and silver. Large ribbon-like scrolls covered the silk in a distinctive manner. The bodice had a triangular section cut out at the back at the top of which was a large, flat bow extending to the shoulders. This was lined with black. Tiny cap sleeves also were lined with black. The front of the bodice had a V-shaped neckline finished with a rhinestone clip and was shirred to the waistline. The skirt was set on to the bodice with points and it had a slight train.

MANY who have dropped into the hotel night clubs to see the floor show and to dance have worn street or afternoon clothes during the pre-Lenten period. The spring costumes that have been seen at such popular places as the Hotel Chase have ranged from sports suits with sweaters to extremely formal attire. Many afternoon frocks that have shown significant style points have been worn. Outstanding among these has been the dark net or lace dress with contrasting bolero jacket.

Miss Elizabeth Castle has been sketched second from the left, in the black and white costume in which she appeared one night last week. The material of this dress was a cobwebby black lace which was cut with a high neckline, short cap sleeves and an accordion pleated skirt. White silk poplin was used for a collar and tailored bow and the lace belt also was finished with white tailored bow. A black taffeta slip that was gored so that it was very full at the hemline accentuated the fullness of the pleated skirt. A bolero of white silk poplin had short, tailored sleeves. Black fabric pumps which had tricky kitten's ear bows were noted.

The petticoat frock sketched at extreme left made Miss Ruth Carp one of the most arresting and stylish figures on the dance floor this same evening. This dress was of navy blue crepe while the petticoat which extended several inches below the hemline of the very flaring skirt was of red and white candy striped taffeta. White waffle pique formed a snug fitting turnover collar and a bow at the front of the neckline. Sleeves were gathered at the shoulders so that they stood up in the Gibson Girl fashion. They were long and tight at the wrists, where they were finished with turnback cuffs of the pique. A short flaring peplum extended across the back of the dress, ending at the side seams. Miss Carp's hat was a coolie beret type of navy Milan straw which was worn rather far back on the head, and her pumps were of navy fabric combined with patent leather. A trim little navy woolen coat which buttoned to a high neckline and was quite fitted was well chosen for the rest of her ensemble.

A navy dress showing the Margot influence that has been so exploited for springtime, was worn by Miss Rose Stephan. It was of navy crepe and had a long flaring peplum that gave the costume the appearance of a suit. A large turnover collar was finished with a lace flower-like jabot. A wide belt extended across the back, but there was none at the front. Patent leather pumps and a navy straw hat having a cluster of bright flowers at the front contributed toward the attractiveness of the costume.

Pleats in Vogue

● Pleats may be regarded as an expensive luxury, but every woman who prides herself on wearing voguish clothes will have at least one pleated costume this spring. Capes which display either knife or crushed pleating are the most interesting part of sheer frocks, and many jacket dresses of printed crepe adopt the cape theme by introducing pleated cape-like sleeves.

The full length pleated skirt for use with evening tunics is being introduced as are skirts of street length for wear with separate jackets. Jabots, collars and cuffs, bags and even sheer hat trimmings are among the pleated items of fashion which are seen extensively.

Coffee Penuche

EASY to make and just the thing to have around when that teasing sweet tooth needs to be soothed—or satiated. That's coffee penuche for you! Here is a list of ingredients required and directions for making a pound of it:

One cup brown sugar.
One cup granulated sugar.
One-fourth cup top milk.
One-half cup strong coffee beverage.
One tablespoon butter or margarine.
One-fourth teaspoon salt.
One-half cup chopped nutmeats.

Combine the sugars, milk and coffee beverage in a saucepan, and stir over a low heat until the sugar is dissolved. Continue cooking, without stirring, to 238 degrees F., or until a little of the mixture dropped in cold water forms a soft ball. Remove from the heat and cool to lukewarm. Add the butter, salt and nutmeats, and beat with a spoon until the mixture is creamy and beginning to stiffen. Turn into a greased pan, 8½x4½x2 inches, mark into squares and cool. Makes about 1 pound.

Dinner Attire

Dinner suits and dinner dresses appear everywhere as the places in town fill up with people back from the South. An enchanting dinner frock is of navy blue chiffon over a blue crepe slip with a heart-shaped decolletage. Little pink chiffon flowers make the neckband and also form the girdle. Black sheer crepe makes a long, slim cocktail suit with a bodice of white shirred chiffon. There is a cluster of white violets at the waistline. Black chiffon or net over taffeta is used for other smart dinner frocks.

Flowers Have It

The millinery department of any store might easily be mistaken for the horticultural section. For never have flower hats and flower trimmings been so prevalent. Agnes makes a blithe number, in shape something like a tricorne, but made entirely of rich, red carnations massed very high and coming to a point at one side. The right side is entirely covered by a red veil that ties in a pert bow in back and juts out in front. A charming hat for a dainty blonde is made entirely of tiny, blue velvet forget-me-nots.

THIS NEW YORK

New Yorkers should not, in actual fact, abandon the Paris of tradition and go to San Francisco.

REAL puzzle fans, who like to work for days assembling itsy-bitsy pieces in the most complex patterns, should try those cut out by a Mrs. John Paul Jones her (husband was the Yale football star), at Chagrin Falls, O. They are so beautifully designed that when complete they can be picked up and waved like a flag. Each piece in outline forms part of an independent design, quite separate from the picture of the puzzle itself, and when you work them out banquet tables suddenly appear, with guests seated around them, dogs chasing cats, children in bath tubs, and such. It takes Mrs. Jones an entire day to cut a 600-piece puzzle, and she is dated for weeks ahead. She charges 5 cents a piece, no more, no less. Aileen Winslow showed one to the present King of England, who at once ordered a dozen through Harrods, at $1 for each piece, but Mrs. Jones forwarded them at the regular nickel price. Such folk as Cole Porter, Howard Sturges, Kay Francis and Winsor French are crazy about them. Patrons can take pot luck on subjects, or specify subjects. The ones she sent King Edward were all of American patriotic themes!

If Larry Pool, sometime Metropolitan squash champion, is puzzled by the elderly bowler hat with his initials in it which he received at the Harvard Club a week or so since, let him hark back to the happy year of 1928 when he attended a dance at the Number Six Club, a Massachusetts Institute of Technology fraternity. A posse of Yales also were present and, that being an era when one was considered a dope if he didn't come home from a prom with a better hat and coat than that he started with, Mr. Pool's hat went back to New Haven on the milk train. Since then Mr. Pool has several times seen his hat without recognizing it, at the indoor polo matches at Harvard-Yale hockey games, in the Stadium at Brighton.

AFTER eight years of service, however, its Eli wearer began to consider it as headed for the discard. Then he thought perhaps it would be more decent if its original owner should be allowed to retire it. Hence its appearance, after long last, at the Harvard Club. Mr. Pool may refer to Kenneth Godfrey, Yale, '30.

The last of the old Greenwich Village Bohemians of the hey-hey and gin-parlor era of the early '20s, Cynthia White, is back in town, after a Mexican winter, and is so impressed with the place that her annual Greenwich Village Revel, which is going to be at the old stand, Webster Hall, is arriving next Friday night, in the guise of a Mexican fiesta. She's got a list of hidalgo patrons a mile long, and just for good measure has thrown in such proud dons of long Castilian descent as James Montgomery Flagg, Russell Patterson, Art Young, Cleon Throckmorton, Otto Soglow and Harry Hershfield. Such black-eyed senoritas from south of the Rio Grande as Margaret Bourke-White and Peggy Bacon will be on hand, so get your sombrero and serape out of the camphor balls, perfume yourself with a dash or so of tequila behind the ears and hurry down to the Webster Hacienda before the rurales arrive and take every one to the pokey, or hoosegow as the Spaniards say. (Was it Stanley Walker who once admonished somebody with the phrase "Adobe foolish"?) If the fiesta is anything like Cynthia's barbecues in the past, half the town will wake up with a regular Guadalajara of a hangover Saturday morning.

● THIS IS THE polo season out here and at the Saturday and Sunday afternoon games the women spectators get their best chance—and how they love it—to display what's really what in sports attire. I saw one chukker at the Uplifters' Field this afternoon just to get a hurried view of the audience in the boxes and found Norma Shearer, who runs to spectator sports styles, in a three-toned tan tweed ensemble which she had hurriedly, although pretty carefully planned, after shedding a Juliet costume she had worn all morning at the studio while making a scene for "Romeo and Juliet." The simple little sports skirt was a deep shade of tan, the hip-length jacket was a shade lighter, and the top coat still another toward beige. Brown suede cuffs, collar and lapels added a smart contrast. A hat of matching suede, shoes, gloves and bag of the same leather, completed this chic costume.

And in the afternoon, when Anita entertains with a cocktail party, she will wear a hostess gown of changeable green taffeta, cut very full, with a corsage of purple violets at her waistline, and green sandals.

● WHEN MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM WELLMAN (he is the director, you know) and their little daughter, Patricia, sailed for a South Seas vacation the other night they were given a surprise party send-off at the ship. Bob Taylor and Barbara Stanwyck showed up together to lend more color to the report that now that Irene Hervy has switched her affections to Allan Jones, Bob is finding consolation with Barbara. Anyway, they brought along several elaborate crates of presents which the Wellmans were to open on their arrival at Hawaii. There was nothing about the boxes to indicate that they contained pineapples. But they did.

Cereal Dishes Can Be Varied

RECIPES that contain cereals as a basic ingredient are always in demand, and, of course, especially during Lent. So we have prepared for you some very new recipes.

There's apricot toastie scallop, as nice a sweet as any we have met with. Arrange two cups of drained, canned apricots in shallow baking dish and add half cup apricot juice and three tablespoons lemon juice. Combine three cups toastie type cereal, four tablespoons melted butter, four tablespoons sugar tossing lightly to mix. Sprinkle over apricots. Bake in hot oven for 10 minutes or until browned.

Toastie Pecan Muffins.

Now for a recipe that will yield 10 toastie pecan muffins. Sift one cup sifted flour once, add two and a half teaspoons baking powder, quarter teaspoon salt and two tablespoons sugar, and sift again. Crush one cup toastie type cereal and add; then add half cup finely-cut pecan meats. Combine one well-beaten egg, two-thirds cup of milk and three tablespoons melted butter or other shortening and add to the flour mixture, beating only enough to dampen all flour. Bake in greased muffin tins in hot oven for 25 minutes or until done.

For three dozen walnut corcorons, beat three egg whites with half teaspon salt until foamy throughout; add one firmly-packed cup of brown sugar, two tablespoons at the time, beating after each addition until sugar is blended. Add half teaspoon vanilla. Fold in two cups toasties, one cup shredded coconut and one cup broken walnut meats. Drop from teaspoon on ungreased heavy paper. Bake in slow oven 20 minutes or until delicately browned.

Mussolini's Star Chamber Court; Teachers, Poets, Critics Sentenced For Long Terms as Anti-Fascists

Half of 200 Intellectuals Arrested Last June Still in Prison Awaiting Trial, Reports Paris Paper Published by Exiles.

Special Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.

PARIS, April 11.

MUSSOLINI'S Star Chamber court, the Fascist Special Tribunal for the Defense of the State, in February sentenced 100 of 200 "intellectuals" arrested last June to serve prison terms for "active propaganda against the Fascist regime," according to Giustizia e Liberta.

The weekly newspaper, published here in both French and Italian by Italian exiles, listed those sentenced in its March 20 edition and said that 17 laborers of Reggia, Emilia, and four Milanese Communist workers also received long sentences. Another man, it was said, had been executed by a firing squad at Rome.

Mussolini on Freedom

"THE concept of freedom is not absolute because nothing is ever absolute in life. Freedom is not a right, it is a duty. It is not a gift, it is a conquest; it is not equality, it is a privilege. The concept of freedom changes with the passing of time. There is a freedom in times of peace which is not the freedom of times of war. There is a freedom in the times of prosperity which is not a freedom to be allowed in times of poverty." (Mussolini on the fifth anniversary of the founding of the Fasci di Combattimento, March 24, 1924.)

Little has been printed about the secret tribunal, which has increased its severity since the beginning of the Ethiopian campaign. The Fascist press has been ordered to say nothing of its proceedings. Foreign correspondents in Rome find no mention of it in handouts of the Propaganda Ministry, on which many depend as their principal news source.

Mussolini's Theory.

With absolute sovereignty of the State the keystone of the Fascist social and political theory, no pretensions to recognition of personal freedom are made. The action of the Special Tribunal for the Defense of the State is an expression of the view enunciated by Mussolini in an address to the General Staff Conference of Fascism in 1929.

He said:

"We were the first to state, in face of demo-liberal individualism that the individual exists only in-so-far as he is within the State and subjected to the requirements of the State and that, as civilization assumes aspects which grow more and more complicated, individual freedom becomes more and more restricted."

On the same occasion he asserted: "Whenever respect for the State declines and the disintegrating and centrifugal tendencies of individuals and groups prevail, nations are headed for decay."

To solidify and perpetuate his corporative state, Mussolini has bent no little effort toward impressing students with his postulate of supreme sovereignty of the State, and arousing militant patriotism, defining as the perfect Fascist the youth with a book in one hand and a rifle in the other.

Fascist Teachers' Oath.

Dr. Michele Giua, 45-year-old war veteran and professor at the Institute of Technology and the Military Academy of Turin, resigned after refusing to take the Fasicist teachers' oath, Giustizia e Liberta stated. His oldest son, arrested for anti-Fascist propaganda, escaped and came here. When his parents corresponded with him and it was learned his father dared to see him in France, the father and mother were arrested. On Feb. 28, Dr. Giua was sentenced to 15 years' imprisonment.

During the period of the incarceration of Dr. and Mrs. Giua, Dr. Augusto Monti, also a war veteran and a poet, novelist and professor of Italian and Latin at Liceo d'Azeglio at Turin, took their two small children to school and to motion picture shows. This was interpreted by the Special Tribunal as an "expression of solidarity with the political ideas" of the children's father.

"Then you sympathized with their father?" the Judge asked Dr. Monti.

"Yes, indeed," he answered, "and I am proud of it. I am only ashamed that in a country which boasts of being civilized a person can be accused of having been merciful toward two children left alone in their home.

"Yes, gentlemen," he continued, "I took them to school and to the movies. I regret that my finances did not allow me to take them to my house, where I could have cared better for them."

A More Severe Sentence.

The speech brought Dr. Monti a five-year sentence on the same day Dr. Giua was tried.

Even more severe was the sentence of Dr. Antonio M. Pesenti, 25-year-old professor of finance at the University of Sassari. Charged with having published abroad articles criticising the Fascist Government, having attended, while in Brussels, a meeting against the Ethiopian campaign and being a Socialist, he received a 25-year term.

Another critic of the corporative state, Dr. Vittorio Foa, lawyer and economist, was sentenced to a 15-year prison term. Both his father and his brother were arrested also, the brother being released but losing his position.

His acquaintance with anti-Fascists brought Dr. Massimo Mila a sentence of eight years. He had refused to join the Fascist party and so could not teach in the State schools. A poet and music critic, he supported his mother and sister by writing, tutoring and contributing to encyclopedias.

The iron hand of the Special Tribunal also fell on the household of Signor Perelli, Government employe at Cuneo. He and his son, Dr. Alberto Perelli, received eight-year sentences. The son had been tried and acquitted by the Special Tribunal after six months' imprisonment in 1932.

Others listed and their sentences were: Gino Guernandi, Milan, clerk, 24 years for being a Communist; Signor Cavallero, lawyer, eight years, and Signor Gigli, 12 years.

The name of the man said to have been executed in Rome, in accordance with the law on militarization of factories, was Giuseppe Taucer.

About half of the 200 arrested remain in prison awaiting trial. Most of them were from Cuneo, Turin, and other cities of Piedmont, of which William B. Kinney, American Charge d'Affaires at Turin, said in 1851, "One may really say that it is the only country of liberty, civilization and religion in Southern Europe."

NEW VIENNA OPEN-AIR THEATER

Stage to Be Invisible When Not in Use During Day.

(Copyright, 1936.)

VIENNA, April 11.—One of the most delightful places to view a play or hear a symphony will be the new open-air theater on the slope of Mount St. Gelbert. The theater, erected on the high hill overlooking the Danube, near the Francis Joseph bridge, has a natural background for its stage setting. The seating will accommodate 5000 persons and will be an exact copy of the theater in Regent's Park, London. In order to preserve the harmonious appearance of the hill the stage will be invisible during the day, and only raised from the earth for the evening performances.

Germany Building Vast Network of Military Highways

The Land Beyond the Rhine

"Gestapo"---Hitler's Highly Efficient Secret State Police

Heavier, Wider Roads Capable of Transporting 72,000 Men an Hour With Improved Motor Vehicles Can Increase Speed of Maneuvers Tenfold Without Adding Proportionately to Difficulties of Supply.

By GENERAL SERRIGNY.

Translated From the Revue des Deux Mondes, Paris Conservative Bi-Monthly.

Reprinted from The Living Age by Special Permission.

EUROPE seems to be coming out of a long dream and to be realizing at last the stage which science has reached since 1918, both on land and in the air. The days of war horses have gone the way of those carriages our mothers were so fond of. Today war supplies, the mobilization of factories, and the speeding-up of air armament, are all coming rapidly to the fore. In Germany concrete is coming to be king. Our neighbors have in fact undertaken a vast program, of whose import the public officials of France seem to be unaware. While we are congratulating ourselves, and with justice, on possessing the world's most beautiful tourist system, and while we are striving to improve the details of it, the Germans are forging a formidable instrument of war—a system of automobile highways.

How Railways Aided in Mobilization of 1914.

Let us recall our memories of 1914. At that time mobilization was based on an intensive use of railways. Toward 1900 people used to repeat readily the statement that the power of the rail is unlimited. Like all proverbs this one was only partly true. But whatever the case, it was generally expected that when the time came, men, horses, wagons and material would be transported by railroad to the threshold of the mobilization zone. Only the last kilometers would be covered by road, which was looked upon simply as a complement of the railroad, that supreme factor of strategic maneuvers.

The mobilization of 1914 was accomplished in an impeccable fashion. It proceeded like clockwork, without a single hitch. The officers of the fourth bureau of the military staff of the army, who had prepared it, could congratulate themselves as well as the railroad companies, for the result obtained was their common work.

Railroad Effective Factor in the Saving of Calais.

Once mobilization was completed the role of the railroad, in so far as it was an instrument of war, actually increased. Our generation still recalls the emotions with which, after the victory of the Marne, it followed the race to the sea, that contest in speed in which the belligerents engaged in order to stretch a line of trenches between Switzerland and the Atlantic Ocean. La Manche was destined to be dominated by one or the other of the belligerents according to the point on the coast where they could hook the last link of their chain. Direct communications between France and England constituted, in short, the stakes of the game. This game our railroads once more won, and under particularly difficult conditions. The Germans had, in fact, the advantage of being able to work out their transportation problem inside a circle, while we were obliged to work on the outside of it. For us the distances were greater and the routes unfamiliar. Nevertheless we succeeded in saving Calais, and this feat alone gives the Nord Railroad a legitimate claim to glory.

Since Great War Auto Has Displaced Other Transport.

In the past the railroad has merited well of the fatherland. But such a statement ought not to freeze us in an immutable formula. It is our duty to take account of the progress that has been made, and we are obliged to state that since 1918 there has been a great change both in the internal structure of armies and in the means of commercial transportation. The army of 1914 was founded on horses. As soon as it had detrained, its speed was reduced to a few kilometers an hour. Furthermore, nothing could have been simpler than its embarkation and debarkation; at that time material was relatively light, only a few large pieces of artillery constituting an exception to the rule. Today the automobile is king. The army includes a large number of armored cars, of which many are very large. Loading them on railroad cars requires many hours of hard work, while these mastodons travel on the roads at speeds higher than those of the mobilization trains, so long as they do not encounter any obstructions. As an example, and to fix in our minds the new conditions of the problem, let us say simply that a mechanized division, with all its elements, men, arms, ammunition and the engines of all sorts which are needed for fighting and for bringing up supplies, requires a stretch of 110 miles of highway.

II

Paralleling this mechanical transformation of the army, and even more rapidly than it (for the army has really only followed the movement, and has not led it), in all countries the transportation of persons by road has been developed, as has that of material. It is useless to dwell upon this fact, which is itself the evidence. Nowhere, however, has this movement been so marked as in Germany since the day when that power decided to rearm. Three years ago trucks of more than eight tons capacity did not exist. Today you can see trucks of 15 tons on the German roads, provided with trailers with six wheels; and, according to information which I believe to be exact, within two years (that is to say, when the construction of the system of automobile highways, of which more anon, is sufficiently well advanced) we shall see trucks with 50-ton trailers. At the same time one should note that the manufacturers are receiving orders for motors of 300 or even 400 horsepower for trucks to anticipate this development. Finally let us note a characteristic figure of the strengthening of the army of industrial vehicles beyond the Rhine: the sales of heavy vehicles increased from 15,000 to 40,000 between 1931 and 1934, while in France they dropped considerably.

150,000 Men Building New German Road System.

Equipment like this cannot make use of ordinary roads. In France the Government has limited the weight and capacity of vehicles because automobilists complained about the way they blocked the roads; no one has asked if the problem was not wrongly put, and if from examination of the facts one ought not rather to conclude that our roads are too narrow. That in any case is the reasoning of the Germans. Thus to enable the enormous vehicles whose construction he envisaged to travel freely, Hitler has not hesitated to resolve upon the construction of a system of automobile highways requiring the expenditure of 20 billions of francs. These new roads will provide two lanes, each from seven and one-half to 12 meters wide, one for outgoing traffic and one for incoming. They are separated by a space four meters wide and planted with hedges to stop the glare of headlights. Drivers traveling on one of the lanes are never dazzled by the cars on the other. These highways have bridges where the thickness of the concrete is sometimes as much as 60 centimeters. They have no raised approaches, no grade crossings; they do not go through a single town. Only the former imperial routes and the approaches to large communities join them, and these by means of ramps which lead the vehicle on to the auto highway parallel to the direction of the traffic and without disturbing it in the slightest. The men employed on the construction of the automobile highways numbered 38,600 on the first of July, 1934, and had increaed to 71,234 by

Head of Gestapo

HEINRICH HIMMLER.

Thoroughly Effective Organization, Under Central Control, Maintains Espionage Bureaus Throughout Nation, Inspects Mail or Listens to Telephone Conversations and Has its Agents in Principal Capitals of Europe.

By a Special Correspondent.

From the Manchester Guardian, Manchester Liberal Daily, reprinted from the Living Age.

THERE is a widespread belief that the terror in Germany is no more than incidental to the National Socialist dictatorship. This belief is entirely erroneous, for the terror is an integral part of the system. The terror is coming to be exercised more and more exclusively by the Secret State Police, commonly known as the "Gestapo" (an abbreviation of Geheime Staatspolizei) or the "Gestapa" (an abbreviation of Geheimes Staatspolizeiamt).

According to a law newly enacted, the head of the Gestapo is the Prussian Premier, Gen. Goering, who is also Speaker in the Reichstag and Minister of Aviation. The General decides upon the special tasks of the Gestapo in consultation with the Minister of the Interior, Dr. Frick. The actual Chief of Police is Himmler, a former schoolmaster, a man of great charm, an able organizer, and completely ruthless. Even a year ago the methods of the Gestapo were amateurish. But during the past year the organization has become more proficient. It is now one of the most efficient instruments of tyrannical power in the world.

Five Departments Control Movements of Secret Police.

It is directed by a Central Board (Zentralstelle) in Berlin. This board is made up of Himmler's own office and of the following principal departments (Hauptabteilungen):—

1. Principal department for the supervision of transport and communications on land and water. This includes spying on employes and workmen on the railways, tramways, and so on.

2. Principal department for the supervision of the illegal activities of Communists and Social Democrats.

3. Principal department for the supervision and control of all persons and organizations that do not belong to the National Socialist party, especially of persons who belong to the former Center, Nationalist, People's, and Democratic parties.

4. Principal department for the supervision of the National Socialist party, of all affiliated organizations, and of all clubs and associations that have had to accept the Gleichschaltung (absorption by National Socialist bodies). This department also sees to the protection of leading persons in the State and in the National Socialist party.

5. Principal department for defense against economic, industrial and military espionage.

Telephone Calls and Mail Under Police Inspection.

These departments have their "Federal Boards" (Landesstellen) in each of the Federal States.

The following sub-departments (Unterabteilungen) are independent of the Federal Boards, and are affiliated to the Central Board:—

1. Sub-department for the supervision of emigres.

2. Sub-department for the supervision of aliens and "Staatenlose."

3. Sub-department for the control of letters, telegrams, telephone calls that pass between Germany and the outside world. (Letters and telegrams are liable to be opened and telephone calls to be overheard in Germany without an order from a judge or a magistrate.)

4. Sub-department for the supervision of political suspects.

5. Sub-department for the supervision of political opponents in the Federal police.

This last department exists because the dictatorship is not sure of the ordinary police, who, in the days of the Republic, contained numbers of Social Democrats as well as members of the Center and Nationalist parties. The special task of the department is to be informed by means of spies and agents-provocateurs about any disaffection that may exist among the police forces of the Federal States.

A further special department is the

JAMES TRUSLOW ADAMS ON THOMAS JEFFERSON AND HIS PROFESSED DISCIPLES

He Contrasts Present Tactics of the Democratic Party With Those of Man it Claims as Patron Saint and Asks Would He Recognize it.

By JAMES TRUSLOW ADAMS.

Noted American Historian, Author of "The Epic of America," "The March of Democracy," "Henry Adams," Etc.

(Copyright, 1936; all rights reserved.)

A CENTURY and a quarter after Jefferson was President of the United States his name and supposed ideas are still being invoked in political speeches and in party platforms. Many of the ideas attributed to him, however, are often so far from being his as to make it evident that those invoking them for their own purposes have little acquaintance with Jefferson's writings, or with what he would be willing to have pass as "Jeffersonian." In as few words as possible, what did he believe?

First, we may note one or two points about the man in general. Jefferson was no impractical dreamer, as often claimed by his enemies. He was intensely practical. He once wrote to John Adams, "I am not fond of reading what is merely abstract, and unapplied immediately to some useful purpose," although he was the most cultured and widely read man in the America of his day. He was neither theorist nor doctrinaire.

On his plantation, he knew his soils, his manure and crops, and knew that one acre and crop could not be treated like another. So in the art of government, although he had his ideal of what a government should be, he preached over and over again that form of a government had to be adjusted to the character of a people. This sets him off from men like Wilson, who insisted on fitting a people to a government instead of fitting a government to a people.

Learns by Direct Contact.

In testing government, as during his years in France, Jefferson did not sit in his study and talk generalities with professors. He walked through the country, went into the hovels of peasants, sat with them at meals and slept on their beds to see how government worked. More convinced than ever that a people could not be happy and prosperous carrying the load on their backs of the eighteenth century type of monarchy and privileged classes, he nevertheless advised the early leaders of the French Revolution that the people were not yet ready for his own ideal of government.

He did believe, however, that the America of his time might offer the chance to try his form out. He considered America as being unique in the world's history, as it was. But he insisted on the fact that it was unique because of the existing conditions. Given those conditions, he planned his form of government, hoping to alter them still more in the right direction, and saying frequently that if they altered instead in the wrong direction, then his plans would no longer work. All the various measures be took, in revising the laws and Constitution of Virginia and in other ways, were directed to this end, and both his ideas and acts form a coherent whole, though like all men in practical affairs he had occasionally to adjust his general ideas to specific conditions.

Opposed Spoils System.

He believed that for the sake of both personal liberty and the guaranteeing to each man his property and earnings, government should be as limited in scope and frugal in expense as conditions might allow. He dreaded heavy taxes and hordes of public officials, as he dreaded unbalanced budgets and large debts. He was utterly opposed to the "spoils system" in politics. In order to control government and preserve liberty, he believed that the "fount of power" should be not as it then was in Europe, in a monarch and an aristocratic or moneyed class, but in the people themselves.

He believed in a self governing republic if conditions allowed, and he thought condtions then in his unique America did allow it. He was, nevertheless, far from having that opinion of all common men as men which is often attributed to him. He did not believe that all men have equal capacities, honesty or ability and talent. He did not believe that every man was capable of directing public affairs. That the people should be the final "fount of power," as he called it, was very different from considering them all as capable of participating directly in the problems of government.

Dreaded "Mobs" of Cities.

Our modern pressure groups, resulting in what was recently called in Congress, "government by telegraph" or "mail order government," would have appalled him. In fact, many times during his life he carefully pointed out the limits within which he thought it safe for peoples under different conditions to take direct part in government, even in the election of the higher officials. He reluctantly consented to a lower house of Congress elected directly by the people, because otherwise there would be taxation without representation; but he deeply feared that such a Congress could not legislate independently and wisely.

Theoretically he believed that government would be safest against violent overthrow, and property best insured, if the former rested on as broad a popular base as possible. Everything, however, in his opinion depended on the nature of the people themselves. His ideal was agrarian. The farmer, owning his own acres and tilling his own soil, Jefferson felt to be a safe citizen. Such a man would not wantonly destroy or tax the property of others because his own would be included; but Jefferson dreaded what he called "the mobs" of the cities and a large class of propertyless wage earners. When, as he said, we became "piled up upon one another" as in the cities of Europe, then there would be trouble.

His Theory of Property.

In his time, 90 per cent of Americans were farmers, and that was why, with a wider distribution of landed property than the world had ever seen, he felt that the chance had come for trying out a better form of government than the world had had before. Much, however, had to be done to maintain, and if possible improve, those conditions which Jefferson considered as fundamental to the maintenance of a free and self-governing republic as he conceived it.

We can now see how all his ideas and measures, though dealing apparently with quite separate matters, all hung together on his fundamental belief, like beads on one string.

If proletarian city masses of propertyless wage earners were to be dangerous to the possibility of self government, then the problem of land was of prime importance. When Jefferson destroyed entail and primogeniture in Virginia—that is, the tying up of large estates through inheritance and their passing to the eldest son—he did not do so from mere humanitarianism or radicalism. He did it to prevent the closing up of vast tracts from the ordinary man, because if the ordinary man could not get land, then the proletariat would begin to form. Jefferson was not attacking property. He was trying to insure it by having it widely distributed

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare; never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Russia and the Rest of Us.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

WHITHER are we drifting? That is the question agitating the minds of thinking Americans today.

About the middle of the nineteenth century, two philosophers were preaching their doctrines throughout Germany—Nietzsche and Karl Marx. The Socialism of Marx, being a strictly proletarian movement, had no chance in Germany at that time, but the world was to see Nietzsche-ism exemplified under the regimes of the Kaisers.

While the war was still in progress, the first break that was to mark the beginning of a new era in the history of the world was made in Russia. What happened there has always happened where the people have been held down too long and too hard. Italy was to furnish the setting for the next break, and Germany followed. Here the Communist strength was about 5,000,000 and there was probably a 10,000,000 Social Democratic strength. Had these two parties been able to find a common working ground, it is doubtful if Hitler could have succeeded.

It is significant that in only one country, Russia, has Socialism been triumphant. What was possible in Russia was not, when it came to the test, possible in Italy, Spain, Poland, Germany or Austria. England was the first great Power to demonstrate to the world that monarchy and democracy are not necessarily incompatible.

England, France and America are the three remaining great strongholds of democracy. Can they survive in the transition age through which we are now passing? Democracy is the best form of government, but it must be made more quickly responsive to the needs of a changing world.

Recalls Austrian Outrages.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

"AUSTRIAN Press Criticises American Way of Justice in Hauptmann Case," says a news item in the Post-Dispatch.

It is only two years ago that the world was horrified by the shelling of Vienna's apartment houses in a four-day fight, in which nearly a thousand men, women and children were killed. There were wholesale executions of labor leaders, one of them being carried to the gallows on a stretcher, and thousands of honest defenders of Austrian democracy were put in prison for years.

Odd, indeed, it is for the Austrian press, which has tolerated these outrages in its own country, to criticise American justice for putting a murderer, duly tried and convicted, in the electric chair.

On Playing Bridge.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

PROF. ALBERT EINSTEIN won't play bridge? "Why, everybody plays bridge."

But then, perhaps he remembers what Voltaire said: "But notwithstanding all the progress of the human understanding, there are few that read; and among those who sometimes seek instruction, the reading for the most part is very ill-chosen. My neighbors, men and women, pass their time after dinner at playing an English game which I have much difficulty to pronounce, since they call it whist. Many good citizens, many thick heads, who take themselves for good heads, tell you with an air of importance, that books are good for nothing. . . . It is reading alone that invigorates the understanding; conversation dissipates it; play contracts it."

And, too, perhaps he regards bridge-playing as effeminate; the inertia and physical impotence, while the mind is over-subtle in the gauging of bids, the casuistry of the boudoir, the finesse of gossip, the dainty concealments of the makeup, the wit and repartee of the bargain-counter—and the prize gloatingly won, that will be passed on next month.

But alack and alas, as a friend wonderingly asked, "Well, if you don't play bridge, what do you do when people visit you who bore you?" PLATO JR.

A Tribute to Father Tim.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IF ever a priest possessed the brotherly love instinct, the late Father Tim Dempsey did. He shook hands with everybody, with policemen, firemen, postmen, men and women in all walks of life. He was the personal friend of Jewish rabbis, Protestant ministers and unbelievers. Father Dempsey knew more people than did any other clergyman of the city. Crowds did not seem to tire him. No wonder that St. Patrick's church grew rapidly and that so many persons considered it an honor to have him speak to them.

Father Tim did great things in religious education, in the service of the church and in the broader service of the Kingdom of God.

But even more significant is the influence of his character and personality. Wherever he came, he made life different and always made it better. His kindly face, his words, his friendliness, his joyousness, his never-failing interest in all things living and human, his instant readiness to forget himself in serving the other fellow, his downright courage, his simplicity, his outspokenness, his manliness all brought honor to the name of Christian which he bore.

WILLIAM BAGGOT.

CRISIS IN ILLINOIS.

The political crisis which Illinois faces Tuesday is the gravest since it exchanged the convention system of nominating candidates for the direct primary.

This statement needs no qualification. The Democratic party, in power for the first time in many years, is threatened with Statewide boss rule. The Republican party is confronted with the possibility of the minority nomination of a thoroughly discredited spoilsman. It is no wonder Illinois is worked up throughout its 400 miles from the Wisconsin line to the confluence of the Mississippi and the Ohio at Cairo.

Either the Democratic voters will renominate Gov. Henry Horner on the basis of his record—the best which has been made by a Governor of Illinois for a long time—or open the way for machine domination of their party, and perhaps the State, by doing the bidding of the Kelly-Nash combination of Chicago, whose candidate is Dr. Herman N. Bundesen.

That is the issue. That is the choice the Democrats will make when they mark their ballots for Governor. The frantic cry of Mayor Kelly and Pat Nash that Gov. Horner will be a millstone around the neck of Roosevelt is the sort of thing that can be expected from politicians of their stripe. It is another red herring. The boss whose continuance in power depends on keeping nominations and elections from being decided on merit and public need always seeks to distract attention from the real issue.

The Horner administration has not been perfect. There is much that might have been done for the benefit of Illinois during the last three years that has not been done. But there has been no greater hindrance than the opposition of the Kelly-Nash-controlled legislators from Cook County, who have fought such meritorious measures as the permanent registration bill, which Boss Nash, according to the current issue of Time, has frankly admitted would cost his organization 250,000 votes. And this is only another way of saying that the issue is machine domination.

Do the Democrats of Illinois want to take orders from a pair of bosses whose careers have been part and parcel of the unsavory politics, to use a mild term, which has disgraced Chicago? Do they want to repudiate Gov. Horner and his stand for merit in the State departments—the stand which caused Kelly and Nash, who wanted jobs and more jobs for their henchmen, to turn against him? Do they want to head their State ticket instead with a hand-picked candidate who first held public office under the notorious Big Bill Thompson?

If they know what Statewide boss rule has meant in Missouri, how machine-controlled legislators have defied and defeated public opinion at Jefferson City, they will not be long in finding the answers.

The Republicans face a situation hardly less critical in their governorship race. The peril which confronts them is that Len Small of Kankakee, twice Governor thanks to two Republican presidential landslides and twice defeated because of his sorry record, may be nominated as a result of the multiplicity of candidates seeking the Republican nomination.

Those who think there is no danger of this need to remind themselves that they were thinking the same thing four years ago. They thought Small was done for then and did not take seriously his "back to prosperity" slogan. Yet, running in a field of five in 1932, he won the nomination with about one vote in three, subsequently to be overwhelmingly defeated by Horner in the election. This year, Small has six instead of four other candidates to divide the vote against him.

The Post-Dispatch has no interest in the personal fortunes of any of the other Republican candidates for Governor. Oscar E. Carlstrom of Aledo, one of them, was Attorney-General under Small and joined in settling out of court for $650,000 the accounting ordered by the State Supreme Court following Small's trial for misuse of State funds. H. Wallace Caldwell of Oak Park is a Commissioner of Cook County. J. Paul Kuhn is a Batavia business man with a good reputation. Still others are State Senator Thomas P. Gunning of Princeton and George W. Dowell of Du Quoin, counsel for the Progressive Miners of America.

C. Wayland Brooks of Chicago, however, is the candidate who will either defeat Small or run second to him, if we may believe reports which come from all parts of the State. Granting the accuracy of these observations, then the thing for Republicans to do is to support Brooks as the only way to beat Small.

There are other contests in the Illinois primary, to be sure, but these are the two which stand out above all others in importance.

What will Illinois do on Tuesday? Will it pick the candidate of the self-serving Kelly-Nash machine to run against Len Small and in so doing disavow Gov. Horner's sincere and substantially effective effort to administer State affairs in the interests of the great majority of citizens?

If so, politics in Illinois will have reached a new low. Fortunately, as the campaign closes, the prospect is that both parties will choose more wisely than that.

TURKEY TRIES NEGOTIATION.

In a period when the World War treaties are crumbling and crashing, another of the defeated Powers, Turkey, has moved for revision. But where Germany brusquely takes, Turkey politely asks. Her Government has requested signatories of the Lausanne Treaty to permit fortification of the Dardanelles, forbidden by that pact. Turkey's grounds are the familiar ones on which the treaties are being impeached: national honor, security, preservation of sovereignty.

It will now be interesting to observe which of the two methods, seizure or negotiation, gets the best results. Germany has been quite successful thus far in rearming and in reoccupying the forbidden Rhineland without a by-your-leave. Her actions have been vigorously assailed by statesmen of the victorious Powers, who concede that the treaties have proved inequitable in some respects, but that Germany should have submitted her case to negotiation. Turkey now has done so. So the question is: Will Turkey be as successful by use of negotiation as Germany has been by challenge?

The Straits issue long has disturbed international affairs. The Russian Empire for generations sought to control the Dardanelles as an outlet to "warm water." The Turks withstood one of the World War's bitterest sieges and held the Dardanelles against fierce Allied attacks. Turkey was virtually dismembered by the peacemakers, but Mustapha Kemal rallied the nation in time to annul the harsh Treaty of Sevres and obtain much more favorable terms under the Treaty of Lausanne.

This ambitious dictator now seeks to share in the benefits of treaty decay, but is wily enough to make his first overture a courteous one. His request undoubtedly will embarrass the status quo nations. Perhaps it will even help bring them to see that seeking to preserve the status quo is a dangerous way of seeking to preserve European peace.

HITLER, MUSSOLINI AND LONG.

After five months in Europe, studying the methods of dictatorship, Westbrook Pegler of the New York World-Telegram draws a striking analogy between the methods of Hitler and Mussolini and those of the late Huey Long. It is true Huey Long's dictatorial power was confined to a single State, but long before his death it was clearly recognized by competent political students that the conflagration might easily spread to encompass the nation.

Posing, as Hitler and Mussolini do, as the friend of the common man, Long proceeded to deprive him of all the safeguards set up to insure his liberty. Under his leadership, the State Legislature ceased to exist as a representative and deliberative body and became a rubber stamp for Long's measures. Neither the Reichstag, which still technically exists, nor the Italian Chamber of Deputies, recently destroyed by Mussolini, was more responsive to dictatorial whims than Long's Legislature.

The elective process itself was reduced to absurdity in Louisiana, just as it is meaningless in Germany, where citizens are sometimes called upon to vote Ja for some measure which Hitler has already placed in operation. Huey had the power to appoint an unlimited number of persons at $5 to inspect "the purity of the ballot." In reality, as Mr. Pegler says, this device permitted Long to buy votes with public money.

An organization paralleling the Brown Shirts and the Black Shirts, who terrorized Germans and Italians until the two dictatorships were firmly established, was in the making in Louisiana. There was no limit to the number of operatives or the size of the payroll in the so-called Department of Criminal Investigation.

Long destroyed the freedom of teaching at Louisiana State University just as Hitler and Mussolini brought the great universities of their countries down to the dirt-level of Nazi and Fascist ideology. Long, like his fellow dictators, enjoyed pomp and show, and the machine gun mounted at his hotel in Baton Rouge was the symbol of that force without which dictatorships cannot be established.

Sinclair Lewis' novel, "It Can't Happen Here," was designed to show that it can happen here. So far as Louisiana is concerned, it had already happened here. And, although Long is gone, there are others in the land who await the propitious time to destroy democratic government and subject the United States to a rule of tyranny.

MAY THE LEAVES EVER BE GREEN!

A cordial welcome to the Ivy Club, whose members hope to preserve architectural reminders of the charm of the old St. Louis for posterity. The need for such an organization does not have to be pointed out. All along, St. Louis has been far too unmindful of the importance of physical survivals from its historic past. Many instances of indifference could be cited. Suffice it to say that it was only at the last moment that the century-old house at 634 South Broadway, in which Eugene Field lived as a boy, was saved from being destroyed to make a parking lot.

As the river-front area has several structures which should be preserved, the new organization could not have begun its work more promisingly than it has done with the announcement that it will go on guard in that section of the city. In some ways, the most interesting thing about the Ivy Club is the fact that its leading sponsor is not a St. Louisan, but Alexander von Wuthenau, former secretary of the German Embassy at Washington. We hope the club members had an evergreen variety in mind when they chose its name. For they will need to be on watch in season and out.

ON THE DAY OF PEACE.

This is the day when all the Christian peoples celebrate the Resurrection of the Prince of Peace. In Italy, it is a day set apart for the traditional ceremonies of faith and hope and spiritual renewal. The old forms are preserved, but this year there is an innovation. From across the sea come Easter greetings, thousands of them, inscribed on thin sheets of copper. Recipients are instructed to turn these over to the Government, which finds itself badly in need of copper for carrying on its war of conquest.

So these greetings, sent in the name of the Prince of Peace and the festival of His Resurrection, will go to murder and maim the people of Ethiopia, who for centuries have been a Christian people who join their brethren over the world, even their Italian brethren, in celebration of this day.

The modern Romans no longer remember the words of his Master brought by Paul to the Romans of another day: "Live peaceably with all men."

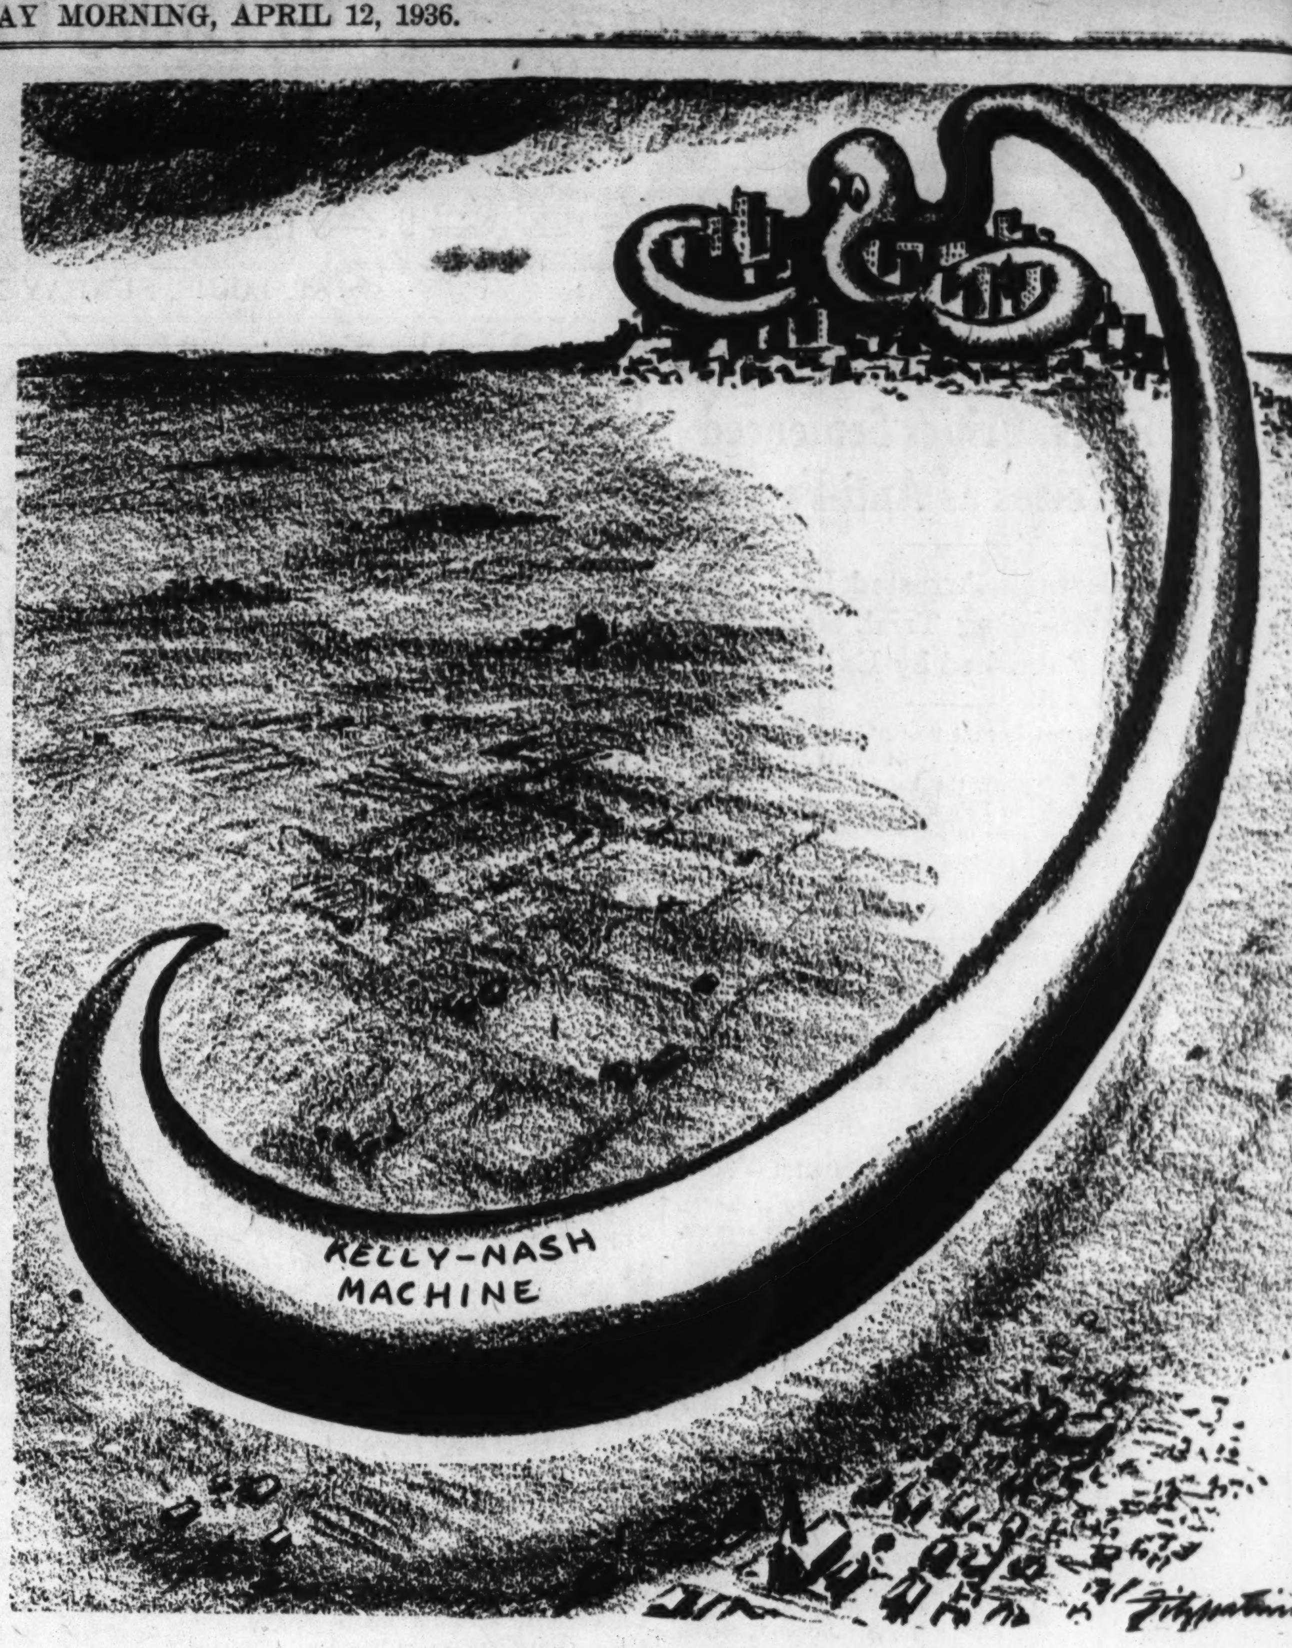
SECRET DIPLOMACY SURVIVES.

Dispatches from Washington in the last few months have described new volumes of diplomatic documents published by the State Department, referring to World War issues, to reparations negotiations, to the post-war occupation of the Rhineland and other matters, all dating back to 1920 and before. Some readers may have wondered why these publications lag so far behind the news, and the point is now answered by the testimony of Cyril Wynne, chief of the department's Division of Research and Publication, before a congressional committee.

Several world Powers refuse to permit publication of documents in which they are concerned, Mr. Wynne said, until after passage of 15 years, until they have receded from the field of current events and become history. Some nations consider even 15 years too short a period, Mr. Wynne added, and their consent to publication was obtained "only after earnest and repeated representations by our diplomatic officials."

The peoples of the world assuredly are entitled to know what their governments are doing in matters of war and peace, so important to the welfare of all. One of the aims of the Allied and Associated Powers in the World War was to end the old secret diplomacy, to bring about "open covenants, openly arrived at," as Woodrow Wilson phrased it. That aim is now fulfilled by grudging permission to publish musty old documents long after their immediate significance has passed.



LOOK OUT, ILLINOIS!

A Manufacturer Looks at Labor

Interests of employers and employes should always be identical, says Milwaukee shoe manufacturer, explaining his company's system of paying guaranteed annual wages based on firm's income; does not view labor as a commodity, but as the workers' contribution to success of business, and therefore meriting adequate reward.

H. L. Nunn, President of Nunn-Bush Shoe Co., Milwaukee, in the American Legion Monthly.

HAVE you ever heard of any normally amiable employer having what is called labor trouble as long as his business remains small enough so that he personally manages the folks who do the work? His personal contact with them compels him to see them as men and women like himself, with similar ambitions and yearnings and problems. So he treats them accordingly.

It has long been my idea that the worst possible failing of an employer is to regard labor as a commodity. Labor is not an inanimate article of commerce, to be measured in units of production or hours at a machine. Rather, it is the contribution of men and women to the success of the business.

By reason of individual differences, some folks have characteristics, training, aptitudes which somehow fit them to handle larger affairs. The man with such ability is likely to develop large affairs for himself to manage. All of which does not mean that he is thereby entitled to regard the labor of his helpers as something to purchase for no other consideration than the least amount of money they will accept.

As employers, we see our obligation as something beyond merely paying a given number of dollars for whatever efforts we happen to require of an employe in a given week. Not that our outlook is paternalistic. May heaven protect us from ever feeling it our duty as employers to supervise the lives of our people out of business hours.

But we do feel that our obligation is to provide our workers adequate yearly incomes commensurate with their contributions to the success of the business. Too many employers forget that factory men and women live by the year rather than by the hour or week. The consequence is that we have worked out with our employes through their representatives an agreement under which we contract to pay an annual salary in 52 weekly installments.

Their pay is, from the company's standpoint, a matter of annual budgeting. The labor cost in a pair of shoes should be a fixed percentage of what we sell these shoes for. So we say at the beginning of the year: "We expect to sell so many dollars' worth of shoes. To make these shoes, we will pay you folks so many dollars. If we cannot sell this many shoes, you still draw your pay. If the price of shoes goes up or down very much, you and we must get together and change this budgeted amount for labor cost. In the one instance, you will be entitled to more money. In the other, we shall need a downward adjustment so that we can sell shoes in competition with shoemakers who cut pay at the first opportunity."

This agreement was signed last summer and works admirably. So far, we have made one adjustment—upward, for shoes have been going up, just as has everything else that enters into the workers' cost of living. And we know, from long experience, that our workers will, in the event of need, agree to a downward adjustment with just as good cheer as we felt when adjusting salaries upward the other day.

Obviously, the interests of employers and employes should always be identical. Their interests are opposed as long as the employer is free to hang up a sign, "This week the factory will work two days." Likewise, as long as he can work his people through a busy season and then lay them off. But when the employer contracts to pay his people the year around and if his and their compensation goes upward and downward together as general business conditions shift, their interests become genuinely identical.

The employes' representatives with whom we negotiate consider us not so much employers as sales agents for the labor or our people. They cannot market their shoe-making ability without some co-operative organization. Our company is this organization. Because of this, workers and management devote their energies, not to fighting, but to making and selling the best shoes we all know how.

No, labor is not, must not be, regarded as a commodity. It is, indeed, the contribution of men and women to the success of the business. As long as employers sincerely believe this and keep it in mind in all their dealings, they should have a minimum of disagreements with the folks who make their businesses possible.

What "Totalitarian" Means

From the New York Times.

VIRTUALLY unheard of until after the World War, the word "totalitarian" came into general use with the establishment of the Fascist Government by Benito Mussolini. Both Fascist Italy and Nazi Germany are considered totalitarian states.

While interpretations of "totalitarian state" differ as much as definitions of democracy, the underlying idea goes back to the Latin "totus," meaning all. In a totalitarian state, all the activities of its citizens are brought under centralized government control. The state and the controlling party are inseparable, and there is only one political party. This system is the antithesis of the plural-party setup of democratic countries.

The Foreign Policy Association thus defines "totalitarian state": "For the pluralism of the modern democratic state, where the government is only one of several groups which have the individual's allegiance, Fascism has substituted the totalitarian state, which embraces all the activities of individuals and subordinates them to national ends." The economic man in a totalitarian state is not an individual competing with other individuals but "a member of the state to which he owes economic allegiance."

A high Italian official defines this type of government as "a state of truly sovereign authority which dominates all the forces of the country. It is in constant contact with the masses, guiding their sentiments, educating them and looking after their interests."

About Easter Eggs

From a Bulletin of the National Geographic Society.

EASTER MONDAY morning, a laughing, yelling crowd of youngsters will scurry over the President's front yard at Washington. From tiny staggerers, clutching Easter baskets almost as tall as themselves, to grinning, befreckled boys whose pockets bulge with eggs, they will have one purpose in common—the annual egg-rolling celebration.

For many years, egg rolling on the White House lawn has been a unique feature of Washington's Easter season. Only in two brief periods since its inauguration has it been discontinued; once during the troubled days of the Civil War, again during the World War. Presidents Jackson and Theodore Roosevelt used to walk through the grounds and play with their small guests.

Although children are welcome, grown-ups are endured only if they accompany a child. Shrewd youngsters cash in on this. Outside the gates one hears shrill pleas, "Take you in for a dime, lady."

For centuries, people of many lands have considered an egg the symbol of the germinating life of early spring and have associated it with spring festivals. They dyed the eggs many colors, to imitate the colors of spring flowers. When Christians linked the Anglo-Saxon spring festival of Eostre with the celebration of the Resurrection, they retained the custom of coloring eggs, but dyed most of them red, to signify the shedding of Christ's blood.

Each country has its own fashions in Easter eggs. Swedish people like verses painted on them. Hungarians decorate them with floral designs; Poles, with solid colors, and Czecho-Slovaks, with landscapes.

The symbol of giving eggs at Easter time has spread around the world. In France, Kings once presented gilded eggs to members of their courts. On Easter Sunday morning, in Northern rural Hungary, a boy honors the girl he admires by pouring a bucket of water over her, and she returns the compliment by presenting him with colored eggs. This custom is practiced occasionally in Hungarian colonies in Pennsylvania. On the island of Ischia near Naples, an old custom required a young girl to send her fiance, on Easter Sunday, 101 eggs and an olive branch.

Formerly during Easter week, children in parts of England, Scotland and Wales canvassed their neighborhoods, begging for eggs, and threatening, "If you do not give us one, your hen shall lay an addled one, your cock shall lay a stone."

After Easter services, Russian churches once were filled with clicking sounds as priests and congregations touched eggs together in the same spirit that "toasters" touch wine glasses. Those who called upon friends presented them with eggs.

When Russian nobility presented Easter eggs, however, they were not of the hard-boiled variety, but jewelled masterpieces, many of them executed from the designs of Carl Faberge, called a modern Cellini.

In 1913, Czar Nicholas II gave his mother a rock crystal egg, exquisitely engraved with frost flowers, which, when opened, disclosed a basketful of delicately cut blooms of white quartz. In one rock crystal egg he gave her was a tiny gold and lapis lazuli equestrian statue of Alexander III.

ONE SUGGESTION.

President Roosevelt says he doesn't like tax-exempt Government securities, but doesn't know what to do about them. He might try not issuing so many.

LINOIS PRIMARY UESDAY TO TEST KNOX' CANDIDACY

He Must Make Strong Showing Against Borah in Adopted State to Impress Political Leaders.

DEMOCRATIC SPLIT IS IN HIS FAVOR

Also Negroes' Dislike for Opponent — Idahoan Feels Stronger in Nebraska, Voting Same Day.

By RAYMOND P. BRANDT,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, April 10.—As a lesson in practical politics, the country will learn from the Republican presidential primary in Illinois Tuesday whether local organization or speech-making is the more effective means for collecting convention delegates.

One system will work well in one section, the other in another. The contest between Col. Knox of Chicago and Senator Borah of Idaho has been an interesting exhibit because the two candidates typify these contrasting tactics. Knox's strength is in his organizing abilities; Borah's is in his acknowledged power to sway audiences. Knox delegates have filed in every Congressional district and local politicians are working for them. Although Borah made several speeches in the State, in four or five districts, no Borah delegates have enacted the race.

Knox must make a showing in the Illinois contest. If he fails to get a majority of the State's 57 delegates, he might as well withdraw from the presidential race. His failure to carry his adopted State would make a deep impression at Cleveland and on the country.

Borah is in a happier position, thanks to the Wisconsin primary this week, where he picked up 21 delegates. If he fails to get a majority of the Illinois delegation he can insist that the regular organization was against him—which would be broadly true. If he gets a majority, he will greatly strengthen his present wobbly position and increase his prestige at Cleveland.

Odds Favor Knox.

On paper, the odds favor Knox and his organization. The Democratic factional row between the Kelly-Nash crowd in Chicago against Gov. Horner has played into the hands of the Chicago publisher and it has been difficult to see why the Republican Negroes would vote for Idaho Senator, considering his opposition to a Federal anti-lynching law, which he believes would be unconstitutional.

Chicago political observers maintain the Democratic row and the Negro opposition to Borah will swing the Chicago delegates to Knox. Their reasoning is that Mayor Edward J. Kelly and Democratic National Committeeman Patrick Nash will be so busy in Chicago trying to keep Gov. Horner from getting the nomination for re-election that the Democratic organization cannot play its old trick of going into the Republican primary whenever everything is tamper proof with the Democratic slates.

There is little doubt that next to Hoover, the national Democratic leaders would like to see Borah the Republican nominee. They believe that Roosevelt would have no difficulty in carrying the Eastern states under such circumstances. If there had been no row between Horner and the Chicago machine, local observers insist that the Kelly-Nash Democrats would have gone into the Republican primary for Borah, "just for the fun of it."

That, of course, is conjecture, while the Negro opposition to Borah is a reality. The Association for the Advancement of the Colored People, a strong political organization, has formally gone on record against Borah, and there are said to be 300,000 Negro voters in Chicago. As the Illinois contest is a two-man race, Knox is expected to be the beenficiary of the Negro votes.

Borah's strength will be in the agricultural sections. Cautious local political observers have predicted that he may get as few as five or six delegates in this region and as many as 15 or 18.

Nebraska Primary Same Day.

The Borah managers in Washington refuse to make any predictions on the Illinois race and the Knox supporters are confident. Officials at Borah's headquarters are much more optimistic when they talk about the Nebraska primary to be held the same day, although the same lack of organization is evident. In Nebraska Borah has filed for the preferential vote, which theoretically instructs the four delegates at large, and individual Borah supporters have filed in the district contests.

Carl Bachmann, Borah's national manager, said his organization was without funds to help their friends in the district races, but he insisted that they had "friends" in all except one or two of the five Congressional districts. A prize of 14 delegates is at stake in Nebraska and Borah is the only candidate who has filed for the preference.

A petition for Landon, according to Borah headquarters, was sent to Nebraska, which was not filed after the Landon supporters failed to get the Borah people to agree not to file. Landon has several candidates for District delegates in Nebraska, and a clean sweep for Borah is not expected, even by the Borah headquarters.

As the national race goes into the last two months of the preconvention campaign, Landon has more than 100 delegates instructed for him and his managers are claiming at least 300 votes on the first ballot at Cleveland. Borah has 21 votes from Wisconsin and is counting on additional support from Idaho, Montana, Oregon, Washington, Nevada, Utah, North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, Illinois and Ohio, with scattering votes in the East. He is expected to have about 100 votes on the first ballot.

Knox has New Hampshire and an undisclosed number of scattered supporters in hand and in prospect, such as in Minnesota and Maine. There is no doubt that he has some strength among the uninstructed delegations, but how long they would stay with him is problematical.

None Instructed for Hoover.

Former President Hoover, who of all the Republican aspirants, is making the most vigorous attacks on the New Deal, as yet has no delegates instructed for him. His failure to get an uninstructed delegation agreement in California, and the inabilit yof former Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde of Missouri and former Secretary of War Patrick Hurley of Oklahoma to buck the Landon machines in their states, finds him relying on such supporters as former Senator Fess and former Postmaster-General Brown of Ohio.

Fess and Brown were able to arrange for young Robert A. Taft to run as a "favorite son" in Ohio against Borah, but Hoover was unable to cope with the Hearst-Merriam coalition in California, which is out for Landon. Hoover has denied a newspaper syndicate story that he was working against Landon because Landon refused to cooperate with him for an uninstructed California delegation. The syndicate story had many of the earmarks of having been "planted" by Landon supporters in an effort to carry the California primary May 5.

The Landon people are setting great store by the California primary. Should their candidate win there against the Hoover forces, it will be evidence of Landon's strength in the Far West, where Borah is supposed to be strongest. They believe a sweeping victory in California would start the bandwagon procession for their candidate.

Meanwhile, Senator Vandenberg of Michigan continues playing smart politics in the Senate by demanding information about AAA farm subsidies. He may not be a presidential aspirant for 1936, as he says—many observers insist he is looking to 1940—but he is making himself more "available" every day in case there is a deadlock at Cleveland.

SISTERS OF ST. JOSEPH ANNIVERSARY PROGRAM

Mass at New Cathedral to Open Celebration Wednesday; Order 100 Years Old.

The one hundredth anniversary, celebration of the founding of the Sisters of St. Joseph in the United States will begin at 10 a. m. Wednesday with a pontifical high mass at the New Cathedral. The celebration will conclude next Sunday and Monday nights with a pageant at the St. Louis Theater, depicting the history of the order.

The mass will be celebrated by Archbishop Glennon and the sermon will be delivered by Bishop Christopher E. Byrne of Galveston, Tex. It will be the only religious service of the program open to the public, as the centennial masses on Thursday and Friday forenoons and other services will be held at the Mother House, 6400 Minnesota avenue, where the restricted capacity of the chapel will accommodate only those formally invited.

Work of the sisters of the order during the last century in the United States will be shown in the pageant, their establishment of orphanages, hospitals and schools and their care of the sick.

and so making all men interested in its protection.

Favored Free Schools.

Again, Jefferson's life-long devotion to the cause of public education was directed to the same end—the building up of a safe and sane electorate. His system, however, shows his attitude toward the common man. He planned for lower grade schools which should be free to all, not only boys, but girls as well. Everyone, he believed, was capable of receiving the rudiments of an education, and would be a better citizen for it. This, then, should be open to all and a charge on all. But just as he knew that all his crops were not alike, so he knew human capacity was not.

Therefore, above the lowest schools he planned for a weeding out process, so as to separate the able from what he called "the trash." From the lowest schools, a certain number of promising scholars were to be sent on free to the next higher, and from those again a smaller number to college.

His plan called for the various grades of schools, with a college at the top, and a public library supported by the State in Richmond. In this way, he felt, on the one hand the door of opportunity would be opened to all worthy to pass it, and on the other the State would derive the full benefit from all the intellectual ability in it, whether found among rich or poor. The plan was never adopted in America; but in France it was, and, Prof. Chinard thinks, from Jefferson's writings.

Freedom of Speech.

His Bill for Religious Freedom and his life-long struggle for freedom of speech and press both formed part of his same effort to build up an educated, honest and self-respecting electorate. It is noteworthy that although sensitive in the highest degree and suffering from the vilest slanders in the press while President, he never moved against a single one of his slanderers, believing that freedom of speech was one of the great personal liberties and also one of the strong anchors for a self governing people, and that truth would prevail in the end.

Fearing the growth of a proletariat, he wished to keep the nation agricultural as long as possible. Hence he disbelieved in a tariff which would build up manufactures and consequently a wage earning class, which might in time wreck property and government, although the European wars made him modify these views later, to some extent. If we were not to manufacture largely, but had surplus crops to sell, we needed free trade; hence as part of his whole plan he was a free trader.

Views on Immigration.

For the same reasons he was opposed to rapid immigration of all sorts. He figured out how fast the country would grow from native births and restricted immigration. Although more immigration would make it grow faster, he believed that it would be far better to grow a little less rapidly and to keep a homogeneous racial stock which would make a safer electorate and a more unified civilization. The electorate with a wide distribution of landed property was one of his objects in the purchase of the great West, then known as "Louisiana."

Obviously, in so short an article we cannot give a complete account of his mind and philosophy, but we may note one or two more points. He was bitterly opposed to paper money, depreciation of the currency, over-extension of credit and Government control of finance. He also disbelieved in large Government debts, and believed that no debts should be incurred that would heavily mortgage the next generation. A man, he said, could not sell the future time of his children; yet that was just what one generation did when they paid only the interest on debts, leaving their children to pay the principal.

Against Veterans' Organizations.

We may note, lastly, that he was opposed to organizations of veterans. While it was natural, he said, that men who had been through the same experiences might enjoy meeting, organizing them into bodies not only kept up war memories and made a class apart from the ordinary citizens, but such organizations would also be looking about for "something to do." What that "something to do" has turned out to be we have learned too well, it having cost the nation about $15,000,000,000 in 17 years for one group of veterans alone.

Jefferson's profoundest belief was in liberalism, not as a political program but as a way of envisaging life. He believed that there were human rights and liberties of such transcending importance that they should be removed from the power of any government to destroy them. The absence of such a "Bill of Rights" was his main objection to the Constitution before such rights were presumably safeguarded by the amendments of 1790. The Constitution itself, he believed, should be amended frequently, but not for light or transient reasons.

Some Direct Questions.

As a result of the foregoing analysis of Jefferson's real beliefs two questions arise. Is any party or statesman today genuinely Jeffersonian? What would Jefferson himself think under present conditions? The party which claims him as its founder is the Democratic, but we may ask, in view of the administration of the last three years: Does the Democratic party disbelieve in the spoils system? Does it believe that government should be frugal in expense and as limited in scope as possible? Does it believe that Government debt should be kept low? Does it believe that veterans' organizations should not be encouraged, that currency should be kept sound, that the Government should be kept out of banking and that the value of money should not be depreciated? Does it believe it free speech and free criticism of Government policies and officials?

The answer is that in three years about 200,000 new employes have been added to the Government payrolls, and the civil service has been struck a deadly blow. That the scope of Government activities has been widened as in no other such period of time and the debt raised to $31,000,000,000, while the President blithely contemplates the possibility of $70,000,000,000. That Congress voted an extra $1,500,000,000 or so to veterans who had already received about $13,500,000,000. That the dollar has been devalued by about 40 per cent, gold contracts repudiated and the basis laid for that inflation which Jefferson most feared. That opposition to or criticism of the Government and its officials has been so treated as to make many honest citizens afraid to speak out. It is impossible for anyone who knows Jefferson's mind, and does not merely repeat a few phrases, to believe that he would approve any of these things.

"Jeffersonians" Today.

It is difficult to say what he would approve in this America of ours, which has reached the stage of industrialism, with all its consequences, that he felt would spell the downfall of self-government. In such an electorate as we now have, it is pretty certain that he would not approve of universal higher education; of direct election of the higher officers of Government, such as Senators and President; of pressure groups and "mail order government"; of most of the things we accept and practice, as well as those mentioned in the preceding paragraph.

To predicate what he would wish in the way of measures is utterly impossible; but it seems fairly certain that neither the statesmen nor the party which will mouth the word "Jeffersonian" in the next campaign have the slightest justification for doing so.

ALLOWED APPEAL ON DISMISSED SUIT OVER RIVER BONDS

Perry L. H. Hole, Owner of Land in Memorial Area, Gets Order From Federal Judge Davis.

CASE WAS DROPPED ON MOTION OF CITY

Non-Partisan Committee Seeks Ruling From Cummings on Phases of Project.

An order permitting Perry L. Hole, owner of property at Main and Chestnut streets, to appeal from the dismissal of his suit to block issuance of city bonds for the proposed river-front Jefferson Memorial, was entered by Federal Judge Charles B. Davis yesterday.

Permission of the District Court was necessary in carrying out the appeal, which will go to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals. Judge Davis had dismissed the suit Tuesday on motion of the city, on the grounds that insufficient facts were alleged to sustain the litigation, that the court lacked jurisdiction and that the plaintiff had an adequate remedy at law.

The motion for the appeal, filed by Hole's attorney, David H. Robertson, did not go into details. It simply alleged that the court erred in dismissing the suit and entering the decree, in finding that facts were insufficient, in holding that the plaintiff had an adequate remedy at law and in denying jurisdiction.

Statement From Hole.

Commenting on today's action, Hole said, in a statement, that he had read the Judge's order of dismissal made Tuesday and an interview with Judge Davis, published in Thursday's Post-Dispatch, in which the Judge explained, in answer to inquiry, that the reason for his decision to drop the suit was that no condemnation proceedings against property had been instituted.

"My contention is and always has been," said Hole, "that if the city issues $2,250,000 in bonds and delivers the proceeds to the Secretary of the Interior, my property at the corner of Main and Chestnut streets in the very center of the proposed memorial area, will be condemned by the Federal Government, and I will lose title to it.

"I do not contend that the United States does not have the power to condemn my property. I do contend that the Secretary of the Interior, having the power to condemn, will not exercise that power unless he shall receive $2,250,000 of funds from the city by means of an unconstitutional and illegal bond issue. I feel that I have the right to complain because such bond issue and the payment of the proceeds would result in my losing my land. It is upon this that I take an appeal."

City Counselor's Argument.

The City Counselor argued, in behalf of dismissal of the action, that the suit did not involve $3000, the minimum to establish jurisdiction in Federal Court. As the Court's decision was handed down without comment, it was supposed at the time that this was his reason for the decision. However, Judge Davis explained to a Post-Dispatch reporter later that the Government, which would carry out the memorial scheme, had not instituted any step of condemnation proceedings for the site. The Court, he held, did not have jurisdiction to restrain the city from issuing bonds and turning them over to the Government.

Attorney Robertson voluntarily dismissed on Tuesday the only other suit which had been pending to block the issuance of the bonds—a case in which the American Cone & Pretzel Co. was plaintiff. He announced that he contemplated filing it again later and that, if the bonds were sold in the meantime he would name their purchasers as defendants.

When the city offered $2,250,000 of the bonds for sale Thursday no bid was received. Representatives of bond houses indicated the threat of litigation was the reason. Mayor Dickmann has announced that he would try to sell the bonds privately next Tuesday.

Head of Non-Partisan League Asks Cummings for Opinion.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Paul O. Peters of St. Louis, executive director of the Citizens Non-Partisan Committee, today wrote Attorney General Cummings asking for a formal opinion on the legality of certain phases of the Jefferson Memorial project at St. Louis.

Two questions were put by Peters to the Attorney-General in a letter which said in part:

"On Dec. 21, 1935, the President, by executive order declared 'certain lands situated on the west bank of the Mississippi River at and near the site of Old St. Louis, Missouri,' an historic site within the meaning of the act of Aug. 21, 1935, providing for the preservation of historic sites.

"The executive order also allocated to the proposed Memorial, the sum of $6,750,000 of funds appropriated by the Congress for work and emergency relief purposes, contingent, however, on a contribution of the City of St. Louis of $2,250,000, making $9,000,000 eventually available for the project.

"The City of St. Louis is preparing to issue its bonds and tender the money to the Secretary of the Interior to fulfill the city's part of the proposal.

"We wish to have your opinion, first on the question, as to whether or not, with all the facts available to the Secretary of the Interior, he can lawfully accept the money of the City of St. Louis, as part of an implied contract, binding the Federal Government to spend $9,000,000 in the purchase and improvement of 37 blocks of private property in downtown St. Louis, for a project of doubtful public value and which has previously been classified by PWA engineers as 'not a public necessity'?

"Secondly, we wish an opinion from the Attorney-General, keeping in mind the recent court decisions in the Missouri bird refuge case, the Louisville slum clearance project and the Louisiana landowners' case, which came to the Supreme Court only last month, whether or not in the present case the Government can lawfully acquire by condemnation, one single foot of private property in St. Louis, against the wishes of the owners for a project filling no known public necessity?"

Germany Building Vast System of Military Roads

November of the same year. At present they are estimated at 150,000.

Five-Year Program.

By the spring of 1936, 600 kilometers will be open to traffic and 1160 will be finished before the end of the year. For the following years they are planning to continue the work at the rate of 1000 to 1500 kilometers a year. The complete program (7200 kilometers) will thus be completed in five or six years. Is it solely to give the unemployed work? Is it for peace or for war that our neighbors, who are in open financial difficulties but also, let us not forget, openly engaged in rebuilding their army, are throwing themselves into such a gigantic undertaking? The plan for laying down German automobile highways is going to force us to answer. What can we say for certain?

1. That, first of all, there is a large concrete highway parallel to the Franco-Belgian border, comparable to those railroads which we built behind the lines in 1917. This great concrete highway (Duesseldorf—Mainz—Frankfurt—Speyer—Stuttgart—Munich) extends four antennae toward the frontier; Cologne—Aix-la-Chapelle; Mainz — Saarbruecken; Speyer—Saarbruecken; Speyer—Basel.

2. That another concrete highway of the same sort (Stettin—Berlin—Frankfort-ander-Oder — Breslau — Gleiwitz) runs to the Polish frontier, with an antenna to Danzig and East Prussia.

Can Carry 72,000 an Hour.

3. That internal communications between these highways, useful at the start for mobilization purposes, are designed to permit the transportation of necessary forces between the Eastern and Western frontiers, as the operations demand, as well as communications with the Baltic. They include two great lines: 1. Berlin—Hanover, with three branches from the Baltic toward Luebeck, Essen and Frankfurt-am-Main. 2. Breslau—Leipzig, with two branches, the one to Frankfurt-am-Main, and the other to Nuremberg and Munich. Finally they are planning to construct around Berlin a belt of the same sort 180 kilometers long, to keep traffic out of the capital.

Think of the power of such a transportation system! On these routes of the future, and indeed of the present, trucks, each carrying 30 men and traveling two abreast at a constant speed of 60 kilometers an hour and spaced 15 meters apart, would make it possible to transport 72,000 men an hour, assuming that half of the trucks are used for material. No more slow embarkations nor tedious stops in railway stations; not even "bottle necks" are to be feared. For each highway is large enough to permit three vehicles to travel on it side by side, and to pass without difficulty any vehicle which has broken down. The mechanized weapons of the army can be shifted from the right wing to the left, from one theater of operations to another with a speed unheard of before. The speed of maneuvers can be increased tenfold without increasing in proportion the difficulties of supply; on the contrary, the Hitler Government estimates that the use of the highways, thanks to the perfection of their plan, to the quality of their pavement, and to the uniformity of the speed that one can make on them, should in time of war permit a saving of 30 per cent on gasoline, of 40 per cent on tires, and of 25 per cent on repairs.

III

Alongside the reorganization of its army the Hitler Government has now been pursuing for three years a renovation of its transports, founded at once on the construction of rolling stock of vast capacity, and on laying down, at great cost, a system of communications. For this reason, in case of hostilities the railroad will probably be reserved for supply purposes, and to provide what commercial transportation is necessary to maintain the nation and keep the factories running. As for the old system of routes, it will be confined to an auxiliary role, forwarding toward the auto highways vehicles loaded at the mustering places and then distributing them when they leave the highways, according to the demands of the military operations.

These new ideas have scarcely penetrated in France, and they are only in a germinal state here now. In our country, so permeated with general ideas, we have apparently for some time been hesitating (for fear, perhaps, of the conclusions to be drawn from it) to duplicate the developments across the border. In any case, our policy has not been influenced; it has actually been strengthened in the opposite direction of that of the lessons from beyond the Rhine. . . . No plan for automobile highways has been set up or even envisaged.

French Cut Down Trucks.

A larger highway and heavier vehicles—such is the German scheme. Ours consists, on the other hand, of adapting the size of our trucks to the present capacity of our roads. A recent decree law has just reduced their width from two and one-half to two and one-third meters, while Germany was taking the very opposite measures. At the same time we limited our trucks to 15 tons, so that their useful load could not pass eight tons.

Our production of trucks, of which our national defense is in such great need, continued to decline, going in the last five years from 52,000 to 18,000 vehicles, while in all the other countries it has been increasing. We find ourselves, then, faced with two opposing theories: a wholly new one—our neighbors'—and a classical and conservative one—our own.

But how can we reconcile this last with the new organization of the army? Have we given thought to the time which will be consumed in loading and unloading the new motorized engines of war? Have we visualized on our roads a modern division passing the most modest of convoys? Can we envisage without shuddering the passing of two columns of automobile trucks, even small ones? How will it be possible to move certain kinds of artillery whose weight sometimes exceeds 26,000 tons and whose turning requires 14 meters? What blocking of traffic would the least narrowing of the route cause us, as, for instance, when passing through a village, a city, or a grade crossing?

IV

A change of method is necessary, then. One always has the right to wonder just how it can be reconciled with keeping the budget in balance. This is a point with which the Hitler Government scarcely concerns itself, but which with us still preserves, and rightly, all its value. Now whatever may be the future intentions of Germany, one has every reason to fear that she will employ her system of roads at a given moment for offensive purposes. Are we going to abet this policy by linking ours to it on the pretext of assisting commercial relations between the two countries? Evidently not. Since we are determined to await the enemy behind our fortifications, our auto highways ought not to pass that zone; and there is the first economy we can make. We can also content ourselves with organizing the North and Northeast fronts, neglecting that of the Alps, which does not, at the moment, present more than a secondary interest. But it is necessary for our armies to be capable of moving rapidly in all directions between Calais and Basel. A great highway behind the fortified zone, doubled with an auxiliary highway on the front between Le Havre, Paris and Dijon, with three or four antennae connecting them, would be sufficient. Besides, they could be easily adapted to commercial purposes in time of peace.

What France Could Do.

The total expense to envisage would be of the order of five or six billions. This is obviously a considerable sum. It would, however, increase gradually, and would be in part recovered via the unemployment funds. For no kind of work requires so much hand labor. About 75,000 unemployed men would find work on it. Finally one can hope that the establishing of an intimate contact between the workers on the road and the public officials analagous to that which the General Staff created with the directors of the railway companies, and which had such fruitful results, would make it possible to find a solution for this distressing problem, a solution which does not, at first sight, emerge.

But such a question exceeds the limits of this study, which has no other purpose than to throw light on the new set-up beyond the Rhine. To measure its dangers, to face it—that is the role of the public officials. In the final analysis the question rests with the Supreme Council of National Defense.

'GO TO SUNDAY SCHOOL AND CHURCH DAY' TO BE OBSERVED

Protestant Congregations to Take Part in Statewide Effort to Improve Attendance.

Protestant churches in St. Louis will observe "Go to Sunday School and Church Day" next Sunday as part of a State-wide movement sponsored by the Missouri Sunday School Council of Religious Education to induce non-churchgoers, particularly children, to attend church. Charles L. Kell, personnel director of the General American Life Insurance Co., is local chairman.

More than 450,000 boys and girls of Sunday School age in Missouri are not now receiving religious instruction, according to an estimate by H. W. Becker, secretary of the Sunday School Council. It is planned to have committees throughout the State sponsor campaigns during the next several weeks to acquaint their committees with the drive for increased church and Sunday School attendance.

The Missouri Council is assisting the International Council of Religious Education in the recently organized Church Forward movement, which is to stimulate interest in religious activities among Protestant denominations.

Hitler's Highly Efficient Secret Police, "Gestapo"

Beobachtungsabteilung (observation department), which, attached to the Central Board, is subdivided into the following departments:

1. General department for public security.
2. Department for the supervision of the S. A. (Brownshirts).
3. Department for the supervision of the big factories and industrial centers.

The general department (No. 1) has a special importance. It exercises a close vigilance over the entire population of Germany through the millions of members of the National Socialist party. It is the duty of every member to report any signs of disaffection to his superiors. This duty is often ignored, but National Socialists who take it seriously are numerous enough to form a close network of spies all over Germany.

Spies Held Responsible.

The most important of these spies are the Blockwarte, the counterpart of the "house commandants" in Russia. Each one is held responsible for whatever happens in the block of flats or in the row of houses entrusted to his supervision. He is expected to know the political opinions of every inmate. The general department also includes the "Intelligence" (Nachrichtenabteilung) of the S. S. (Blackshirts), which exercise a special supervision over the National Socialist party.

In touch with the Gestapo is the Air Defense League (Reichsluftschutzbund), to which everybody in urban Germany has to belong. It exists not only for defense against air-raids but also for controlling the opinions and activities of the population. The Luftschutzblockwarte supplement the work of the ordinary Blockwarte, and the musters, drills, cellar and house inspections, and so on, that are ostensibly carried out for the sake of discipline and safety in case of air-raids provide unlimited opportunities for spying and eavesdropping.

Check on Dissatisfaction.

The department for the supervision of the S. A. (No. 2) is intended to detect the disaffection that has existed in the S. A. ever since the disillusionment of the first year of the dictatorship, and more especially since June 30, 1934, when so many of the S. A. leaders were executed.

The department for the supervision of factories (No. 3) has a very large staff of officials and agents. These agents, often workmen themselves, mix with employes and workmen. Many of them are members of the Shop Councils (Vertrauensraete), and often talk in hostile terms of the dictatorship, thus acting as decoys. Many of them have begun "illegal" or "underground" movements, pretending to be Communists or Socialists, and they circulate illegal literature, so as to detect all who are willing to join such movements.

This department is also concerned with the prevention of sabotage as well as with industrial counter-espionage.

A special force attached to the Gestapo is the Feldjagerei, a kind of gendarmery, which was organized by General Goering. Its members are chiefly of the gangster type. It is used for raids, for wholesale arrests, and for actions that may have a dangerous character.

Special Commands.

There are several so-called Special Commandos (Kommandos zur besonderen Verwendung). Some of them consist of only a few men. They take part in all kinds of political actions and exist inside various other organizations, including Government departments. Some of these Commandos exist even outside Germany. One of them was drafted to Wuppertal, where it conducted part of the inquiry in preparation for the Wuppertal trial which was described in the Manchester Guardian on Feb. 5.

The Gestapo keeps a large number of women who act as spies and propagandists. They are to be found in cafes and night clubs as well as at balls and banquets attended by foreign diplomats.

A vast amount of political information collected by the Gestapo accumulates in Hitler's private office (Privatkanzlei), which is directed by an old associate of his named Bouhler.

Affiliated with the Zentralstelle of the Gestapo, but not under its control, is the bureau of the Chief Party Magistrate (Oberster Parteirichter), which is directed by Maj. Buch. This bureau can strike at the most influential persons. Maj. Buch took a leading part in the executions of June 30, 1934. The bureau of the leader of the National Socialist party, Hess, also has a special department called a Liaison Staff (Verbindungsstab) for the special control of the party bureaucracy and of the delegations which the party sends to foreign countries from time to time.

Agents in Europe's Capitals.

The Gestapo also has agents in London, Paris, Prague, Vienna and other capitals. These agents are largely resident members of the National Socialist party (every member of that party is a potential spy) and nondescript persons, many of them women.

A good deal of spying done by German agents outside Germany is amateurish, but some of it has become very efficient. The Gestapo keeps a dossier of every notable person in London and elsewhere who is regarded as hostile to the National Socialist dictatorship. The information in the dossier is as a rule surprisingly accurate, detailed and up-to-date.

"Be Kind to Animals" Week.

"Be Kind to Animals" Week will be observed next week, starting Sunday. The annual parade of horses sponsored by the Humane Society of Missouri will be held April 25. This is the twenty-second annual observance of this week.

A Genius Courted Death

SPARKENBROKE. By Charles Morgan. (The Macmillan Company, New York.)

PIERS TENNIEL, or Lord Sparkenbroke, poet and writer, did not work by the moral clock. Driven by an inner fire, he turned out reams of writing which made him a famous figure, and driven, presumably by the same fire, he passed from one feminine conquest to another with an energy which made his private life a public scandal.

He was a genius, and in the white heat of his intellect he had positive thoughts of life and death, particularly the latter. He courted death. He believed death to be a re-entry into a continuous reality from which birth into sensuous existence was merely a digression; that what was to come was far better than the present life. When he died at the age of 36, his epitaph disclosed his thoughts on a better life after death, and visitors who came to his grave could not understand his viewpoint, in the light of his worldly career.

"If he had been old and pious, they might have permitted him a stale yearning for heaven; but he was not pious; he was not old; he had fame, position, women, and seemingly riches."

Sparkenbroke's convictions regarding life and death constitute the theme of the story, through which runs a triangular love affair involving Sparkenbroke, Dr. George Hardy, a boyhood friend, and Mary Leward, an 18-year-old girl who loved Sparkenbroke for the man himself, for his mind, and for his work, yet at the same time loved Hardy, paradoxically, for his steady, dependable ways. Each, in turn, reciprocated; and that Sparkenbroke's wife failed to figure prominently in the affair seems to be incidental in the tale.

Readers of the author's widely popular novel, "The Fountain," published four years ago, will recognize the same general theme in this story; and they will likely turn to this latest book in the expectation of finding, as in the earlier, thought-provoking qualities. They will not be disappointed. D. K.

Sir Walter Defended

SIR WALTER RALEGH, LAST OF THE ELIZABETHANS. By Edward Thompson. (Yale University Press, New Haven.)

THE handsome cavalier who tossed his mantle across a mud puddle, so that the dainty feet of the red-haired Queen Elizabeth need not be soiled, has been a glamorous figure to the English-speaking world for over three hundred years, and it is unlikely that any book treating of him and his work, unless utter junk, will go unread. The volume in hand is an important contribution to the bibliography of Sir Walter, whose exploits have been deemed worthy of recording by historians in several tongues.

It might well have been entitled "A Defense of Sir Walter Ralegh," and a well-briefed defense it is, for the author has obviously made a thorough study of all the records available, even going into those of Spain, where, every school boy knows, Sir Walter was not greatly loved. The result is conclusive evidence that not even the king who condemned him believed Ralegh guilty of the treason for which he lost his head, but the poet, scientist, explorer and fighter was a victim of Spanish vindictiveness abetted by King James' desire to marry his son to the Infanta of Spain.

It is, nevertheless, not a mere attempt to whitewash Elizabeth's favorite. Mr. Thompson makes it evident that Sir Walter's standards in general were the standards of his day, and not above a bit of intrigue or swashbuckling. But while Ralegh loved finery and was decidedly acquisitive, he was a loyal Englishman who kept his word; kept his word so religiously that it cost him his head. For he was arrested and condemned to death in 1603, but not beheaded until 1618, the interim having been taken up with a sojourn in the Tower and a trip to Guiana at the head of a gold-seeking fleet. Had he not promised his sureties he would return, he could have saved his life by failing to do so while the sentence of death hung over him. When he reached England, the voyage a failure, the old sentence was put into effect.

The story of Ralegh is told by Thompson without any romanticising and with a great number of excerpts from old papers. He succeeds in making his subject a living personality.

James I is excellently painted as a weak-willed, ineffectual ruler, who lost England the greatness achieved during the reign of Elizabeth. Other courtiers are well drawn. The work has a complete bibliography of sources.

With regard to the spelling of the name, Thompson offers 67 different ways it appeared in old papers, but he chooses the Ralegh form because that is the way Sir Walter used it in his later years. O. F. F.

CAESAR'S MANTLE, THE END OF THE ROMAN REPUBLIC By Ferdinand Mainzer. (The Viking Press, New York.)

WHETHER it be because of the phony recrudescence of Caesarism in Italy or a final ripening of the scholarship on the subject, there has been a recent and sudden increase of literature on ancient Rome. "Caesar's Mantle" is a conscientious addition to this revival. It is an amateur's labor of love. Ferdinand Mainzer was a Berlin physician with the classics for a hobby; now he is a classicist with a medical background. There is no textual implication that he is thinking of Mussolini or any other latter-day Caesar. He is merely telling the story of what happened after the great Julius was assassinated — factually, interestingly, with a wealth of intimate detail culled from extensive reading. Insofar as he betrays bias at all, he inclines to prefer Antony to Augustus, this without glossing any of Antony's admitted faults. His picture of Augustus is perhaps a little less than just, but that is purely a matter of opinion. The translation from the German is by Eden and Cedar Paul. H. T. M.

Petty Tragedy

STUBBORN ROOTS. By Elma Godchaux. (The Macmillan Company, New York.)

ANTON SCHEXSANADYRE, Louisiana planter, was stubbornly rooted in his love for his sugar cane. He also loved his wife, Marie Elizabeth. The two loves did not go well together because Marie Elizabeth did not love Anton overmuch and loved the sugar cane not at all. So life for Anton at the plantation house was not happy.

He found his happiness in closing the door of his house and turning to the fields. Not complete happiness, for the wilfulness of his wife worried him. He was patient with her, though, enduring her tantrums and making excuses for her faults. She had a good heart, he said, but nobody who knew her believed that.

Marie Elizabeth was strong, and Anton, in all except his devotion to the soil, was weak; but Marie Elizabeth could not conquer the cane, crowding her and stifling her, because its roots were stubborn; and she could not conquer Anton, because his roots were stubborn. But neither could Anton conquer Marie Elizabeth. Not that he tried very hard. He had no heart for conquering. So Marie Elizabeth never knew the firm hand that she needed, and continued hating and hateful to the end.

It was Anton's hope that his son would love the land and the cane and carry on the Schexsanadyre tradition, but his son was like Marie Elizabeth and disappointed him. Only his daughter, who was like her father, sharing his love for the cane, comforted him. It was comfort that he needed, for the struggle between the man and the woman continued to a tragic end.

It is this struggle that holds interest in Elma Godchaux's long story, longer, perhaps, than it should be because of the author's repetitious style. It is a style, however, not without method and a certain effectiveness in creating a rhythmic undertone like the throbbing of jungle drums, the voices of plantation Negroes and the sound of the wind in the cane.

Readers might have been spared the author's eccentricity in dispensing with elementary punctuation. Commas, after all, have their use. F. A. B.

CRIME'S NEMESIS. By Luke S. May. (The Macmillan Co., New York.)

IN simple language, stripped of technical phraseology, the author, an internationally known criminologist, here briefly relates the circumstances of scores of cases upon which he has worked. Positive solutions of all the crimes May has chosen to discuss were achieved on foundations laid in the criminological laboratory, where microscopes, chemicals, ultra-violet rays and numerous precision instruments were used.

May is one of the few scientific detectives who have a background of long practical experience. He holds many high-sounding titles, but his chief work is as director of the Scientific Detective Laboratories at Seattle, Wash. Many progressive police departments have sent detectives there to study under May. Louis Riech and Edward Kelly, research officers in the St. Louis Police Department, studied under May last summer and they have since outfitted a complete laboratory at Police Headquarters here. S. WILLIAM TORREY HARRIS: 1835-1935. Essays edited by Edward L. Schaub. (The Open Court Publishing Co., Chicago.)

THE centenary of the birth of William Torrey Harris, American educator and philosopher, fell last year and in celebration the Western Division of the American Philosophical Society met in St. Louis, the scene of Dr. Harris' labors for 22 years, beginning in 1857. This book contains papers and addresses presented at the session devoted to his commemoration. In addition it includes a memoir by Dr. Henry R. Evans, a one-time private secretary to Dr. Harris, and an essay on the application of the Hegelian philosophy on the frontier by Prof. H. G. Townsend. There is a 12-page bibliography of the more important writings about Dr. Harris. The place of William Torrey Harris in the intellectual history of St. Louis is unquestioned, and the collection which Mr. Schaub has edited is, therefore, a valuable addition to the literature of this city. Brilliant Comedy

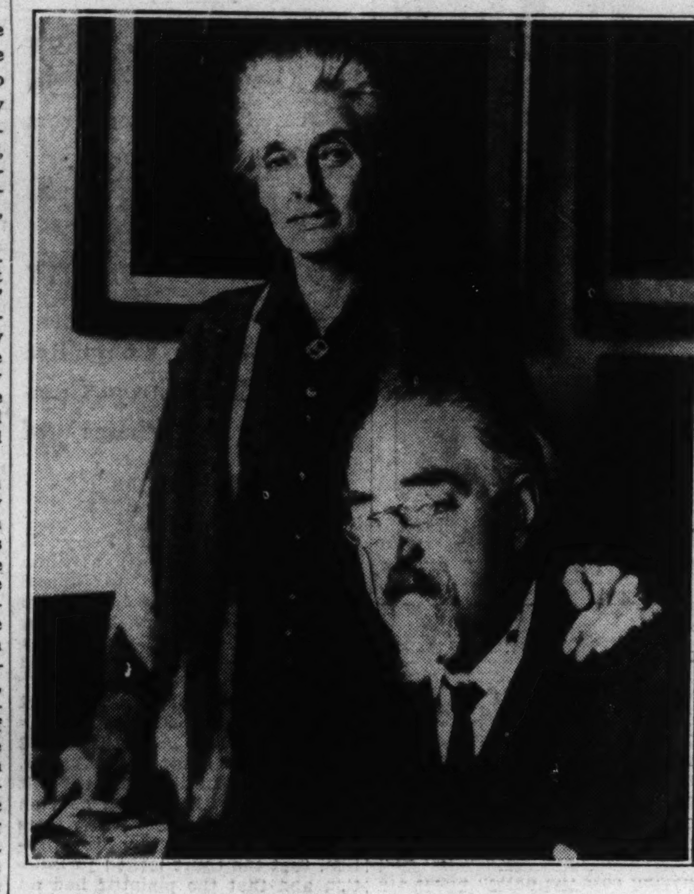
END OF SUMMER. By S. N. Behrman (Random House, New York.)

AMONG all the writers for the current theater, there is none who can give his characters so much intelligence and get away with it so gaily as Samuel Nathaniel Behrman, whose latest comedy, "End of Summer," has become established since February as another of the Theater Guild's hits, and another Ina Claire success.

The play may become one of St. Louis' chief entertainments next season, as were "The Second Man" and "Biography," two earlier Behrman plays, in their times; it may win the approaching Pulitzer prize for its author; it did get a few votes several weeks ago when the Broadway Critics' Circle decided that "Winterset," instead, should have their honors.

The published script, replete with analytical speeches but brilliantly clear, is stimulating reading, even without the glow that Miss Claire's presence would certainly give to Leonie Frothingham, the superfluously wealthy and mentally dependent heroine of the piece. At Leonie's cottage in Maine, Behrman squares off plutocrats against young radicals, youths out of a job, fortune-hunters and the like, all in the flesh of personable and socially acceptable individuals. While Leonie flits from one love to another, and her daughter, Paula, works out romantic perplexities with one of the young men, every house guest gets a chance to air his views. The sum total is an outline for tolerant thinking. C. McP.

"Irrepressible, Irresistible"



Sidney and Beatrice Webb.

Exhaustive Study of Russian Social Organization

SOVIET COMMUNISM: A NEW CIVILIZATION? By Sidney and Beatrice Webb. (Charles Scribner's Sons, New York.)

AT an age when most human beings refuse to absorb new ideas the irrepressible, irresistible Webbs, spurred by intellectual curiosity, have undertaken to investigate the present social order of Russia, and to describe their findings. The material they have gathered fills two large volumes which are invaluable as a source of information for any student of the Russian situation, or for anyone interested in modern social trends.

The two outstanding merits of this monumental work are the systematized and carefully planned manner in which the mass of data is presented, and the minute detail.

A striking example of each is to be noted when the Webbs describe the relation of the individual to society as a whole. One section is devoted to the man as a citizen of the state under the complex political system of the Soviets; another section emphasizes the man as a producer and the immense pyramid of trade unions and of professional associations resting on this function; a third section deals with the man as a consumer and treats of the mechanics of co-operative distribution. Every form of social activity receives due consideration and is painstakingly recorded.

The greatest weakness of the Webbs is their apparent lack of knowledge of Russian history, and their obvious unfamiliarity with the Russian social scene prior to the revolution. Time and again they undertake to compare the present and the past without having facts at their disposal. For instance, their statement that in Russia prior to 1912 there were no institutions devoted to medical research is a gross error, particularly regrettable because the self-evident accomplishments of the Soviet regime require no such artificial bolstering.

But, though the work suffers from such historical inaccuracies, one is safe in predicting that it will remain for a long time unsurpassed as a portrayal of Soviet aspirations, and as a handbook on the mechanics of the Russian government as it is today. It is hard to conceive how anyone will attempt in the future to understand what is now happening in Soviet Russia without reading what the Webbs have to say on the subject. N. W.

The Pitcairners

THE HERITAGE OF THE BOUNTY. By Harry L. Shapiro. (Simon & Schuster, New York.)

THE present volume is not to be mistaken for the work of a literary opportunist, exploiting public interest created by others. Nor is the author's interest in the material of recent origin. Fourteen years ago, while an undergraduate at Harvard, majoring in anthropology, he conceived the idea which has resulted in this admirable work.

In the year 1790, nine of the Bounty mutineers, headed by Fletcher Christian, together with six men and a dozen women of Tahiti, landed on Pitcairn Island with an area of little over two square miles. Eighteen years later, when the first ship stopped at Pitcairn, the colony consisted of one white man, John Adams, eight or nine Tahitian women, and 25 children, the latter being the progeny of the Englishmen and their Polynesian wives, the native men having left no offspring.

Jealousy and the ill treatment of the natives by the whites had resulted in bloody strife between the men, and there had also been an uprising of the women against their white lords. But by the year 1808 Edenic peace dwelt on the island under the kindly, wise, patriarchal rule of the sole surviving mutineer. For a generation thereafter the colony throve, and no new bloodstrain was introduced from the outside world.

"What could make a more absorbing subject for research," asked the young anthropologist, "than the heredity of the hybrid Anglo-Polynesian children of the Bounty?"

Accordingly, in 1923, Dr. Shapiro set out on an aged tramp steamer bound for New Zealand, in the hope that he might manage at least a brief call at Pitcairn. A storm at the wrong moment defeated his hope, and he found himself at Auckland. After visiting Norfolk Island, where the majority of the mutineers' descendants now live, he returned to America. But two years ago his hope was realized, and here he presents the findings of his sojourn among the people of Pitcairn.

Although the purpose of the author is of a scientific nature, the book is intensely human and never tedious. After an initial chapter on his first day on the island, Dr. Shapiro gives five chapters to the history of the Pitcairners from 1789 to the present day. Three chapters are then devoted to the religion, language, morals, institutions and customs of the people. Thereupon follow two chapters dealing with the inherited traits of the islanders, the birth and death rate, and the effects of inbreeding. The work is concluded with the author's diary kept during his visit.

One closes the book not only with respect, but with a warm neighborly feeling, for this isolated folk whose history makes so strange a tale. J. G. N.

World - Wide Scheming

THE BROWN NETWORK. (Knight Publications, Inc., New York.)

THE deep-laid motives and vast ambitions of Germany's Nazi masters make necessary the maintenance of an elaborate system of agents abroad. It is this system, the "brown network," that the writer describes in painstaking detail in the present volume.

The work of these agents is varied. Sometimes they are propagandists, sometimes spies, sometimes kidnapers, murderers and terrorists. Whatever their activities, the writer's phrase fits them: they "constitute machine-gun nests of Hitler's imperialism abroad." All their efforts are directed to the greater glory of the Nazi Reich, now and in future.

It is a terrifying and fantastic story that is here unfolded. It cannot be accepted as other than fact, however, in view of the incriminating official documents that the author quotes to prove his points. There is abundant verification, too, in what is known of the Nazi aims, as set forth in Hitler's book, Goebbels' speeches, Rosenberg's writings and elsewhere. The plan for a "racial empire," the Germanic Union, has never been disavowed; in fact, maps showing the Greater Germany are openly circulated. It is to bring this goal nearer that the network functions.

Frequent news dispatches, too, serve to verify this account of the Nazi agents' machinations. The bloody outbreak in Vienna, in which Premier Dollfuss was slain, was literally "made in Germany." Kidnapings, murders, exposes of propaganda in which Nazi agents were implicated, have been reported from time to time in the press, and many of them are related here in detail.

The extent of the underground opposition in Germany is indicated by the great bulk of information unearthed and published in this book. The writer, Rudolf Breda (whose name, by the way, does not appear on the title page), is a leader in the underground fight, and his life has been sought by Nazi agents. There is now a price of 5000 marks (about $2000) on his head. This, it would appear, is a miserly sum. The Reich Government last year spent 262,000,000 marks on its activities abroad. Surely a larger reward could be spared for the writer who has disclosed so many of these activities, and in his exciting book gives warning to the unwary. F. G.

MORE PROFIT THAN GOLD. By Joan Arbuthnot. (Charles Scribner's Sons, New York.)

THIS is a narrative of a commonplace tour in the West Indies and an uninteresting 100-mile trip up a river in British Guiana. The excuse for the book seems to be that the author is a society girl in London, to whom the newspapers gave a couple of columns when she set out to hunt for diamonds in the jungles of South America. The book is her diary, written in the best style of a high school senior. C. E. A.

THE HOLLOW REED. By Mary J. J. Wrinn. (Harper & Brothers, New York.)

IF one can be taught to write poetry, this volume by a high school teacher of New York City should set a host of worshippers of Apollo to singing. However, its value will probably lie in increasing the appreciation of verse through a better understanding of technique.

Miss Wrinn has really produced a comprehensive work, which includes not only the mechanical formulas for versifying but also copious samples of the art. O. F. F.

NATIONAL FAVORITES

ACCORDING to reports from leading booksellers throughout the country, the books most in demand during the past week stand as follows in the order of their popularity:

FICTION

The Last Puritan, by George Santayana; The Hurricane, by Nordhoff and Hall; The Thinking Reed, by Rebecca West; It Can't Happen Here, by Sinclair Lewis; The Rolling Years, by Agnes Sligh Turnbull; Gaudy Night, by Dorothy L. Sayers.

NON-FICTION

The Way of the Transgressor, by Negley Farson; North to the Orient, by Anne Morrow Lindbergh; Man the Unknown, by Alexis Carrel; Life With Father, by Clarence Day; Inside Europe, by John Gunther; Hell Bent for Election, by James P. Warburg.

Titles appearing for the first time among best-sellers are: Greater Love, by John Rathbone Oliver; Manhattan Murder, by Arthur Train; South Riding, by Winifred Holtby; To the Mountain, by Bradford Smith; Wake Up and Live, by Dorothea Brande; Soviet Communism, by Sidney and Beatrice Webb; Vincent Van Gogh, by Walter Pach; Young Mr. Disraeli, by Elswyth Thane.

Great Tragic Actress

RACHEL THE IMMORTAL. By Bernard Falk. (D. Appleton-Century Company, New York.)

TO those who know the sonorous lines of Corneille and Racine, Rachel Felix, who appeared almost 100 years ago in the classical dramas of those writers at the Comedie Francaise, stands out as one of the great tragic actresses of all time.

Figures on the stage have always been fascinating to beholders and their private lives most intriguing. Rachel's contemporaries were far more interested in intimate details concerning this emaciated daughter of roving Jewish peddlers, who counted among her lovers a King, the natural son of Napoleon, and a host of well-known men of the day, than they were in her ability to hold an audience spellbound by a perfect gesture and classic hexameter. From humble beginnings as a street singer at the age of 10, she skipped nimbly about in sordid adventures until at 30, a mass of misinterpretations and half truths had grown up about her. Her more clever contemporaries were always glad to turn her foolish indiscretions to good account for themselves.

The biographer has made an effort to clear away this thicket and to discover the real Rachel who was vain and stupid in her dealings with people, but whose magnetism and greatness on the stage were unquestioned. He has gone over numerous letters and references minutely, and out of these gleanings has reconstructed the living personality, holding no brief for her but presenting her with frankness. F. D.

China Today

CHINA CHANGES. By Gerald Yorke. (Charles Scribner's Sons, New York.)

AS a Reuter correspondent, Gerald Yorke roamed up and down China for two years, availing himself of three strategic viewpoints upon the tangled mass of Chinese affairs: a journey into the interior with a dyke inspection party; a trip north with military forces at the time of the Japanese invasion of Jehol; and later, a sojourn in the seething provinces between Shanghai and Canton, scene of the Communist experiment. To these must be added a fourth and perhaps more charming interval, when he went up-country by barge and "rambled transcendentally in the realm of no affairs," among temples, monasteries and serene hills.

Although the fall of the monarchy in 1911 was followed by political and economic collapse, signs of unity are now emerging. Two conspicuous figures today are Chiang Kai-shih (better known to us as Chiang Kai-shek) and Dr. T. V. Sung, both dictators of a sort. Working through the National Economic Council and with the help of foreign advisers obtained through the League of Nations, the pressing problems of production methods are being attacked, and the tea, cotton and silk industries are being revitalized. The roads which are now being built will play a most helpful part.

China has been subjected to large and indigestible doses of modernization; she must have more time to transmute them by means of her own philosophy. Chinese loyalties are to the family first; the Western idea of patriotism is practically unknown and our belligerent nationalism is alluded to as the "dog-fight." Although the militaristic spirit has been bred out, the Chinese are not effete. To the peasant soldier, "the fact that the Japanese hides behind armored plating or flies high overhead is proof that man for man he is not their equal."

The spectacle of China absorbing as much of Occidental culture as she desires to use, and subjecting it to the alchemy of her own processes of thought for her own best ends, should be one of the most interesting of modern times. M. B.

PLATFORM FOR AMERICA. By Ralph E. Flanders. (McGraw-Hill Book Co., New York.)

THE character and probable value of this discussion of our economic problems may be suggested by the author's explanation of unemployment, the first and most important cause of which, we read, is "faulty inheritance of intellect and character" in large numbers of people, who "must be content to live in the social backwaters until progress is made in solving the special problem which they present." The "platform" offered may seem to some to be concerned with pleasing generalities.

Good for Easter Reading

NOT TOO NARROW—NOT TOO DEEP. By Richard Sale. (Simon & Schuster, New York.)

TEN convicts, escaping from a French penal colony on a Caribbean island, set out to fight their way through miles of jungle to the shore where a boat purchased from a smuggler awaits them. One dies of fever on the way. The remaining nine come straggling into the place of rendezvous, and as each appears, his character and life experience are vividly revealed. Thieves, murderers, psycopaths, ranging from weaklings to giants, from cringing cowards to ferocious beasts, their physical, mental and spiritual disabilities make a fairly comprehensive catalog of human ills.

If it be not clear to the reader at first, it should become increasingly so as the story proceeds, that all these desperate fugitives—madly egocentric, chained with their own desires—are carrying their prisons with them as they flee.

Just as they are about to push off in their frail craft, each blind to the other's needs, a strange thing happens. They note that there are 10 in the boat, although one lies dead in the jungle. And who may the tenth man be?

He calls himself Jean Cambreau, and, although the gentlest in the crew, he assumes command at once and all obey him, wondering vaguely why they do.

A terrific storm breaks upon this microcosm of the self-bedevilled human world drifting helpless in the sweep of mighty and seemingly malevolent forces. Jean Cambreau alone is undisturbed. Noting this, and also how the man has seemed to foresee events, some come to fear him as a devil, while others, feeling in him some angelic power, as they deem, are healed of fear and various fleshly ills. Two of the most bestial, whose bodies are taken by the raging sea, are the first to know, in the apocalyptic moments of their passing, who Jean Cambreau may be; but neither tells.

One by one, the survivors of the jungle and the storm, during the voyage across the Caribbean, come at last to recognize the man; but no one speaks his other name, if indeed there be another. It is as though he were not a man at all, but only some ghostly personification of a way of seeing the world of men and things—a way of living outside the prison walls that each unwittingly had cherished in his blindness.

Whether or not a given reader may like this highly original tale will depend largely upon his own contribution to it. But even so, no one is likely to deny that, for a first novel by a writer who is only 25 years old, it is, at the least generous estimate, a very remarkable performance. One feels a margin of vitality in many of the descriptive passages that is seldom to be felt in even the finest novels of the day; and there are swift sentences and paragraphs that, like blue lightning ripping through the dark, illumine latent meanings and tremendous scenes.

Perhaps, as some are likely to contend, the tale is sometimes less than convincing. But there are rich overtones that linger when the book is closed.

It may be remarked, not without reason, that at the early age of 25, this Richard Sale has written out of his own inner experience, and not from hearsay, then surely he is headed for a shining goal, compared with which even the literary fame that he may well achieve might seem a trifle. J. G. N.

Merely Competent

THE COMMAND OF THE HOWE BROTHERS DURING THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION. By Troyer S. Anderson. (Oxford University Press, New York.)

WHEN Gen. Sir William Howe, in August, 1775, was given command of the British forces in America, he seemed the ideal man to bring the revolting colonies back under control of the crown.

Coming from a family of military men, he had distinguished himself at the Battle of Quebec, and his service in organizing the British showed he had learned much from his American experience. His selection, with that of Admiral Lord Richard Howe, to command the royal naval forces in the colonies, seemed to presage a brighter day for British arms.

When, early in 1778, he was relieved of the command at his own request and returned, a much defeated General, to England, it was to face a barrage of hostile pamphlets that must have brought to his mind again the awful memory of Bunker Hill and which forced an inconclusive parliamentary investigation.

His critics charged that Sir William had been disloyal, even traitorous; that his gambling and amours had set a bad example for his officers and tended to undermine morale; that he had made inadequate use of Loyalist support; and that he had shown utter incompetence.

• • •

In none of these charges, Mr. Anderson says, is the explanation of Sir William's failure to be found. Rather, the author concludes, his defeat came from the fact that the situation demanded a great man, whereas the General was just a competent man. All commanders, he says, have missed opportunities, but Sir William continually failed to rise to the full possibilities of the occasion.

The volume only occasionally mentions Admiral Howe, who distinguished himself in naval engagements with the French after his brother's recall. C. R. H.

FOG AND MEN ON BERING SEA. By Max Miller. (E. P. Dutton & Co., New York.)

SEVERAL years ago Max Miller wrote some yarns on how he covered the waterfront. His forthright, graceful and perceptive style won him instant recognition. Then, all too soon, other books followed. They were all below the level of the first. Now Mr. Miller has made a trip in a coast guard cutter along the coast of Alaska, reporting what he saw and telling tales of "Seward's Icebox."

• • •

He tells of the early Russians whose fancies ran to such things as testing penetration of musket balls by firing into bound files of Aleuts, of the Eskimos with tuberculosis as much a part of them as their skin, and of the slaughter of seals. He also devotes a number of pages to rather off-color jokes and sketches, of which it cannot even be said that they are new. It's just another book by the man who wrote "I Cover the Waterfront." R. R.

PIG-O-WEE. THE STORY OF A SKINNY MOUNTAIN PIG. By Ellis Credle. (Rand McNally & Co., Chicago.)

TO children not beyond the second grade, for whom it is primarily intended, this little narrative bears out its title. But their elders, to whom will fall the duty of reading it aloud, will see also a poignant story of a hard-bitten family of Virginia mountaineers and their simple desire to own a "tune box" with which to brighten dreary hours. Copiously illustrated by Miss Credle, it has a quaint ending which will puzzle youthful brains—and also adult ones when beset with the inevitable, though quite justified, questioning.

A Story Harvest

THE BEDSIDE BOOK OF FAMOUS AMERICAN STORIES. Edited by Angus Burrell and Bennett A. Cerf. (Random House, New York.)

THE 67 stories in this collection run the gamut from Washington Irving's "The Legend of Sleepy Hollow" and "Rip Van Winkle" to William Saroyan's "The Daring Young Man on the Flying Trapeze." Edgar Allan Poe and O. Henry are represented by three stories apiece. Besides Irving, those remembered with two are Hawthorne, Mark Twain, Ambrose Bierce, Henry James, Sherwood Anderson, Ernest Hemingway and Ring Lardner. Among the older stories are Stockton's "The Lady or the Tiger," Aldrich's "Marjorie Daw," Bret Harte's "Outcasts of Poker Flat" and Richard Harding Davis' "The Bar Sinister." The work of the later writers includes "The Good Anna," by Gertrude Stein, "The Lost Phoebe," by Theodore Dreiser, "Big Blonde," by Dorothy Parker, "The Body of an American," by John Dos Passos, and "A Rose for Emily," by William Faulkner. Also in the latter group are Thomas Wolfe's "A Portrait of Bascom Hawke," Katharine Brush's "Night Club" and Erskine Caldwell's "Kneel to the Rising Sun."

Few readers will find fault with the stories included. If exception is to be taken, it is because the book, notwithstanding its considerable size, is not large enough. Someone is to be commended for the crisp biographical sketches of the writers. I. D.

THEY BLOCKED THE SUEZ CANAL. By A. D. Divine. (Lee Furman, Inc., New York.)

IN the hope of forcing Mussolini to come to terms with the League of Nations by preventing supplies from reaching the Italian forces in Ethiopia, several adventurous young Englishmen conceive the idea of blocking the Suez Canal. After various exciting experiences they succeed in sinking two ships, loaded with cement and gravel, at the narrowest point in the canal, making their get-away by airplane. It's a good yarn, and seems to have attracted considerable attention in England, less for its appeal as a story, it may be supposed, than for the audacity and timeliness of its theme.

Whether or not a given reader like this highly original tale depend largely upon his own ribution to it. But even so, no is likely to deny that, for a novel by a writer who is only ears old, it is, at the least gen- us estimate, a very remarkable formance. One feels a margin vitality in many of the descrip- passages that is seldom to be in even the finest novels of the and there are swift sentences paragraphs that, like blue tning ripping through the , illumine latent meanings and mendous scenes.

erhaps, as some are likely to tend, the tale is sometimes less n convincing. But there are rich tones that linger when the k is closed.

may be remarked, not with- reason, that at the early age 5, this Richard Sale has writ- out of his own inner experi- e, and not from hearsay, then ely he is headed for a shining al, compared with which even the literary fame that he may well achieve might seem a trifle.

A Kind of Game

THE ART OF CROSS-EXAMINATION. By Francis L. Wellman. (The Macmillan Co., New York.)

THAT this book has a continuing interest is attested by the fact that this is the fourth "new and enlarged" edition, the first having appeared in 1903. Francis L. Wellman of the New York bar here gives friendly precept and illustration. It is not a textbook, it is not a casebook; it is a general discussion of the kind a veteran gives for a tyro, or a specialist for a layman for enlightenment in his art.

The English system of law (and so, too, the American) makes the jury the arbiter of the facts. Since jurors are not learned in the law, there has grown up a great body of rules governing what evidence they may be allowed to hear lest they be swayed by irrelevancies. This, in effect, permits the lawyers on one side to develop their testimony so as to give an incomplete picture—that is, one complete only in so far as their purposes may be served—and compels opposing counsel to ferret out the rest. It's a kind of game. Hence the art of cross-examination. There is really only one rule: Don't ask any question unless you know the answer in advance, or don't care what it may be. All else is luck or intuition.

Mr. Wellman points out that the art is invaluable in the search for truth and should be employed only to that end; but he also remarks that psychologists agree that 75 to 90 per cent of eyewitness testimony, even when honest, is not dependable, and experts' opinions are practically worthless; so, it would appear, the quest for truth, or even for the probabilities, becomes more and more a sporting event.

Mr. Wellman is careful not to say that the cross-examiner's bag of tricks has been opened about as effectively and about as often to discredit truthful witnesses as wrongheads and perjurers, but the conclusion is hardly escapable.

Above the Ruck

DAUGHTERS OF ALBION. By Alec Brown. (Doubleday, Doran & Co., Garden City, New York.)

PROLETARIAN novels seem to be steadily gaining in dignity. Out of the ruck of violent, ill-conceived and maudlin books of this type, more and more often there are appearing proletarian novels that challenge serious consideration.

"Daughters of Albion," by Alec Brown, is one of these. Its author offers a close study of the bourgeois family of England, its inadequacy in precluding any realization of the inner nature of its members. It is more than a satire, for it attempts to build up in the reader an understanding of the possibilities for the development of character in a classless society, one in which the vital interests of its member will not conflict.

Its plot is concerned wtih five daughters in their endeavor to work out their respective answers to that most absorbing of all questions, "What shall I do with my life?"

Roger Etcham, the father, a prosperous lawyer, and his wife, Violet, have made of their marriage a mechanism for the control and proper marriage of their five girls. They influence Charlotte, the oldest, to remain with her profligate husband. Cynthia, more independent, assumes the management of a small farm, but her restlessness shows itself in an unnatural interest in the welfare of her young assistant. Irene, her father's pet, finds in Doushan, a Serbian engineer, a real mate, but her class prejudice makes marriage with a peasant impossible. Her independence throws her into a world of strangers where, against her will, a necessary abortion brings her into the ranks of prostitution. Muriel, the silly and sentimental, marries a shepherd of the poor, and drags him from his pinnacle of Christian idealism to the most banal bourgeois existence.

Mary, the youngest, is the only successful member of the family, and is the proponent of the author's philosophy of sexual relationships. He presents her as a hard-headed, but big-hearted, virgin whose constant question, "Is it practical?" runs strangely parallel with a consideration of high moral and spiritual values. Yet the author insists that hers is a materialistic philosophy.

Certainly the casual reader would make a mistake should he permit himself to be antagonized by the ironic treatment of his class (and few besides members of the middle class will read so ambitious a novel). In "Daughters of Albion" he will gain insight into a point of view that is being increasingly shared by serious authors of our day.

FULL AND BY. By David Stanley Livingston. (The Dodge Publishing Co., New York.)

JUDAS PRIEST! What a voyage!" The mate put it in a nutshell when he made that remark as the 50-year-old two-masted coastal schooner Jason, rudderless, leaking, battered and undermanned, made her way into Boston harbor. Capt. Nickerson, the bluenose skipper, navigated "by guess and by God" from Boston to St. John and back to Boston. He was thrifty, so he had a crew of four instead of the eight he needed.

There was fog and more fog. The creaking old Jason had no fathometers or radio direction finders—only a deep-sea lead and a mouth-blown foghorn. "Keep that horn apuffin," said old Nickerson, and somehow the Jason did escape one collision after another.

The characters, lightly sketched, are true to life. Seamen all, save the cook, they cheat Old Devil Sea by the skin of their teeth. There's no bucko mate, no romance, no slipper stuff. It's just a salty, simple tale, packed with grim humor, of a little-known phase of coastwise shipping.

For Youngsters

FARM ON THE HILL. By Madeline Darrough Horn. Illustrated by Grant Wood. (Charles Scribner's Sons, New York.)

"WHAT is the use of a book," asked Alice, "without pictures or conversations?" So saying, Lewis Carroll's heroine laid down for all time the standard for children's books. The present one admirably fulfills Alice's formula. There are pictures—and such pictures! Grant Wood, the celebrated Iowa artist, painted them, and they are sure to delight the eye of any child (and his elders, as well), with their simple, rugged lines and clear, strong colors. There are plenty of lively conversations, too, between Tom and Bill Horn and their grandparents, on whose farm the two boys are spending the summer.

It is, in short, a delightful book. The language is as simple, straightforward and matter-of-fact as are the illustrations. It is a story of everyday farm happenings, including the homely little details which a vacationing city child most enjoys, about the haying and the household pets and the milking and the threshing and the churning.

Mr. Wood is a friend of Mrs. Horn, the author. "He wished to illustrate this book," the publisher explains, "so pictures and stories grew together." The quality of the book as a whole verifies the statement. It is a perfect blending of text and illustration, a joy for juvenile readers who are just being introduced to the rich treasures of books and pictures.

THE GOLDEN LADY. By Dorothy Gardiner. (Doubleday, Doran & Co., Garden City, N. Y.)

MAN has always sought gold. "Hope springs eternal," and the miner always expects to strike in "one foot more"; but after the one foot, what then?

Dorothy Gardiner takes this problem and wrestles with it for 500 pages—300 would have been enough. Evantha Aurelia Swenk, the daughter of a professional gambler and Leadville Lilly, is the subject of the demonstration. Tandy Hicklin, a drunken philosopher, knows the answer from the start, and therefore stays drunk most of the time. He suggests each step in the search for the answer and always predicts the result of the step before Vannie makes it.

"Evantha Aurelia is going to be a lady." Her mother started her in life, making that the ultimate goal. Tandy gives her the "Golden Lady," a mine up near timber-line, to help her realize her mother's ambition. Vannie, the "golden lady" for whom the mine is named, and the mine move through the story together. The lady is never free of the mine or its influence.

As for Evantha Aurelia, she never quite wakes up. Her creator is just a little too busy with the idea to make her human. She gains all that she expected from her marriage. Then she falls in love with the only other two eligible males that cross her path; but both affairs are rather stupid and the second one is especially tiresome.

This novel will not satisfy the reader who demands that the story finally arrive at some conclusion.

DIANE THE HUNTRESS. The Life and Times of Diane de Poitiers. By Grace Hart Seely. (D. Appleton-Century Company, New York.)

AMONG the countless dead a few possess interest of such a quality that they are never quite destroyed. Lurking in dusty records and manuscripts, they need but the touch of some inquring historian to come alive. Such a one is Diane de Poitiers.

Married very young to a stern and aged officer of the Crown, Diane remained his faithful wife until his death 18 years later. She then went to the court of Francis I to be a matron of honor to the Queen. There she became acquainted with the melancholy Prince Henry, whose spirit had been darkened by the dreary years spent as hostage for France in Spain and whose life was further embittered by a loveless marriage with Catherine de Medici. Though many years his senior, Diane, with her beauty, graciousness and kindness, drew the youth to her, and eventually she became his mistress.

When Henry ascended the throne, he remained constant to his "dear friend" and depended to a great extent upon her advice in affairs of state throughout his reign.

The author has created a vivid picture of the French court with its brilliance, intrigue and cruelty. Among a host of interesting people moves Diane de Poitiers, self-possessed and classic in her beauty. The very bones of this woman have been destroyed (for the revolutionists looted her grave), but something of her charm and haughty serenity have survived the years and live again here.

WHAT VEBLEN TAUGHT. Selections from the Writings of Thorstein Veblen by Wesley C. Mitchell. (The Viking Press, New York.)

POPULAR interest in the teachings of Thorstein Veblen, that lonely thinker who gave us such phrases as "leisure class," "vested interests," "conspicuous waste," "absentee ownership," "invidious distinction" and "calculable future," is certain to be stimulated by this 500-page collection from his many books.

Dr. Mitchell, one of Veblen's pupils (a professor of economics at Columbia University and chairman of the President's Research Commission on Social Trends, 1929-1933.) has hunted out the famous passages so as to make them readily available in one volume. To paraphrase the title of one of George Bernard Shaw's books, the result is "the quintessence of Veblenism," which beginners in Veblen and old admirers alike will want.

The editor's critical sketch of Veblen, with which the book opens, is a brilliant analysis of that "placid unbeliever" as a social and economic philosopher and as a personality, shunned and rejected in his own day. The book is a reminder that it will always be one of the glories of the University of Missouri that after Veblen was dismissed from Stanford University, an academic haven was afforded him as a lecturer on the faculty at Columbia.

ST. LOUIS, SUNDAY MORNING, APRIL 12, 1936.

Another "Ziegfeld" Comes to the American

Three-Hour Film Musical Reviewing Stage Producer's Life to Be Shown Where Famous Successes Played—William Powell Starred.

THE American Theater, where the late Florenz Ziegfeld used to display his girl glorification before the delighted eyes of St. Louisans and took a reward that made the house one of his favorite theaters, tonight begins the showing of Hollywood's extravaganza based on the producer's flamboyant career.

Titled "The Great Ziegfeld," the road show film is in every way an attempt to live up to its hero's reputation. It is set down as a $2,000,000 affair, it was two years in the making and even two studios had a hand in making it, since Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer bought the rights from Universal after Universal had found too many obstacles in its way.

The film runs three hours, so the opening is set for 8:15 o'clock, with a 10-minute intermission at a convenient stopping point in the middle of the screening. Beginning two-a-day performances tomorrow, "The Great Ziegfeld" will continue for two weeks. It will not return at popular prices for at least six months after the road showing.

Based on the biography and screen play of William Anthony McGuire, "The Great Ziegfeld" travels the route of the Ziegfeld career from the time the impresario began ballyhooing Sandow, the strong man, at the Chicago World's Fair of 1893, until he was at the top of the heap among American theatrical producers. The principal departure from fact is that Ziegfeld's death, in the picture, takes place in New York, at the scene of his success, rather than in Hollywood, where he did die, on July 22, 1932.

With William Powell in the title role, Luise Rainer is Anna Held, Ziegfeld's first wife, and Myrna Loy appears as Billie Burke, his second wife. Nat Pendleton is Sandow and Joseph Cawthorn is the producer's father, Dr. Florenz Ziegfield Sr., conductor of the Chicago Musical College, with which the producer himself was associated for 10 years as a young man.

Either as actual or fictitious persons, others in the cast are Virginia Bruce, Frank Morgan, Reginald Owen, Robert Greig, Raymond Walburn and Herman Bing. Well known ex-Ziegfeld stars, such as Fanny Brice, Harriet Hoctor, Ray Bolger, Leon Errol, Ann Pennington and Gilda Gray were induced to appear as themselves, and Eddie Cantor and the late Will Rogers are impersonated.

SCENIC settings reproduce 12 theaters in the United States and Europe, the deck of the liner Teutonic on which Ziegfeld traveled to Europe 40 years ago, the Sixty Club in New York, where he met Billie Burke, the Ziegfeld home at Hastings, N. Y., Dr. Ziegfeld's conservatory, New York and London streets and a host of theatrical offices.

The big expenditure necessarily went for musical numbers and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer proudly announces that both the "You" and "Pretty Girl Is Like a Melody" ensembles surpassed in cost any complete musical show ever staged by Ziegfeld. The "Pretty Girl" number, in which 182 chorus girls and men ride on a revolving spiral, was made of 100 tons of structural steel, with 4300 yards of rayon silk as the principal decorative material. Running-time for the entire sequence on the screen is less than nine minutes.

Some 5000 persons, all told, were employed as show girls, chorus men, World's Fair crowds, theater audiences and principals. Robert Z. Leonard directed, and Seymour Felix, former Ziegfeld dance director, handled the chorus routines. Hunt Stromberg was producer.

"La Traviata" to Open Grand Opera Thursday Evening

THE brief spring season of the St. Louis Opera Co. will open at 8:15 o'clock Thursday evening at the Municipal Auditorium Opera House, with Edith Mason, St. Louis-born soprano of the Metropolitan, taking the role of the tragic Violetta in Verdi's "La Traviata."

On Saturday evening, also in the Opera House, the opera ball and concert, a feature new to St. Louis, will be held, under auspices of the Women's Committee. On Monday of next week, "Lucia di Lammermoor," with Lily Pons, will be presented in the Convention Hall, and on Wednesday evening, April 22, "La Gioconda," with Rosa Raisa, in the Opera House, closing the season.

Principals with Mason for "La Traviata" are Hazel Sanborn as Flora Bervoise and Annina, Mario Chamlee as Alfredo, Carlo Morelli as Giorgio Germont, Lodovico Oliviero as Gastone, Norman Cordon as Baron Douphol, Joseph R. Arena as the Marquis d'Obigny and Wilifred Engelman as Doctor Grenvil.

Surrounding them will be the vocal chorus of 125 St. Louis singers and a ballet of 30 girls under the direction of Rita de Leporte, with the accompaniment of an orchestra of 60 resident musicians. Gennaro Papi will conduct. Costumes and scenery are from the Chicago Opera Co.

The opera ball, open to the public, will consist of a concert by the artists, followed by a reception, buffet supper and dance. It is a feature of great popularity in Europe and the East.

The concert program:

Overture, "The Flying Dutchman"—Wagner
"My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice ("Samson and Delilah") — — —Saint-Saens
Sonia Sharnova
"Rudolph's Narrative" (La Boheme")—Puccini
Joseph Bentonelli
"Toreador Song" ("Carmen") — —Bizet
Carlo Morelli
Overture, "William Tell" — — —Rossini
"Farewell to the Bright Visions" ("La Traviata") — — — — — Verdi
Edith Mason
"Entrance of the Gods Into Valhalla" ("Das Rheingold") — — — —Wagner
"Oh, Paradise" ("L'Africaine")—Meyerbeer
Mario Chamlee
"Bolero" ("Vespri Siciliani") — —Verdi
Rosa Raisa
Overture, "Orpheus in the Underworld"—Offenbach

"Quo Vadis" to Screen Again.

Screen rights to "Quo Vadis," Henryk Sienkiewicz's famous novel of early Christianity in Rome, have been acquired by a major studio, for production within the next year.

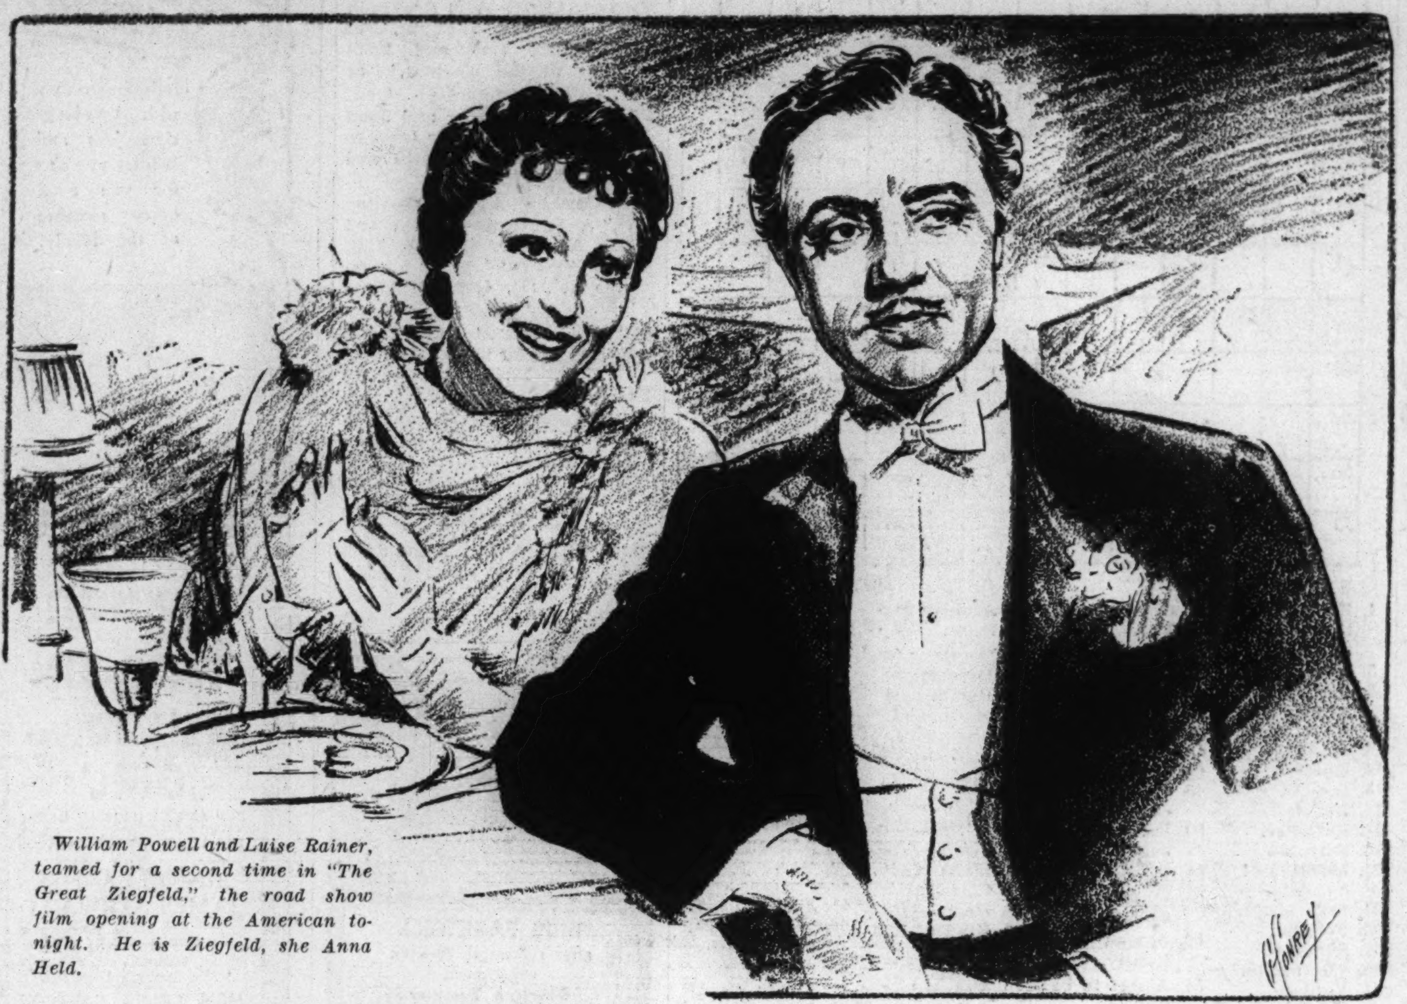
Symphony Engages Concert Artists for Its 1936-37 Season

WITH the closing of the 1935-36 St. Louis Symphony Orchestra season last night, the Symphony Society is entering on plans for its concerts next winter, under the direction of Vladimir Golschmann.

Golschmann, re-engaged for his sixth consecutive year, leaves for his home in Paris today on an earlier vacation than usual, because of the serious illness of his mother. He will spend the summer as guest conductor on the Continent, and will arrange programs, study new works for the orchestra and attend the principal musical festivals.

New soloists for next year, which the Symphony Society has already announced to its subscribers, include Serge Prokofieff, eminent Russian composer, conductor and pianist; Leon Zighera, French violinist; Dalies Frantz, young American pianist, and Ruth Slenczynski, 12-year-old American piano prodigy.

Serge Rachmaninoff, Jascha Heifetz, Alexandre Tansman, Gregor Piatigorsky and Vladimir Horowitz will have return engagements. The Symphony Society will sponsor the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo again, and will present the Symphony Chorus with the orchestra in two concerts.



William Powell and Luise Rainer, teamed for a second time in "The Great Ziegfeld," the road show film opening at the American tonight. He is Ziegfeld, she Anna Held.

Capra Again Makes Most of a Situation

"Mr. Deeds Goes to Town," at Fox Theater, Is Lively Comedy

By COLVIN McPHERSON.

A FRANK CAPRA picture is worth waiting for. Fifteen months after Broadway Bill broke his gallant heart in the most exciting horse race of screen history, Mr. Deeds now goes to the big town of New York to claim a $20,000,000 fortune and Capra's accomplishment is the same — a screen comedy filled with heart-warming humor and affection. After one reel of any Capra picture, I am tempted to say, "Old stuff! He can't overcome the handicaps of that much tripe!" But it is in that that the genius of Frank Capra consists, to put new life in overworked situations, to make silken celluloid out of cinematic sow's ears. Surely there is nothing new about a young countryman coming into a lot of money, or pulling frolicsome stunts when he does. But Capra and Robert Riskin, his screen play partner, tell "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town" (at the Fox Theater) as if they had known the fellow, filling in the human details that make every scene meaningful. The star is able to follow that lead, with the result that Gary Cooper's work as Mr. Deeds is likely to be counted one of the best performances of 1936. Offered as a young New Englander who writes nearly as terrible greeting card verses as Erwin Trowbridge, he also is endowed with a fondness for playing the tuba, chasing fire engines and telling people where to get off. Yet into that seeming burlesque of a human being, he molds the soul of a true poet, a childish honesty and sensitiveness and Yankee shrewdness. Mr. Deeds, finally, is quite impossible but he is as real to you as your own better nature. In the hands of Capra and Cooper, he learns about the big town in a normal way, clinches with its phoneys and smart-alecks and fights them to a finish. No sooner does he attempt to benefit the poor with his new fortune than court action is instituted to declare him insane. The courtroom scene corresponds to the race in "Broadway Bill," the wedding in "It Happened One Night." It is Capra at his best. Pacing Cooper in the large cast are Jean Arthur, as the tabloid sob-sister who spreads him over the front page; Lionel Stander as the watchdog who can never catch up with him, Douglas Dumbrille as the head of the law firm after the swag; Walter Catlett, H. B. Warner, Pierre Watkin and even Barnett Parker, Municipal Opera comedian of two summers ago, as a butler. A few photographic shots look as if the world had become short-sighted, but camera work shapes up to the exceedingly agreeable production.

The Singing Kid.

EVEN if he loses his voice and regains it—for purposes of plot in "The Singing Kid"—Al Jolson has not slipped, and the review of his past successes which opens the current picture at the Shubert gives some idea of the pleaure he has poured forth in the last 20 years. In "The Singing Kid," he is again "Al Jackson," the busy Broadway star, making money from radio, stage and phonograph recordings and squandering it. Then out of nowhere, like the Warner Brothers emblem, comes misfortune. His fiancee, who would be called a chiseler in anybody's vocabulary, elopes with his lawyer, who elopes with Jolson's fortune. So Al just throws in his voice, and starts all over again, away off in the woods. A romance with Beverly Roberts and a little fatherly fun with Sybil Jason put him back on his vocal chords, and he knocks Broadway for an S. R. O. sign. That's the whole story. Al sings a great deal, in spite of his affliction. Backing him up are the Yacht Club Boys, those four copies of the same lyrics, Cab Calloway imitating Jonah's famous reception committee of one, Wini Shaw in blackface and others. For production numbers, there are dancing in the streets and a Harlem hoe-down that might easily be taken for a trailer showing the exodus scene from the forthcoming "Green Pastures." The Shubert gives its customers a "dramatization" of the Hauptmann death march, a popular science short and a travel talk on ports of the United States, all enlightening.

Small Town Girl.

THE theme song of the early talkies makes its reappearance in "Small Town Girl," in which Janet Gaynor is crooned to by the sound track. Janet, residing in the New England village of Carvel, gets tired of the same things day and day, the same people night after night, so goes out for a walk. A big horseless carriage pulls up alongside and there is Robert Taylor, showing his teeth. Bob, who may be described as a reckless youth, takes her into his coach and not much later, marries her. But when he takes her to his fancy home—the one where Joan Crawford and Robert Montgomery lived in "No More Ladies"—he becomes just a nasty, mean rich boy. It takes a lot of heartaches, and a lot of woman's touches, before he realizes that Janet is best for him, and will help him become a great surgeon so he can perform that delicate operation on little Jimmie, and mean so much to suffering people. "Small Town Girl," too, has interesting short subject accompaniments.

The Moon's Our Home.

ASIDE from a few scintillating bits of dialogue, which will be attributed to Dorothy Parker, since she helped out in this case, "The Moon's Our Home," at the Orpheum, causes no great spurt in the spirit of spring. It has some captivating scenes of winter sports, which help Margaret Sullavan and Henry Fonda along in their slam-bang courtship, but what are winter sports alongside of April in St. Louis? Attempt is made by author's alchemy to fuse two fiery personalities—those of a Hollywood star and a young world traveler, of the reputation of Richard Halliburton. The experiment goes from drawing room to strait-jacket. Any picture following such a well-beaten path would have to be done by somebody like Frank Capra, or with an actress who could outscream Carole Lombard and out-toss Joan Crawford. The Orpheum's second film, "Murder on the Bridle Path," teams Helen Broderick with James Gleason in an hour of ferret-work.

WITH its vaudeville, the Grand Opera House brings to St. Louis a British screen melodrama entitled "Spy 77." Except that the audience doesn't know for quite a while whether it is for Austria or Italy, and therefore has no more concern for the outcome than it would have in a British cricket match, the effort is quite exciting. As in the case of other imported films, the settings themselves are a relief from California. Greta Nissen and Don Alvarado are billed as the headliners in "Spy 77." Greta is pretty active, but Alvarado is merely pretty. Carl Diehl really does the work.

Will Rogers' "A Connecticut Yankee," which came out first when business was bad, "So's Your Old Man" good and Myrna Loy still playing vamps, is reissued at the Ambassador this week. The past four years have done little to spoil the fine mirth with which the artful American introduces bathtubs and Austins into medieval England. "Pride of the Marines," the programmer on the bill, is assembled around scenes in which the colors are paraded back and forth.

Complete Cast of "Cherry Orchard."

The complete cast for "The Cherry Orchard," opening at the Little Theater on Monday, April 20, includes Kathryn Cravens as Mme. Ranevsky, Dolores Harnett as Varya, Gordon Sommers as Gaev, Bruce MacFarlane as Lopahin, and Elmira Roessler, Fred Hirsch, Bernard Ofner, Charity Grace, Paul Pohl, Margaret Hart, Alfred Wilkinson and David Orthwein in supporting roles. The play will run for two weeks.

Janet Gaynor in "Small Town Girl" at Loew's.

Sybil Jason in "The Singing Kid" at the Shubert.

Gary Cooper, in "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town," Fox.

Picture Business on the Upgrade, Hays Reports

Total of 826 New Theaters Placed in Operation Last Year, According to Official Statement—Hollywood Still Heads Production.

By H. H. NIEMEYER.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., April 11.

IF you happen to think the motion pictures are slipping, Will Hays, President of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America—the Kenesaw Mountain Landis of the films—will set you straight with a copy of his just issued annual report. St. Louis, which could afford it, may have lost a few thousand theater seats lately, but the rest of the country was strictly on the upgrade. Last year, Mr. Hays points out, 826 new theaters were placed in regular operation providing more than 375,000 additional seats for the fans who must be getting more spending money from somewhere. The 826 new show places brought the nation's total of picture theaters up to 15,378. Now if you figure half the population as potential moviegoers it would make one theater available for every 400 or so customers. Or does it? We are not very good at figures but, anyway, it is a lot of theaters.

To meet this constant demand for pictures and still more pictures, 519 feature-length films were produced in the United States, mostly in Hollywood, in 1935. The rest of the world, all put together, produced a few more, 680, of which 640 originated in England, France and Germany. Only a small number of the foreign-made pictures reach this country. With all the talk about how England was crowding Hollywood as a producing center the British turned out but 163 features.

Where did they come from, these 519 American-made biggies? Well, contrary to general belief, 244, or 47 per cent, were from stories written directly for the screen—original screen plays. From the stage came 41 plays and 142 novels were dramatized. Magazine stories, biographies and miscellaneous sources supplied the rest.

IN a roundabout sort of way it appears that Colleen Moore, once a darling of the cinemas who got out of the game while the getting was good with several million dollars to her credit, is about to become a circus queen or at least a circus impresario. When Colleen sent her famous doll's house on tour of the country to raise money for children's hospitals she engaged, as press agent for the trip, John Hewlett. Somewhere along the journey, according to reports, the boss and her publicity man began to mingle romance with business and now it is said that the dainty Colleen and Mr. Hewlett are soon to be married. In the meantime, having found promoting doll houses fairly tame work, Hewlett has gone in for wild animals, and has gotten together a collection of lions, tigers, trick dogs and things like that. He is having them trained here in Hollywood and is soon to take them out on the road as a circus act. Colleen, by the way, has deserted California. She sold most of her real estate holdings here and moved to New Jersey.

THINGS are looking up for the old line Shakespearean actors, as well as the opera stars. For years John Carradine was a Shakespearean actor in Hollywood with no place to act. Walking up and down the boulevard day after day, he stuck to all of the stage traditions of the tragedians and he came to be known by most everyone along the street as "Hamlet." When the movies became Shakespeare-conscious and looked around for actors who would recite the "soliloquy" Carradine applied at the casting office and was rewarded with a nice contract by 20th Century-Fox. He had visions of becoming a tragic star at last, but somehow the 20th Century-Fox outfit had no intention of going in for the highbrow drama. Carradine got his hope to become something of a tragedian all right, but was by way of playing beetle-browed fiend menaces in such pictures as "The Prisoner of Shark Island" "Under Two Flags", "Mary of Scotland" and "White Fang."

SEEN and Heard Along Hollywood's White Way—Ruth Chatterton is about to stage a film comeback with a leading part in "Girls' Dormitory," based on the Hungarian drama, "Matura" . . . Harry K. Morton, one time dancing comedian with St. Louis' Municipal Opera, is getting into pictures, and after several bit parts will have a better chance in "Love Begins at 20." . . . Rochelle Hudson and Dick Cromwell, who furnish the mush interest in W. C. Fields' "Poppy", are beginning to take the romance seriously. . . . And James Stuart and Wendy Barry need very little coaching to make their love scenes in "Speed" appear realistic . . . Claire Trevor, who has played the leads in 15 pictures in a row for 20th Century-Fox, has been rewarded with a new five-year contract. . . . Frank Fay is back from New York and will do all of his new broadcasting stunts from a Hollywood air station. . . . Stepin Fetchit, who went on a personal appearance tour following one of his bursts of colored temperament, has calmed down and will face the cameras again. . . . The expression "G-Men" is not a Government-owned title, it seems. Warners, who produced the first G-Man picture, are going to court to keep any one else from using it.

"Glamorous Night," "Kid Boots" Selected For Municipal Opera

IVOR NOVELLO'S "Glamorous Night," a "romantic play with music," which ran for six months last season in London and starred Mary Ellis, has been selected by Municipal Opera for an American premiere this summer, probably to close the season. With settings in England and a fictitious European kingdom, "Glamorous Night" is said to offer unusual scenic opportunities for outdoor production.

In the last week, Municipal Opera also acquired rights to the Ziegfeld show, "Kid Boots," which it has not staged before. "Kid Boots," which has music by Harry Tierney and book by William Anthony McGuire and Otto Harbach, was a vehicle for Eddie Cantor at the American Theater in 1926. With the announcement of "Glamorous Night" and "Kid Boots," only one Municipal Opera show remains to be named.

An Unmarried Mother's Successful FIGHT for HER SON

Complex Emotional Drama Involving a Maid Servant, a Prominent Physician, His Wife and a Baby That Everybody Wanted.

"Sonny Boy," the child who was the center and object of contention in the legal battle between Margaret Mann and Dr. Gordon Mordoff.

Dr. Gordon Mordoff and his foster children, Mary and Gordon Jr., and little "Gordon Mordoff III", who was taken away from him.

Margaret Mann, now Mrs. Fletcher, and her son.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

CHICAGO, Illinois.

A STRANGE law suit charged with cross-currents of the most potent conflicting motives ended the other day when Margaret Mann was awarded unconditional custody of her four-year-old son. The case was an interplay of complex desires—an unmarried mother's craving for domestic stability and for her child, a wife's struggles to recapture the affections of a husband vainly eager for a child and heir, a wistful orphan girl's love for the infant her foster parents were trying to keep from its rightful parent, an adopted son's insistence that he was the legitimate offspring of the man he has been taught to call his father. . . . Human loneliness and frustrated family affections were at the bottom of it all. They worked their way to the surface in curious and devious ways.

Even now, after an exhaustive review of the evidence has proved to the satisfaction of the Court that he had no reason to suppose the little boy belonged to him, there is good reason to believe that Dr. Gordon E. Mordoff had argued himself into a fixed conviction. He was not the only person who lost out in the decision. The set-up made it inevitable that several people should be deprived of their heart's desire. And the whole quarrel centered about a little boy whom everyone claimed by the strong prerogative of affection. Yet no one consulted him. He was merely a pawn in the contest, unable to express any wishes one way or the other.

Underlying the tense situation which became public when Margaret Mann's petition came up for a hearing was the unusual family history of the Mordoffs. The Doctor is a successful obstetrician in Wilmette, a North Shore suburb. His wife, whose death occurred in February, was according to evidence unhappy over the fact that they had no children their own. Apparently the desire to be a father and to have a son who should carry on his career was an obsessing motive with Dr. Mordoff even in the beginning of their married life; the fact that it was his professional duty to witness the miracle of birth every day may have intensified his sense of deprivation in having no child of his own. That is how the Mordoffs came to adopt a son in 1915 and name him Gordon Mordoff Jr. The boy was treated exactly as if he had been a real son—he contends he is—and wasn't told anything that would lead him to suspect he was not. Four years later they also adopted a daughter, whom they named Mary Margaret. She was a sensitive, wistful creature with black hair and shining blue eyes—an excellent pupil and an affectionate daughter. But Mary Margaret's case was unlike her foster brother's; she was informed of her true place in the family and she was never so near to her foster father's affections as the boy—who was intended to become a great physician and bear his supposed parent's name.

Gordon Mordoff Jr. grew up a pale, brown-eyed youth whose features, oddly enough, bore a strong resemblance to the Doctor's. He is still convinced that he is really the latter's son and neither he nor his father professes to believe the testimony of Mrs. Mordoff's sister, who said she was present when the boy was taken from a foundling hospital at the age of two days and formally adopted. The physical resemblance between the gray-haired, long-nosed physician and the foster son, who is now 21 years old, would enable them to pass readily as blood relatives.

IN HIS testimony regarding the second foster son—the one in question—Dr. Mordoff testified that he heard the announcement that his wife was having a child in January, 1932. She was 53 at the time. However, he maintains that they discussed her coming confinement that month and that the following autumn he made arrangements for the delivery, which was planned to take place at St. Francis Hospital in Evanston. According to the Doctor's account, he gave her $76 towards the immediate expenses of her confinement. In September she went instead to Minneapolis, where her sister, Mrs. Mary Richfield, was living. It wasn't until a day and a half after her departure, Dr. Mordoff has said, that he knew she had changed her plans. They weren't on very good terms even at that time. The baby was supposed to have been born on September 22, without the benefit of Dr. Mordoff's presence. The supposed mother returned to Chicago in October without the baby, explaining she had had to leave it in Minneapolis for further treatment. She seemed anxious to arouse her husband's interest in the child and told him the baby was like her first child, small and slender. The treatment he needed, she said, was similar to what had been administered to Gordon Jr.—injections of glucose and salines and so on—she went into details.

Whatever the truth about this episode may be, it is known that a baby boy was brought to the Mordoff home late in the autumn of 1932 and that the Doctor, who quickly conceived a strong affection for the child, named it Gordon E. Mordoff III. He had given up his ambitions for his first son, who showed no inclination to follow a medical career, and now placed his hopes and his name on the infant.

Whatever the depth of his affections for Gordon III (Sonny Boy was the baby's pet name) may have been, it didn't prevent the estrangement of husband and wife which Mrs. Mordoff had hoped to avoid when she brought the baby to their house. Their relations became more and more strained and distant. Finally when the child had grown into a pretty and winsome youngster, obviously very dear to the lonely physician, the relations between the foster parents became embittered and they separated. Mrs. Mordoff took the three children with her and moved to a flat. She had no resources of her own; her husband didn't seem to feel obligated to provide for her. By August, 1934, when she sued for separate maintenance, she had become a relief client. The suit was pending at the time of her death, after a several months' illness, last February.

This unhappy occurrence was all that was needed to bring the present difficulty to a head and cause the question of Sonny Boy's status and parentage to become the object of public curiosity. What made the case difficult and imponderable at first—so far as Judge Rudolph F. Desort, who tried it, was concerned—was the number of secret elements known only to one or two of the principals. The latter were unwilling to make public anything they could possibly keep private, and the whole case being distasteful to both plaintiff and defendant, the evidence had to be wrung out of them and a large number of witnesses had to be called to clarify conflicting contentions.

Judge Desort, having had jurisdiction in the separate maintenance suit and having assumed custody of the minor children as a preliminary to the trial of that suit, had an inkling of the difficulties in store.

On February 12, two days after Mrs. Mordoff's death, Miss Mann, deposing that she was the mother of the baby boy whom the Mordoffs had named Gordon Mordoff III, went to the Wilmette police, explained that Dr. Mordoff had refused to give up the child to her and charged him with kidnaping. The physician was arrested and released on $1000 bond. The following day his attorney went before Judge Desort and asked for a writ of attachment declaring the child a ward of the Superior Court. This was granted and Judge Desort then gave Dr. Mordoff temporary custody with orders to allow Miss Mann to see the child twice a week. The legal mesh became inextricably complicated at once, as Miss Mann's attorney filed an intervening petition to support Mrs. Mordoff's separate maintenance suit.

The hearing on this petition was the actual trial which determined Sonny Boy's custody. (The nickname is unavoidable, since Miss Mann insisted that the child's name was really Reginald Arthur Mann.) It was a decidedly theatrical hearing, opening with Dr. Mordoff's insistence that blood tests be made to establish his relationship to the boy.

MISS MANN'S story as brought out in direct testimony was as follows: The child was born to her in St. Vincent's Orphanage on May 19, 1932—several months before it was brought to the Mordoffs. Its father was a former employer of hers; she had worked in his North Side apartment as a maid while he was legally separated from his wife. Subsequently, she testified, he had become happily marired. She persisted in refusing to identify him by name.

Miss Mann said she had tried to persuade her mother to take the child in and had been refused permission even to bring it into her home. Later it became undernourished and had to be placed in a hospital for treatment. When the baby had recovered she decided that she would have to place it in a foster home until she could provide it with a home of her own. Such an arrangement is frequently made by bureaus caring for orphans and foundlings. Two foster homes were provided for her prior to her placing the child with Mrs. Mordoff, whom she met through an advertisement. She contends that that arrangement was merely temporary. She undertook to pay $5 a week for the child's care and it was agreed that she was to have the child with her twice a week. This testimony was confirmed by Miss Mann's mistress, Mrs. Mortimer Chambers of Evanston, who said that the baby was frequently brought to her house for visits. Miss Mann did not see Dr. Mordoff until January 29, 1933, when she was called to the Mordoff's house by Mrs. Mordoff. The baby had taken sick and its foster mother insisted that it be taken to a hospital immediately. The Doctor stubbornly refused to allow this and a bitter quarrel ensued. Sergeant John Schafgen of the Wilmette Police Department was called in to settle the dispute and was able to testify that in his presence Dr. Mordoff refused to allow Miss Edna Ode, a nurse who was living at the Mordoffs', to take the child away. The Sergeant quoted Dr. Mordoff as saying: "She can't. That's my baby and I won't allow it." Whereupon Mrs. Mordoff replied: "You can't stop her. The baby doesn't belong to you, it belongs to Margaret. Our baby is down home." This testimony, while it sounded a little mad and confused the issue by introducing another baby, no proof of whose existence could be adduced from any other testimony, indicated, at least, that Dr. Mordoff must have had some reason to suspect that the child which was brought to his house when it was half a year old was not his own or his wife's.

When the child was a year old, Miss Mann continued in her testimony, Mrs. Mordoff begged her to allow them to keep it longer, saying that she hoped its influence would prevent the break-up of her marriage. Miss Mann answered that she herself was planning to be married and that she intended to take back the child as soon as she had a home for it. Meanwhile she agreed to leave matters as they were. Her engagement was broken off and a second engagement was also broken off. The prospect of settling down to the domestic life she hoped for seemed very forlorn and far-distant.

There was all sorts of evidence to prove that the child Dr. Mordoff had named for himself was really Miss Mann's. Dr. Nichamin, who had delivered her baby and later cared for him at the County Hospital when he suffered from malnutrition, identified scars that had resulted from blood transfusions and one left by an abscess on the scalp. Miss Bernadine Healy, a social worker attached to the orphanage where the baby's birth had taken place, brought in records to show the birth date and identity. The records gave its name as Reginald Arthur Mann. The anesthetist who participated in the delivery remembered a birth mark on the child's neck; when she had finished testifying to that effect, she walked over to the child, sitting on its foster father's lap, undid its shirt and pointed out the mark. This anesthetist, Miss Bonnie Hanner, added she had become rather well acquainted with the mother and had paid her several visits while she was confined.

"She appeared to be a much higher type of girl than we usually had at the orphanage," the witness added. "I was interested in her case. She told us she was using her real name at the orphanage so she wouldn't have any trouble keeping her baby."

Supporting testimony was offered by the late Mrs. Mordoff's brother and sister. The latter said that Mrs. Mordoff had been asking her to help find a baby for adoption since 1931, saying she hoped a child would enable her to regain the Doctor's affections. A month after Sonny was taken in Mrs. Mordoff was advertising for another baby, dreading the time when she would have to give this one up.

ELEMENTS of pathos and eccentricity crowded the case and the courtroom was jammed during the hearing. Not the least touching was the testimony of the two older children. Gordon said he had gone to Minneapolis with his mother in 1932 and was certain she had given birth to a child—because she was sick on the trip. He was stanchly deaf to intimations that he was not the child of Dr. and Mrs. Mordoff, and desperately loyal to his "father."

The girl, on the other hand, said her foster father detested her for having sided with his wife during their estrangement. Mary Margaret said she had placed all her affections on the baby. "He's the only person in the world I love now," she whispered.

The defense attorney began a line of insinuating questions intended to show that Miss Mann was morally unfit to be a mother. He seemed to be on the point of proving that she had been having illicit relations with a young mechanic when she played her trump card—a marriage license. The mechanic, her husband, was Ray Alfred Fletcher, and the next day he appeared in court. He told the Court he made $30 a week and was delighted at the prospect of becoming a step-father.

Almost immediately afterwards Judge Desort declared Reginald Arthur Mann, otherwise known as Sonny Boy, Mrs. Ray Fletcher's child. He granted her custody as soon as she could show that she was able to provide him with a decent home. She started hunting for an apartment as soon as she left the courtroom, found one almost immediately and gave up the flat in which she and her husband had begun their married life. The following day Judge Desort received a signed stipulation from Dr. Mordoff relinquishing custody of the child. Sonny Boy was transferred to his mother's care a day later.

Newest Plans for Restoring the Famous CHURCH of the HOLY SEPULCHRE

British Government Approves Plans for Altering and Rebuilding the Holiest of All Christian Shrines Even Though Certain Archeologists Contend That It Does Not Enclose the Tomb of Jesus Christ.

The Church of the Holy Sepulchre, showing the central dome which is believed to be in danger of collapse.

IN ALL the Christian world there is no church as famous or as deeply steeped in sacred associations as the Church of the Holy Sepulchre in Jerusalem. This church is reputed to enclose within its ancient walls both the Mount of Cavalry and the tomb wherein was laid the crucified body of Christ. From the time of Constantine the Great, through the heroic era of the Crusades and down to the present day, it has been the most hallowed shrine in Christendom.

And this church, incredibly ancient and weakened by the decay and accidents of centuries, is now close to collapse.

So greatly have the walls and supports of the famous structure been weakened that British authorities in Palestine have for some time feared that the church might fall down. A slight earthquake would almost unquestionably bring disaster; failing that, the natural processes of decay may themselves bring the building down in ruins.

To guard against this danger, elaborate plans for rebuilding the great shrine have been been drawn up.

Not only do they call for a strengthening of walls and supports so as to end the danger of collapse; they would also restore the building to its original form, as far as that can be done, and give it in the twentieth century the guise it bore hundreds of years ago.

These plans are the work of William Harvey, prominent London architect.

Approximately a year ago the weakened condition of the church was brought to the attention of the British authority in charge of the Palestine mandate. The government at London sent Harvey to the scene, instructing him to make a complete examination of the church, report on its condition and suggest what could be done to remedy matters.

Harvey's report is extensive. It has already received the approval of the British Government, and the issue is now pending before the government of Palestine. In consultation upon it are the religious bodies concerned with the church, including representatives of the Armenian, Roman Catholic, Greek Orthodox, Abyssinian, Coptic and Jacobite churches.

Before agreement can be reached, extended discussion may be necessary. The Church of the Holy Sepulchre is really a collection of buildings rather than one building, and various units are owned by different religious bodies. In times past it has occasionally proved hard to get all of the bodies involved to agree; should that be the case now the needed repairs may be considerably delayed—with possibly disastrous results.

In 1927 Palestine was jarred by an earthquake. This did a good deal of damage to the great central dome of the church, driving a fracture through it. Harvey found, however, that the weakness of the structure as a whole is such that it would be hard to repair the dome without also repairing the walls on which it rests.

Along with this rebuilding, Harvey has urged that extensive alterations be performed to make the famous building look as it used to look centuries ago. This would involve a great deal more rebuilding than the mere work of repair.

For example: Harvey would have all plaster work stripped from the walls. He would have nine windows, now either completely or partly blocked by structures of the Abyssinian and Coptic monasteries, thrown open once more. He would reopen the eastern main doorway, long blocked off, so as to present a clear approach to the double stairway which leads to Calvary.

A great number of modern walls, doorways, vaults, pillars and partitions would also be torn down. One structure, known as the Chapel of the Franks, would be restored to its original function, which was that of porch to the rock of Calvary. Other ancient doors long since blocked up would be reopened.

Nor is that all. A considerable part of the ancient church no longer exists. Harvey urges that it be reconstructed, as far as possible, in line with it original design.

This would be a difficult bit of work. Ancient foundation walls would have to be traced, age-old drawings would have to be studied faithfully, and fragments of the old church which have been removed to other sites would have to be brought back or copied.

Strangely enough, considering the tremendous veneration which the building enjoys, its early history is shrouded in a seemingly impenetrable mystery. It is not even absolutely certain that the hallowed spots it encloses are really the Calvary and the tomb of the Gospel story. Indeed, there are learned archeologists who deny flatly that either site is anywhere near the site of the Church of the Holy Sepulchre.

One difficulty is that the outlines of Jerusalem itself have changed vastly through the years.

Today, for example, the Church of the Holy Sepulchre is near the center of the city. To anyone familiar with the gospel story this would seem to make it impossible for either Calvary or the tomb to be situated within its walls.

However, Jerusalem's city limits have moved with the years. Twenty centuries ago the southern walls were much farther south than they are now; and the location of the northern walls in the time of Christ is not known at all. Some archeologists have traced a line for these northern walls which leaves the church outside of the boundaries of ancient Jerusalem, and in the absence of definite knowledge their theory is as good as any.

Christian literature during the first three centuries of church history makes no mention of the tomb. The early Christians about Jerusalem unquestionably venerated the site; nevertheless, the turbulent conditions there during the first century A. D. must have made it extremely hard for an authentic tradition as to the tomb's location to be handed down.

IN THE year 70 A. D., for instance, the Roman army under Titus captured and sacked Jerusalem, killign a huge number of the inhabitants and destroying much of the walls and buildings. Some years later, following a rebellion, the Romans sacked the city with even greater thoroughness.

In 135 A. D. the Emperor Hadrian rebuilt Jerusalem. The historian Eusebius states that Hadrian built a temple to Aphrodite over the tomb. It seems to be an established fact that in 325 A. D., when the ruins of this pagan temple were torn down, an ancient Jewish tomb was found beneath.

This tomb was immediately proclaimed the tomb wherein Christ had lain. Surrounding rock was cut away, and a circular building was erected around the place. And it is indisputable that the tomb shown today to worshipers in the Church of the Holy Sepulchre is the one which was found beneath the temple of Aphrodite. The only question about the genuineness of the site, therefore, arises from the question whether Eusebius was correct in stating that Hadrian actually built his temple over the tomb of Joseph of Arimathea.

Today a circular building surrounds the little Greek chapel which covers the tomb. It is agreed that this is in the position of the circular structure which was erected in 325 A. D.

However that may be, Biblical students have at various times named half a dozen different spots around Jerusalem as sites of the tomb and the rock of Calvary.

One, for instance, has been fixed west of the Jaffa gate; another south of the Zion gate; another, east of St. Stephen's gate. Still another would have Calvary situated near Jeremiah's Grotto, outside the Damascus gate.

Here, indeed, there is a rocky outcropping of ground which seems to fit in admirably with the Biblical story. However, archeologists point out that to accept this hillock as Calvary is to assume that neither the hillock nor the topography of the adjacent portion of the city itself has suffered any change in the last 2000 years. The weight of evidence is against such assumption.

The Country Preacher Who Eloped With His Wife's Sister and Turned Holdup Man

What Happened When Perry Griffin "Slipped Away From the Lord" and Started His 3000-Mile Flight From the Law.

"Griffin slipped quickly into the back seat of the car."

Perry E. Griffin and Madge Copeland.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

HARRISONVILLE, Missouri.

"VANITY of vanities, saith the Preacher; all is vanity."—That has been the substance, if not the text, of most of Perry Griffin's preaching since he stopped being pastor of Oak Grove Baptist Church in Adonis and ran away with his wife's sister, Madge. Today he is in jail here with plenty of time to muse on the pessimism of Ecclesiastes. He is altogether one of the most miserable and befuddled young men in Cass County, not at all sure what happened to him or why, not knowing what force within himself drew him suddenly away from the sawdust trail to the primrose path that leads, he feels pretty sure, to his own damnation. ("Dead flies cause the ointment of the apothecary to send forth a stinking savour; so doth a little folly him that is in reputation for wisdom and honour.")

Perry Eugene Griffin agrees with path was a concrete highway 3000 miles long, paved with bad intentions and interrupted by a couple of holdups and a kidnaping. He must have known, did know in fact, that it led very expeditiously to jail, possibly to the gallows. He is a simple man with simple common sense. He had a simple faith until he lost it. He thought he was endowed with a divine mission to preach the gospel according to his lights. In spite of poverty and the need to support his wife and children he struggled hard to fulfill himself. Then suddenly he found his faith and his sense of duty had vanished and he became reckless of fear or consequences. What force it was that moved him he doesn't know. He is a simple man and may never have heard of Sigmund Freud. Libido isn't in his vocabulary; if it were he would probably call it a work of Satan. If wiser men have a better explanation for his conduct—"what hath the wise more than the fool? what hath the poor that knoweth to walk before the living?"

Perry Eugene Griffin agrees with the pessimist that much study is a weariness of the flesh. "Trust in the Lord," he says bitterly. "That's what I used to preach. That's what I did. That's why I don't believe in any more than a grade school education, because too much education makes you doubt trusting the Lord for everything." Perry Eugene was a poor farm boy down in Polk County and when he grew up he went away and worked on Sherman Copeland's place near Creston, Iowa—plowing the rich bottom lands and planting the soil. The laborer is worthy of his hire and Griffin was found worthy of the hand of one of his employer's three daughters. He married her a few years ago and gave her three children in rapid succession. On Sundays he would go off to Adonis, 12 miles north of Bolivar, Missouri, to preach. His congregation trusted him and listened attentively as he told them their simple duty and of God's wrath and His kindness.

"I got along pretty well for a year or two," he says, "making money on the farm, preaching on Sundays. But I kept slipping away from just trusting the Lord. I began to think more of money, of the world and the pleasures of it. I just stopped praying, brother. If I hadn't I might not be in the fix I'm in today. I used to kneel down regular, two times a day, no matter what I was doing. But I wandered away from the Lord. And the farther away I went the more misery I got into."

Mrs. Griffin had some clearer notions about it. She could see what was happening to her husband better than he could see for himself. She knew that he wasn't working enough, that there wasn't enough for him to do. She saw him with her younger sister and sensed, perhaps, the possible jealousy in Madge's heart. Madge wasn't married and both her sisters had husbands. "Maybe," Mrs. Griffin says, "being out of work, having to live with my folks, got to be more than he could stand."

About the middle of last month Madge Copeland and the young parson talked over the hopelessness of their lot and decided to run away together. Griffin doesn't blame her for what happened. "I know we couldn't go far," he says, "or do anything without being caught up with. I told Madge all about what it would be like before we left. But she was willing and I was willing and we just determined to go as far as we could and let everything go. And nothing mattered." Seeing Madge one has a difficult time reconstructing the scene or accounting for her fatal fascination. She doesn't exactly fit the character of a siren.

THEY set out on their curious odyssey with only a few dollars between them, walking down the highway into Western Missouri. The first night they slept at St. Joseph, whither they had succeeded in getting a lift. The following day, footsore and unrefreshed, they headed for Harrisonville, wondering how they could get their next night's lodging, trying vainly to laugh at the menaces of a tomorrow that was frightfully near. By the time they had reached Harrisonville they had decided on a desperate course.

"I knew it was against the Lord. You know I believe in Him. I know Madge believed in Him. We had to be crazy." They didn't turn back. They walked on into Harrisonville at about 11 o'clock in the evening when the town was quiet. Madge sat down in a filling station outside the town to wait for him. Perry walked into the square. There was a light in the corner drug store. In front of it was a brand new Ford coach, drawn up to the curb with a young man at the wheel. Frightened to death, but controlled by a determination that was blinding, Griffin slipped quickly into the back seat of the car and grimly ordered the young man to start off.

The driver, LeRoy Ullery, is a student at Missouri Valley College in Marshall. Taken completely off his guard, thinking the holdup man was armed, he did as he was ordered. The car didn't belong to him. It was Will Hargus's and Will, who is the Cass County prosecuting attorney, was his friend. They picked up Madge at the filling station where she was waiting and started off over the hills. Ullery was silent and frightened, wondering whether Will Hargus would suspect what had happened, whether there would be a pursuit, how the man behind him intended to get rid of him. As they approached the lights of Butler, 30 miles south of Harrisonville, a plan began to form in Ullery's mind.

He told Griffin the car was low on oil, that they would have to stop at a gas station and get it serviced. Perry agreed and didn't even say anything when Ullery took out the ignition key and got out to raise the hood. Had he been a more talented criminal he might have suspected something as Ullery bent over the motor beside the station attendant, and whispered a few words to him. That moment was Ullery's cue to make a dash into the shadows; he had the key in his pocket; Griffin couldn't have gone far. Instead the student climbed back into the driver's seat and set off again. By the time the station attendant could get up the Butler police force, the new Ford was racing off to the south.

Perry and Madge let Ullery be their chauffeur until they reached Joplin. Just outside the city they put him out. They proceeded to Oklahoma on their mad honeymoon. At Vinita Griffin held up a filling station for traveling expenses; only got $6. They drove on through Oklahoma, back east to Arkansas, through Arkansas. At Little

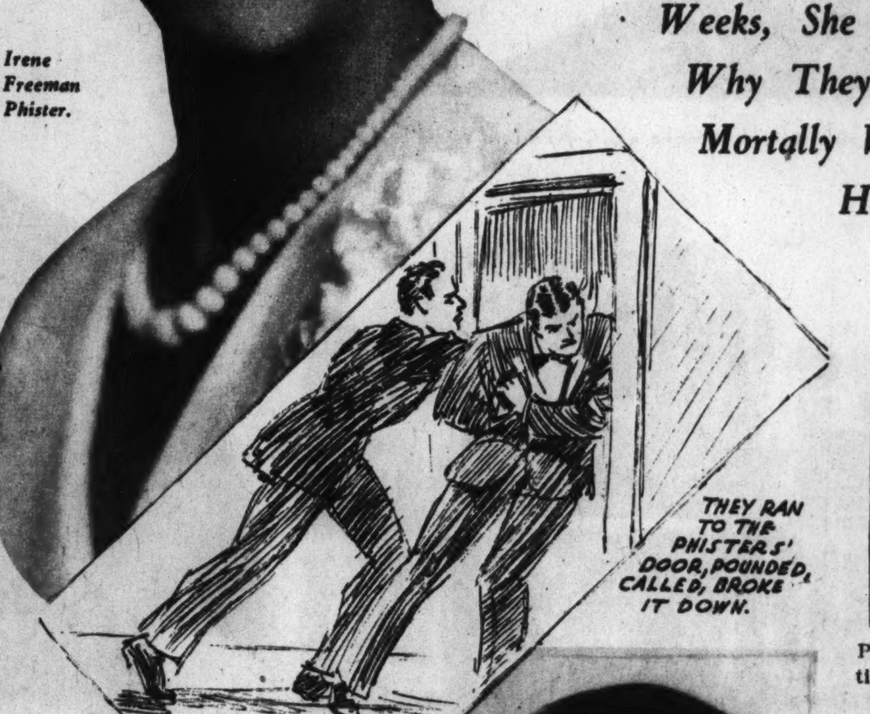
DEATH SEALS the STUDENT'S TRAGEDY in MYSTERY

Though the Wife of Warren Thornton Phister, of the University of Missouri, Survived Her Husband Five Weeks, She Never Explained Why They Were Found Mortally Wounded in Their Hotel Room.

Irene Freeman Phister.



THEY RAN TO THE PHISTERS' DOOR, POUNDED, CALLED, BROKE IT DOWN.

Warren Thornton Phister.

COLUMBIA, Missouri.

DEATH, which tells no secrets, has closed the ultimate door on the shattered idyll of Warren Thornton Phister and his English wife, an idyll which began in a whirlwind courtship four years ago in Paris and ended here on St. Valentine's day in violence.

Mortally wounded, bidding affectionate farewells, they were taken to Boone County Hospital from a hotel room when other guests, hearing shots, had broken down the door. Phister, 26 years old, died in a few hours of a bullet wound in the abdomen. He gave no explanation of the tragedy. Lingering for five weeks with a gunshot wound in the chest, Mrs. Irene Freeman Phister, 28, added not a word to clarify the circumstances beyond the admission that she had shot herself. She stopped short of saying who fired the shot which killed her husband. And with her death, on March 20, the mystery that shrouded their last hours together has become inscrutable.

Such fragmentary accounts as could be drawn from her led only to confusion. She mentioned financial difficulty; but the young man's father, L. H. Phister, head of a Kansas City insurance company, says they were well provided for. Police at first found some suggestion of a "suicide pact," but against that theory stands the fact that Phister was engrossed with plans for a year ahead. His parents paint a convincing picture of an emotional explosion, a destructive flare-up of a love that was too fierce and too possessive. But much of the picture was speculative, and the fact remains that since death has sealed Mrs. Phister's lips none will ever truly know the forces that wantonly destroyed them after their romantic beginning, when Thornton Phister was a student tourist and Irene Freeman a Government clerk in Paris.

That was in 1931. Both were alone. Phister was on a world cruise after two years in the University of Michigan. Miss Freeman's father, a British army captain, had been killed in the World War; her mother lived in London. Five days after they met, Phister cabled to his parents for permission to marry.

The reply suggested delay, but the suggestion was not followed. They were married at Miss Freeman's home in London, and continued on the cruise. At Hongkong they found Mrs. Phister would encounter difficulties in entering the United States, but these were met and in time the couple reached Kansas City to receive the traditional blessing.

Young Phister, however, as his father explained, was determined to make his own way. He worked for a while in Kansas City and then spent a year in the West, most of it as an employe of a pulp mill in Washington State. And on all his wanderings—this, it now seems, may have been significant in the eventual tragedy—she went with him.

Last winter they returned to Missouri and Phister enrolled as a junior in the College of Agriculture to fit himself for the management of the Phister farm near Drexel, Cass County. They came to Columbia in January and took a room at a hotel. Few residents of the Middle West will fail to recall that the weather was bitter for those weeks before St. Valentine's day; the outdoors was hardly inviting, even for a couple used to strolling together.

PHISTER was away in classes a great deal; occupied with new acquaintances, new experiences and the adjustments of getting back to college after several years; engrossed with new ideas for the scientific farm management which was to become his career. Yet he and his wife were much together.

So it was with surprise, as well as the usual interest in such affairs at residential hotels, that other guests heard sounds of quarreling from the Phister's room on the night of February 13. At 6 o'clock in the morning of St. Valentine's day they heard a scream—the scream of a woman inarticulate with emotion—and then two shots. They ran to the Phister's door, pounded, called, broke it down.

Phister, still conscious, lay on his bed, and Mrs. Phister lay between the beds on the floor. Two feet from her outstretched right hand was a .44-caliber revolver.

As he was carried from the room, he threw a kiss at her and tried to smile.

"Oh, my darling, I'm so sorry," she cried. "Forgive me. Forgive me."

At the hospital she rallied after blood transfusions, but her husband

SKETCHES FROM LIFE

High Lights on Unusual Personalities

SADAKICHI HARTMANN
JOHN D. CLARK

A German-Japanese Artist—"Half-God, Half-Hooligan"

SAN FRANCISCO, California.

LATE last summer an enameled red and cream-colored bread-box, addressed to the librarian and containing a 250,000-word manuscript typewritten on tablet paper, arrived at the Library Company of Philadelphia, America's oldest circulating library. The work, entitled "Esthetic Verities," and divided into seventeen chapters, had been heralded for months beforehand by letters from the author, who lives in Banning, California.

He had written: "There is no chance for publication or broadcast distribution. Publishers and patrons have been appealed to, but failed to come to the rescue. I am donating the manuscript to the Library where I made my first studies towards a knowledge of art and had my first visions, dreams that cannot come true in a period of economic disorder and mechanization of human activities. . . . I have worked steadily, day by day until recently, since August, 1927. It is a review of the evolution of esthetic thought pertaining to all arts through the ages, also of numerous individual endeavors from Asyrian murals to modern motion color experiments, from ancient Greek murals to modern 'taking music out of the air,' with due attention to scientific theories explaining the mechanism of sense perception."

When the bread-box made its appearance, the librarian, Austin Gray, an English scholar interested particularly in Elizabethan literature, opened it and read one chapter. Then he went on his vacation, and after he returned, he forgot about it altogether. The bread-box rested in the safe. Then one day recently a telegram arrived from the author's daughter in New York, asking Austin Gray whether the library had decided to accept the manuscript. Mr. Gray was puzzled. He did not understand the urgency. He reopened the bread-box, glanced at the chapter headings, which include "The Origin of Art," "Learning the Language of Sense Perception," "Ye, Art Critics," "How Poe Wrote the Raven" (chemical explanation), "How Blake Drew Elisha" (electromagnetic explanation), and "Art Is By the Few for the Few." He decided to accept the manuscript for storage in the Library Company's archives.

BUT Mr. Gray is still puzzled as to why the author donated his work to this particular library and why there should be excitement about the manuscript. The reasons are many, but most important of all is the compelling personality of the author, Sadakichi Hartmann, who has been labeled by certain critics as the most mysterious personality in American letters, an esoteric, an aesthete, and a dreamer; who has been labeled by himself a visionary, an artist, a writer, an actor, a dancer, an art expert, a compiler, a journalist, a press agent, a critic, and a lecturer; who has spent his long life building a store of knowledge in the arts, seeking it in the Orient as well as in the Occident, in the classics as well as in the modern, in the scientific as well as in the visionary.

Born in Nagasaki, Japan, in 1867, Sadakichi Hartmann derives his first name from his Japanese mother, Osadda, whose father was a ronin or roving soldier of old Japan; he derives his scientific bent from his father, Oscar Hartmann, who was a burgomaster of Mecklenburg. The Hartmanns were a wealthy patrician German family and Sadakichi's uncle, Ernst Hartmann, was the head of one of the biggest coffee firms of Europe in the last century, Hartmann, White, Goldenberg and Company, with offices in London, Havre, Hamburg and Port-au-Prince.

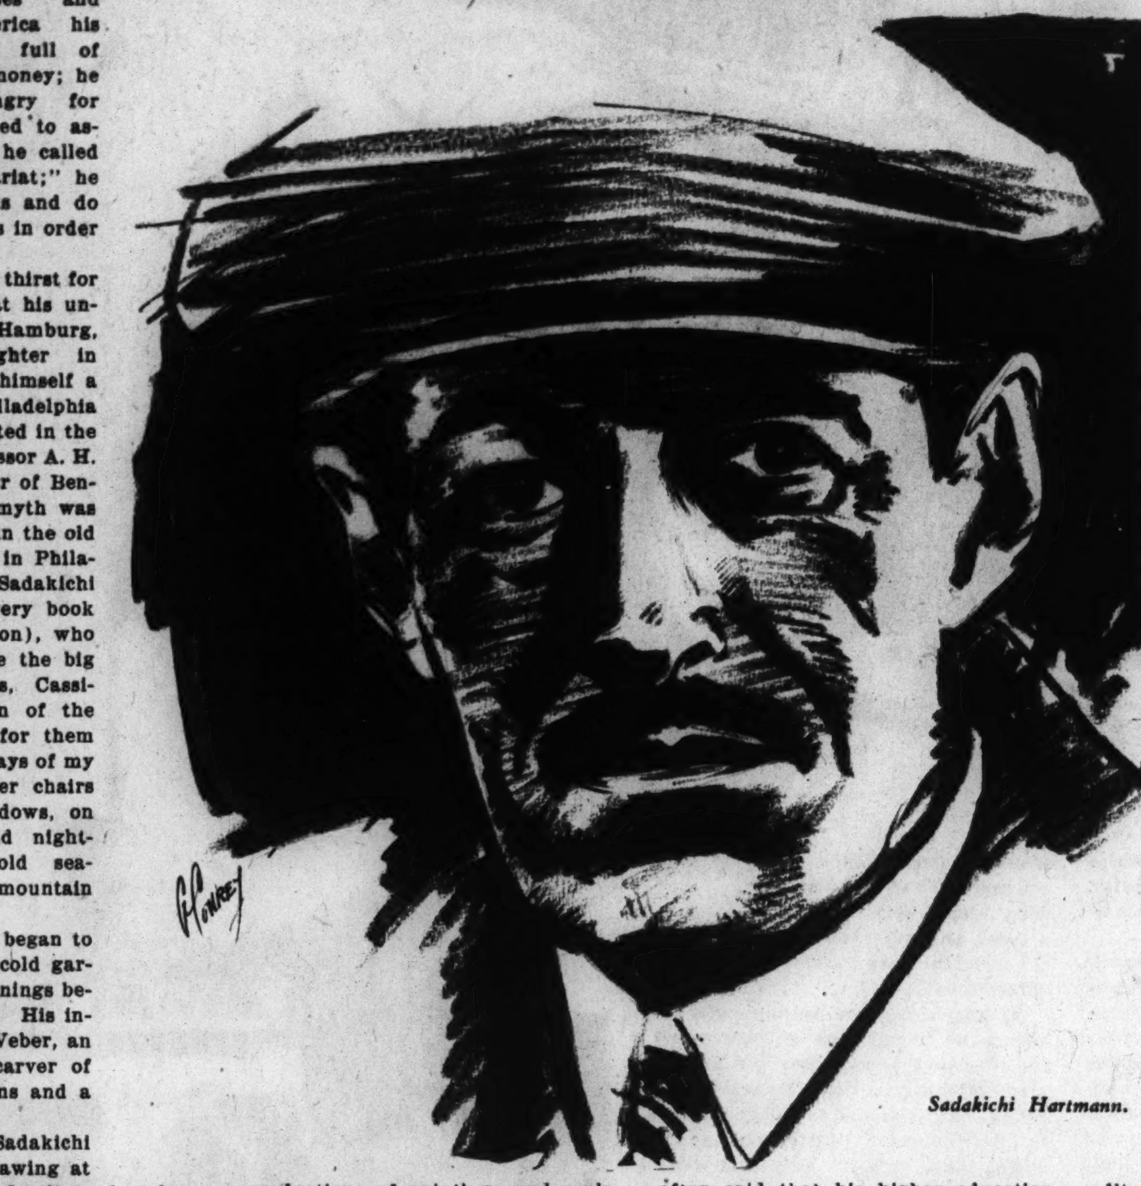
Educated in Hamburg and Kiel, Germany, by private tutors from 1873 to 1881, young Sadakichi's first esthetic emotions came to him when as a boy of 10 he was examining the paintings and objets d'art which belonged to his Uncle Ernst who lived the life of a rich business man and art patron, traveling between Germany, Italy and Paris.

But a life of material ease and formal education was not in the stars for this strange youth who later showed himself capable of writing for 17 hours at a stretch, then dancing a mad solo dance in a public ballroom to the tune of the "Blue Danube," and finally retiring to a sick bed. Invalidism consumed practically half of Hartmann's long life; today he spends at least half of every week in bed. And what pain this physical weakness caused the artist can be seen by the title of one of his privately-published books, "My Crucifixion: Forty Years of Asthma," and by his statement 10 years ago: "My ailments are exceeded only by my debts."

Sadakichi's Japanese mother died when he was a boy; she left him a love for Japanese poetry and a curiosity about all Oriental culture. Sadakichi's father had Spartan ideas about rearing his son and sent the lad, at the age of 14, to America, where he landed with only $3 in his pocket. In the New World, Sadakichi received a great many shocks. Back in Germany he had been carefree and well-dressed, endowed with plenty of pocket money, reared on good food, used to the society of well-to-do children and waited upon by servants, governesses and tutors. In America his shoes were soon full of holes; he had no money; he often went hungry for days; he was forced to associate with what he called the "crude proletariat;" he had to run errands and do odd distasteful jobs in order to exist.

Nevertheless, his thirst for learning, kindled at his uncle's home in Hamburg, flamed even brighter in America. He got himself a small job in Philadelphia and became interested in the stars through Professor A. H. Smyth, a biographer of Benjamin Franklin (Smyth was then a night clerk in the old Mercantile Library in Philadelphia where Sadakichi came to devour every book he laid his hands on), who "pointed out to me the big square of Pegasus, Cassiopeia and the sign of the Lion. I searched for them during the roving days of my youth, from steamer chairs and rail-coach windows, on evening strolls and nightly rambles, in old seatowns and mountain villages."

At 15, Sadakichi began to learn to draw in a cold garret in the early mornings before going to work. His instructor was Carl Weber, an old German wood-carver of tobacco store Indians and a landscape painter.



Sadakichi Hartmann.

In the evenings Sadakichi took a course in drawing at the Spring Garden Institute, but because he won only second prize, he quit. In later years he studied at the New York School of Artists and Artisans.

In the libraries of Philadelphia, Sadakichi Hartmann read all the classic masterpieces, in French, in English and in German. He pawned his coat to buy tickets for the theater and the opera. He studied more than 50,000 reproductions of paintings and sculpture. When Hartmann was 17, he got the money for a trip to the cultural centers of Europe. Whether this came straight from his father or through an inheritance, Hartmann has never explained. Whichever way it was, he went to London, Brussels, Munich, Berlin and Paris to carry on his studies in museums and libraries; he never attended any university and often said that his higher education consisted of listening to a few lectures on surgery at the University of Pennsylvania and Johns Hopkins.

But he was always studying and reading and observing. In Munich he did take some lessons in stage machinery with Lautenschalaeger at the Royal Theater and there he became a regular member of the intelligentsia group which included the handsome poet, Paul Heyse, the writer Bjornson, the painter Lenbach, and the critic, Professor Michael Bernays, who frequented a certain chosen beer garden.

In 1887 Hartmann returned to America. This time he went to Boston where "I was busy with Ibsen and discussing the ideals of the dance with Isadora Duncan when William James was only an assistant professor of psychology at Cambridge, entirely unknown, and Katherine Beveridge was entertaining in a studio atmosphere sick with sex such remarkable personalties as Stanford White, Richard Harding Davis, Buffalo Bill and the sculptor Noble." That year Hartmann wrote the first of his four dramatic poems about the four great primal religions. This first was called "Jesus Christ" and it so shocked and horrified Boston when he recited it in his fantastic, weird, compelling manner that he was arrested and put in city prison. There he remained for four days until a coterie of writers, artists and musicians effected his release. The complaint against the drama was that it was blasphemous and subversive, particularly in the scene between Christ and Mary Magdalen. It was not until six years later that Hartmann was able to have the drama published, and then, like the majority of his works, in an author's limited edition privately printed. Nevertheless, Hartmann did have his three other religious dramas published and called them "Mohammed," "Buddha," and "Confucius."

Back in New York again in 1891 Hartmann married Elizabeth Blanche Walsh and the next year he was over in Paris again, a part of the real Bohemian Quarter. From 1893 to 1894 he edited "The Art Critic" and was associated with the most eminent artists of the time, A. St. Gaudens, Winslow Homer, and George G. Barnard.

From then on, Hartmann and his wife and children led an uneven sort of existence. There were periods of starvation in the garrets of Greenwich Village, New York, and the Latin Quarter of Paris; there were nights of exaltation when the creative fire consumed Hartmann and he captivated his listeners with his mystic personality; there were many moments of reason in which Hartmann wrote technical articles, many under the nomme de plume of Sidney Allan, on the problems of commercial photography for such publications as the Photo Era, the Architectural Record, the International Studio and Cosmopolitan. In 1902 he visited Philadelphia and wrote program notes for the Philharmonic orchestra.

He has appeared several times in St. Louis. At first, in 1906, he was welcomed by the Bohemian coterie and entertained by the late J. C. Strauss at his famous rendezvous, The Growler. William Marion Reedy published one of his stories in Reedy's Mirror. A later visit took place in 1914, when Hartmann found an art patron in Charles R. Meston. A school for art appreciation which he founded that time failed dismally and he went away, only to return several months later shouting that he would publicly denounce members of the art colony here unless they would come forward and pay his debts.

THEY didn't and he tried vainly to publish a voluminous diatribe entitled, "Why Sadakichi Hartmann Left St. Louis, or The St. Louis Art Situation." In it he described the Artists' Guild as being exclusive to keep from being ridiculous; the members, he said, had nothing to do save "spin endless strings of talk into a cocoon of their own." He was successful in getting attention with his fanastic and somewhat terrifying dances, but when he finally left in 1915, his passing went unheralded and unmourned.

Of him a critic years ago wrote that Hartmann was the only American combining the poetic and eccentric qualities of the French poets, Verlaine and Baudelaire. He said that when Hartmann read Poe's poems aloud, with gestures and dance steps, clad in black dress clothes, with a face as pale as a spectre, women shrieked and fainted. When Hartmann did the same for his own "Buddha," he was like an apparition, a starved dreamer. As late as 1926 Benjamin de Casseres wrote of Hartmann in the American Mercury: "Superman-bum. Half-God, half-hooligan; all artist. Anarch, sadist, satyr. Sublime, ridiculous, impossible. A colossal ironist, a suave pessimist, a Dionysiac wobbly . . . grotesque, obscene, maniacal dances . . . Hartmann was born out of his age. He was a man who belonged in Cellini's gang or with the rowdy geniuses of the Mermaid tavern."

From 1920 to 1927 Hartmann lived mostly in New York. In 1927 he moved to California, where he now lives.

Not only did he recite in his fantastic way, but he also thought of—and still hopes for—a new art through the sense of smell. The only contribution of any one else which he said he could find in this field was a book called "The Art of Perfumery" by a French chemist, Dr. Septimus Piesse, who invented an "Octophone" or scale of 46 odors, of which pungent civet corresponded to the high C on the piano and patchouli to the low E in the base.

USING Dr. Piesse's scale for a basis, Hartmann developed one of his own, in which the first group of sweet or fragrant smells was to be signified by violet, the second of pungent or aromatic smells by cinnamon, the third of clear or refreshing smells by verbena, the fourth of fugitive or etheral smells by lilac, and the fifth of strong or stimulating smells by mint. He made an apparatus for wafting the smells through an audience. On November 30, 1902, at the New York Theater in New York, he gave a performance of what he called "A Symphony of Perfumes." It took 16 minutes and was supposed to describe, with the aid of a recitation by Hartmann, "A Trip to Japan." He used white roses for leaving New York City, the scent of red roses for Provence, the scent of verbena for Italy, that of cedarwood for India, and that of sandalwood and saki for Japan.

The symphony was a complete failure; the audience laughed instead of gaining an esthetic experience. But Hartmann, far from discouraged, attributed his failure to the "low intelligence of the mob," one of his oft-recurring themes. To this day he thinks that the sense of smell can be used as the foundation for a new art. He suggests that the death of Selica in the last act of the opera, "L'Africana," would be greatly enhanced by a flood of Oriental perfume in the audience, that the guillotine scene in "Madame du Barry" would be aided by the smell of violet, and that it would be pleasant to have perfmue jump out of the revolving disk while one is listening to a record of MacDowell's "Wild Rose." In the sense of taste, Hartmann sees no possibility for art development because he feels that the flow of saliva interferes with

Left a Successful Industrial Career to Become a Teacher

OMAHA, Nebraska.

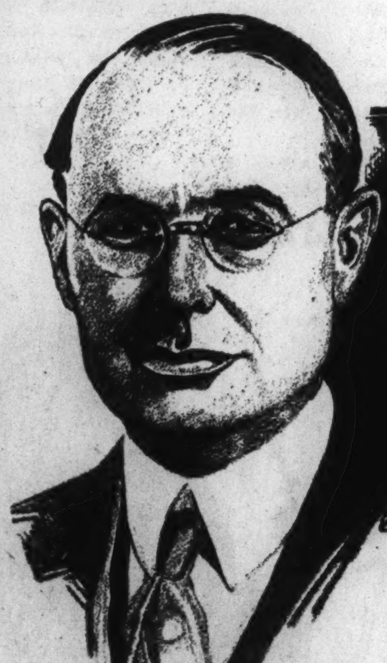
IN 1928, John D. Clark was "sitting on top of the world." He was a vice-president of Standard Oil of Indiana, married and the father of two sons, and independently wealthy. Sometimes he was referred to as a "millinaire oil man."

But the depression troubles he foresaw for the oil industry were displeasing to him, so he quit rather than subject himself to the worry and the painful duty of firing or cutting the pay of loyal employes. He might have retired, or he might have returned to the practice of law (he had advanced to his Standard Oil post from general counsel of the Midwest Refining Company), but John Clark had other plans.

Moving his family to Baltimore, he became a graduate student of economics at John Hopkins University. As a young man he had gone to Harvard and later was graduated from the University of Nebraska College of Law in 1905. In 1931, Successful Businessman Clark was a Doctor of Philosophy. Federal regulation of trusts was his thesis subject.

Then under a unique arrangement, he joined the staff of of the University of Denver. He was to receive no pay, by his own request. He was to teach a full schedule of classes the first semester of each school year, but the second semester he was to be free to do as he would. He went to the University of Nebraska as professor of economics on the same basis.

This is the man whom Senator Byrd (Democrat), Virginia, has appointed as one of five outstanding experts on governmental organization to advise his committee which is studying useless and duplicating activities and bureaus in Uncle Sam's household. Once before, on his second semester leave from his school duties, he was a member of an American Bar Association special committee which studied the effect of recent national legislation on "the rights and liberties of American citizens."



John D. Clark.

Dr. Clark is what might be called a political problem. He is a power in Wyoming Democratic politics (his home is in Cheyenne). He was regarded a likely choice for Ambassador to Russia before William C. Bullitt was appointed. He was a member of the Resolutions Committee of the Democratic National Convention in 1912. And a Lincoln Nebraska business man claims that Dr. Clark was "the heaviest contributor to the Roosevelt campaign fund west of the Mississippi" in 1932.

But when asked to define his position on the New Deal, of which he soon will get a close-up picture, this is what he replied:

"Perhaps you can classify me. I was enthusiastic about Mr. Roosevelt (who was a college classmate) during the first few weeks of his administration when he was putting the Democratic platform into effect. I vigorously and publicly assailed the NRA whenever I could find or make the opportunity and sent $100 to Schechter to help out on his expense in the chicken case. I supported the AAA, the bank deposit insurance law, the regulation of investment and security market practices, and the effort to subject the Federal Reserve System to White House control. But I saw no wisdom in monetary manipulation nor in the public works method for affording relief or enticing recovery. I admire the courage of the President in standing against the more important inflationary proposals and marvel at his unsophisticated acceptance of almost any kind of fantastic scheme for directing the life of the individual citizen."

He has expressed himself as believing there is special justification for farm control, for farming is more than a process of production—it is a manner of life. Besides, there is no danger of monopoly. He opposed codes and other NRA agencies because he believed they threatened individual initiative and personal freedom.

He defended oil control administration, on the basis excessive production of crude oil is the whole problem of the industry. Conceding price control success for public utilities, he doubts it would be advisable in the broader field of general industry.

He is the author of the first official code of competitive practice governing American industry. Standard Oil was blamed by small Wisconsin dealers a decade ago for secret price-cutting in Wisconsin. Clark, Standard Oil vice-president, formulated two rules: Every dealer should post prices conspicuuosly, and no oil should be sold for any price other than that posted. These two rules were the first code.

The greatest danger to the Constitution is not from Congress, or not from the Supreme Court, but from the business man who forced NRA upon the administration, thinks Dr. Clark. Neither does he think there is need for changing the Constitution, most of which he believes unnecessary.

He favors a definition of power to prevent delegations by Congress which would give the nation a rule of men rather than law. Delegations of power, he says, leave the citizenry in the dark as to who is responsible for making rules or where they can be found.

THE existing divisions of authority between Federal and State Government he also consider unnecessary. He is a strong believer in local government, but he asserts full authority to regulate business would be safe in hands of Congress because Senators and Congressmen would resist any invasion of local powers in the interest of their constituents.

The professor takes the view that the New Deal laws declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court were exactly the sort of laws that need not have been enacted. "We can dispense with them for a long time," he asserts, until the demand for them is so great they can be enacted through amendment.

Dr. Clark thinks the court did the President a great favor by nullifying NRA, and that the AAA decision, which did not please him, also might help Mr. Roosevelt because "it gives him an opportunity to save the farmers twice instead of only once."

In passing, he's not sorry he abandoned business for the classroom.

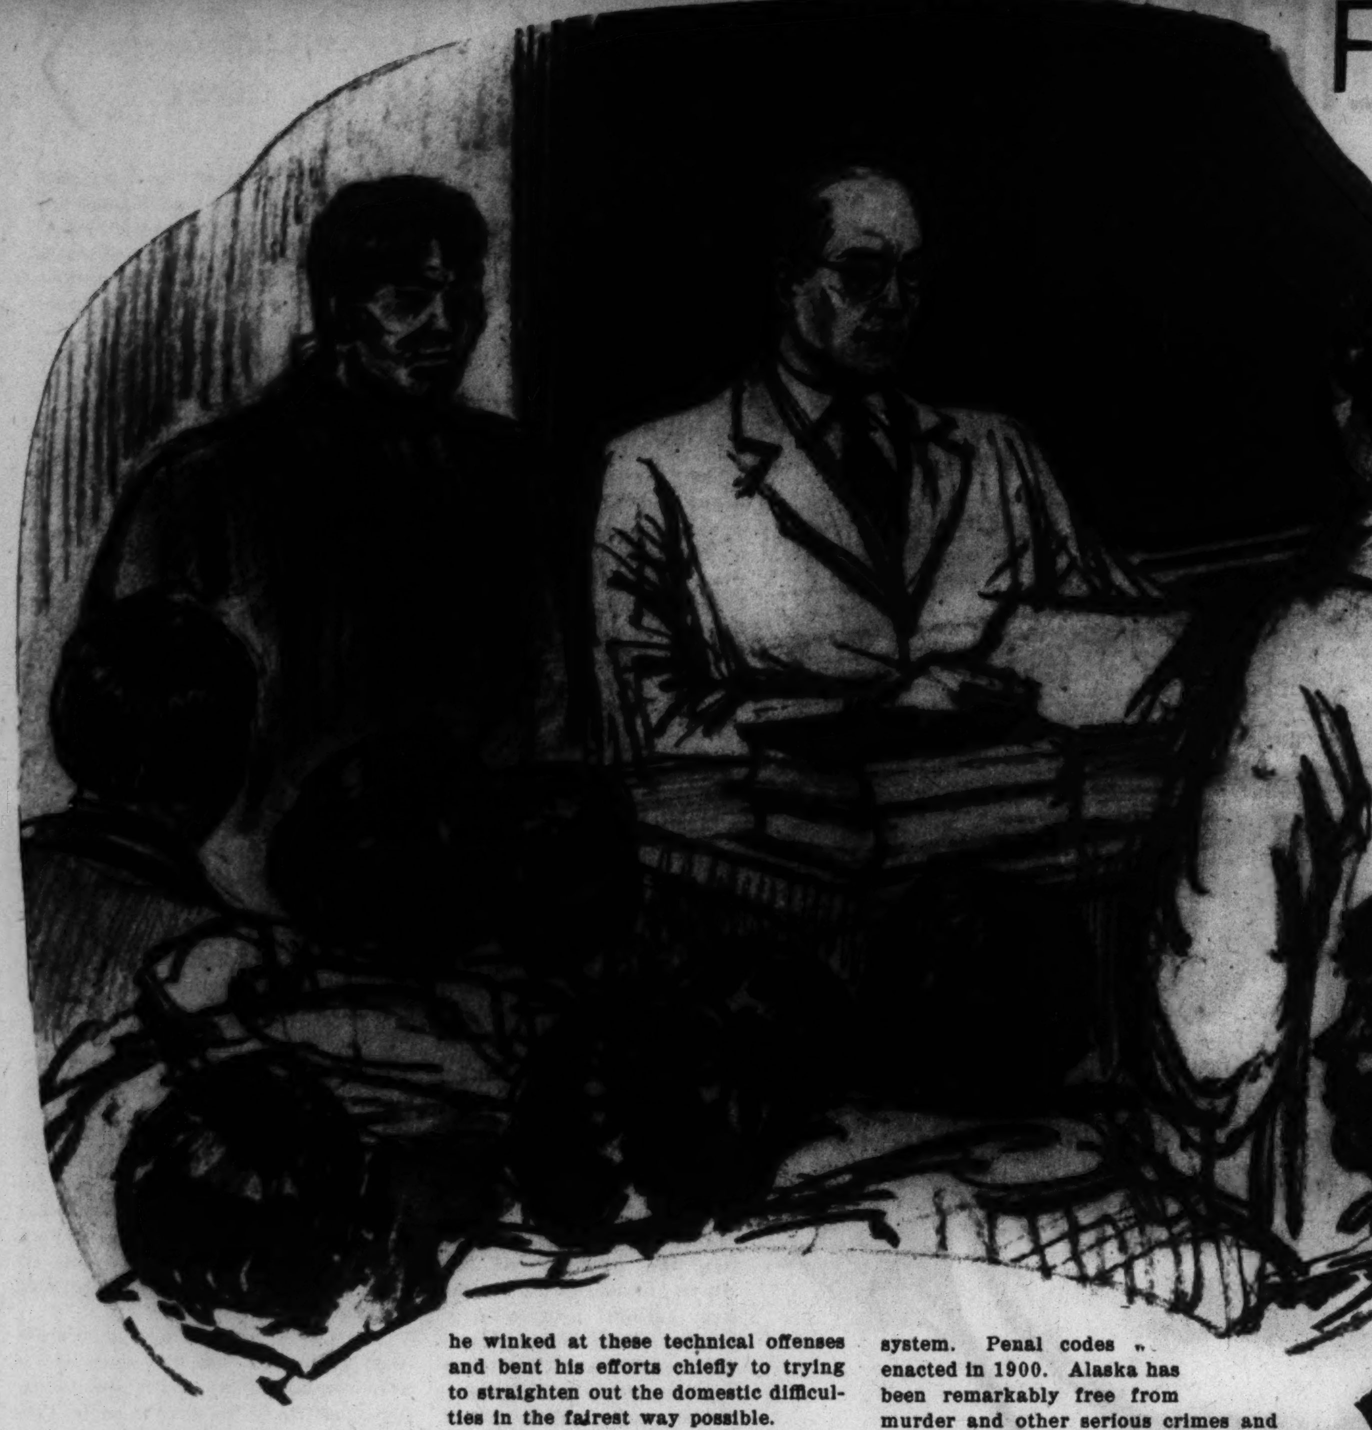
FLOATING COURTS for Remote Alaskan Villages

How the United States Will Meet the Natives More Than Half Way in Providing Justice for Its Arctic Circle Territory.



By REX COLLIER

A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

JUSTICE is about to sail the seas preparatory to holding court in dance halls and school houses in Alaska. In other words, Uncle Sam's strangest legal body, known in the Far North as the "floating court," is arranging an itinerary for its annual pilgrimage to remote fishing villages along the coast of the Bering Sea and in other far-flung parts of the great territory lying across the Arctic Circle.

There, with officers of a Coast Guard cutter serving as special deputy marshals or United States commissioners, Federal Judge Simon Hellenthal, whose judicial headquarters is at Valdez, Alaska, will dispense justice under picturesque circumstances in criminal and civil cases accumulated during the long winter.

But for the "floating court"—established in 1910—parts of Uncle Sam's largest territorial possession would be without any administration of Federal justice.

So distant are citizens of many Alaskan communities from headquarters of the Federal District Court at Valdez that trips to court—voluntary or under subpena—would involve almost insuperable handicaps.

Even with the court afloat it is necessary frequently for natives to sledge, hike or canoe great distances to reach the court's nearest port of call.

Department of Justice records tell of an Eskimo whose patriotic determination to take out final American citizenship papers led him to walk 25 miles from Port Moller, on Bristol Bay, to Stepovak Bay, where he secured a boat and rowed approximately 100 miles to Unga, anchorage of the mobile court.

It was largely because bitter weather and bleak terrain had combined to frustrate the natives in their desire to become United States citizens that Government officials decided to meet the Alaskan people more than halfway.

That there were other considerations, too, cannot be gainsaid.

For one thing, marital difficulties of the Indians and Eskimos were becoming distressingly involved. There was no court readily available to ponder upon the domestic difficulties of mismated natives. With no courts to grant legal separations or divorces, warring couples resorted to common law divorces—and in the natural course of events there followed common law marriages.

The first two or three "floating courts" were confronted with some of the most intricate and baffling marital entanglements ever to come before a bar of justice.

Although the law had been violated time and again, one of the early Judges pointed out that the circumstances in most instances were such that the violations scarcely could have been avoided—and it is known he winked at these technical offenses and bent his efforts chiefly to trying to straighten out the domestic difficulties in the fairest way possible.

Gratefully and eagerly the inhabitants of the obscure fishing villages look forward each spring to the visit of the "floating court." If the town's school house is the only hall available for the session of court, a public holiday is declared in the realm of education so that justice may reign in the classroom. In fact, the Court's visit usually calls for a general holiday, anyway, with special entertainment in the way of receptions and dinners and perhaps a fishing or hunting trip thrown in for the enjoyment of the Judge and his staff of Coast Guard marshals and commissioners.

American justice was received by Alaska as a welcome change from Czarist Russian justice as practiced under the Russian explorer, Baranoff, chief of the Russian-American Company which colonized Alaska more than a century ago. The Russians dealt most harshly and unjustly with the Alaskan natives, whom they found to be a meek and peaceful people. Taking advantage of these friendly tribes, the Russians drove them from their settlements or reduced them to a state of serfdom—meanwhile building up a profitable fur trade.

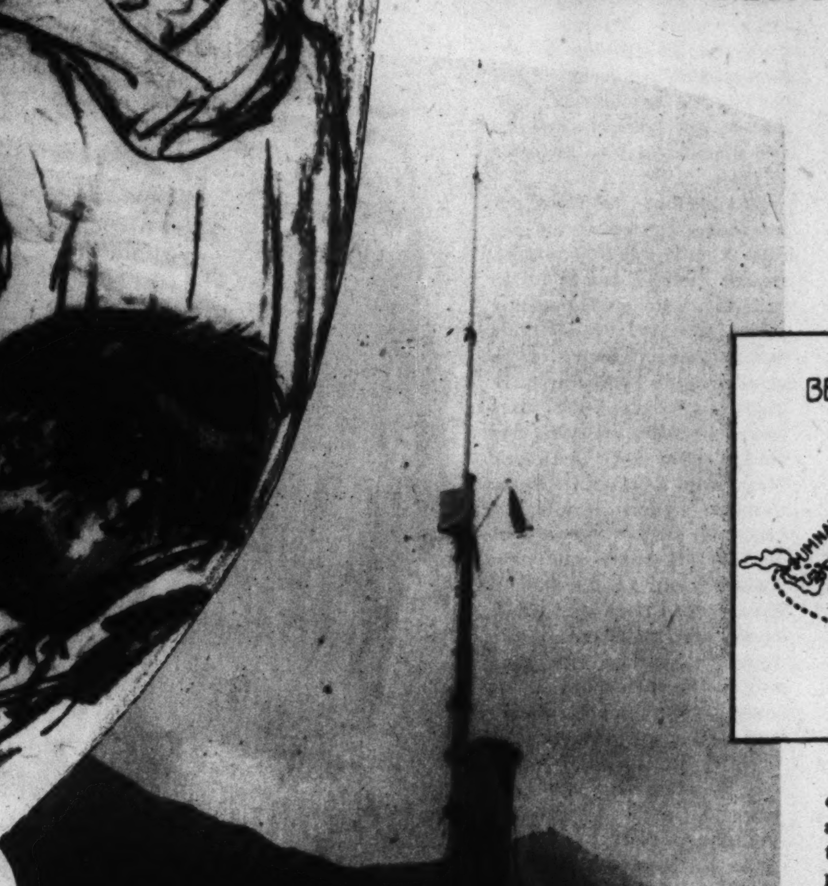
After the United States purchased the territory from Russia the laws of Oregon were applied and district courts were set up under this State system. Penal codes " enacted in 1900. Alaska has been remarkably free from murder and other serious crimes and the criminal laws have required little enforcement.

Arrangements are being made between the Department of Justice and the Treasury Department for assignment of the trim Coast Guard cutter, Haida, now stationed in Dutch Harbor, to "floating court" duty as soon as the spring thaws arrive. As in past years, the crew of this vessel will be sworn in as special officers of the court. The commander will be able to relieve the Judge of many extraneous duties, including the tying of nuptial knots for romantic couples and performing other "routine" legal services.

IF THE customary itinerary is followed, the Court will sail from Valdez the latter part of May toward the vast fishing grounds of the Bering Sea, by way of the Aleutian Islands and way points.

The first stop probably will be Seward, on the Kenai Peninsula, where the Alaskan Railroad has its terminus. After a few days at Seward, during which hearings may be held before grand or petit juries, the Haida will cleave her way through Resurrection Bay and into the Pacific Ocean and thence south to Seldovia, or Kachemak Bay, overlooking Cook Inlet and near the formidable active volcanoes, Katnai, Iliamna and Mageik, on the Alaskan Peninsula.

The cutter must anchor about a mile out in the bay at Seldovia. The Court will take to the ship's launch and upon arrival at the village will be escorted to an available courtroom—usually the town dance hall. Two days will be spent in settling Seldovia's legal problems.



The Coast Guard Cutter Haida which will carry law and court procedure to Alaskans who are not able to come to court themselves.

The good people of Seldovia invariably entertain the members of the court to the limit of their facilities, and if the Judge is so disposed he will be guest of honor on a trout fishing expedition up a nearby stream.

The Court will proceed past the Bering Islands and visit Kodiak Island, where Baranoff ruled with an iron hand in the days of despotic sway. An old Russian church on a hill is a reminder of those early days.

From Kodiak the cutter-court will head westerly into the Kupreanof Straits, which lie between Kodiak Island and the Alaskan Peninsula, and thence southeasterly to Unga, tiny island formerly the site of a Russian settlement.

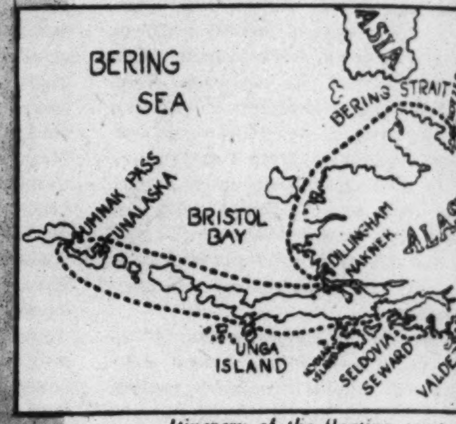
Marriage ceremony being performed aboard the Coast Guard Cutter Northland by Captain J. E. Hattel.

Unga, in the heart of a broad fishing ground, has its legal difficulties as the rest of the world has, and for a day or so the Court will hold busy but informal sessions in the office of the United States Commissioner. Most of the "customers" will come to Unga by boat from far points—as did the Eskimo in his row boat.

The cutter then will thread her way through Umnak Pass to Unalaska, far to the west. In this former Russian village, still boasting its Russian cathedral, court will be convened in the parlor of the United States Marshal's home, where lunch undoubtedly will be served to the distinguished guests by a group of housewives.

The vessel will turn north from Unalaska, proceeding along the Alaskan Peninsula into Bristol Bay, which empties into the Bering Sea.

Anchoring at the mouth of the Naknek River, the cutter will transfer its passengers to a launch for an 11-mile journey south to the town of Naknek, center of a prosperous salmon-canning industry.



Itinerary of the floating court.

Because the school house is the only suitable meeting place, Naknek school children will have a holiday and their buildings will be turned over to the Court for the day. Judge Hellenthal will sit on the teacher's platform and litigants and spectators will occupy the children's benches.

More than likely lunch will be served to everybody by the wife of the town marshal.

The Court will move on to Dillingham, where the launch again will be used on a 15-mile journey through shallow water. Here, too, the school house will be utilized.

Then north again, across the Arctic Circle, to Kotsebue, a former Indian settlement, where the journey probably will come to an end.

The whole trip of the "floating court" will consume about two months.

When the court was first established it was found that lack of lawyers in the fishing villages complicated greatly the work of the court. There was no one to prepare briefs, present pleas, make arguments or otherwise to represent the interests of petitioners or defendants.

TO MEET this problem the Court was authorized to appoint defense attorneys, who were taken along on the cruise at the expense of the Federal Government. The attorneys had little time to acquaint themselves with the problems of their clients and justice suffered to a certain extent.

With the improvement of educational facilities and the rapid advance of civilization in Alaska since the United States acquired supervision of the territory, lawyers have become widely available there and Court-appointed attorneys no longer are required.

With the inroads of civilization has come a disappearance of ancient customs of the natives in favor of modern modes of living.

A Judge of one of the early "floating courts," in discussing marital problems of the Eskimos, told of the custom of tattooing the young women to notify Eskimo bachelors of the girls' eligibility in the marriage market. A tattoo mark extending from the lip to the chin constituted a girl's notice to the world that she had attained marriageable age.

This same jurist commented in an official report that while civilization had improved conditions of the natives in many respects, it also had brought evils of which the inhabitants had been free until the white man landed. He mentioned particularly diseases of the white man that have plagued the natives under the "civilized" era.

Fortunately, the criminal tendencies of the white race seem to have failed to gain a foothold among the native Alaskans. The Department of Justice has found no "crime problem" in the territory—a fact which seems to support a recent analysis of crime statistics which showed that major crimes, such as murder and assault, are more prevalent in warm weather than in the winter.

The "floating court" this year should have little occasion to worry about a crowded criminal docket.

A GERMAN-JAPANESE ARTIST— "HALF-GOD, HALF-HOOLIGAN"

the esthetic appeal.

Sadakichi Hartmann has never by any means been one-sided. Even while he was writing art criticisms claiming that artists must never bow to morality or religion, even while he was called a Rabelaisian in mind with the sick constitution of a weak Charles IX, even while he was being compared to the flaming Buddha, Shelley, and the Ibsen of the Peer Gynt period, he was also writing systematic, unromantic factual text-books. It was these text-books which were published by commercial houses in Boston and New York and needed no private patrons. Such works were Hartmann's "Shakespeare in Art," "Japanese Art," "The Whistler Book," "A History of American Art," "American Sculpture," and "Portrait Composition."

His other books, like "Japanese Rhythms," written in Japanese form, "White Chrysanthemums," "Seven Short Stories," "My Rubaiyat," and "A Tragedy in a New York Flat" were published privately. Because Hartman wanted to show his contempt for the world which failed to recognize him as he thought he should be recognized, he inscribed the fly-leaf of his "Confucius," privately printed in Los Angeles in 1923, with the words, "This Book I Hurl Into the Jaws of Mammon, the Moloch of the Modern Mob."

But if recognition was so sparse that he often starved and so rare that few people have even heard of this unique personality today, Hartmann did succeed in making the acquaintance of a great galaxy of celebrities, including John Burroughs, James McNeill Whistler, and Whitman. Of Whitman he once said bitterly, "Oh, he talks only to Horace Traubel," but he did bring out a short manuscript called "Conversations With Walt Whitman."

Sadakichi Hartmann knew the American writer Edgar Saltus and described one of Saltus's seances at which Saltus sat on the throne, gave 10-inch cigarettes to his guests and read them Chinese poetry. When they interrupted him, Saltus was angry and said, "No admiration, please." Hartmann considered Saltus an eccentric and compared him, in his habit of leading cats down the street, to the French Gerald de Neval who led a live lobster down the Parisian boulevards on a ribbon. The strange thing is that Hartmann in his turn was also compared to Neval by others.

HARTMANN bemoaned the queer hermit habits of the painters, A. P. Ryder and Winslow Homer. He often described his daily encounters with the American painters who used to gather at the Grape Vine, which used to be at Ninth street and Sixth avenue in New York, where Robert Henri, William Glackens, John Sloan, George Luks and others of similar fame used to meet. At 50, Hartmann boasted that he frequented all the "blind pigs" of Greenwich Village.

He knew George Santayana, who once wrote to him, "I am not sure that a philosophy of the beautiful is wanted in this world, which is almost sure to be so ugly!" He saw Nietzsche in Italy once; he was a good friend of Ezra Pound, whom he calls "a daring fisher of pearls like myself and a representative of United States intelligence in Europe."

In his latest work, "Esthetic Verities," Hartmann writes: "Few human beings have the necessary impulse to function either as artist or sympathizer and art will and can never exist for the majority." He bemoans the small span of modern art and writes: "I take up a book on crystallography and am astounded at the treasure of minute forms. Some bacteriologist shows me microscopic photographs of some bacteria and I remark on what delightful patterns for dress goods cancer, syphilis, and gangrene would make. . . . I help some physicists to make experiments with violin bow and sand on metal plate and am puzzled at the symmetrical vagaries of 'Chladny's sound figures.' . . . I study the veining of agates; the corrugation in different kinds of wood. . . . Why do artists paint fruit instead of germs or stars?"

Sadakichi Hartmann still hopes for new arts. He has faith in color, motion and smell. He feels that concerts of self-radiant colors, with color rivaling sound as a vehicle of pure emotion, will be a new art in the future.

Hartmann has one son who has been in the Marines a long time and a daughter who lives in New York.

did not. The authorities, informed by hotel employes that Phister had said she shot him, plied her with questions—Jealousy? Suicide pact? Other woman? Money troubles?

"It wasn't jealousy," she said. "There was no other woman. It was the depression. Oh, dear, we were so short of money. My husband had tried everywhere to get employment."

But Phister's great-uncle, Spencer F. Harris, discounted that at once. He said the young man was bent on making his own way, but that his parents stood ready to help him over any real difficulty. And when they arrived in Columbia after a fast motor trip from Kansas City—they procured every medical and nursing aid to pull Mrs. Phister through and said she would have a home with them when she recovered—the elder Phister said that his son had several hundred dollars in a Columbia bank, a savings account in Kansas City and a comfortable amount in stocks and securities.

HE INSISTED the young man could not have entered a suicide pact, for only the day before he had written to propose changes in the handling of stock at the Cass County farm, and had conferred with a teacher on special preparation he would require for its management.

Declaring a belief that the student's wife was temporarily irresponsible, the father earnestly continued, "There was nothing in the life of my son that was secret or vicious, nor was there anything in the life of Irene Freeman. My purpose in this discussion is to show that any idea of suicide, despondency, want or abnormal mystery behind this tragedy is improbable and foolish. It was an emotional explosion.

"I have never known two more devoted people, without exception. They were seldom apart. They walked together, hunted together, and night would find them sitting before the fire together when the rest of us were saying goodnight.

"In my judgment what happened was that Irene, cooped up for three weeks with nothing to do while Thornton pursued his studies with great interest, grew fretful. She could not walk or drive because of the weather, and she did not care particularly to go alone. They had not taken time to settle in an apartment. She had thought of applying for work in the telephone office to keep busy. Thornton was engrossed in his studies.

"Hers was a possessive love. She wanted to have him with her always, in any adventure that suggested itself, and she was impatient of routine.

"They had a tiff before the tragedy. Irene proposed that they pull out and do something together to restore the old, casual, happy drift of their companionship. She proposed that he ditch the course, probably, and from what I can learn he refused.

"Thornton told her it was not just the thing to do. She persisted. Thornton sat on the bed and firmly, but without ill-will, continued to insist on their pattern of life at the college town until he had mastered his course.

"The sharp refusals, a small thing, really, seemed big and dramatic to her. Here were two persons who had roamed together in many lands, tramped together, made each other's plans for four years. Now there was a divergence, and a restless spirit flares. There are weapons in the room. Both are good shots, and regard firearms as playthings.

"Suddenly she screams. The scream was before the shots, and it has been described as the scream of a person who was not normal at the time. I have no doubt that she just reached for the pistol and shot madly, not knowing why. And then comes realization. A nightmare has become real. She weeps and cries aloud in anguish."

Only Mrs. Phister could have explained at first hand. Mrs. Phister is dead. And, after she was taken to the hospital, crying "I don't want to live! I want to die!" she said: "It doesn't matter now. It's all too late."

The COUNTRY PREACHER Who TURNED HOLDUP MAN

Rock they held up another filling station and grossed $40. They went on to Mississippi, Kentucky, Tennessee, Illinois and back into Missouri. All the way they were being followed at a distance by radio messages from police station to police station, a moving network that spread out behind them and ahead of them, wherever they went. By the time they had recrossed the Mississippi six days later they had decided that they couldn't put off arrest much longer. They drove to Springfield, where Madge's sister Mrs. Ira Garrison lives, hoping for a momentary respite. When the police came and took them back to Harrisonville they were prepared for the worst.

Although the police had persuaded them to sign confessions of the kidnaping and the holdups, Griffin refused to plead guilty before Frank Bybee, the Justice of the Peace, unless Madge were freed. The Justice refused to bargain with him and ordered him locked up. The former preacher hesitated a moment before being led away.

"I USED to tell people how to live good lives," he said, biting his lip. "I tried to pray earnestly. But after this I can't. I can't get anywhere now." The Justice of the Peace looked down at him charitably and asked him whether he expected his God to forgive him.

"I doubt it," Griffin answered bleakly. "'Good understanding giveth favour, but the way of the transgressor is hard. Every prudent man dealeth with knowledge; but a fool layeth open his folly.'"

Meanwhile in the Copeland farmhouse near Creston Mrs. Griffin was more forgiving than the preacher expects his Deity to be. "I forgive him," she said tearfully. "I'll take him back—if they'll ever let him come back. We'll go away somewhere and start over again. I must think of the children."

"I feel swell! The 3-minute way has my O. K.!"

Last night I felt bilious, logy, headachy. So I tried the FEEN-A-MINT "3-minute way" people are talking about. Just chewed delicious FEEN-A-MINT three minutes before retiring. Today I feel like a new person—and, best of all, I've found a laxative that works, gently, thoroughly, and with no weakening after-effects. I'm saying good-bye forever to jarring "all-at-once" cathartics. FEEN-A-MINT—the modern 3-minute way—has my O. K.! 15c and 25c at all drug stores.

EDDIE CANTOR

A different movie star appears in this space every week. Accompanying each player will be three costumes this particular person wore in various roles played on the screen. Cut out the player and paste on cardboard. Then cut out the costumes. Now dress the star in the proper outfits, being careful to assemble each costume correctly.

The three sets of costumes shown here were worn by Eddie Cantor in these roles in the following movies:

Eddie Pink in "Strike Me Pink"; Eddie in "Kid Millions" and "Roman Candles".

THE CHARACTERS

BILL BUNNY—A most unfortunate little rabbit.
O. HUM—An equally unfortunate opossum.
THE EASTER RABBIT—A distant relative of Bill Bunny.
BERT TILLON—A great ferret detective.
DUNKER—Bert's faithful friend.
JUNIOR—An excited raccoon.

Poor Bill and O. Hum are certainly a sorry sight. Their eyes are blackened and their clothing torn. They limp along, hoping that they can get home before anyone sees them. But, just as they begin to think that they will be successful, they meet the Easter Rabbit. He stares at them in amazement, while they shamefully hang their heads. At last Bill finds his voice as

THE PLAY BEGINS

BILL BUNNY—Gosh, is this Easter morning?

THE EASTER RABBIT—Yes, of course it is. I've just finished hiding my Easter eggs and I'm returning to my studio. Where on earth have you two been? (Bill Bunny sadly tells how Bert Tillon, thinking that he was getting out of practice in solving crimes, wanted Bill to rob a house so that he would have a case to work on. Of course, anything Bill took was to be returned to the owner. And then Bill got O. Hum to help him rob Rip Rackey's house. And then Rip caught them in the act and how, after a terrific struggle, they escaped. The Easter Rabbit feels terribly sorry for them and, after thinking a while, has an idea.)

THE EASTER RABBIT—It's a shame. Come to my studio with me. I think I can help you. (So they all go to the Easter Rabbit's studio. And with his paint brush, he soon restores their black eyes to their natural color.)

BILL BUNNY—(Looking in a mirror.) Gosh, I look as good as new. Now we can put on our Easter suits and join the parade.

(But in another part of Hickory Hollow a very excited raccoon is telling Bert Tillon all about a terrible burglary.)

JUNIOR—It shouldn't be hard to catch the thieves because papa blackened both their eyes. (Bert asks a few more questions and, after Junior leaves, chuckles to himself.)

DUNKER—I suppose all you have to do is find Bill Bunny and his accomplice and look at their eyes. (But it isn't going to be that easy. Because Bill and O. Hum, strolling along, look as though nothing ever happened to them.)

CURLEY, SHAKE HANDS WITH AN OLD FRIEND OF MINE, WATTY WEBB
I'VE KNOWN HIS SIS, PEGGY, TOO, FOR A LONG TIME, HARPER
CURLEY, IF YOU WANT TO GET SOME CROSS-COUNTRY RUNNING PRACTICE, YOU'D BETTER HURRY
I MIGHT AS WELL RUN, COACH BRADY —I'LL GO HOP INTO MY TOGS AT ONCE
LATER
PEGGY! I WAS BEGINNING TO THINK YOU WEREN'T GOING TO GET HERE
WE HAD AN EXAM, HORACE, AND I COULDN'T GET AWAY AS SOON AS I EXPECTED
I'VE BEEN PROMISING MY PAL, CURLEY, I'D INTRODUCE YOU TO HIM
I'D LOVE TO MEET HIM—
HECK—WE'RE JUST TOO LATE! HE'S STARTED ON A LONG CROSS-COUNTRY WORKOUT
I'M SORRY I CAN'T WAIT UNTIL MR. HARPER RETURNS, HORACE I'LL HAVE TO GET BACK TO IVY HALL
GOSH! THAT'S A TOUGH BREAK FOR CURLEY
AND GOOD OLD WATTY WEBB'LL ESCORT YOU, PEGGY—

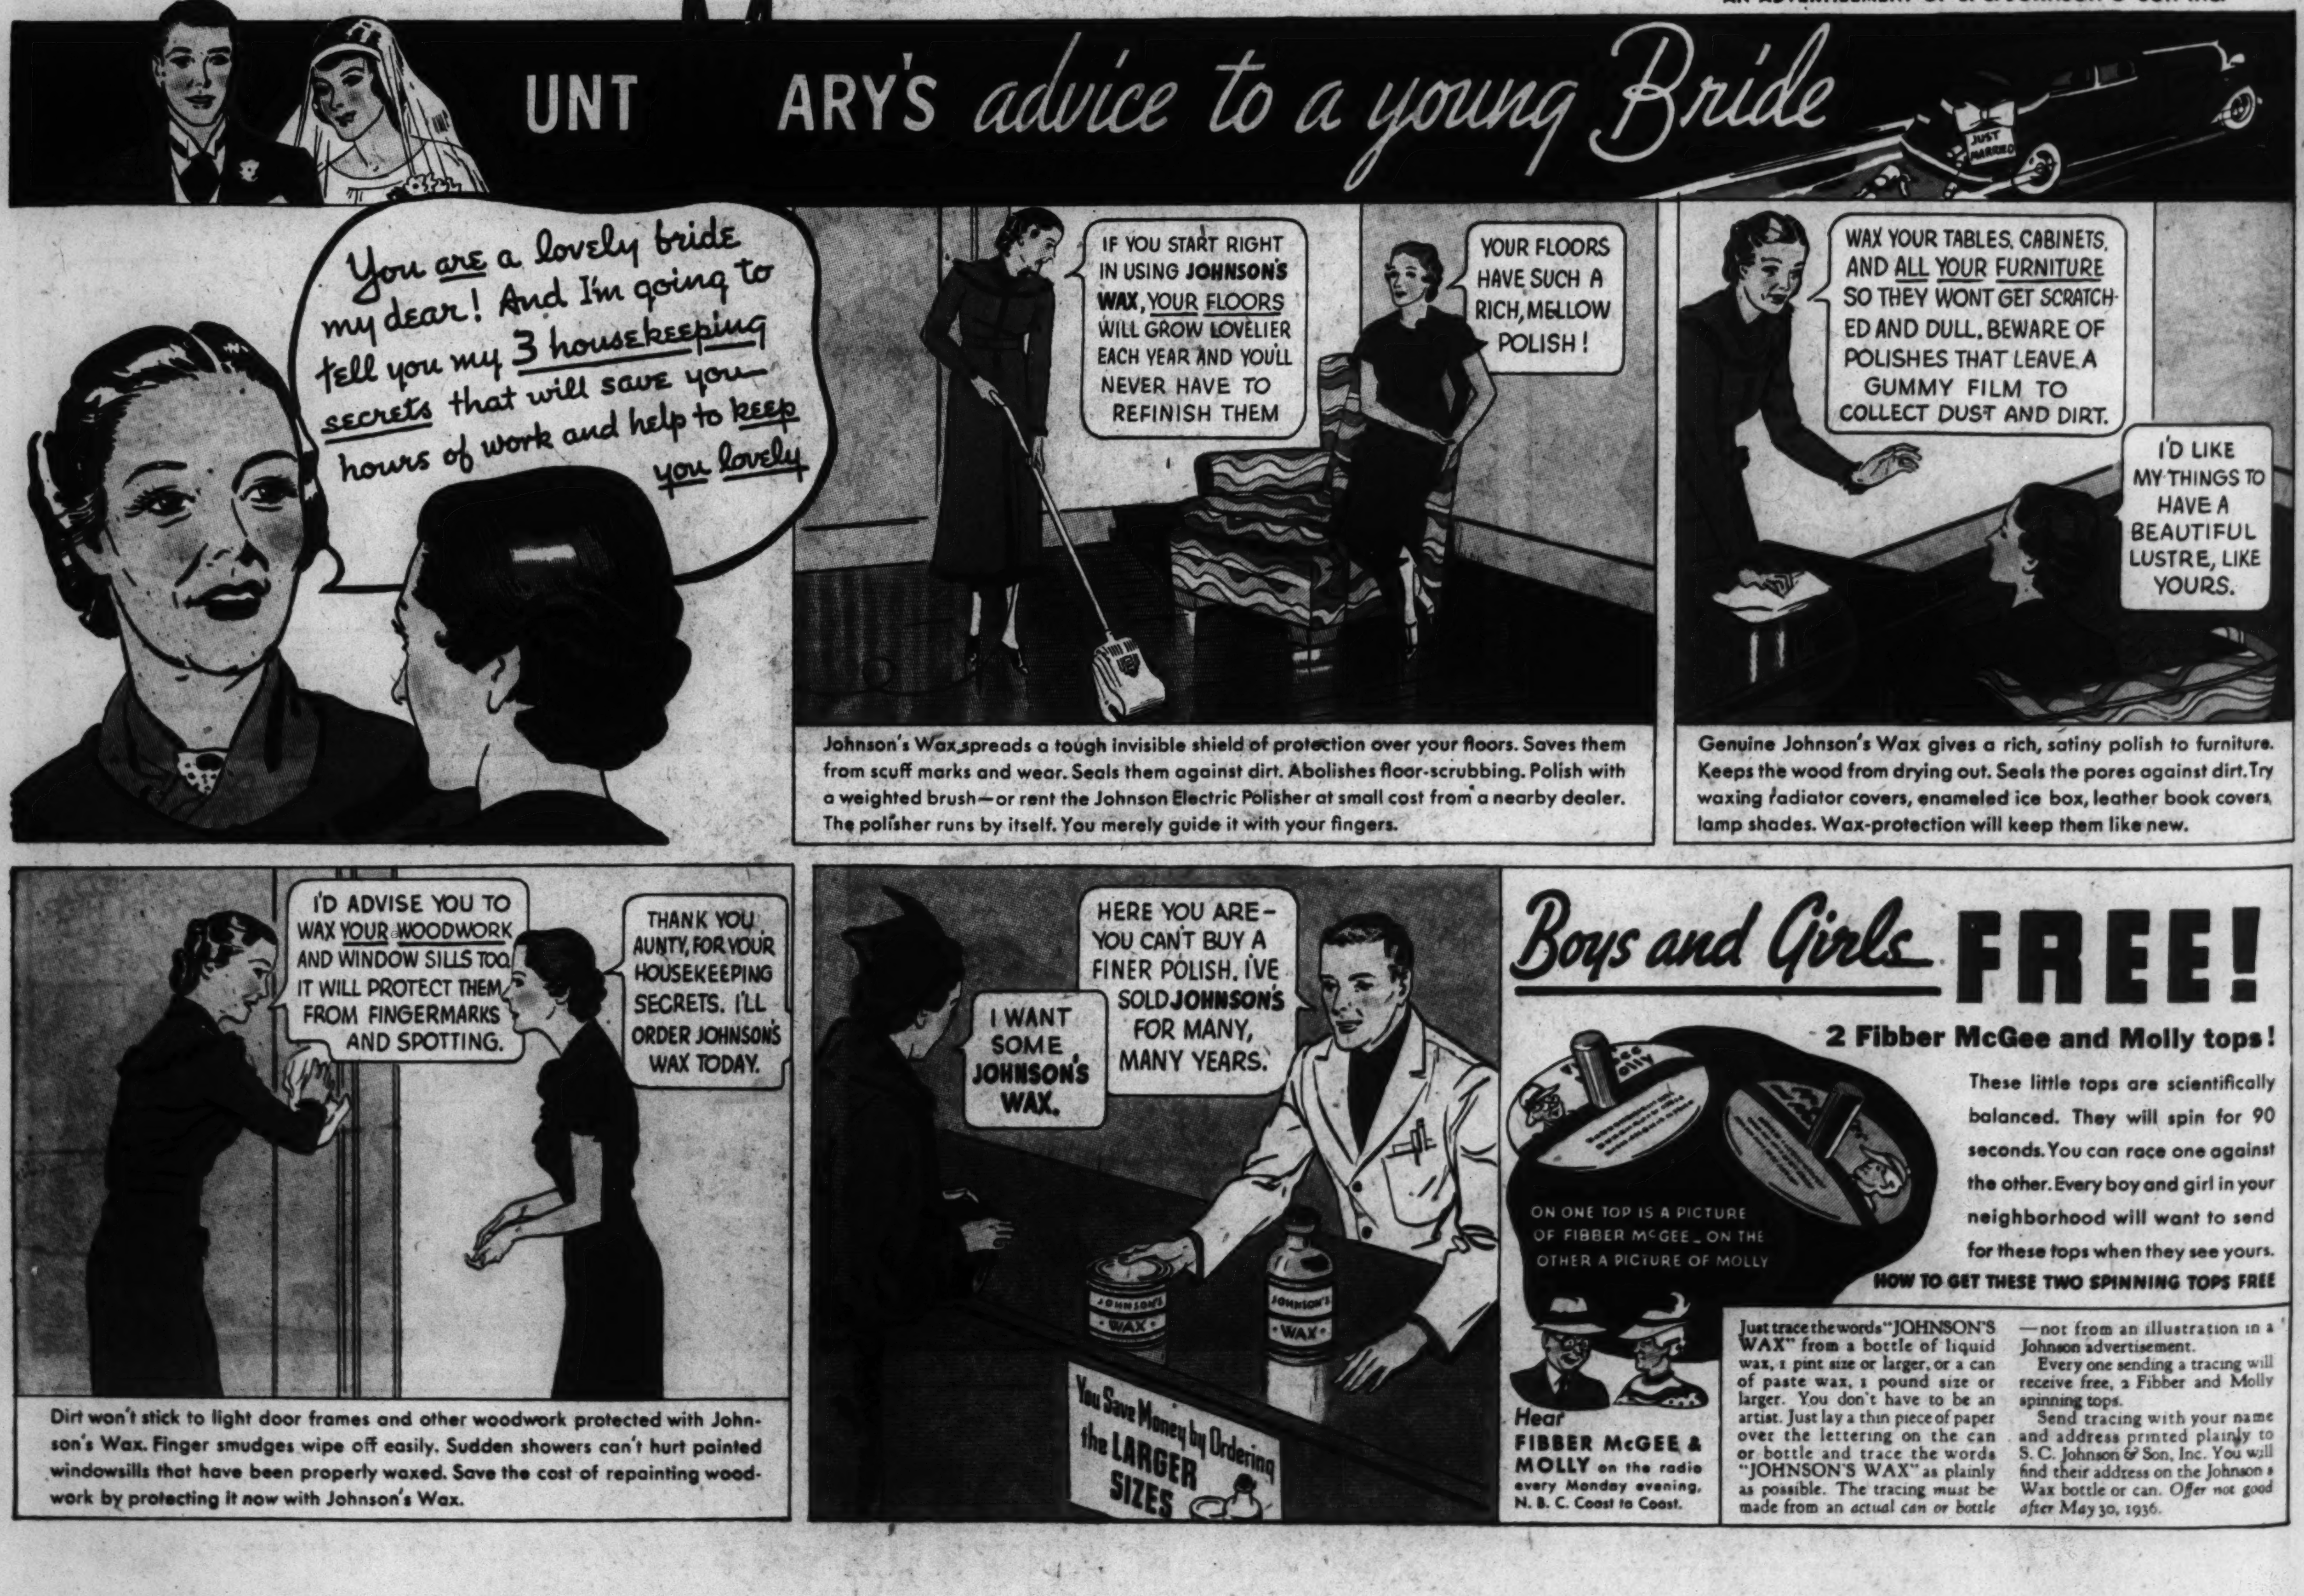
AN ADVERTISEMENT OF S. C. JOHNSON & SON INC.



UNT ARY'S advice to a young Bride
JUST MARRIED
You are a lovely bride my dear! And I'm going to tell you my 3 housekeeping secrets that will save you hours of work and help to keep you lovely
IF YOU START RIGHT IN USING JOHNSON'S WAX, YOUR FLOORS WILL GROW LOVELIER EACH YEAR AND YOU'LL NEVER HAVE TO REFINISH THEM
YOUR FLOORS HAVE SUCH A RICH, MELLOW POLISH!
WAX YOUR TABLES, CABINETS, AND ALL YOUR FURNITURE SO THEY WONT GET SCRATCHED AND DULL, BEWARE OF POLISHES THAT LEAVE A GUMMY FILM TO COLLECT DUST AND DIRT.
I'D LIKE MY THINGS TO HAVE A BEAUTIFUL LUSTRE, LIKE YOURS.
I'D ADVISE YOU TO WAX YOUR WOODWORK AND WINDOW SILLS TOO. IT WILL PROTECT THEM FROM FINGERMARKS AND SPOTTING.
THANK YOU AUNTY, FOR YOUR HOUSEKEEPING SECRETS. I'LL ORDER JOHNSON'S WAX TODAY.
I WANT SOME JOHNSON'S WAX.
HERE YOU ARE - YOU CAN'T BUY A FINER POLISH. I'VE SOLD JOHNSON'S FOR MANY, MANY YEARS.
JOHNSON'S WAX
JOHNSON'S WAX
You Save Money by Ordering the LARGER SIZES
ON ONE TOP IS A PICTURE OF FIBBER McGEE - ON THE OTHER A PICTURE OF MOLLY

Johnson's Wax spreads a tough invisible shield of protection over your floors. Saves them from scuff marks and wear. Seals them against dirt. Abolishes floor-scrubbing. Polish with a weighted brush—or rent the Johnson Electric Polisher at small cost from a nearby dealer. The polisher runs by itself. You merely guide it with your fingers.

Genuine Johnson's Wax gives a rich, satiny polish to furniture. Keeps the wood from drying out. Seals the pores against dirt. Try waxing radiator covers, enameled ice box, leather book covers, lamp shades. Wax-protection will keep them like new.

Dirt won't stick to light door frames and other woodwork protected with Johnson's Wax. Finger smudges wipe off easily. Sudden showers can't hurt painted windowsills that have been properly waxed. Save the cost of repainting woodwork by protecting it now with Johnson's Wax.

Boys and Girls FREE!

2 Fibber McGee and Molly tops!

These little tops are scientifically balanced. They will spin for 90 seconds. You can race one against the other. Every boy and girl in your neighborhood will want to send for these tops when they see yours.

HOW TO GET THESE TWO SPINNING TOPS FREE

Hear FIBBER McGEE & MOLLY on the radio every Monday evening, N. B. C. Coast to Coast.

Just trace the words "JOHNSON'S WAX" from a bottle of liquid wax, 1 pint size or larger, or a can of paste wax, 1 pound size or larger. You don't have to be an artist. Just lay a thin piece of paper over the lettering on the can or bottle and trace the words "JOHNSON'S WAX" as plainly as possible. The tracing must be made from an actual can or bottle—not from an illustration in a Johnson advertisement.

Every one sending a tracing will receive free, 2 Fibber and Molly spinning tops.

Send tracing with your name and address printed plainly to S. C. Johnson & Son, Inc. You will find their address on the Johnson's Wax bottle or can. Offer not good after May 30, 1936.

I THINK I'LL CALL UP THAT HORRID MRS JIGGS- I OWE THEM A CALL AND I WANT TO GET IT OVER WITH-
I HOPE THEY ARE OUT- I CAN'T IMAGINE ANYTHING WORSE THAN CALLING ON THEM-
HELLO- THIS IS MRS B. URSELFE- I'D LIKE TO TALK TO MRS JIGGS-
I HOPE THEY'RE OUT-
MRS. B URSELFE IS ON THE 'PHONE, MUM-
THAT WOMAN- OF ALL PEOPLE. I HOPE SHE DOESN'T WANT TO CALL ON US- I'LL FIX THAT-THEY MUST BE HUNGRY AGIN-
THANK GOODNESS WE DON'T HAVE TO CALL ON THEM- THEY ARE GOING TO THE OPERA- WHEN I FOUND THAT OUT- I SAID WE WANTED THEM TO COME OVER AS WE WERE ENTERTAINING COUNT BACWARDS- WHO ELSE CAN I CALL UP?
THAT'LL MAKE HER JEALOUS-
SHE THINKS SHE IS A SOCIALITE- BUT I GAVE HER A JOLT WHEN I TOLD HER WE'RE TO BE GUESTS OF MR. AND MRS. HUPSTAGE AT THE OPERA- I WONDER HOW SHE EVER GOT ACQUAINTED WITH COUNT BACWARDS-?
PROBABLY IN THE FIVE AN' TEN-
OH! I'M SO SORRY- MRS B. URSELFE- BUT WE ARE JUST LEAVING- WE HAVE BEEN INVITED TO GO ON BOARD MR ANCHOROPE'S YACHT- WHAT- WELL- MY DEAR-
YOU SURE MADE THAT ONE UP FAST- I WISH THAT I COULD LIE LIKE THAT-HUH! THE CAT- AFTER I TOLD HER WE HAD A DATE- SHE INVITES US TO MEET SOME COUNT THEY'RE ENTERTAINING- I WISH NOW THAT WE HAD GONE-
YOU CAN'T DO ANYTHING ABOUT IT NOW. YOUR YACHT STORY MUST HAVE GIVEN HER A BIT TO THINK ABOUT-
WELL- I'M GLAD THOSE TWO WOMEN ARE OFF MY DATE LIST FOR A WHILE- THAT COUNT STORY OF MINE MUST HAVE BURNED 'EM UP-WELL- WHAT DO YOU SAY TO GOING TO THE MOVIES?
WHO WAS THAT ON TH' PHONE?
THAT STUCK-UP MRS HEDDA LOTUSAY- I TOLD HER WE'RE GOING TO THE OPERA- SHE WANTED US TO GO WITH THEM AND MEET MR ANCHOROPE ON HIS YACHT- HOW DID THEY GET ACQUAINTED?
I JUST 'PHONED MRS JIGGS' AND SHE HIGH-HATTED ME, SAYING THEY'RE GOING TO THE OPERA- BUT I CAME RIGHT BACK AT HER WITH MY YACHT STORY-
LET'S GO TO THE MOVIES-
ONE HOUR LATER WHEN THE LIGHTS WENT ON AT THE MOVIE THEATRE
GEO MCMANUS
LOOKS LIKE A GET-TOGETHER OF TH' LIARS' CLUB-
HUH- HAVE YOU THE COUNT IN YOUR POCKET?
HOW ARE YOU ENJOYING THE OPERA?
I SUPPOSE YOU LEFT THE YACHT OUT IN THE LOBBY-
YES- WE THOUGHT THE COUNT WOULD LIKE TO SEE IT-
BY ANY CHANCE- IS THE COUNT SITTING BETWEEN YOU AND YOUR HUSBAND?

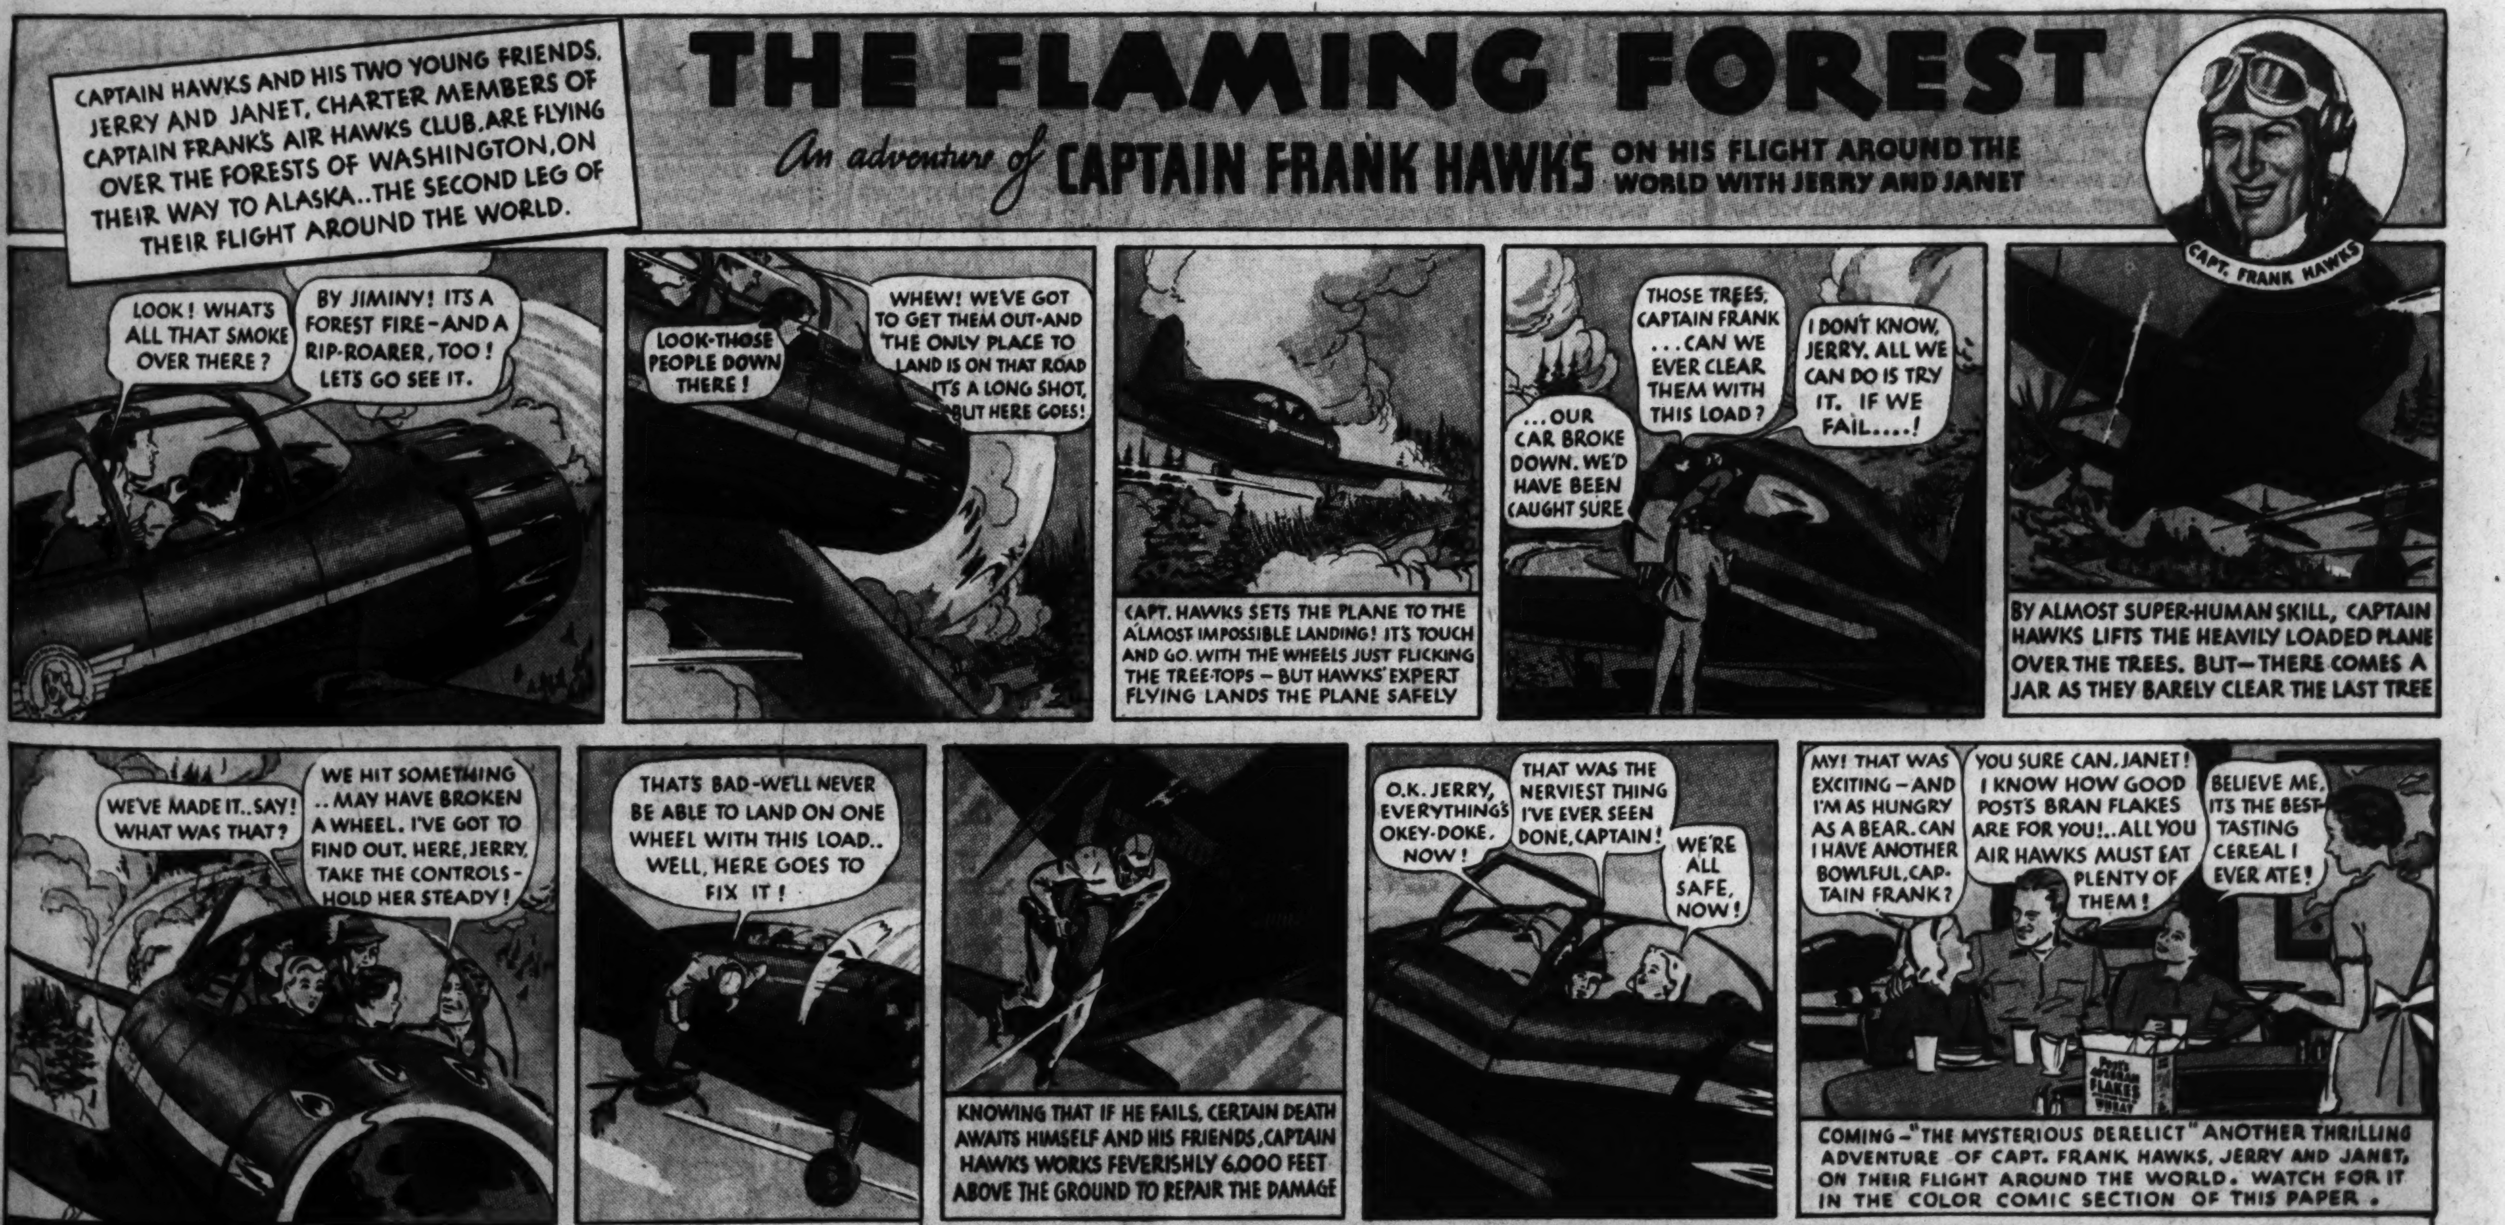
THE FLAMING FOREST

An adventure of CAPTAIN FRANK HAWKS ON HIS FLIGHT AROUND THE WORLD WITH JERRY AND JANET



CAPTAIN HAWKS AND HIS TWO YOUNG FRIENDS, JERRY AND JANET, CHARTER MEMBERS OF CAPTAIN FRANK'S AIR HAWKS CLUB, ARE FLYING OVER THE FORESTS OF WASHINGTON, ON THEIR WAY TO ALASKA.. THE SECOND LEG OF THEIR FLIGHT AROUND THE WORLD.
CAPT. FRANK HAWKS
LOOK! WHAT'S ALL THAT SMOKE OVER THERE?
BY JIMINY! ITS A FOREST FIRE- AND A RIP-ROARER, TOO! LETS GO SEE IT.
LOOK- THOSE PEOPLE DOWN THERE!
WHEW! WE'VE GOT TO GET THEM OUT- AND THE ONLY PLACE TO LAND IS ON THAT ROAD IT'S A LONG SHOT, BUT HERE GOES!
CAPT. HAWKS SETS THE PLANE TO THE ALMOST IMPOSSIBLE LANDING! IT'S TOUCH AND GO. WITH THE WHEELS JUST FLICKING THE TREE-TOPS - BUT HAWKS' EXPERT FLYING LANDS THE PLANE SAFELY
... OUR CAR BROKE DOWN. WE'D HAVE BEEN CAUGHT SURE
THOSE TREES, CAPTAIN FRANK ... CAN WE EVER CLEAR THEM WITH THIS LOAD?
I DON'T KNOW, JERRY. ALL WE CAN DO IS TRY IT. IF WE FAIL....!
BY ALMOST SUPER-HUMAN SKILL, CAPTAIN HAWKS LIFTS THE HEAVILY LOADED PLANE OVER THE TREES. BUT- THERE COMES A JAR AS THEY BARELY CLEAR THE LAST TREE
WE'VE MADE IT.. SAY! WHAT WAS THAT?
WE HIT SOMETHING .. MAY HAVE BROKEN A WHEEL. I'VE GOT TO FIND OUT. HERE, JERRY, TAKE THE CONTROLS - HOLD HER STEADY!
THAT'S BAD- WE'LL NEVER BE ABLE TO LAND ON ONE WHEEL WITH THIS LOAD.. WELL, HERE GOES TO FIX IT!
KNOWING THAT IF HE FAILS, CERTAIN DEATH AWAITS HIMSELF AND HIS FRIENDS, CAPTAIN HAWKS WORKS FEVERISHLY 6,000 FEET ABOVE THE GROUND TO REPAIR THE DAMAGE
O.K. JERRY, EVERYTHING'S OKEY-DOKE, NOW!
THAT WAS THE NERVIEST THING I'VE EVER SEEN DONE, CAPTAIN!
WE'RE ALL SAFE, NOW!
MY! THAT WAS EXCITING - AND I'M AS HUNGRY AS A BEAR. CAN I HAVE ANOTHER BOWLFUL, CAPTAIN FRANK?
YOU SURE CAN, JANET! I KNOW HOW GOOD POST'S BRAN FLAKES ARE FOR YOU!.. ALL YOU AIR HAWKS MUST EAT PLENTY OF THEM!
BELIEVE ME, ITS THE BEST TASTING CEREAL I EVER ATE!
COMING - "THE MYSTERIOUS DERELICT" ANOTHER THRILLING ADVENTURE OF CAPT. FRANK HAWKS, JERRY AND JANET, ON THEIR FLIGHT AROUND THE WORLD. WATCH FOR IT IN THE COLOR COMIC SECTION OF THIS PAPER.

"I'VE GOT A SISTER! WHAT I WANT IS A WIFE!"
SO YOU'LL BE A SISTER TO ME!.. ALL RIGHT— GIVE ME THE "SISTERLY" TRUTH...WHAT'S WRONG WITH ME?
JUST ONE THING! OH, I HATE TO HURT YOU, DICK...BUT FOR MY SAKE, WILL YOU ASK DR. ORD WHAT CAUSES BAD BREATH?
9:15 NEXT MORNING
LET'S HAVE IT, DOCTOR! HAZEL SAID YOU'D TELL ME
WELL, DICK, MOST BAD BREATH COMES FROM IMPROPERLY CLEANED TEETH.. I RECOMMEND COLGATE DENTAL CREAM, BECAUSE ITS SPECIAL PENETRATING FOAM CLEANS TEETH THOROUGHLY!
THIS COLGATE'S IS GREAT STUFF! NEVER KNEW MY MOUTH COULD FEEL SO FRESH AND CLEAN!
10 DAYS LATER
AND LET'S HAVE OUR NAMES ENGRAVED INSIDE, DICK!
YOU BET!

NO OTHER TOOTHPASTE EVER MADE MY TEETH SO BRIGHT AND CLEAN!
COLGATE RIBBON DENTAL CREAM
COLGATE
20¢ LARGE SIZE
Giant Size, over twice as much, 35¢
Now—NO BAD BREATH behind his SPARKLING SMILE!
Most Bad Breath Begins with the Teeth!

Remember this fact, and take the sure way to avoid bad breath! Use Colgate Dental Cream. Its special penetrating foam removes decaying food deposits lodged between the teeth, along the gums, around the tongue—which dentists agree cause most bad breath. At the same time, a unique, grit-free ingredient polishes enamel—makes teeth sparkle.

Try Colgate Dental Cream—today! Brush your teeth . . . your gums . . . your tongue . . . with Colgate's. If you are not entirely satisfied after using one tube, send the empty tube to COLGATE, Jersey City, N. J. We will refund TWICE what you paid.

DRAWN BY B. W. DEPEW
THE SCRUBS ARE HITTING RED LIGHT MIGHTY HARD, NED
I DON'T LIKE HIS SPIRIT SINCE HIS NEW CURVE CAN'T BE USED IN THE BIG EIGHT CONFERENCE
I MUST BE GETTING GOOD—GOT TWO HITS OFF RED ALREADY!
SAY—WHEN HE BEARS DOWN YOU'LL BE UP THERE SWINGING THAT BAT LIKE YOU WERE BEATING OFF A LION!
MY THIRD HIT, FELLA!
RED WORKED HARD TO MAKE THAT CURVE UNHITTABLE—NOW HE'S DISCOURAGED
Bud Depew
SAY RED—DON'T YOU THINK THIS HAS GONE FAR ENOUGH?
HOW ABOUT YOUR DOING THE CATCHING AND ME THE PITCHING, BLUDGEON?
NOW WAIT A MINUTE—WHAT IS THIS, ANYWAY?
YOU HEARD ME!
OKAY, IF THAT'S THE WAY YOU WANT IT—BUT YOU DON'T NEED A CATCHER IF YOU'RE GOING TO HIT EVERYBODY'S BAT!
TIME FOR THE OLD COACH TO TAKE A HAND, SHOTGUN!
NEVER SAW RED ACT UP BEFORE—MAYBE HE NEEDS A REST RED, YOU'RE NOT TRYING—WHAT'S IT ALL ABOUT?
THE HECK I'M NOT!
WHAT DID YOU SAY?
I SAID, 'THE HECK I'M NOT TRYING!'
ALL RIGHT, RED—INSIDE—TURN YOUR SUIT IN TO JAKE!

4-12

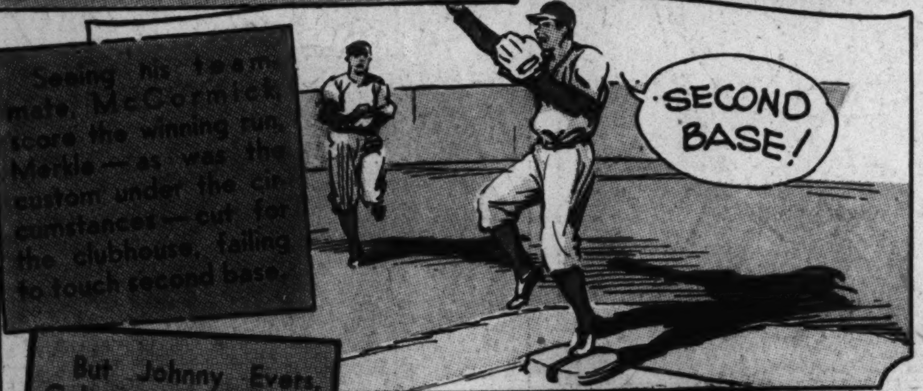
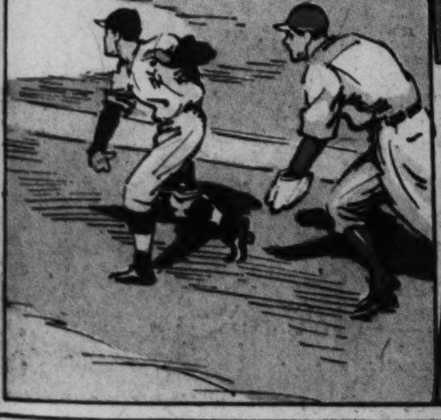
It's the last of the ninth. The Giants and Cubs are tied. Merkle is on first and McCormick on third. Bridwell singles. As Merkle starts for second, McCormick scores for the Giants.

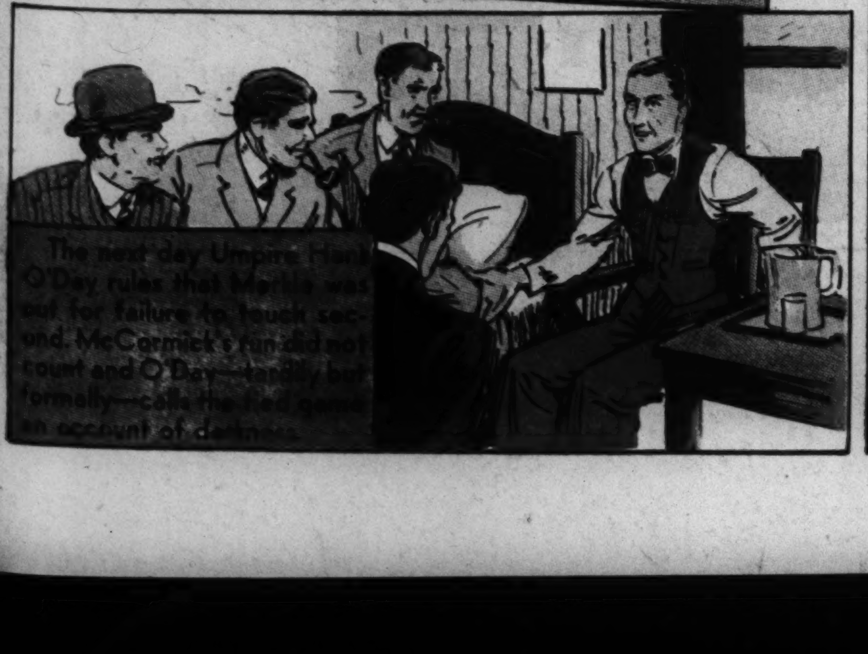


SECOND BASE!

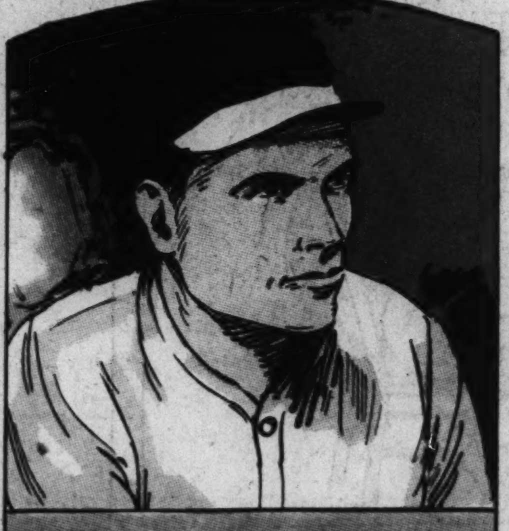
Seeing his teammate, McCormick, score the winning run, Merkle — as was the custom under the circumstances — cut for the clubhouse, failing to touch second base.



But Johnny Evers, Cub second baseman, yells for the ball. As it comes bouncing toward him, Joe McGinnity dashes from the Giants' bench, intercepts the throw, and heaves the ball into the leftfield bleachers.



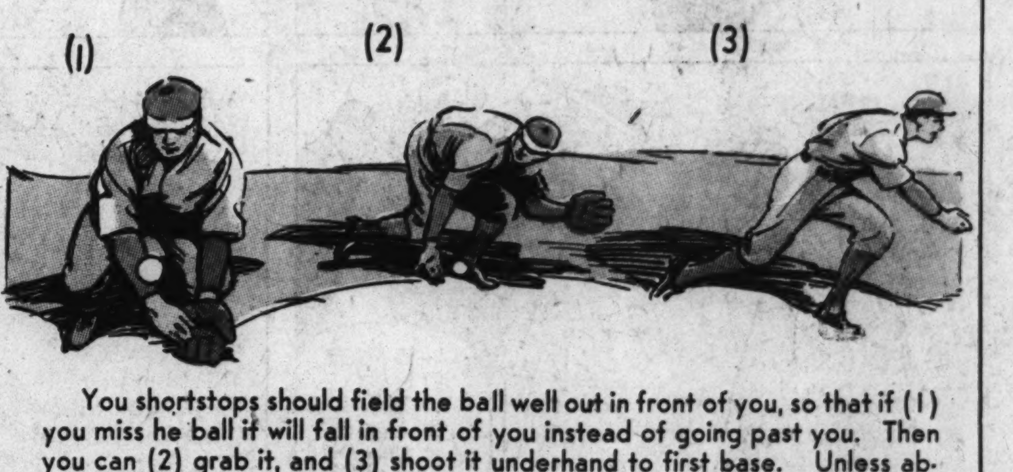
The next day Umpire Hank O'Day rules that Merkle was out for failure to touch second. McCormick's run did not count and O'Day—tardily but formally—calls the tied game on account of darkness.



And here is Fred Merkle, a great ball player, whose excusable error lost the game and made him a "goat" for many years. Until Evers called the play into question in 1908, it had always been customary to do what Merkle did.

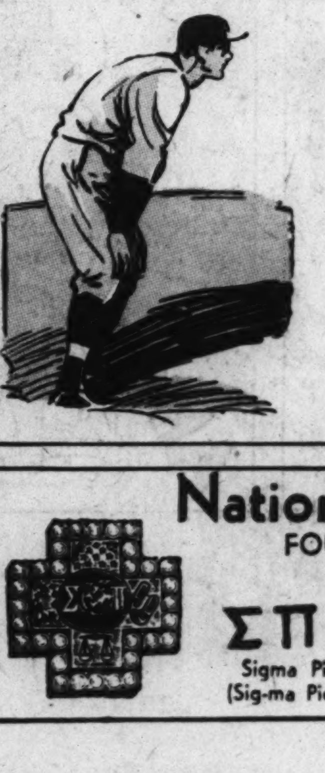
Baseball . . . . By NED BRANT

Playing Shortstop



You shortstops should field the ball well out in front of you, so that if (1) you miss he ball it will fall in front of you instead of going past you. Then you can (2) grab it, and (3) shoot it underhand to first base. Unless absolutely necessary, never field the ball at your side. Get in front of it.

SHORT TIPS



Play the ball, don't let the ball play you.

Don't fight the ball, field it cleanly.

Catch the ball first, then throw it. Don't try to throw it before you catch it.

Race in on a slow bounding ball. Play the hard smashes more conservatively.

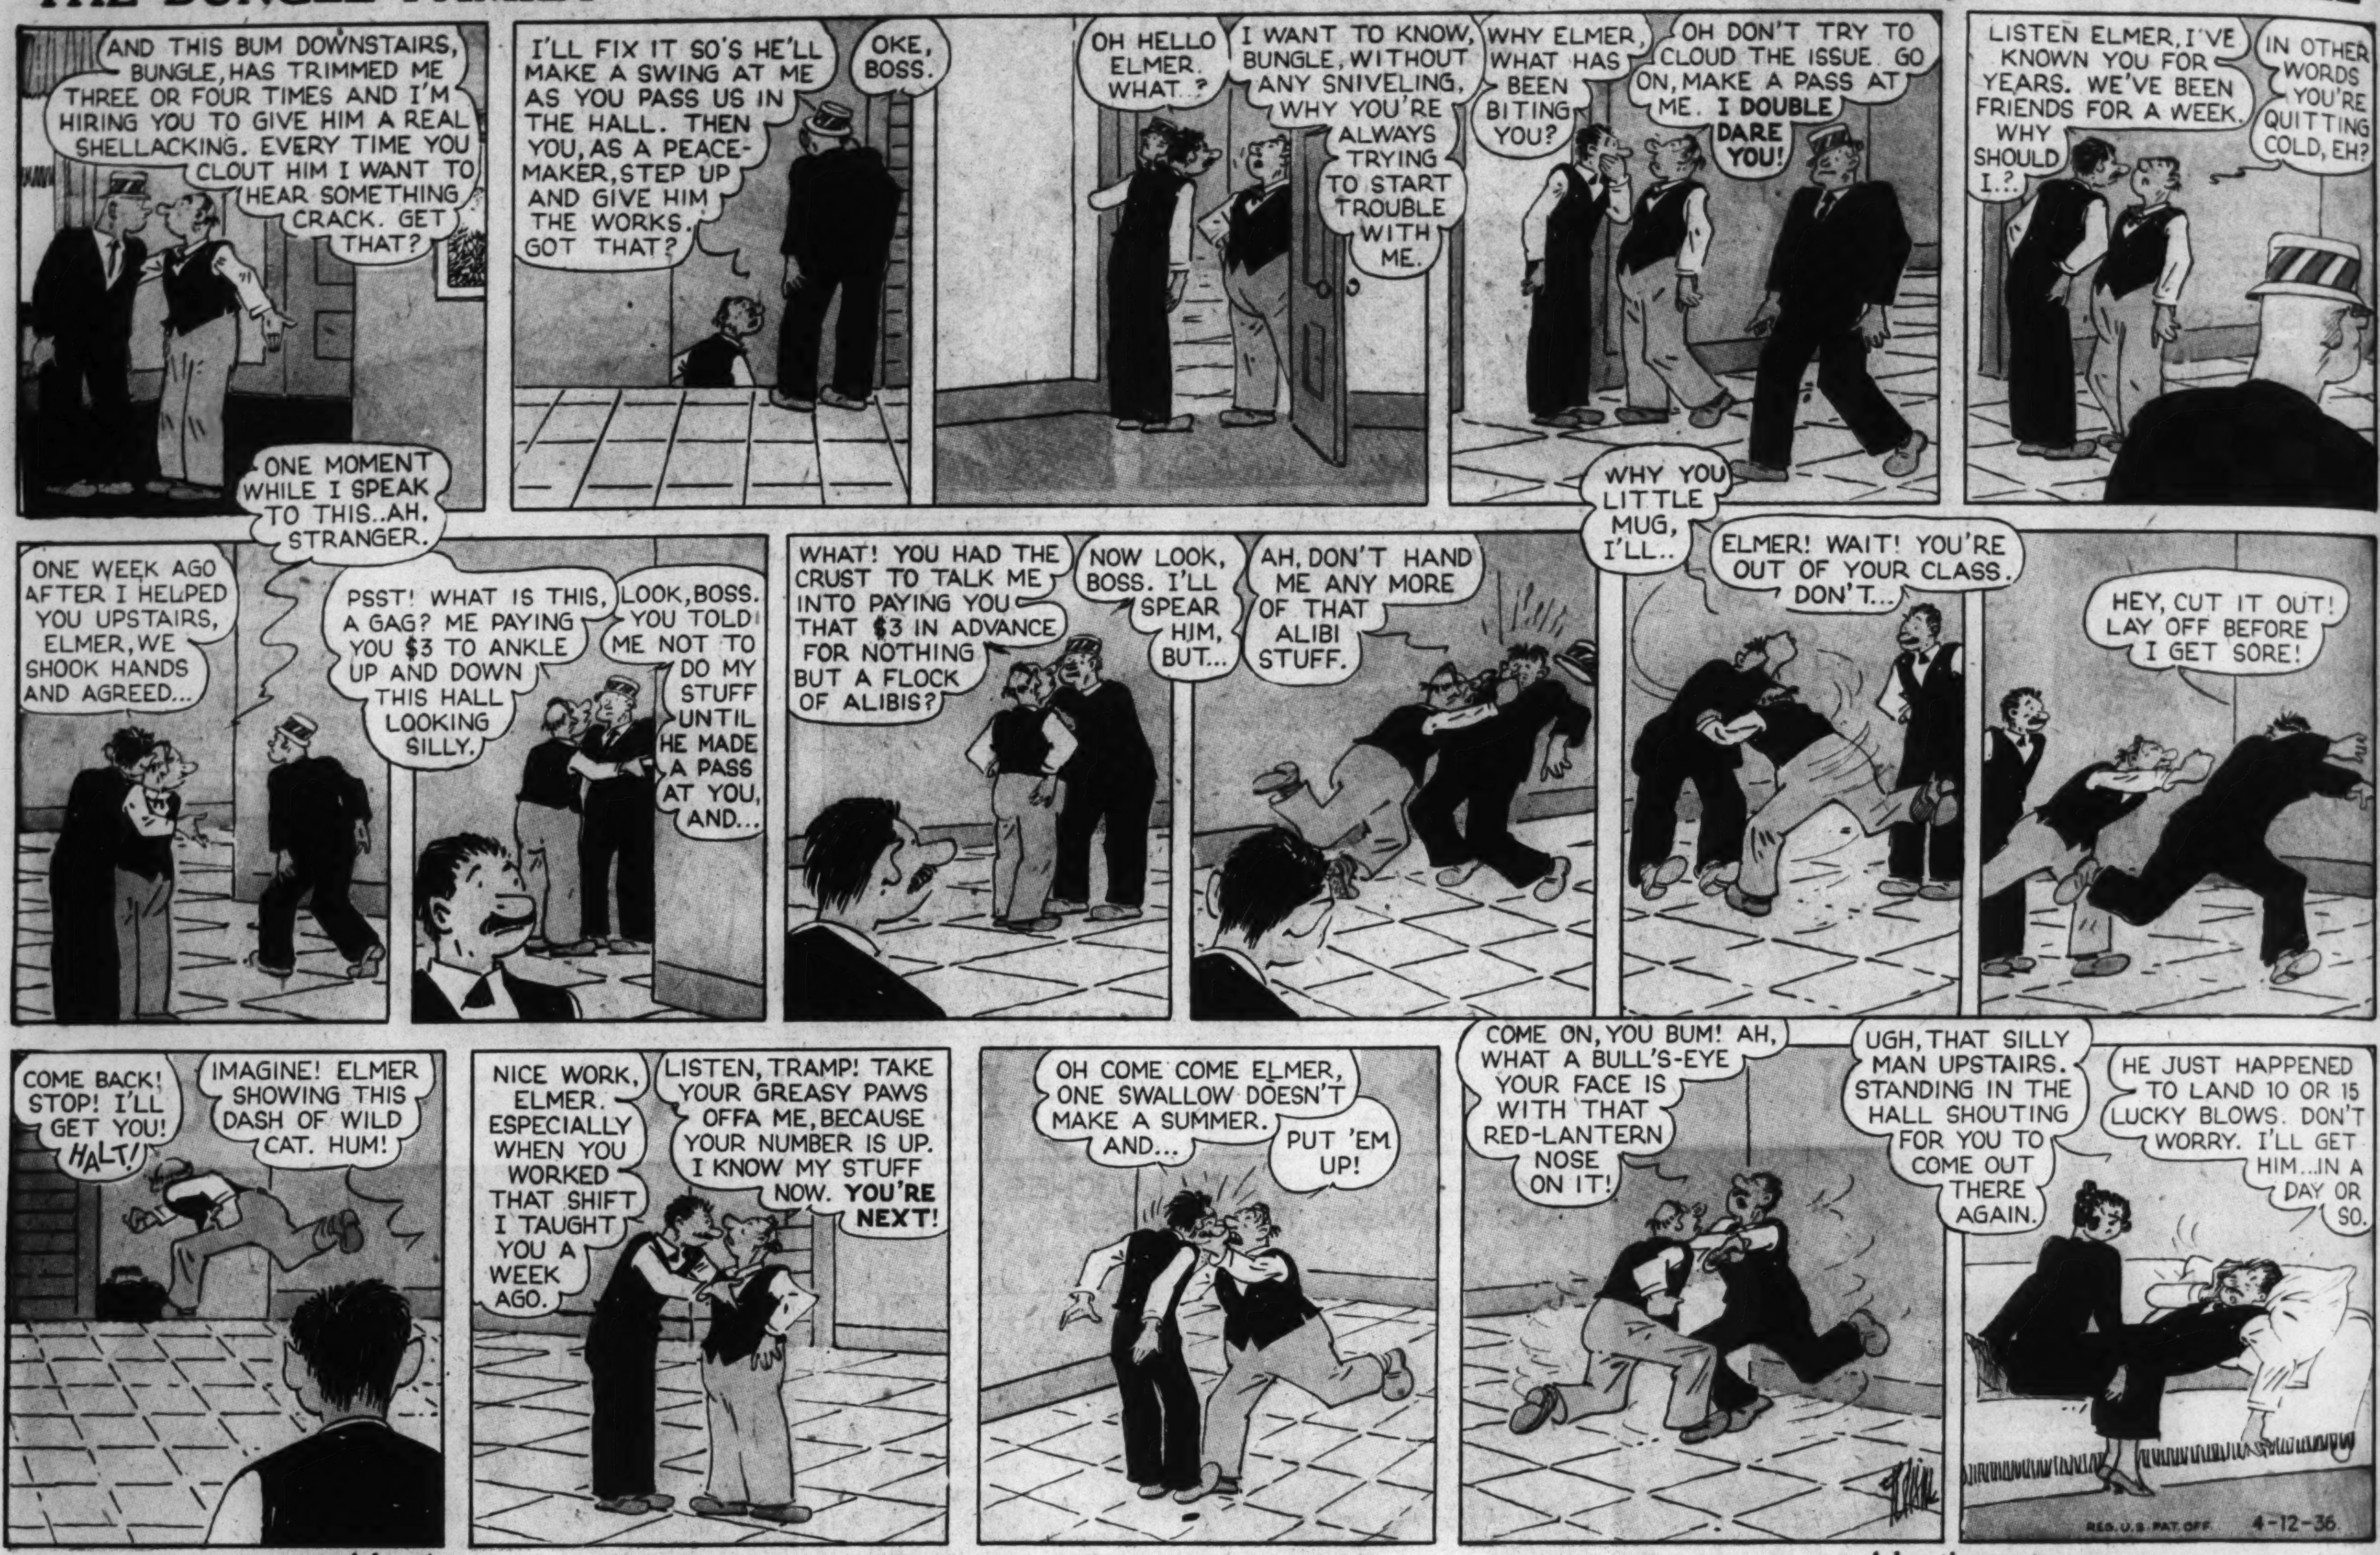
By H. J. TUTHILL



AND THIS BUM DOWNSTAIRS, BUNGLE, HAS TRIMMED ME THREE OR FOUR TIMES AND I'M HIRING YOU TO GIVE HIM A REAL SHELLACKING. EVERY TIME YOU CLOUT HIM I WANT TO HEAR SOMETHING CRACK. GET THAT?
ONE MOMENT WHILE I SPEAK TO THIS..AH, STRANGER.
I'LL FIX IT SO'S HE'LL MAKE A SWING AT ME AS YOU PASS US IN THE HALL. THEN YOU, AS A PEACE-MAKER, STEP UP AND GIVE HIM THE WORKS. GOT THAT?
OKE, BOSS.
OH HELLO ELMER. WHAT..?
I WANT TO KNOW, BUNGLE, WITHOUT ANY SNIVELING, WHY YOU'RE ALWAYS TRYING TO START TROUBLE WITH ME.
WHY ELMER, WHAT HAS BEEN BITING YOU?
OH DON'T TRY TO CLOUD THE ISSUE. GO ON, MAKE A PASS AT ME. I DOUBLE DARE YOU!
LISTEN ELMER, I'VE KNOWN YOU FOR YEARS. WE'VE BEEN FRIENDS FOR A WEEK. WHY SHOULD I..?
IN OTHER WORDS YOU'RE QUITTING COLD, EH?
ONE WEEK AGO AFTER I HELPED YOU UPSTAIRS, ELMER, WE SHOOK HANDS AND AGREED...
PSST! WHAT IS THIS, A GAG? ME PAYING YOU $3 TO ANKLE UP AND DOWN THIS HALL LOOKING SILLY.
LOOK, BOSS. YOU TOLD ME NOT TO DO MY STUFF UNTIL HE MADE A PASS AT YOU, AND...
WHAT! YOU HAD THE CRUST TO TALK ME INTO PAYING YOU THAT $3 IN ADVANCE FOR NOTHING BUT A FLOCK OF ALIBIS?
NOW LOOK, BOSS. I'LL SPEAR HIM, BUT...
AH, DON'T HAND ME ANY MORE OF THAT ALIBI STUFF.
WHY YOU LITTLE MUG, I'LL..
ELMER! WAIT! YOU'RE OUT OF YOUR CLASS. DON'T...
HEY, CUT IT OUT! LAY OFF BEFORE I GET SORE!
COME BACK! STOP! I'LL GET YOU! HALT!
IMAGINE! ELMER SHOWING THIS DASH OF WILD CAT. HUM!
NICE WORK, ELMER. ESPECIALLY WHEN YOU WORKED THAT SHIFT I TAUGHT YOU A WEEK AGO.
LISTEN, TRAMP! TAKE YOUR GREASY PAWS OFFA ME, BECAUSE YOUR NUMBER IS UP. I KNOW MY STUFF NOW. YOU'RE NEXT!
OH COME COME ELMER, ONE SWALLOW DOESN'T MAKE A SUMMER. AND...
PUT 'EM UP!
COME ON, YOU BUM! AH, WHAT A BULL'S-EYE YOUR FACE IS WITH THAT RED-LANTERN NOSE ON IT!
UGH, THAT SILLY MAN UPSTAIRS. STANDING IN THE HALL SHOUTING FOR YOU TO COME OUT THERE AGAIN.
HE JUST HAPPENED TO LAND 10 OR 15 LUCKY BLOWS. DON'T WORRY. I'LL GET HIM...IN A DAY OR SO.

DON'T I KNOW IT! BUT WORST OF ALL—I NEVER CAN GET MY CLOTHES REAL SNOWY
THEN YOU'RE JUST THE WOMAN WHO NEEDS ME. TRY ME... AND I'LL SOAK YOUR CLOTHES 4 OR 5 SHADES WHITER
ALL RIGHT! I'VE HEARD A LOT ABOUT YOU. NOW I'LL TRY YOU....
LATER
THANKS TO YOU, RINSO, I HAD THE EASIEST WASHDAY OF MY LIFE. MY WASH IS 4 OR 5 SHADES WHITER AND MUCH BRIGHTER THAN EVER YET I DIDN'T SCRUB OR BOIL
THAT WILL MAKE YOUR CLOTHES LAST LONGER. NOW TRY MY THICK SUDS FOR THE DISHES THAT NIGHT
THERE, WASN'T THAT QUICK? YOU'RE THROUGH WITH THE DISHES ALREADY RINSO—YOU'RE A MAGICIAN WHEN IT COMES TO GETTING RID OF GREASE
I'M GLAD TO SAY THAT THE MAKERS OF SANFORIZED-SHRUNK COTTONS AND LINENS RECOMMEND YOU FOR SAFETY AND WHITER, BRIGHTER CLOTHES
THAT'S NICE
ALL-GUARD

THE makers of Rinso are mighty proud of this endorsement. It means that whenever you see the All-Guard tag on fabrics marked "Sanforized Shrunk" you know that they have been washed 10 times at the Rinso laboratories in a home washing machine—and that they are guaranteed washable. So, for your own protection, be sure that the materials or dresses that you buy bear this tag—and always wash them in Rinso. This famous soap has been tested and approved by Good Housekeeping Institute. Millions of women know by experience that Rinso gives richer, safer suds—even in hardest water. These creamy suds SOAK clothes 4 or 5 shades whiter, get colors brighter without scrubbing or boiling. The makers of 33 washers recommend Rinso. Grand for dishes and all cleaning.

DON'T LET ADOLESCENT PIMPLES KEEP YOU FROM GETTING "DATES"

MOST girls and boys have trouble with skin blemishes between the ages of 13 and 25, or even longer.

During these years, the body is finishing its growth. Important glands develop, causing changes throughout the system. The skin, especially, becomes extra sensitive—and when waste poisons in the blood irritate this sensitive skin, pimples break out!

Thousands of young people find Fleischmann's fresh Yeast helps to get rid of unsightly skin eruptions. It clears these skin irritants out of the blood. Then—with the cause removed—the pimples disappear!

Start eating 3 cakes of Fleischmann's Yeast daily. Eat it regularly, before meals—plain, or in a little water—until your skin clears. Start today!

I'LL GIVE YOU ONE LAST CHANCE, JACK. IF YOU LOSE YOUR TEMPER AGAIN, YOU'RE THROUGH!
WELL—IT'S A GOOD THING YOU'RE LETTING ME PLAY TONIGHT! MY DAD CAME ALL THE WAY FROM WASHINGTON TO SEE THE GAME!
TELL THIS COACH HE DOESN'T KNOW ENOUGH TO TEACH A KINDERGARTEN CLASS TO PLAY TIDDLEDYWINKS!
MR. COFFEE-NERVES
—THAT'S ENOUGH OF YOUR ROUGH STUFF, WALTON! I SAW YOU ELBOW THAT MAN IN THE FACE! NOW GET OUT OF THE GAME!
TELL THIS DUMB REFEREE IF HE'S GOING TO PLAY ON THEIR SIDE, HE'D BETTER PUT ON A BASKETBALL SUIT!
—YOU HAD YOUR CHANCE, JACK, AND YOU FELL DOWN! I CAN'T USE YOU ON THIS TEAM ANY LONGER!
THAT'S THE FIRST KIND THING HE EVER SAID! TELL HIM YOU'RE SICK OF THIS SISSY GAME, ANYWAY!
I'M JACK WALTON'S FATHER. CAN YOU SPARE A MINUTE, COACH?
CERTAINLY, DOCTOR WALTON. YOU WERE CAPTAIN HERE IN '09, WEREN'T YOU? SORRY WHAT HAPPENED TONIGHT.
WHAT ARE THOSE OLD FOGEYS PLOTTING ABOUT? PROBABLY COOKING UP SOME DUMB SCHEME!
TOO BAD ABOUT JACK. HE'S A STAR PLAYER, BUT I'M AFRAID HE'S BREAKING MY 'NO COFFEE' TRAINING RULE! HE'S SO NERVOUS AND IRRITABLE!
LET ME TALK TO HIM, COACH... WE DOCTORS KNOW HOW TO HANDLE THESE COFFEE-NERVES CASES!
OH, OH! I WAS AFRAID OF THIS! LOOKS BAD FOR ME!
IT'S COFFEE-NERVES ALL RIGHT, SON! I THINK YOU'D BETTER CUT OUT COFFEE AND DRINK POSTUM INSTEAD.
OH, ALL RIGHT... IF IT WILL HELP ME GET BACK ON THE TEAM!
CURSES! IF HE'S SWITCHING TO POSTUM, I'M THROUGH!
BOY! I'M GOING TO LIKE POSTUM! I NEVER DREAMED IT WAS SUCH A DELICIOUS DRINK!
LATER
WAIT WHILE I WIRE DAD... I WANT HIM TO KNOW I'VE BEEN ELECTED BASKETBALL CAPTAIN!
THINK I'LL WIRE HIM, TOO.... AND TELL HIM WHAT A FINE DISPOSITION YOU'VE ACQUIRED SINCE YOU SWITCHED TO POSTUM!
TELEGRAPH AND CABL
PAUL
TAKE A TIP FROM ME.... IF YOU'VE GOT COFFEE-NERVES.... SWITCH TO POSTUM!

Of course, you know that children should never drink coffee. But do you realize that the caffein in coffee disagrees with many grown-ups, too?

If you are bothered by headaches or indigestion, or find it difficult to sleep soundly . . . caffein may be to blame.

Isn't it worthwhile to try Postum for 30 days? Postum contains no caffein. It is simply whole wheat and bran, roasted and slightly sweetened. It is easy to make, and costs less than one-half cent a cup. It's a delicious drink, too . . . and may prove a real help. A product of General Foods.
